MG Ready To Close Big Product Deal With Skouras

of National Theatres, to discuss various phases of the deal, described as one of the largest planned for the industry in recent years.

It includes the vast theatre chain, with division points in Los Angeles, through Fox West Coast; San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake City, Denver, St. Louis, Kansas City and Milwaukee. Louis B. Mayer will begin studio conferences with the sales execs today.

They will be joined for these conferences, for the discussion of 1942-43 product, by Howard Dietz, promotion head; Si Seadler, advertising director, and William R. Ferguson, exploitation director, all of whom have come here from the New York office. Thursday Mayer plans a luncheon conference between the eastern group and the producers and directors of the studio.

Before the theatre-deal conference with the Skouras group, Rodgers spoke with enthusiasm of business conditions in the industry.

'While naturally there are "lows" and "highs" due to population shifts to war centers,' he pointed out, 'film theatres in general are enjoying excellent business. They are extremely busy at their important job of maintaining civilian and military morale.

'Particularly significent has been the sensational success of 'Mrs. Miniver'. Here in Los Angeles it broke all records, in not one but five theatres. It has been held for additional playing time in every one of the 131 engagements to date. It did an unheard-of 10 weeks at the Music Hall, New York, playing in that theatre alone to 1,500,000 peoplé.

'This underlines one important truth. Americans, while wanting variety in their film entertainment as always, are not seeking so-called "escape" shows exclusively. The war is here and, when a great story comes along with a war background, it gets enthusiastic support.'

Hollywood Honor Men

Bill Saal, special representative for Herbert J. Yates, studio head at Republic, has been notified to report Aug. 20 for physical examination for induction into the Army. Saal was due to take his 'physical' this week but was granted delay in order to finish his supervision of an army air force film in Chicago.

Leonard Janofsky, film Guild attorney, leaves tomorrow for Quonset Point, R. I., to become a lieutenant in the Naval Air Corps Intelligence service.

Sullivan For 'Live'

Barry Sullivan steps into prominent supporting role in the Pine-Thomas production, 'You Can't Live Forever,' which has Chester Morris and Jean Parker in top spots. Rand Brooks and Bill Nelson also signed for the picture.

SHIP DRIVE HITS JACKPOT; BOND TOTAL TOPS $5,000,000

that started over the weekend were still coming in at midnight.

As the Treasury Minute Men, women of the Naval Aid Auxiliary and other volunteer workers relaxed after their smashing two-week Bond-selling campaign, War Savings Staff accountants and Hollywood theatre employes dug in all the harder, confronted by a mountain of orders for War Bonds, with only 24 hours in which to assign and deliver seats allocated to late purchasers.

HANCOCK'S 50G BUY

First in line with a check yesterday was a representative of the District Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which had voted a $15,000 subscription, in addition to the $3,000 purchase already made by Local 946 of the same union.

Among the last under the wire with big purchases were G. Allan Hancock, $50,000, and a downtown commercial house, $67,500.

Film names again were prominent in the buying, with last-minute purchases adding these to the already long list of Hollywood personalities scheduled to attend the 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' premiere: Victor Saville, Lou Halper, Harry Cohn, Walter Huston, Victor Moore, Nancy Coleman, W. S. Van Dyke, Dore Schary, Sam Katz, Pandro Berman and Mendel B. Silberberg.

The War Savings branch office at 6443 Hollywood blvd. will remain open today and will continue to take orders for Bonds, since a number of purchasers are turning in the tickets allocated to them to be sold over again and further swell the multi-million total. Bond sales today, however, are being made without any guarantee that the purchaser will obtain premiere tickets.

Objective of the drive has been fully realized, with total sales more than equivalent to the cost of the three big Liberty ships now under construction at the Wilmington yard of California Shipbuilding Corp., as part of its 224-ship program for the Federal Maritime Commission.

Sponsor of the first of these three vessels to be launched, the 'Horace Mann', will be chosen from among the ladies present in the premiere audience. Joan Leslie, who has the feminine lead opposite James Cagney in 'Yankee Doodle Dandy', will pick the name of the lucky lady who will christen this ship from a sealed container. In the event Miss Leslie pulls out the name of a man, the honor will go to a woman of his family, for tradition decrees that ship sponsors must be feminine.

NAVY BAND TO PLAY

Scenes outside the theatre tonight will match those on the screen to some extent, for much of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy', the life story of George M. Cohan, deals with that great showman's contribution to national morale in World War No. 1. And the wartime flavor will be more pronounced in this Treasury-sponsored premiere than in any Hollywood opening since this war began.

The crack 40-piece band from the San Diego Naval Training Station will be on hand, to parade and play for the crowd an hour before the picture starts. Soldiers have been detailed to help 100 Los Angeles police maintain order and direct traffic. Privates in olive drab will sit next begowned glamor girls from the film colony, while gold-braided officers will find themselves between a social leader and a labor union chief. Representatives of the armed forces in all grades, from private to general, have bought War Bonds for this premiere.

Premiere proceedings will be broadcast over KFWB.

Par To Reissue 'Dawn,' 'Beachcomber' Aug. 15

Paramount will reissue the Gary Cooper starrer, 'The General Died at Dawn' on Aug. 15, along with 'The Beachcomber,' starring Charles Laughton. Par figures to cash in on the wake of 'Sergeant York' in which Cooper starred for Warners, duplicating the recent move of United Artists which re-released 'The Real Glory,' another Cooper film of the first World War.

tors, signed by the Stromberg unit.

Miss Brown, who resigned several weeks ago as eastern representative for David Selznick after 10 years in that post, was tabbed by Stromberg immediately upon her arrival from New York for the officer and executive spot. She will spend about 10 days here conferring with the producer, and then pull out for the east to set up New York office organization and personnel; later dividing her time between the two coasts, and headquartering at the studio during preparation and production.

producership on a number of features. Team was later split into single units, both with good results. Morosco still has a number of stories to do in the budget classification but it is possible he will be permitted stronger casts to elevate a number of these stories to upper brackets. Likely to be included is 'Voyager To Nowhere'.

Indie, Chain Theatres Bicycling Prints

New York, Aug. 11.—Though chain and indie theatre operators are strongly disapproving the practice, both groups are 'bicycling' prints where possible to aid in film conservation. Circuits which were formerly the most antagonistic to cycling films are now the most enthusiastic supporters of this method of easing the print problem.

Jennings Assists 'Kim'

Al Jennings has been assigned at Metro as assistant director on the Technicolor feature 'Kim' starring Mickey Rooney. Richard Thorpe will direct the Victor Saville production.

F-WC Rushes Offices For Switchover From New York

With alterations of Fox West Coast offices being rushed to completion for the event, National Theatres Corp. is expected to officially move from New York to L. A. on Saturday. Day and night shifts are laboring to finish the revamped offices by that date to receive arriving NT executive personnel headed by Harry Cox, treasurer.

Only about six key men will move in from New York, it was stated, to join Ed Zabel, film buyer, who has been here for some time. Other help such as clerks, stenos, etc., will be picked up locally.

Work on F-WC Club, eating and gathering place for execs and employes, located in the building, also is being pushed. Restaurant service will be eliminated and a cafeteria policy will prevail to allow for faster turnover, since it's expected that about 30 persons will be added to the lunching mob. Also expected that invited Film Rowites will be restricted to after 1 p.m., to allow for the increase.

Kanin Returns to Army In Enlisted Ranks

New York, Aug. 11.—Refusing to accept a commission or to have anything further to do with films, Garson Kanin returned to the Army last week in the enlisted ranks of Upton, New York.

Kanin, drafted more than a year ago from Hollywood where he was directing for RKO, was assigned to the training film production unit at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. He was mustered out with men over 28, and immediately began making morale pix for OEM film unit. Government red tape and dissension caused Kanin to decide to nix the official film production units and fight the war with a gun. Hence, Camp Upton.

Odlum Likely To Step Into RKO Setup

New York, Aug. 11.—Floyd Odlum still looks like a strong candidate to step into RKO executive ranks within the next few months and take a more active and personal part in the activities of the company. It's also possible he might become chairman of the directorate in place of Richard Patterson, Jr.

Peter Rathvon, as prexy, has stabilized the company's financial structure by obtaining $3,000,000 in loans from the First National of Boston, as expected.

Atwill entered a formal plea of not guilty to the new indictment and was ordered to appear for trial Sept. 15.

Move in Local 33 To Oust Cooper As Business Agent

Secretary Lindy Smith. Prexy Roy Hostetter said he had no alternative but to table it unless Group desired that it be referred to the board of directors. Group declared he expected it to get no consideration from the board, but would like to see it posted where the membership could read it.

Group declared that one studio union is now paying a working member a nominal salary to handle the duties of business representative, and said similar action should be taken by Local 33, with any savings resulting to be invested in War Bonds. The resolution as proposed by Group stated:

'Whereas, Local 33 of the IATSE now has only 2,112 members, of which less than 50% are regularly employed; and

'Whereas, each member of this union is now being urged to buy War Bonds and Stamps to the extent of at least 10% of his earnings, and is being solicited for contributions to other patriotic and charitable causes; and

'Whereas, the United States Government is calling upon unions as distinguished from individual members to invest their surplus in War Bonds and otherwise to aid in the War effort; and

'Whereas, it is felt that our Local can substantially reduce operating expenses by employing our present secretary or some other member of the organization to perform the light duties of a business agent at a salary of $20 to $30 per week instead and in place of our present business manager, who receives a salary per week and also is an international officer of the IATSE and draws a handsome salary as such,

'Now, therefore, be it resolved: That the members of Local 33 recommend that the by-laws be amended in such manner that a business agent now working at least part-time be employed at a nominal salary not to exceed that of a theatre operator, and that any person holding an international office in our organization and receiving a salary therefor be disqualified to act as business agent of our local; that a working business agent's interests would be centered in our Local rather than in the welfare of the International; and

'Be it further resolved: That the members demand that steps be taken immediately to prepare and present the amendments to said by-laws heretofore mentioned; and is the English stepfather; Marta Linden, the sweetly negative mother. Juanita Quigley intelligently appraises and skillfully carries through the role of Rooney's full sister. Young Raymond Severn is amusing and admirable as a little lordling who becomes Mickey's devoted pal. Peter Lawford ably enacts the light heavy, against whom Rooney pits himself in the contests which furnish the more active drama, chiefly a steeplechase. Tina Thayer is amusing as the juve seductress who toys with Mickey's romantic nature and gets him into a serious jam—responsibility for the death of his stepfather's finest hunter. Alan Mowbray garners laughs as the Englishman who, an old steeplechaser himself, manages to get the lads to a crucial contest in time to assure Rooney's triumph over his adversary. Alan Napier is the victim of a farced battle in a pub. Terry Kilburn has a good part as a student.

'Be it further resolved: That any sum of money saved by reason of the foregoing be invested in United States War Bonds.'

Norman Taurog directs with his competent craftsmanship, making the most of the comedy situations and the juvenile concerns in the light and superficial story by George Oppenheimer and his scriptmates, Lionel Houser and Thomas Phipps. Lack of an important goal in so pretentious a picture precludes genuine emotional appeal to give added sock to the laughter. Period of the picture is indefinite, but before the war, at which it doesn't hint.

John W. Considine, Jr., put his veteran care and caution into the production, mindful of the British market as well as the American, and giving his company's salute to a neighbor and ally in an amiable piece of entertainment.

Technical credits are worthy—Karl Freund and Charles Lawton directing the cameras, Bronislau Kaper's excellent musical score, the set decorations by Edwin B. Willis and Henry Grace, and special effects by Warren Newcombe.

Dooley Wilson fills a good Negro comedian spot, and others lending good support include Grant Mitchell, Larry Nunn, Dennis Hoey, Rhys Williams, Cecil Cunningham and Frank Richards.

Production accoutrements are in the usual elegant Metro style. Songs by Arthur Schwartz, E. Y. Harburg and Harold Arlen are first rate. Herbert Stothart's fine musical score is ably conducted by Georgie Stoll, and Ray June's photography is of his accepted high standard. The art direction and sets, gowns and other contributions are in keeping.

David Loew To NY, Lewin Stays Here

David Loew will leave for New York on Aug. 21 for an extended stay, with Al Lewin, who had planned to go with him, remaining behind for several weeks to complete final details for release of 'The Moon and Sixpence.' This will be the final Loew-Lewin film.

Dimitri Tiomkin is scoring the final musical sequence this week.

has a lark clarity and range and is used with feeling in 'Little Tingle-Tangle Toes', as a solo, and 'You and the Waltz and I' and 'Tulip Time', shared by her with the other girls. The story and the songs are mutually expressive with a unity not often achieved.

Van Heflin belongs to the tale as if it had been written expressly for him. His mannerly behavior, his nice sense of laughter-edged drama, his persuasive personality here find a good vehicle for these talents, and will add materially to his fast-growing star stature.

Marsha Hunt creates a fascinating role as the posturing ingenue who eventually by-passes the reporter in her determination to be a great actress, with the help of her indulgent father.

S. Z. Sakall earns a constant succession of chuckles in his harried efforts to look after the welfare of all his pretty, romantic daughters, mixed with a few moments of genuine emotion. Cecilia Parker, Diana Lewis, Peggy Moran carry off the honors as the other daughters. Isabel Elsom is prominent as an old hotel guest, whose relationship to the girls is almost that of a mother. Carl Esmond and Lewis Howard are outstanding suitors. Donald Meek makes much of a comedy scene as he performs a multiple marriage ceremony. Louise Beavers is the outspoken maid.

Frank Borzage stamps the material with characteristic sensitive and understanding direction, getting maximum effect from the light sentimental drama and its neatly coordinated musical score, and giving every player a good shot at his alley.

The original screenplay, filled with skillfully dovetailed human values and expressive craftsmanship, is by Walter Reisch and Leo Townsend.

Franz Waxman's musical score is eloquently appropriate. Ernst Matray did the dance direction, topping in the tulip festival numbers, spectacular, colorful. George Folsey's photography is exceptionally good, production richness being one of the strong merits of the picture. Edwin B. Willis contributed the elegant set decorations, with Jack Moore the associate.

Walter Jurman and Paul Francis Webster wrote the exceptionally appealing 'Little Tingle-Tangle Toes' and 'You and the Waltz and I' numbers, and Burton Lane and Ralph Freed contributed 'Tulip Time'.

MG May Take Flyer; This Time Welles

Orson Welles' penchant for seemingly getting himself ito one scrape after another, has apparently not affected his Hollywood desirability.

Although it appears he is definitely washed up with RKO, he may bounce into a spot at Metro. Latter studio takes longshot chances with artistically-inclined persons, and most recent was the gamble on William Saroyan. Underground states Metro execs are interested in taking a flyer with Welles.

Exhib Bucks Squeeze Play by Stretching Tent Theatre

The answer to priorities on theatre building in boom areas around army and navy camps has been found by Earl Strebe, Palm Springs and Arrowhead exhib, who opens a tent film theatre on the outskirts of Las Vegas this weekend. Months ago Strebe sought to open a house in the two-theatre town but met with a squeeze play from the existing opposition and house was finally not permitted to open. Having obtained materials and supplies before the advent of priorities, stuff laid around the town for several months. Strebe finally securing grounds outside the city limits.

Tent will probably have a capacity of around 1,000. This almost matches the 716 and 500 seats of the Palace and El Portal. Venture must necessarily operate on a subsequent run policy.

Population growth of Las Vegas has been heavy. Huge government magnesium plant in construction adding to the military increases. Completion of the plant will add more and create a happy hunting ground for ambitious indie exhibs.

It is understood that many indie exhibs are interested in this particular situation and would like to cash in on the gravy.

However, Fox-West Coast is not looking on with fond eyes. Circuit regards the town as normally unsuited to its operation, and does not want to move in on a boom and exit with a reverse boom when it's all over. Furthermore, clauses in the consent decree do not permit theatres affiliates of the five majors to move in on situations in which they have had no prior property. They are only allowed to buy up opposition on invitation.

New twist follows close on the heels of a similar freak move by Earl Calvert, Lompoc, Cal., exhib, who seeks to cash in on an improved situation in his own one-theatre town. Calvert is converting an abandoned super market into a 500-seater and opens shortly to garner some of the coin available from soldiers.

Both ventures may well be the keynote to mass move on the part of theatre operators who find population increases in such areas inviting and who, because of priorities or other obstacles, cannot otherwise crash the gate. Also, while tent exhibiting has never enjoyed any great success, the abnormal demand for more seats in hypoed territories may well spell success now. Development is especially adaptable for summer and other mild times and for sun-soaked West and South, while also permitting ventilation and coolness.

Conference Delays Action on ASC Application

No action will be taken by the Conference of Studio Unions tonight on the application of first cameramen for affiliation. It is understood application will be shelved pending return from New York of Prexy Herbert Sorrell and Glenn Pratt, Conference delegates from the Screen Office Employes Guild.

It is understood Prexy Fred Jackman of the American Society of Cinematographers will appear before the Conference tonight to discuss application. He will point out that the cameramen will not be bringing any problems to the Conference for settlement, since all members have been instructed to drop their membership cards in the IATSE. It is probable Jackman also will ask action be delayed until Sorrell is present.

The union fight for control of first lensers apparently has settled into a stalemate, with IATSE Local 659 awaiting word from Prexy Richard Walsh to move, and both the IATSE and International Brotherhood of Electricians marking time pending action by National Labor Relations Board on the unfair labor practice charges filed against Producers and the IATSE by the ASC. NLRB Director William Walsh returns from Arizona today, with the possibility some word may be received at that time from the Board in Washington.

Juke Discs Decrease; Backlog Heavy

Juke box operators report a sharp decrease in the number of records being released by disc manufacturers last week following the Aug. 1 deadline on American Federation of Musicians members making discs. Where releases normally average between 50 and 75 new tunes weekly, last week the supply dropped to 12. Discers have plenty of stock, having built backlogs since ban was first announced. They are rationing to avoid a famine later if ban is continued.

TOP-BRACKET FEATURES HURT BY FLOOD OF 'SPY' MELLERS

New York, Aug. 11.—Heavy crop of budget war pictures slated for release during the 1942-43 season is beginning to backfire, according to talk in trade circles. Some major film story editors have already been told by production-distribution departments to ease up on buying war scripts too far in advance of actual requirements. Reason behind order is that too many B films with war backgrounds are beginning to spoil the market, which means top pictures, regardless of cost or excellence, will find themselves playing a glutted field and possibly suffering a corresponding box office beating from the war-satiated public. Another reason is the conservation problem.

Some companies are reported considering holding back war pictures already completed for this year until next year's release schedules just to beat the public's nix that seems sure to develop if present war film production pace continues. Practically every studio in Hollywood is currently screening its next film packages, all of which are heavily dotted with 'B' spy and kindred melodramas dealing with current world conflict. Predominance of such budget pictures will make the box office going more difficult for the special productions covering topical events, informed circles forecast.

In case companies decide to hold back a number of finished films until next season, topical yarns might lose values, but it will give the higher-bracketed war pictures a better chance in the market. Currently the big features are enjoying strong public favor, but story heads are becoming more discriminating. One editor stated, 'It takes more than a war title sandwiched between trite situations to make a good war picture.'

Story editors also have a major problem getting scripts with fat parts for women. Any number of yarns with good parts for male stars, which normally would be snapped up, are being passed because the type of material mostly sought by studios is for the femme leads.

Question of balanced screen fare, which threatens to become out of line this year owing to predominance of war themes, also is causing study. With Metro, 20th-Fox, Warners, Universal and RKO shooting schedules comprised of anywhere from 15% to 40% war pictures, question of a varied film diet is considered vital. Paramount currently has 20 war pictures either preparing or in story form. If all the war themes bought by the company are released during the coming year, more than 55% of the Paramount schedule would consist of war pictures. It is understood studio will not release all the war features lined up for season, although theme will still form a substantial portion of the schedule.

Conservation May Go Before FDR

believe might seriously hurt the industry.

Though manufacture of raw film stock includes use of nitrocellulose, ingredient in explosives, it is reported that pressure for cutting entertainment films is due primarily to Army-Navy requirements rather than because the essential materials are consumed.

The Army-Navy film needs admittedly come first, but the trade can't understand why requisitions ostensibly are so high. No figures of Army requirements are available, but are known to run into a huge volume of footage.

Owing to experiences with other industries, the WPB is inclined to classify film industry suggestions as promotions. Film producers, on the other hand, are inclined to view the WPB suggestions with skepticism, not being convinced the Government needs are as extensive as they seem. Opinions have been voiced that need for a closer understanding between the industry and the WPB would be mutually beneficial.

It was pointed out that although there are many film production men in the armed services, there is no distribution system to obtain the maximum use of pictures.

Studio Illustrators Nix Wage Offer

Studio Illustrators voted unanimously last night to reject the counter wage proposal submitted by Producers, and authorize its negotiating committee to 'take whatever steps deemed necessary' to enforce its demands. Situation will be called to the attention of the General Membership of the Screen Set Designers at its next meeting Aug. 24.

Producers offered a minimum scale of $2.25 per hour for illustrators. Union had demanded a minimum of six dollars per hour or $240 per week.

20th Dolls Up Short On Heroes' Day For Fox-WC

'Cavalcade of Courage', short made of the reels shot around the visiting service men of the United Nations on War Heroes Day in L. A., will be released this week by Fox West Coast theatres throughout the circuit.

Six-minute reel was cut from mass of film shot during the visit and polished up at 20th-Fox studios. Don Wilson did the commentary, Leon Birnbaum wrote a musical score, Jim Simmons created the Bond sales promotional montage, George Watters of F-WC edited and Pepe Torres cut the film.

After a screening for F-WC district managers yesterday, short was announced as ready for release.

REPORTS circulating that Gene Autry will start work Saturday at Republic in a picture titled 'Sergeant Gene Autry' hasn't received official confirmation from the United States Army, Autry's present boss, as yet. While studio is hopeful that he will be available soon for a picture, no word has come down from Washington that actor will be given time for film making. Understood that Autry will likely draw a 15-day furlough some time in the near future to clear up personal business matters hanging fire since he rushed into service. If okay comes through, Republic expects to be able to do one of three scripts it has ready. As a protection against future possibilities, studio is keeping its contact with Autry alive by sending all notices, etc., to actor on dates due. Week ago last Saturday, while Autry was still in Chicago, Republic notified him by letter to be ready to start a picture by Aug. 15, and the notification for the record undoubtedly gave rise to rumors he would go into a feature Saturday. Autry transferred to Santa Ana air base Tuesday.

EDITOR of a magazine dealing with outdoor life and the sporting field has a campaign on against Walt Disney's 'Bambi,' allegedly charging animated cartoon reflects on the sportsmanship of American hunters. Campaign has resulted in picture getting publicity breaks in columns and other spots that usually duck film news. About month ago editor requested Disney attach a foreword to his picture, stressing that film was only a fantasy. As final prints were ready he didn't get far with his request and as studio pointed out such a foreword wasn't necessary since the story is a well-known fantasy.

REPUBLIC has received a foreword from Generalissimo Chaing Kai-Shek for its production 'The Flying Tigers' glorifying activities of the former American volunteer fliers in China. Foreword reads: 'Since the Flying Tigers first spread their wings in the skies above China, the enemy has learned to fear the intrepid spirit they have displayed in face of his superior numbers. They have become the symbol of the invincible strength of the forces now upholding the cause of justice and humanity. The Chinese people will preserve forever the memory of their glorious achievements.'

'DOODLE' BOND TAKE AROUND $5,800,000; SMART PREMIERE

'Yankee Doodle Dandy' had its Hollywood premiere last night at Warners. The house was packed with 'bonded' customers, and the Bond take was around the $5,800,000 mark. It will take several days to get the entire count from auditors working on purchase slips, but the Southern California War Savings Staff had a feather in its cap by beating the astounding Bond sale for premiere of this film in New York last May.

Opening was smartest that Hollywood has had in many years. It brought out the purchasers of Bonds from $25 to $100,000 and more from every walk of life to the show that proved the means of providing the equivalence and more for the building of three 10,500-ton Liberty ships by the California shipbuilding Corporation.

Outside of the theatre was jammed from early afternoon with the starworshipers who cheered almost every entrant into the theatre as they passed the long line of gazers on their way in. Hollywood was well policed by sailors and soldiers and the local police department, from Vine street to Highland avenue, with traffic detoured to just permit the 'bonded' audience to get to the theatre.

Eddie Cantor and host of announcers worked at the mike and did a broadcast over KFWB while the San Diego Naval Training Station band played military and popular airs in front of the theatre throughout the evening.

Howard D. Mills, state administrator for southern California of the U. S. Treasury War Savings Staff, read a telegram from Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, congratulating the volunteer workers and staff of the War Savings Staff of So. California and Warner Bros. for a magnificent job in the Bond sale. Mills also told the audience that the goal set out for in the sale of the Bonds has been achieved.

There was a most colorful tableau at the start of the show, with a sailor chanting the National Anthem surrounded by color-bearers, buglers and a bevy of Naval Aid Auxiliary workers who had participated in the Bond sales. Mills introduced Loyd Wright, chairman of the campaign, who thanked all concerned for the aid and support they had given in the sale. Joan Leslie was in the assemblage and drew the name of Sam Stark, 303 East 9th street, from a fish bowl, who will be sponsor at the launching of the Horace Mann, a 10,500-ton Liberty ship which will go down the ways in about two weeks.

The entire cast, with the exception of James Cagney, who is on a Bond-selling tour, was on hand, with Michael Curtiz and Hal Wallis, who, besides Cagney, had bought Bonds but were in the east on production work.

Show got under way at around 9 o'clock and broke as midnight struck.

Eastman Reduces Divvy

New York, Aug. 12.—Eastman Kodak today reduced its quarterly dividend to $1.25 per common share, payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record of Sept. 5. Stock has been paying $1.50 since 1939 but corporation net income declined about $3,000,000 to $7,462,336 for the first six months of this year, despite a 33% increase in sales.

Wake Island

(War Melodrama)

Paramount production. Features Brian Donlevy, MacDonald Carey, Robert Preston. Supporting players: William Bendix, Albert Dekker, Walter Abel, Mikhail Rasumny, Rod Cameron, Bill Goodwin, Barbara Britton, Damian O'Flynn, Frank Albertson, Phillip Terry, Philip Van Zandt, Keith Richards, Williard Robertson, Marvin Jones, Jack Chapin, Rudy Nobles, John Sheehan, Charles Trowbridge, Mary Thomas, Mary Field, Richard Loo, Earle Tex Harris, Hillary Brooke, Patti McCarty, William Forrest, Jack Mulhall. Director, John Farrow. Screenplay by W. R. Burnett and Frank Butler. From records of the U. S. Marine Corps. Photography by Theodor Sparkuhl and William C. Mellor; second unit photography, Harry Hallenberger. Aerial photography, Elmer Dyer and Wallace Kelley. Photographic effects, Gordon Jennings. Process photography, Farciot Edouart. Tradeshown at Ambassador theatre, Aug. 12, 1942. Running time: 88 MINS.

Reenacting the terrific Jap attack on our Pacific island outpost last December at the outbreak of the war, and graphically displaying the heroism and fighting spirit of the small band of Marines who fought off—and severely damaged—the repeated Jap drives to take the virtually unfortified isle, 'Wake Island' is a patriotism-arouser that will blast top grosses in all bookings.

As a showcaser for the indomitable and unconquerable spirit of the U. S. Marines, picture makes onlookers proud to be Americans. As a vivid and explosive display of modern warfare, it hits the peak of cinematic presentation. Authenticity to the entire picture is provided by fullest cooperation of the government and United States Marine Corps, which passed picturization of actual happenings as closely as possible to point up to the American people just what the boys in the front lines are up against in modern warfare.

Story opens for short prelude to acquaint onlookers with conditions on Wake prior to the Jap attack. There's a small Marine force of less than 400 men, 12 planes, a few naval guns emplaced, and a group of civilian workers shipped to the outpost to erect buildings and quarters.

Brian Donlevy arrives via plane as major at the post, while by-play by a couple of tough devil-dogs, Robert Preston and William Bendix, provide solid comedy with their continual bickerings. There's a brief officer reception for the Jap envoy, Kurusu, Clippering to Washington to insure peace between the two countries; and then the radioed word of attack on Pearl Harbor on the memorable Dec. 7.

Then came the Japs. A 24-plane squadron attacked with devastating effect, while the small group of Marine planes were staggered to keep four in the air at a time. Despite the odds, many Jap bombers were knocked out, but the others continued on to drop bombloads for plenty of destruction before being driven off. During interlude, an underground hospital and plane hangars are dug; but the Jap fleet arrives to start further shelling. Donlevy holds fire of the short-range guns until the attacking ships are close enough for direct hits, and then the Marines open up to virtually blast the Japs out of the wa-

Iceland

(Musical)

20th-Fox production. Stars Sonja Henie, John Payne, with Jack Oakie, Felix Bressart, Osa Massen, Joan Merrill, Fritz Feld and Sammy Kaye and his orchestra. Supporting players: Sterling Holloway, Adeline DeWalt Reynolds, Ludwig Stossel, Duke Adlon, Ilka Gruning, Eugene Turner, James Flavin, William Haade, James Bush, Carol Curtis Brown. Director, Bruce Humberstone. Producer, William LeBaron. Original screenplay, Robert Ellis, Helen Logan. Photography, Arthur Miller. Lyrics and music, Mac Gordon, Harry Warren. Skating ensembles, James Gonzales. Art direction, Richard Day, Wiard B. Ihnen. Set decorations, Thomas Little. Film editor, James B. Clark. Costumes, Billy Livingston. Makeup artist, Guy Pearce. Sound, Eugene Grossman, Roger Heman. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 12, 1942. Running time: 79 MINS.

What happens when a Marine meets an Iceland belle is musically told in 'Iceland'. The Sonja Henie skating magic, Sammy Kaye's orchestra and the singing of Joan Merrill are high spots of interest for ticket buyers shopping for light, tastefully presented entertainment in the best filmusical manner. First to portray Uncle Sam's forces on the northern island, picture shows an advanced people, equipped with modern luxuries, above the popular conception. Topical theme and the marquee names mean a handsome box office tingle.

John Payne is the smart Marine who finds Iceland girls just as receptive as femmes of other lands—except for an inclination to take a romantic line seriously. The Marine gets embroiled in an Icelandic custom—requiring the marriage of the eldest daughter before her sisters are eligible—when his amatory passes at Miss Henie head him straight for the altar, pushed by the skater and her family who want the second daughter to capture a wealthy herring packer's son. This is one situation the Marine doesn't have 'well in hand' and he winds up in a matrimonial trap from which there is no escape—and none wanted.

Original screenplay by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan amusingly treats the Scandinavian naturalness toward love and marital obligations in dialog and situation, and provides the light, contrived story framework for the copious display of Miss Henie's work and the other production embellishments. Continuity is not always smooth, due to apparent heavy trimming that holds footage to 79 minutes, but the paying customers won't be inclined to find fault.

Miss Henie's artistry hits its peak in the Panamanian production number, in which she and partner, Eugene Turner, gracefully adapt the tango to ice in a thrilling display of rhythmic motion. Maintaining her high standard are the Chinese and Hawaiian numbers. Payne hits a neat stride as the rambunctuous Marine, frankly after the ladies—and not doing so badly. Jack Oakie injects his clowning as Payne's buddy who makes a valiant effort to save the altar-bound Marine. A good job in the Oakie manner.

Sammy Kaye and his orchestra give lilting presentation to the Mack Gordon-Harry Warren tunes, all whistleable. Joan Merrill vocals 'You

Berlin Correspondent

(Melodrama)

'Berlin Correspondent' will give a good account of itself in nearly all situations. A tightly-knit story is crisply told in direction and playing under the producer guidance of Bryan Foy to rate feature well above average for the double bill market. It joins the current cycle of war themes but because of its general excellence it stands better chance in competition with formula spy melodramas now flooding distribution channels.

The careful direction of Eugene Forde handles the suspenseful events found in the Steve Fisher-Jack Andrews original script with force, pointing situations for well-founded thrills at a speedy clip. Plot has to do with efforts of the Gestapo to discover how Newscaster Dana Andrews manages to slip information to America in his apparently innocent daily broadcast from Berlin. Andrews is getting away with his secret until blonde Virginia Gilmore is put on his trail. She loses her Nazi sympathies when she finds her father is the source of the reporter's information. There is neatly plotted escape executed by Andrews to get her father out of the country and he repeats with another good stunt to get himself out of a concentration camp and into Switzerland.

Miss Gilmore makes good use of her talent and charms and Andrews is a believable American newspaperman doing his bit from the Nazi stronghold. Mona Maris repeats another of her capable enemy agent assignments, and Martin Kosleck is again the hissed-at Gestapo chief. Sig Ruman, Kurt Katch, Erwin Kolser, Torben Meyer and others in the cast are most acceptable.

Forde's direction adds a certain quality to performances that matches the expert supervision of Bryan Foy. Virgil Miller's photography is excellent, as always. Emil Newman's musical direction, the sets, art direction and editing are all first-rate jobs.

Show Biz Honor Men

SOEG Negotiations For Exchanges Under Way

New York, Aug. 12.—Screen Office Employes Guild negotiations for Coast Exchange Collarites started today in Pat Casey's office here. It was stated negotiations were progressing amicably and that another session would be held Thursday morning, with possibility of contract being okayed by end of week.

Company representatives included Robert Mochrie, W. C. Michel, Neil Agnew, Thomas Murray, A. W. Schwalberg, A. Montague, Joe Vogel and Harry Buckley. Union representatives are Business Representatives Glenn Pratt, Herbert Sorrell, Paul Nostrom and Blanche Cole, all of whom came east for the confabs.

tion could not be dictated either by producer or distributor, that theatres had their own policy and could not be asked, because Goldwyn had a picture to sell, to alter their policy to conform with the demands he is making.

The RKO heads are aware that exhibs are plenty burned about the 50-50 terms Goldwyn is trying to exact from them for playing the picture, and do not want to go further and make the 'single bill' demands for fear of losing bookings on the film.

Greater part of the RKO houses, especially the neighborhoods, have a double bill policy, and it is said Alperson feels it is wise not to deviate from it, even though Goldwyn might be pleased. On the other hand, the greater majority of the RKO accounts sold by the Depinet organization also are operated as double bill theatres, and the distribution organization does not feel it would be justified in even trying to force the single bill thought, or even proffer it to the exhibs, who might pass up playing the film.

The meetings with Goldwyn will continue today, but it is understood that the 'Exhibitor's Pal' will be all alone on his demands and that the RKO men, who pull out for the east on Friday with Malcolm Kingsberg, will not alter their stand as to the 'single' bill idea.

in the policies of your Government. You were democratic in every sense. You told President Roosevelt this a year and a half ago, and said when leaving the White House at that time, 'If ever the time comes, remember I want to help.'

You made good your word. You are helping in more ways than you know. It is not your personal enlistment that means so much as the fact that Clark Gable unflinchingly and unselfishly is doing his bit. That will mean others who may or may not have been hesitant will follow your example and do their's.

IT'S a great spirit you have. Others will absorb it, and from time to time we'll hear around the country, as well as in Hollywood, 'I'm no different from Clark Gable; I won't try angles to get a soft berth; I'll do it the hard way—start at the bottom and learn; and if I deserve the bars or maple leaf on my shoulders, they'll get there quickly enough, and I'll owe no debt of gratitude to anybody but myself for getting there.'

Clark, that's a great way to feel. And there'll be plenty more from Hollywood who'll feel that way, too. Maybe with thanks to you, and maybe to themselves. But that's how a winning military force is built, and not through the swivel-chair route. You are showing the way to many.

Good luck, Godspeed, and always remember that Hollywood is proud of you beyond words.

ter, and ruse successfully stops the attempted landing forces.

After another air attack from Jap planes based in the Marshall islands to further blast the island, and with ammunition going fast, the enemy launches a combined drive by planes and ships. Donlevy decrees no surrender and the staunch band of Marines go down fighting against insurmountable odds.

Cast is a well-selected group of aggressive and battling characters who continually convey the impression they're real Marines, hardened by the training and traditions of the service. Donlevy is a standout as the major who directs the island's defenses and sets up his small force for maximum resistance. Preston and Bendix click solidly as the two buddy Marines who delight in ragging each other. MacDonald Carey catches attention with brief appearances as the flyer who successfully attacks the intruding Japs, and finally sinks a Jap cruiser in a suicide foray. Albert Dekker, as the civilian contractor; John Sheehan, as his job foreman, and ground mechanic Mikhail Rasumny are most prominent in supporting footage, although all others listed dovetail neatly in their respective roles.

Backgrounds display most vivid and realistic reproduction of the Wake Island outpost, while both script and direction fully carry out regulations of the Marine Corps and its outline for best defense when attack comes. Direction by John Farrow keeps up a consistently fast pace throughout, with film editing in the attack sequences particularly accentuating the patriotic appeal.

Present activities of the Marines around the Solomon Islands are bound to add impetus to the naturally top b.o. rating of the picture. It's up to Paramount to get key run bookings during present exploits of the devil-dogs to enrich both the distributor and theatre with greater profits.

Can't Say No To a Soldier', 'There'll Never Be Another You' (the two best), and also is aided by Sammy Kaye's vocalists on 'Let's Bring New Glory To Old Glory' and 'I' Like a Military Tune'. A catchy number is 'Lover's Knot', Gordon-Warren folk tune used for a polka turn announcing Iceland engagements and attractively sold by three uncredited lookers. Musical program benefits by the direction of Emil Newman and James Golzales' skating ensembles add color.

Felix Bressart socks over the characterization of Miss Henie's father. Osa Massen is the attractive, and matrimonially impatient, second sister. Fritz Feld has his laughs as a marriage broker, and Sterling Holloway makes a comedy success of the forlorn suitor for Miss Henie's hand. Others show well in support.

William LeBaron's production guidance in story preparation and camera setups is showmanly in every step, reflecting a sure and experienced hand at turning out first-rate filmusicals that collect box office coin. Arthur Miller's photography merits a big credit, as do the other productional contributions, all top-notch.

National Labor Board Closes Complaint; IA Preps Lenser Movein

raphy and said notice that all cameramen must have 659 cards would be served on Producers the first of next week.

Attorney Dave Sokol, who with Milton Mitchell represents Local 659, said the NLRB in Washington had notified the regional office here that a complaint would not be issued on the ASC charge, and that following the usual custom in such matters, the ASC had been given the privilege of withdrawing its charges.

Prexy Fred Jackman of the ASC insisted no action had been taken by the NLRB, and said the case had been withdrawn primarily because it was blocking consolidation of the ASC and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with whom the first cameramen are now affiliated. He said this merger would be carried out in the near future and that IBEW had made it plain it intended to protect the jurisdiction of the first cameramen. He said appeals, etc., on an NLRB decision would have prolonged the fight.

Attorney Sokol said failure of the NLRB to issue a complaint indicated the first cameramen did not compose a proper bargaining unit within the meaning of the National Labor Relations Act. He said this action confirmed the IATSE contention that the current five-year pact between the Producers and ASC is invalid since it was made with an improper bargaining unit. He said the ASC case was similar to that of the directors when the NLRB had ruled against the Producers when they attempted to prove that directors and assistants should be in separate bargaining units.

With the NLRB having closed the case, the IA International is expected to throw its support solidly behind Local 659 in its move to assume jurisdiction over all cameramen. IA Prexy Richard Walsh when here recently is said to have cautioned against any drastic action until after the case had been disposed of by the NLRB.

In its unfair labor practice charge, the ASC claimed the Producers had bargained with IATSE Local 659 for first cameramen after having already made a wage agreement for them with the ASC. The charge later was amended to include the IATSE.

The first cameramen have applied for affiliation with the Conference of Studio Unions, but no action was taken at the meeting last night because of the absence from the city of Prexy Herbert Sorrell and Glenn Pratt, delegate to the Conference from the Screen Office Employes Guild.

Business Representative Herbert Aller of IATSE Local 659 said last night the resignation of Virgil Miller had been accepted, but no action had yet been taken on several resignations sent to the union by the ASC. He said the IA took the position the ASC was a company union, and that action had been deferred on the resignations until it could be determined whether they were made freely by the individuals themselves.

ed at one time by Grand National with Frank Stern, vice-president of the District Bond Company and a former vice-prexy of the Security National Bank, has formed Fine Arts Studio Corp., to exercise an option to buy the studio property and its interests, held by Grand National, of which James Davidson is trustee. The new Fine Arts Studio Corp. is incorporated for $750,000 and will be the home for Fine Arts Productions, Inc., a $1,000,000 corporation, which will make the 18 films. Release will be by Fine Arts Exchanges Corp., which has a corporate capital of $100,000.

McGuire, prominent New York banker, who previously has been interested with Warner in film projects, will have control of management both of the producing and releasing companies, as he is to supply the coin for the productions to be made and the establishment of the exchange setup in key centers around the country.

No definite budget for individual or overall has been set on the project, though plans are to rush the first picture into work in September for release Nov. 1.

Currently on the Fine Arts lot are number of producers based, including Pine-Thomas for Paramount, Sam Coslow, Gregor Rabinovitch, Ben Judell and a Columbia unit. Rentals on lot will continue under the new setup as studio has seven stages.

Actors Name Delegates To State Federation

'INSIDE' STORY ON GABLE SHOWS WASH. WIREPULLING

one of his rooters is President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Gable's sincerity never has been questioned, but because the spotlight of publicity beat fiercely on his every public act, and because Hollywood pressure was applied to keep him in civvies, the star never was considered for a combat unit commission. It's an interesting case, full of wire-pulling and cross-purposes, none of which swayed Gable from his intention of fighting for his country.

Gable became completely sold on the Roosevelt foreign policy early in 1941. He and his wife, the late Carole Lombard, were invited to the White House for a Presidential broadcast. They sat between Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and the President's mother, the late Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, with the only others present being members of the Cabinet and Congressional leaders. The Gables were honored guests, though Gable had been active on behalf of Wendell Willkie in 1940.

On that visit to the White House, Gable expressed his conviction that the United States was bound to enter the war and it was his intention to be in it. Before he departed for his hotel in a White House automobile, he gave this word to the President:

'God keep you, Mr. President, and if ever the time comes, remember I want to help.'

Three days after the Pearl Harbor sneak attack he wrote a personal letter to the President offering to enlist and declaring his wish to be in the combat service. His studio was disturbed at the prospect of losing one of its most valuable assets and was in touch with the Chief Executive's office before F.D.R. replied to Gable.

Then came the letter advising Gable to continue to make pictures in the interest of public welfare. This disappointed the star but did not swerve his resolve to serve in the fighting forces. When Carole Lombard came east on the Treasury tour that cost her life he came to Washington and conferred with Major General F. H. Osborne of the special services branch about the work of the Hollywood Victory Committee. Gable could have had a commission and a desk job in this branch, but repeated that he wanted to fight and that was all. That visit was made without consultation with any of the bigwigs of Metro.

Army politicians then got busy trying to smooth the way for Gable's commission. The studio resented this intrusion of officers seeking glory for themselves and stood on the Roosevelt letter. Gable took no part in these backstage efforts to put him into a uniform with shoulder decorations.

In early July he came to Washington and passed three days here fulfilling the preliminaries for joining the Army Air Corps. His papers were duly filed for official action and it is believed he would have been called up eventually, but no influence was used to hurry the commission.

Then came the Tony Martin case in California and, coupled with the belief of many anti-Administration leaders in Congress that too many Hollywood celebrities were entering the Army and other services the easy way, they were prepared to erupt. Gable picked the hardest branch of the service because of his preference to be a machine gunner, which requires long and arduous training.

So Gable entered the Army Air Corps and will advance the hard way. The Corps is delighted to have him both because of his patriotic spirit and because of the prestige he enjoys in public esteem. He's too old to be a combat flier, but can become a machine gunner or bombardier after tough basic training. At no time was he slated for a major's leaves, that commission having been awarded him solely in the imagination of news scribes.

One of the closest advisers of the White House said to Daily Variety's correspondent today: 'Gable is all he-man and he lives up to the screen reputation for vigor and manhood. He is an asset to the Army and an inspiration to the young men of America. He begins at the bottom, but with his courage and spirit you are going to hear more about Clark Gable as the war progresses. You can't keep that kind of man down. He thinks there are more important things for him than making pictures. Who will say he is wrong?'

ble took the oath of allegiance and joined the armed forces of his country.

Helen Brush, gal bulber for the L. A. News, crashed a cordon of bayonets on the 17th floor where Colonel Andrus swore Gable in, and made a flock of pix of the ceremony. Hundreds of femme employes in the building and a crush of outsiders made a determined effort to crash the show, but got the rush act from the armed guards who were under strict orders to nix all females who did not have proper press credentials. Only other women present were reps of City News Service and N. Y. News.

Ralph Wheelwright, Metro chief flack under Howard Strickling, shepherded Gable to the scene of induction. Hollywood bulber entourage arrived in full complement and all downtown dailies as well as photo syndicates were present and accounted for. Cameras worked for full hour and a half with Colonel Andrus issuing the orders. A newsman observed to Wheelwright that a certain pose looked corny, and flack shrugged it off, saying, 'I can't help it, he don't work for us any more.'

Gable was as nervous as a treed catamount throughout, especially when the moment arrived when he raised his right hand and repeated the oath. Perspiration beaded on his brow and he confessed his legs shook with the solemnity of the moment.

'This is the toughest job I've ever had to do,' he admitted to a press correspondent. 'But what a relief that all the fanfare is over. I am a very proud guy that Uncle Sam has looked me over and found me fit to do what's wanted of me.'

Private Gable goes into the officer candidate school at Miami Beach to undergo intensive training to become a machine gunner in aerial combat.

Lamour Has Top Spot With Service Men, Survey Shows

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—Dorothy Lamour holds soft spot with servicemen and they boosted her to No. 1 box office rating in camp theatres in July. 'Beyond the Blue Horizon,' Paramount release, was top grosser with the soldiers. Following in order were: 'Wings for the Eagle,' 'Cross Roads,' 'This Above All,' 'Flight Lieutenant,' and 'Take a Letter, Darling.'

Given some few camp dates, but not sufficient for July tabulation, were: 'Eagle Squadron,' 'Pride of the Yankees,' and 'Footlight Serenade.' Pictures listed attracted such patronage in special showings that there's every indication they will be among August's box office champions.

Camp bookers say Miss Lamour must be given credit for uniform pulling power with soldiers in view of the fact that most critics labeled her release 'corn trimmed with a sarong.' Pat O'Brien is credited with the pull for 'Flight Lieutenant,' with star value accounting for the others.

Army Motion Picture Service is installing intricate machines that will register with precision the pulling power of stars at the box office. AMPS intends to prepare and issue at the end of 1942 the '10 favorite stars of the American Army' as determined by the grosses of their pictures.

GUILD WARNS PLAYERS ON UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Approximately two-thirds of the idle extras applying for State unemployment insurance are turning thumbs down on war work or training courses leading to such employment. This was disclosed by the Screen Actors Guild yesterday in a notice cautioning atmosphere players that the 'suitable employment' clause in their protective insurance cushion is open to interpretation.

After pointing out that in theory an extra is entitled to his insurance unless he can be offered suitable employment, SAG told the extras:

'But the term "suitable employment" is open to interpretation. In a national crisis, the first consideration is not whether it's suitable to the individual, but to national welfare. In most other fields, the unemployed have gladly accepted transfer to war industries where they are badly needed. The Hollywood office of the United States Employment Service reports that there's been a serious lag in the actor group in consenting to such transfers.

'In recent weeks, Guild members who have applied for unemployment insurance have been asked (provided they're physically able and citizens) whether they would be interested in war work or in starting training courses for such work. Two-thirds of those interviewed said they weren't interested.

'Because America hopes to enlist its soldiers of production voluntarily, men and women aren't being forced to take production jobs, no matter how acute its need. But the employment offices have been authorized to cease issuing insurance checks to people who, because they refuse war industry work, can no longer be classified as available for employment. If your being an American is more important than your being an actor, this is no time to hesitate about taking a non-acting job.'

Employes (CIO) petitions for National Labor Relations Board elections.

The SPOEG answered the Paramount drive by comparing contracts, stressing their peaceful negotiations were more fruitful than the MPOE strike technique. SPOEG also brought in the Browne-Bioff background, since the IATSE settled the MPOE strike at Warners.

The SPOEG answering the UA drive issued a form letter signed by the chairman of the UA chapter. Letter stressed their original brushoff by the AF of L, hammered past and present IA leadership, and mentioned the American Society of Cinematographer advertisement in Daily Variety Aug. 6. It also said rank and file were intrigued with juicy wage tilts plus a practical closed shop.

MPOE rebuttal is that their pacts have a maintenance clause requiring dismissal of anyone not in good standing and that MPOE contract does not call for minimums.

MPOE tactics at Paramount and United Artists is obviously to stall and wait for a break. The SOPEG's NLRB hearing on Paramount unit was postponed suddenly from Aug. 13 to Aug. 19 at request of the IATSE. The petition has been before the NLRB for three months. The IA didn't enter the picture until after the MPOE victory started the Paramount drive.

Par 'Island' Reopens Darkened Rivoli

New York, Aug. 12.—Paramount's 'Wake Island' will reopen the darkened Rivoli theatre with a world preem on Sept. 2 via a new joint operation deal between Par and UA, latter operators of the house. Statement was coupled with the announcement of Par joining UA in a reported 10-year deal to split operations on Rivoli.

UA continues to manage the theatre in conjunction with a committee composed of two reps of each company, according to announcement. George Skouras, William P. Philips, for the circuit and Leon Netter and Robert Weitman for Paramount. It's expected that theatre's policy will be to play Paramount as well as other long-runs. Deal obviously gives Par an additional Broadway house for strong b.o. films.

Westwood Ice Revels Lacks Stars, Finesse Of Other Troupes

Another ice troupe skated into town last night to display its wares on the Westwood rink. Those who have viewed the leg-in-the-air skimmers with Ice Follies and Icecapades won't find much to cheer about in this aggregation. It's strictly class B compared with the others and has only one name to hang out in the billing—Belita, the English blader last seen here with Icecapades. Others are more or less unknown and lack the finenesse of the big time performers. The arena was less than one-third filled.

Billed as 'Ice Revels of 1943,' the frapped revue suffers badly by comparison with Follies and Escapades in nearly all departments. Routines lack originality or distinction and the specialties are rough stencils of what has been seen many times before. Self-styled champions race around the rink with the abandon of kids on a pond but the net result isn't satisfying or conducive to long lines of ticket buyers despite the hurrah whipped up by the downtown sheets.

Ice fans, who by now know who the toppers in the refrigerated sport are, won't get excited over such names as Maribel Vinson, Guy Owen, Jimmy Ceasar, Hubert Spratt, Norton Waite, Doug Duddy, Skee and Lee, Brownie LaTosco, Inger Kragelund, Irving Gregg, Jerry Jarrette, Jean Sturgeon, Hayes Carlin and Virginia Lutz. Downtown sport pages call it a cast of 90 stars. Mebbe it's done with mirrors and imagination. Andrew Crevolin is listed as producer and Harry Losee staged.

The wise mob won't be stampeded into that long drag to Westwood by the sport page ballyhoo unless it's an appetizer they want for the Follies soon to pitch at Pan Pacific auditorium.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

AS a means of underwriting a possible loss of 'Marquee Name' stars to the armed forces, 20th-Fox has taken to exploiting story properties in its current production schedule. At the same time, it is attempting by the use of color to offset government restrictions against lavish productions. For example, of the 30 major pictures announced for the fiscal year which began Aug. 1, exactly 13 are taken from established literary works. This is five more than were produced during all of the previous year. Of those remaining, nine will be in Technicolor, three more than were made last year. This leaves only 12 pictures that are neither in color nor are made from published novels.

AFTER a year's trial it's still a problem to get exhibitors into exchange screening rooms for tradeshow runoffs of films. Average attendance at a Film Row screening is a mere few unless the picture has had a word-of-mouth buildup. In that case more come for personal enjoyment rather than information. 'B' films are almost totally ignored, and situation is true all over the country. However, Paramount's screenings are the one exception. Since inception of the tradeshows, Par has hired out the Ambassador hotel's theatre, getting all around too results, which may or may not indicate that the boys want a little dressing with their turkey.

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

Beneath the sycamores in gentle June
When whippoorwills and twilight were in tune
Your grandpop breathed an honest lovelorn croon
And grabbed your grandma for a honeymoon.
So who are YOU to kick about a dim-out?

You are so accustomed to glaring lights nowanights that you will miss them when they are dimmed out. It was not like that when your old man was a kid and night meant darkness except for a gas lamp in the middle of the block, where all the bugs, beetles and moths congregated for a merry-go-round after sunset. You sat on the curbstone across the street and wondered at the buzzing crowds that beat their wings against the glass panes. Later you learned more bout lights when the Butterfly theatre spread its wings on Grand Ave. It was a nickelodeon, showing a new form of entertainment known as moving pictures, along with Amos the Greek Strong Man, who had appeared before all the crowned heads of Europe, Juanita, the Choctaw Indian Princess, who sold beaded moccasins on the side, and a nasal tenor who sang 'After the Ball' with slides. The picture was the 2:12 pace at the Wisconsin State Fair, showing six horses striding down the home stretch with Hazel Patch winning in 2:05¾, a new record for black pacing geldings with one white fetlock on that track in 1899. It wasn't Hazel Patch or Juanita that drew you to the theatre. It was the big butterfly from which the house derived its name. It was the first electric sign in town, stretching all of 40 feet across the front of the building and looking like what a butterfly might look like if it were ablaze with bulbs. There came other signs, bigger and more brilliant, making the poor little butterfly look like a moth, and after a while you didn't notice electric signs any more. It was like listening to a lot of guys on soap boxes around election time, trying to outshout each other. Maybe a dim-out will help to unbewilder the film customers.

Life is one quiz after another. You were quizzed when you were a freshman, and if you answered all the questions you were advanced to the sophomore class, where you were quizzed some more. Our educational institutions might learn something from the radio quizzes. The double-or-nothing system would reduce the college term to two years, which might ruin a lot of football teams but would improve a lot of farms and factories.

You can always depend on Hollywood to meet any crucial situation. With the dim-out coming on, there are at least four pictures with 'Moonlight' as part of the title.

Desperate Journey

Warners-First National picture. Stars Errol Flynn, Ronald Reagan. Features Nancy Coleman, Raymond Massey, Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy. Supporting players: Ronald Sinclair, Albert Basserman, Sig Ruman, Patrick O'Moore, Felix Basch, Ilka Gruning, Else Basserman, Charles Irwin, Richard Fraser, Robert O. Davis, Henry Victor, Bruce Lester, Lester Matthews. Director, Raoul Walsh. Producer, Hal B. Wallis. Original screenplay, Arthur T. Horman. Photography, Bert Glennon. Sound, C. A. Riggs. Film editor, Rudi Fehr. Technical advisor on R.A.F. sequences, S/L O. Cathcart-Jones, R.C.A.F. Art director, Carl Jules Weyl. Special effects, Edwin A. DuPar. Dialog director, Hugh MacMullan. Gowns, Milo Anderson. Makeup artist, Perc Westmore. Orchestral arrangements, Hugo Friedhofer. Musical director, Leo F. Forbstein. Music, Max Steiner. Assistant director, Russ Saunders. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 13, 1942. Running time: 109 MINS.

High action and topical interest for all marks 'Desperate Journey' as a box office picture. Coupling its timely subject with the marquee values of the Errol Flynn and Ronald Reagan names gives the picture first rate coin potency. The suspense is maintained at a gripping pace, properly leavened with well-spotted chuckles, under the direction of Raoul Walsh. Hal B. Wallis' production supervision makes showmanly use of the dramatic punch in the Arthur T. Horman original script about the flight of fugitive R.A.F. fliers across Germany. The picture is long, 109 minutes, and the action at times reaches peaks of noise that will rock a theatre, indicating need for careful attention to sound controls.

Story starts its thrills early when a Hudson bomber leaves England on a bombing mission. German ack-acks bring the ship down in the Black

Across the Pacific

(Melodrama)

Warner Bros.-First National production. Stars Humphrey Bogart. Features Mary Astor and Sydney Greenstreet. Supporting cast: Charles Halton, Sen Yung, Roland Got, Lee Tung Foo, Frank Wilcox, Paul Stanton, Lester Matthews, John Hamilton, Tom Stevenson, Roland Drew, Monte Blue, Chester Gan, Richard Loo, Keye Luke, Kam Tong, Spencer Chan, Rudy Robles. Directed by John Huston. Produced by Jerry Wald and Jack Saper. Screenplay by Richard Macaulay. From Saturday Evening Post serial by Robert Carson. Photography by Arthur Edeson. Film editor, Frank Magee. Special effects by Byron Haskin and Willard Van Enger. Art directors, Robert Haas and Hugh Reticker. Montages by Don Siegel. Music by Adolph Deutsch. Musical direction by Leo F. Forbstein. Unit manager, Chuck Hansen. Assistant director, Lee Katz. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 13, 1942. Running time: 86 MINS.

Warners again assemble Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor, Sydney Greenstreet and Director John Huston—from 'Maltese Falcon'—for another successful and highly entertaining voyage into the field of melodramatic adventure.

Although the picture never hits the Pacific ocean to conform to the title, it is a neat and compact package of meller entertainment that will Click as topnotcher in the keys and regular runs. Besides providing further concrete foundation to the starring status of Bogart, it again focuses attention on the abilities of Miss Astor and Greenstreet. Director John Huston, who displays again exceptional abilities to pace the most minute dramatic episodes with audience-arresting interest, is now in the U. S. Signal Corps as a lieutenant, and will be missed for further teaming of Bogart, Greenstreet and Miss Astor.

Story, deftly adapted by Richard Macaulay from the Satevepost serial, 'Aloha Means Goodbye', by Robert Carson, had to have locale switched following sudden outbreak of the war. Carson's yarn started at Vancouver, voyaged down the coast, and hit for Hawaii to hit the climax. War necessitated change for start at Halifax, stopoff in New York, and wind-up at the Panama Canal. In making the background switch, studio left the original film title intact.

Bogart is courtmartialed out of the Army Coast Artillery and hits for Canada to enlist in the CEF. Turned down, he boards the NYK freighter Genoa Maru, bound for Yokohama and the Orient, where he intends to sell services to the highest bidder. Aboard ship he meets,

Phantom Killer

(Melodrama)

Monogram release. Stars Dick Purcell, Joan Woodbury. Supporting cast: John Hamilton, Warren Hymer, Mantan Moreland, J. Farrell MacDonald, Gayne Whitman, Kenneth Harlan, George Lewis, Karl Hackett, Isabel Lamal, Robert Carson, Frank Ellis, Harry Depp. Director, William Beaudine. Producer, A. W. Hackel. Screenplay, Karl Brown. Photography, Marcel Le Picard. Film editor, Jack Ogilvie. Sound, Glen Glenn. Production manager, Ben Gutterman. Assistant director, Dick L'Estrange. Musical director, Frank Sanucci. Previewed at Monogram studio, Aug. 13, 1942. Running time: 60 MINS.

Monogram draws another neat little program mystery from the A. W. Hackel production unit with 'Phantom Killer'. Directorial lift and production values, well set up for the intended market, are on the credit side. The cast performs easily and the story holes aren't so obvious that they hinder the movement. Dialog substitutes for action quite often, but the players handle the lines ably under William Beaudine's direction.

Plot of Karl Brown's script deals with mysterious murders committed by a man always careful to have witnesses. Dick Purcell, young assistant district attorney, believes John Hamilton, wealthy, deaf mute philanthropist, is the killer, but latter always has an alibi and proves his vocal chords are paralyzed, preventing speech with murder witnesses. Joan Woodbury is a femme reporter writing philanthropist's biography, who aids fiance Purcell and the police to finally get the goods on the murderer. Of course, everyone knows all along that Hamilton must be twins, one able to talk.

Both Purcell and Miss Woodbury put pep into their assignment, capably holding down the leads and making a good team. Hamilton's dual role is smartly carried out. Warren Hymer executes a dumb police aide to Kenneth Harlan, and Mantan Moreland spots a comedy Negro janitor for laughs. J. Farrell MacDonald, Gayne Whitman, George Lewis, Isabel Lamal and others do the good supporting parts.

Marcel Le Picard photographed and Frank Sanucci did the musical direction.

Bad Men of the Hills

Columbia production. Stars Charles Starrett. Features Russell Hayden, with Cliff Edwards, Luana Walters, Alan Bridge, Guy Usher, Joel Friedkin, Norma Jean Wooters, John Shay and Dick Botiller. Directed by William Berke. Produced by Jack Fier. Original screenplay, Luci Ward. Photography, Benjamin Kline. Editor, Richard Fantl. Art direction, Lionel Banks and Perry Smith. Assistant director, Milton Carter. Sound engineer, Frank Goodwin. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Aug. 13, 1942. Running time: 58 MINS.

The people of this story are not really bad men, but rather folks who have taken to the hills to escape the oppression of a crooked county government and who become tough only in self-protection. Neither is the filming of their plight a bad one. Rather, it is a compact and action-packed leather lope that will fill the bill for western fans in double berth situations.

Big, strapping and good-looking Charles Starrett strides through the unreeling as a fairly realistic puncher who is out to avenge the murder of a pal. Avoiding much of the usual corn in speech, Starrett delivers his lines in a crisp and firm manner, lending some conviction to his role and lots of life to the picture when he swings into action — and that's about six times.

Having murdered Starrett's pal, the crooked sheriff and his hoodlums invent a special ending for Starrett when the latter assumes the marshal's badge formerly worn by his buddy. They tie him to his horse and chase the nag into Chimney Pass, hideout of the 'bad men'. Starrett escapes the snipers who guard the hill folk and eventually brings them around to the point of storming the town and reestablishing themselves in society.

End comes rapidly for a change, and is not telegraphed, as usually done in sage sagas. Surprise fast fade maintains interest, giving the film a jolt, and keeps all the cactus-loving customers happy. Snappy direction in spots, particularly in the many fight scenes, are lifts. Story is somewhat off the norm, too, and general production, including some nice distance photography, further brighten. Cast is generally acceptable.

Asides of Cliff Edwards singing and guitaring, and Norma Jean Wooters, kid singer, are brought in at just the right spots, standing out when compared with the customary melodic mush found in westerns.

Newsmen Make Best Air Commentators, Says Blue Exec

Search for war commentators for the Blue Network is taking G. W. 'Johnny' Johnstone through the newsrooms of metropolitan dailies. After an exhaustive study of requisites for the job of sifting the news and commenting thereon, Blue special events and news head has concluded that newsmen are best fitted for the assignment. Editors and editorial writers are being given special consideration, with one or two downtown editors likely to be signed for a series.

Others rated by Johnstone as promising commentator material are retired military officers, who, he holds, have a better grasp of what's transpiring in the theatres of war than lay critics. Newsmen, however, get first choice from Johnstone, who feels they have a better sense of news values and know how to meet swiftly changing conditions. Blue Network is making a strong pitch for commentators to build up the most imposing staff in radio.

'STARS OVER AMERICA' DRIVE SPURS HUGE TALENT GALAXY

The greatest mobilization of motion picture talent to date in the nation's war effort was disclosed last night as the War Activities Committee announced the personality plans for the nationwide 'Stars Over America' tours which will spark the industry-sponsored billion-dollar Bond drive starting Sept. 1. With all studios cooperating, and the top stars offering their services, the Hollywood Victory Committee is still at work rounding out the list of the big stars necessary to put over the drive.

The following players represent those whom the studios are seeking to free from production, or who have volunteered if they can be cleared from heavy production pressure which exists at the present time: Walter Abel, Edward Arnold, Lynn Bari, Robert Benchley, Joan Bennett, James Cagney, Leo Carrillo, Claudette Colbert, Ronald Colman, Laird Cregar, Bette Davis, Laraine Day, Andy Devine, Irene Dunne, Alice Faye, Henry Fonda, Greer Garson, Janet Gaynor, Paulette Goddard, Hugh Herbert, Miriam Hopkins, Dorothy Lamour, Charles Laughton, Joan Leslie, Herbert Marshall, Dennis Morgan, Thomas Mitchell, Norma Shearer, Alexis Smith, Margaret Sullavan, Gene Tierney, Franchot Tone, Jane Wyman, Robert Young and Vera Zorina.

Launching the War Bond Drive with rallies in seven 'premiere cities' the 'Stars Over America' headliners will cover seven routes, appearing at mass meetings in 300 cities and towns and making side tours into rural communities as yet unprobed by screen star Bond sellers in person. With $300,000,000 as their share of the total quota, no bets will be overlooked, from mass meetings in major auditoriums to cornfield rallies.

While routing of the stars still is under way, Charles Einfeld, field director of the tours, has received enthusiastic reports from his advance men. From Newark, Mervin Houser quoted State Administrator John Manning as saying that every city in New Jersey is determined to hit the jackpot, with a goal of $35,000,000. In return for a half-day star visit, Trenton pledges an even million dollars in Bond sales. Newark has plans to raise another million dollars in six hours.

Following a meeting with Advance Man Bob Doman, William Klusmeier, chairman for St. Joseph county of the Indiana War Savings Staff, wired Einfeld that the 'Stars Over America' rally there will be utilized to increase the number of 10% War Bond purchasers from 6,000 to at least 25,000 persons.

Top pledge, $3,000,000 was wired by Connie Krebs from Memphis, following an all-day session with local committeemen.

Other reports from Gene Murphy, Dick Hyland, John del Valle and Don McElwaine, indicated that one city after another, impressed by the scope of the industry's campaign, is setting up machinery to assure the breaking of all previous records.

Fox-West Coast execs meet today with Charles Skouras, president, and Bond Drive Commando for California, to work out plans for the circuits participation in the industry's drive. Asked if they planned any special stage productions to hypo same replied that any type of stage presentation was very unlikely due to circuit not being at all equipped to handle such shows.

in the new feature, his pact having specified the particular detective character.

Cancellation of series after two seasons was result of disagreement between Columbia and holders of the Ellery Queen rights. Studio reportedly wanted to cut group to two pictures each year, but owners of the trademark were understood to have insisted on four as deal was originally set. When Columbia first launched its Queen series, Ralph Bellamy did the title role, with Gargan taking over this year. Group was first produced by Larry Darmour, and are now being turned out by Ralph Cohn at the Darmour studio.

Union Reps Will Meet With Bette Davis

Representatives of theatrical unions will meet with Bette Davis tonight at the home of Sam Albert, studio musician, to work out plans and appoint committees for a drive to establish a Stage Door Canteen here. Oasis would be patterned after the Canteen in New York, with all unions, including studio carpenters, painters, etc., as well as talent guilds participating.

Davis' group is starting on a fund-raising drive, while the union group's activities are concerned with organizing various labor units. Expected that meeting tonight will develop some definite plan of action now that both groups are working together.

opposed to minimums demanded by the SOEG because of feeling these rates will set a precedent for rest of country. General belief is that every effort will be made to reach some compromise agreement somewhere between the figures demanded by the SOEG and those offered by the companies.

The Guild has divided the employes into six classifications, and is seeking minimums ranging from $28.80 per week for typists to $72.80 for bookers. The company offered to start the minimums around $23.50, but is reported opposed to going higher than $50 for bookers. Some employes in lower brackets are now receiving only $18 per week, and it was pointed out a hike to $23.80 would be an increase for them of more than 25% with the contract subject to reopening after one year if living costs warrant.

Extras Paid $388,000 In July; Average $11.84 Per Diem

Film extras earned a total of $388,000 in July, including overtime and adjustments, it was announced yesterday by Central Casting Corp. This was a $100,000 increase over earnings for June and a similar increase over July, 1941.

The average daily wage was $11.84. The average number of extras working daily was 1,135, of which number 561 were placed by Central Casting. The remainder were requests or callbacks. There were 32,000 job placements during the month.

For the first time in several months there was a decided increase in the number of $5.50 players used, a substantial increase in $10.50 players, and a 25% decrease in $16.50 calls. The number of $5.50 players used was boosted 50%, while the increase in regular extras was 30%.

683 Officers Given Another Term By Membership

Secretary-Treasurer Norval Crutcher and other officers of Film Technicians Local 683 will be unopposed for reelection Sept. 2. They were unanimously nominated by the general membership at its meeting last Sunday. Other officers are Prexy Russell L. McKnight, Vice-Prexy Melvin G. Young, Recording Secretary Paul Jaffe, Business Representative John R. Martin, and Sergeant-At-Arms Charles Greenberg.

Seven executive board members will be selected from the following candidates: Ralph Blanchard, Bernard Schultz, Elmer Nies, Frank Regal, Jack Weiner, Arthur Leuenhagen, Dorothy Alexander, William Keel, George Shaw, Theodore Fogelman, Sam Horn, Fred Daneshaw, Carl Day, Henry Ballerino, Warren Transue, Dave Rothschild, Charles Adler, Warren Adams and Charles Montgomery.

Judd Scott, Linn Cooper, Julius Cindrich, Warren Adams and Al Schellenberger will compete for the three posts as trustees. Two delegates to the Central Labor Council will be selected from the following candidates: Russell McKnight, Norval Crutcher, Melvin G. Young, Theodore Fogelman and Marion Howard.

Al Schellenberger, who was nominated as a candidate for secretary-treasurer declined to make the race against Crutcher and withdrew. Members are said to have taken the position the present officers has secured better conditions and wages for the group than any past administration and thought it smart to keep them in office.

'Pied Piper' Also Gets Five-Theatre Debut

Following the simultaneous five-theatre showing locally for 'Mrs. Miniver' and 'Tales of Manhattan', Charles Skouras, prexy of National Theatres, has set 'Pied Piper' for a similar local debut starting Sept. 3. Houses will be Chinese, Loew's State, United Artists, Fox Wilshire and Four Star.

JACKMAN HEADS EAST AS STAGE SET IN CAMERA FITE

timatum to Producers calling for all film lensers to have 659 cards within a specified time.

At the same time it was reported that Prexy Fred Jackman of the American Society of Cinematographers was training east in connection with the proposed consolidation of ASC with IBEW Cameramen's Local 1318. It was understood Jackman would go direct to New York for conferences with executives there and then would proceed to Washington for a talk with Prexy J. Brown of the IBEW. While in New York, Jackman was expected to talk with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact; Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, and other labor leaders. Whether he would contact Prexy Richard Walsh of the IATSE was not known last night. Latter move was considered doubtful since the IATSE has refused to issue a separate IA charter for directors of photography and the majority of them now are affiliated with the IBEW.

It was believed Jackman wanted to contact Prexy Brown and International executive board members of the IBEW to determine just how far the IBEW could be expected to go in supporting the first cameramen. If satisfactory promises of support are forthcoming it was believed immediate steps would be taken to merge the ASC with IBEW Local 1318.

Jackman said the Wagner Act gave any group of workers the right to negotiate a contract with their employer and did not prohibit them from later affiliating with a union organization. He said such a step would not have any effect on the legality of the current five-year contract between the Producers and the ASC.

IATSE Local 659, however, takes the position that failure of the National Labor Relations Board to issue a complaint on the ASC charges indicated they were not a proper bargaining unit, and that a contract made with an improper bargaining unit would be invalid on its face. Prexy Richard Walsh is being kept advised of local developments because of his having been instructed by the IA general convention to give every support possible to Local 659.

It is further reported last night that studios, to avoid any further conflict on the use of cameramen, probably would send second cameramen who are members of Local 659 on location assignments. Business Representative Herbert Aller of Local 659 yesterday sent a notice to all first cameramen that no action would be taken on their resignations forwarded to the union by the ASC until they had been given a personal hearing before the executive board of Local 659. He said in this manner it would be determined whether the resignations were given freely or whether the cameramen had been coerced into signing them.

Prexy Jackman has withdrawn the ASC application for affiliation with the Conference of Studio Unions, advising officials of that organization that the first cameramen would reapply for affiliation as soon as they settled their dispute with the IATSE, which they expect to do within a month. He said cameramen thought the Conference was a great organization but they did not want to bring their problems to it to be solved, preferring to settle them before becoming a part of the group.

Doob, Aides Hold NY Huddle on Bond Tour Spots

New York, Aug. 13.—Oscar Doob, heading the film industry's September Bond drive, huddled today with the Public Relations Committee, Eastern Division, in an effort to iron out weak spots in the organizational effort. Earl Wingart, assistant in the PRC's secretary office, New York, and Milton Crandall, Universal exploiteer loaned three weeks to Doob's office, sat in on the session.

It was pointed out that some sour spots cropped up where merchants and others were not familiar with high-pressure lineup of film drive, and that some 10 liaison men were being shot to these points to contact top exhibitors on these committees to line up a solid front.

Doob sought PRC help in clarifying that the picture business is merely providing the impetus and merchandising devices in urging purchases that month, but that purchases of Bonds and Stamps can be made at any place not simply at film theatres.

On an industry census, the special PRC committee is going to employ a statistician and shortly send a questionnaire to exhibitors.

Mary Beth Hughes Has Two Going At Once

Mary Beth Hughes was assigned yesterday to feminine lead opposite Lloyd Nolan in 'Brasher Doubloon' at 20th-Fox, calling for her to appear in two pictures to shoot concurrently. U.S. BOUNCING OF UMPI SEEN IN MG 'GROUP OF 8' PLAN but was a great relief to Paramount, Warners and RKO, who were initially tied in with it at its inception. Universal, United Artists, Columbia and Republic were no part of it at any time, as well as the consent decree under which the distribs sold for the past season.

It had been proposed by Metro advocates that under the UMPI plan films would be sold in groups of 13, with only around five of them to be tradeshown and the balance of the films to be bought sight unseen, with the exhibs having privilege of canceling two of the pix not shown, but having to purchase the pics that were tradeshown.

Metro, in an announcement made by William F. Rodgers, vice-president in charge of distribution, at a studio luncheon yesterday, stated: 'These eight pictures are being sold now under the provisions incorporated under the UMPI discussions,' thus taking the easy route prior to formal announcement from the Department of Justice that the UMPI plan was out.

This was simple for Metro, as the eight pictures offered in the trade package to start of the 1942-43 season had already been shown to the exhibs. Pictures are 'Somewhere I'll Find You', last for Clark Gable prior to entering the Army; 'Tish', 'The War Against Mrs. Hadley', 'A Yank At Eton', 'Panama Hattie', 'Seven Sweethearts', 'Apache Trail' and 'Cairo'.

Besides Rodgers at the luncheon where the announcement was made, were his group of selling, advertising and publicity executives and the Culver City plant executives and producers.

Forest—one of the screen's top uses of miniature for a plane crash so real it takes the breath away. Five men survive, are captured and questioned. They make an escape, carrying vital information, and start the thrill-packed dash across Nazi Germany. They linger occasionally to commit a few acts of sabotage on their own, lose two members by death on the way, and finally make the last grab at freedom in a captured Allied plane that takes them safely back to England.

Flynn is at home as the swashbuckling Australian who commands the little party, giving one of his most likeable performances. Standout is Ronald Reagan, the cocky, wisecracking American member of the R.A.F., milking a fat part of every value. Alan Hale, World War 1 veteran, who dyes his hair to serve again, socks home a swell characterization. Sincerity and depth mark the work of Arthur Kennedy, cautious member of the fugitive group, and Ronald Sinclair, the kid of the party. Nancy Coleman, German girl who aids the fliers in an escape from Berlin and later near the Dutch border; Raymond Massey, the infuriated German major who guides the man hunt; Albert Basserman, a kindly German doctor; Sig Ruman, Patrick O'Moore, squadron leader who dies in the crash; Felix Basch, Ilka Grunig and others of the excellent cast do individually fine work.

The photography by Bert Glennon captures the mood of the settings and situations in top style. The special effects by Edwin A. DuPar are major contributions to the thrills, particularly the bomber's crash landing. Musical direction of the Max Steiner score by Leo F. Forbstein and the orchestral arrangements by Hugo Friedhofer rate special mention, and other technical aids are of the best.

and falls romantically for, Mary Astor, and becomes acquainted with Greenstreet, who's a professor at Manila university. Greenstreet later plies Bogart with liquor and makes a pitch for the latter to disclose military secrets of the Panama zone. Arrival in New York lets the audience in on secret that Bogart is still much in the Army—on intelligence duty to get the goods on Greenstreet and other Jap agents. Boat continues its voyage south, with Miss Astor still a suspect, and Greenstreet finally coming into the open with a direct proposition for definite information on Canal Zone defenses. Bogart accepts money for information to be obtained when the ship hits Colon. Information is secured and turned over to Greenstreet, with latter knocking out Bogart to escape to plantation disclosed as owned by Miss Astor's father but controlled by Jap agents. After meller, but well-knit, capture of the girl and the following of Bogart, with hidden Jap plane ready to bomb the Gatun locks, tale reaches climax with Bogart disrupting the entire plans of the Japs at the war's opening.

'Across the Pacific' is a timely and topical melodrama that will satch plenty of bookings in the regular runs. Supporting cast is ably set up, and technical contributions of high standard throughout, with photography by Arthur Edeson meritorious.

Patriotic Exhibs

Minneapolis, Aug. 13.—Ineligible for military service, Harry Dickerman and Ted Mann, prominent and successful independent circuit owners here, have hired out as harvest hands at $4 a day, plus keep, as a means of doing their bit in the war effort.

F-WC Pre-Gun Dim-Out Puts No Damper On Grosses

Voluntary dim-out of nearly all Fox-West Coast theatres in Southern California which was put into effect Wednesday night caused no drop in business, according to George Bowser, district supervisor. First night's example of normal business answers a worry that has been bothering exhibs who must follow suit on Army orders Aug. 20.

F-WC jumped the gun by ordering the shades pulled in 145 houses on Wednesday night, seeking to show whole-hearted cooperation, and set an example in the voluntary move. Only theatres in the Imperial Valley and Arizona were unaffected by the general order which was given following a district managers conference on Tuesday.

Houses followed official dim-out rules of eliminating all vertical signs, roof signs, exterior flood lights and decorative lighting, including neon, and the marquee soffit dimming order.

Kalmenson Heading For NY Today

Ben Kalmenson, Warners general sales manager, will leave for New York today, following a two-day studio and exchange visit. Kalmenson came in from Frisco with L. A. branch personnel who had attended regional meet there on Monday and Tuesday. Norman Weiser, western district exploiteer, who remained in Frisco following the conclave, is expected to arrive today.

Playhouse Preems '42 With 'St. Mark'

Pasadena Community Playhouse inaugurates its 25th year Sept. 28 with production of Maxwell Anderson's war play, 'The Eve of St. Mark,' which will be staged simultaneously in 50 other theatres throughout the country. Similar cross-country treatment of a new play last year was accorded a William Saroyan opus, which never got beyond the multiple theatre premiere.

Pat Weaver Arriving For Runyon Talks

Pat Weaver, onetime radio exec now in charge of production for Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, is due in today from New York for parleys with Jack Runyon, Coast radio chief of CIAA. From here he goes to Rio de Janeiro on his last official duty for CIAA before taking a commission in the Navy.

America Looks Abroad
with ROBERT ARDEN

The weekend brought little change in the situation. The battle for the SOLOMON ISLANDS continues and indications are that its outcome will be of far greater importance than expected.

On the RUSSIAN front, there was little change, with Nazi advances in Caucasus at a minimum.

The INDIAN situation appears quieter. Some observers believe it may only be the lull before the real storm breaks. I think a last-minute settlement looks still possible, since 'behind-the-scenes' efforts by Chinese and U. S. governments continue on Britain.

SEVERANCE PAY, VACATIONS IN SPG-WARNERS CONTRACT

New York, Aug. 16.—The Screen Publicists Guild of New York and Warners have inked a two-year pact that has been in the works since May of this year, and was not concluded until the Labor Department sent two conciliators to the scene. Contract is similar to agreements with the seven other majors, except for severance pay and maintenance of membership clauses, and these were obviously the result of the recent Warners contract with the Motion Picture Office Employes.

Severance pay runs up to five

LAWYERS in Washington who have previewed 'Talk of the Town' feel that Columbia Pictures should pull it back and remake the ending so that Ronald Colman gets the girl (Jean Arthur), and Cary Grant loses out in the romance. Bar Associations and barristers have been shown the picture at private screenings, give it the screen light on conflict between book law and realistic Blackstone as interpreted by the courts. Objection—and much of it comes from the Portias of the Capital—is that no girl in her right mind would turn down an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court with all that it implies. Jean Arthur chooses Cary Grant, without a job and prospects, as against a man on the highest bench, with assured social position, financial security and all the prestige that goes with the highest court. Love, they say, does strange things, but in this case the lawyers seem to agree it just doesn't make common sense.

CREDITORS of a defunct independent producing company that went through bankruptcy several years ago, and which had liquidating corporation set up to protect assets and income for eventual partial payoff, got a rude shock when coffers were empty—and the attorney accused of sidetracking income to his own personal checking account. Following receivership of the production unit for about a year, the attorney—as representative of the creditors—set up the liquidating company with authority to countersign checks with an officer of the group. When income report disclosed there was enough coin to cut a dividend creditors were apprised that there was no bank balance as the attorney had diverted the funds to his own personal use. After giving the lawyer suitable time to make even partial restitution, the creditors have instructed new counsel to prepare legal complaint.

IN the cocktail lounges of Washington they insist that M-G-M's forthcoming, 'The War Against Mrs. Hadley' parallels the career of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, the Capital's biggest party thrower. Not so, say the exploiteers. There is no similarity between the Mrs. Hadley of the screen and any living person, and none whatsoever to the owner of the Hope diamond. Edward Arnold and Fay Bainter are coming for the world premiere at the Capitol theatre on September 24. Carter Barron may fool the gossipers by inviting Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean to catch the first public performance.

On yonder hill a mansion stands,
A mansion sad to see,
Where once the strains of rumba bands
Were heard in tuneful glee.
But now it is a lonely sight,
A silent spectre, day and night.

A star lived there in days of yore
When lights and revels glowed.
He doesn't live there any more,
For he is on the road.
He toils today in Army camps
And sells a flock of Bonds and Stamps.

Music, Max Steiner. Orchestral arrangements, Hugo Friedhofer. Musical director, Leo F. Forbstein. Unit manager, Al Alleborn. Assistant director, Sherry Shourds. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 16, 1942. Running time: 118 MINS.

'Now, Voyager' has all the requirements for potent box office, tying in the Bette Davis name with a story lending itself handily to exploitation opportunities. Plot is away from the current war drama theme, another aid in a market running heavily to such topical subjects. First from the Hal B. Wallis production unit for Warners release, feature gives him a capital sendoff in his independent efforts.

Bette Davis is a perfect choice for the role of a neurotic, unwanted daughter of an aged mother, turning in a moving performance filled with warmth and color to catch audience sympathy. Irving Rapper again marks himself as a director with an understanding for searching, human drama, capturing the sweep of emotion that distinguished the Olive Higgins Prouty novel. Casey Robinson displays his craftsmanship in the screen adaptation for another of his top writing jobs.

Plot concerns a woman's rebirth into a human being after an affection-starved childhood that drove her to the verge of insanity. A wise psychiatrist catches her at the age of 28, a plump, dowdy woman, and turns her into a striking lady of warmth and a will for life. The cure is the doctor's rest home, followed by a world cruise during which she meets and falls in love with a married man. Unconsummated love is carried through to the end, yet audiences will understand their renunciation of physical union and the happiness they find, even though apart.

Co-starring with Miss Davis is Paul Henreid, who stands out as a future name to be reckoned with. In his second Hollywood film Henreid shows an artistry and personality that will push him far in box office value. Claude Rains, the doctor, is a high spot in the casting. Gladys Cooper, the frigid mother who nearly wrecks her daughter's life, makes a strong appearance.

Bonita Granville realistically portrays the snide niece who maliciously torments her mentally-ill aunt. Ilka Chase is the understanding sister-in-law who helps effect the cure. John Loder is the Bostonian suitor for the rejuvenated Davis hand. Among the smaller assignments is a standout performance by Janis Wilson, a neurotic girl whom Miss Davis saves from an existence similar

Secret Enemies

Warners-First National picture. Featuring Craig Stevens, Faye Emerson, John Ridgely, Charles Lang, Robert Warwick, Frank Reicher, Rex Williams, Frank Wilcox, George Meeker, Roland Drew, Addison Richards, Cliff Clark, Monte Blue. Director, Ben Stoloff. Screenplay, Raymond L. Schrock. Photography, James Van Trees. Film editor, Doug Gould. Art director, Hugh Reticker. Dialog director, Harry Seymour. Sound, Oliver S. Garretson. Special effects, Edwin A. DuPar. Set decorations, Casey Roberts. Gowns, Milo Anderson. Makeup artist, Pere Westmore. Assistant director, Don Page. Unit manager, Frank Mattison. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 16, 1942. Running time: 56 MINS.

'Secret Enemies' is a fast-moving little melodrama that will stand up okay in its intended market. The cast is able, the direction nicely paced and production setup excellent for budgeted expenditure. Story, while not novel, is well hung together and supplies plenty of movement to make the picture appear a short 56 minutes. Dealing with espionage and counter-espionage, plot sends a young attorney into the FBI when his buddy is bumped off by a bunch of spies operating from headquarters in a hotel owned by a wealthy elder client.

At first a suspect himself because of his attempts to get the clien't wife out of Germany, attorney soon proves which side he is on and it is largely through his efforts espionage ring is broken up. Unexpected angle

Busses Roar

Warners-First National picture. Features Richard Travis, Julie Bishop, Charles Drake, Eleanor Parker, Elisabeth Fraser, with Richard Fraser, Peter Whitney, Frank Wilcox, Willie Best, Rex Williams, Harry Lewis, Bill Kennedy, George Meeker, Vera Lewis, Harry C. Bradley, Lottie Williams, Leah Baird, Chester Gan. Director, D. Ross Lederman. Screenplay, George R. Bilson, Anthony Coldewey. Original story, Anthony Coldewey. Photography, James Van Trees. Film editor, James Gibbon. Art director, Stanley Fleischer. Dialog director, Harry Seymour. Sound, Francis J. Scheid. Special effects, Edwin A. DuPar. Set decorations, Clarence Steensen. Gowns, Milo Anderson. Makeup artist, Pere Westmore. Unit manager, Lou Baum. Assistant director, Bill Kissel. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 16, 1942. Running time: 59 MINS.

This one is strictly for the lesser run houses catering to smalltime action melodrama. Outside of the Subsequents and the neighborhoods there is nothing to recommend it, but in that market it will pay off well enough. 'Busses Roar' has a plot in the 'Grand Hotel' manner, with the theme brought up to the espionage and sabotage cycle. The players walk through the undistinguished lines, apparently in to gain camera experience.

Some nasty Nazi and Jap spies plot to hide a bomb on a bus bound for San Francisco. Demolition is timed to go off just as bus passes a vital oil field. Saboteurs have quite a time getting their bomb aboard, and have to murder a traveling salesman to do it. To keep it up to the minute in timeliness, a blackout is rung in, catching the bus before it reaches the blowing up place. Spies defy the blackout, take over bus, with passengers still aboard, and send it charging downhill toward

Call of the Canyon

(Western with Songs)

Republic production. Stars Gene Autry. Features Smiley Burnette, the Sons of the Pioneers, Ruth Terry, Thurston Hall, Joe Strauch, Jr., Cliff Nazarro, Dorothea Kent, Edmund MacDonald, Marc Lawrence, John Harmon, John Holland. Director, Joseph Santley. Associate producer, Harry Grey. Screenplay, Olive Cooper. Original story, Maurice Rapf, Olive Cooper. Photography, Reggie Lanning. Film editor, Edward Mann. Art director, Russell Kimball. Interior decorator, Otto Siegel. Musical supervisor, Raoul Kraushaar. Songs, 'Boots and Saddle', by Samuels, Whitcomb and Powell; 'When It's Chilly Down In Chile', by Styne and Meyer; 'Somebody Else Is Taking My Place', by Howard, Ellsworth and Morgan; 'Montana Plains', by Patsy Montana. Previewed at the studio, Aug. 14, 1942. Running time: 71 MINS.

This Gene Autry special goes more for action than elaborate musical numbers, and by that token should please more generally than several of the film cowpoke's other big-budgeted features. While songs are held to a total of four, they are given neat presentation by Joseph Santley's direction and the production framework provided by Associate Producer Harry Grey has excellent values. Autry fans will like his singing of 'Boots and Saddle', 'Somebody Else Is Taking My Place' and 'Montana Plains'. The fourth number, 'When It's Chilly Down In Chile', is capably sold by Ruth Terry.

Plot gives Smiley Burnette, comedy standby of Autry westerns, little to do, which is one of its weaknesses, figuring the Burnette following. Two story threads are woven together in the Maurice Rapf-Olive Cooper original, scripted by Olive Cooper. One has Autry fighting efforts of the agent of a big packing company to collect some private graft by undercutting buying price for beef. Other has Ruth Terry as head of a radio musical group, trying to interest a big beef packer in a sponsored air show. He likes the idea of a program emanating from a real ranch with real cowhands, and Miss Terry rents the Autry ranch during latter's absence. Beef packer visits homestead, finds cattlemen are gunning for his scalp, so hides his identity until he can find what's wrong. Action tossed in includes stampeding of a herd by plane, by dynamite, a runaway train, etc., plus a few fist fights, chases and some well-placed lead. In the end Autry gets his price for beef, the crooked agent is done in and Miss Terry gets her radio spot.

Autry does justice to his assignment for fan pleasure, this being his next to last picture before entering the Army Air Corps as a sergeant. Miss Terry's exhuberant personality and entertaining ways shows off her spot most ably. Thurston Hall milks the role of the beef packer who longs to return to the old west. Cliff Nazarro has a few moments of double talk, and Dorothea Kent, not seen often of late, makes a welcome appearance. Edmund MacDonald, Marc Lawrence and John Harmon are the villains and John Holland a thwarted singer. Sons of the Pioneers provide a vocal background for Autry's songs.

20th Workers Collect Bonds for Using Their Beans

Eight 20th-Fox employes have collected $525 in War Bonds from the studio's Conservation Committee for suggestions leading to improvements. Lee Crawford, assistant cameraman, was awarded a $100 Bond for devising a lifter to carry cameras.

Other $100 awards went to Arthur B. Chatelain, camera shop, for a film splicing device, and John Counsil, estimating department, for an improved stencil. Fifty-dollar awards each were given to Grady Willard, carpenter foreman, for a method of making a finished floor with paper; Ray Conway and Roy Lockridge, carpenters, for a new type of house moving dollies, and Roger Shearman, camera department, for film magazine racks for camera carts. Max Karb, machine shop, collected a $25 Bond for a feeding device for sun arc lamps.

Hollywood Honor Men

Frank McGrath, actor and stuntman at 20th-Fox, and former standin for Warner Baxter, was sworn into the Navy Friday.

Bill Shirley, Republic contractee for past year, has enlisted in the Army and reports for service tomorrow.

W. Stanley Holt, radio exec with William Esty agency, joined the Army as major and temporarily assigned to office of chief of ordnance in Washington.

Bill Walling, Universal still cameraman, has reported for active duty with the Navy as a chief specialist, with grade of chief petty officer.

Al Greenway, Warners makeup man, will be inducted into the Army within 10 days, going to an Air Force training center for bombardier training.

Jimmy Manask, now stationed somewhere in Alaska, has been promoted to corporal. Another former Hollywoodian, Jimmy Henegan, who was inducted six weeks ago, has been upped to corporal. Henegan is stationed in Colorado.

U RUSHES TO BEAT DIM-OUT; WASHES UP NITE PRODUCTION

In an attempt to beat the Aug. 20 dimout deadline, Universal is rushing night filming on three features under schedule rearrangements that will wash up after-dark production.

'Shadow of a Doubt', which Alfred Hitchcock has on location at Santa Rosa, will complete its night work by Wednesday, after putting in the past few days after dark so dimout order would work no hardship.

Company's 'Sin Town', which started last week, launched night filming on location to get part of its schedule out of the way. On 'Flesh and Fantasy', studio is moving a big circus set onto the sound stage for filming, as schedule would not permit necessary night shots before Aug. 20. Warners also is rushing night shooting on three pictures to beat the deadline. 'The Desert Song' started evening work Saturday and will continue until Wednesday. 'The Adventures of Mark Twain' will do night shots at the studio ranch tonight and Tuesday, while 'Princess O'Rourke' gets rid of its night scenes tonight at the studio.

RKO has covered a lighthouse exterior with a 200 x 200 foot canvas so it can continue shooting on 'Seven Miles From Alcatraz' at the Pathe lot in case the dimout order finds night work still uncompleted.

Obituary

RUSSELL PHELPS

Funeral services for Russell Phelps, 51, former newspaperman and studio publicist, will be held at 8:45 a.m. today at the National Military Home chapel, Sawtelle. Phelps died Friday at the Veterans hospital after an illness of 18 months. He was editor of the Omaha Bee at time of his induction in the Army during World War I. He came to Hollywood about 17 years ago and was publicist for United Artists for many years, and later with Fox West Coast and 20th-Fox. His widow, Betty; a son, Jeffrey, and a sister survive. Body will be interred in the family plot at Brookings, S. D.

PHILIPS HOLMES

Philips Holmes, stage and screen actor, was killed in a crash of two Royal Canadian Air Force planes in Ontario last Wednesday, in which six RCAF men were killed. Holmes, son of Taylor Holmes, who had a short contract period with Paramount 10 years ago, had enlisted with RCAF as pilot last year. Funeral services are being arranged in New York, where his mother, father, sister and brother are at present.

CHARLES IVOR McFADDEN

Charles Ivor McFadden, 54, early silent actor and producer, died Friday in Cedars of Lebanon hospital following brief illness. He appeared in a number of William S. Hart features, and later produced on his own. In recent years he had been playing bits in films. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today at Steen's mortuary, North Hollywood. Deceased is survived by a mother in San Francisco.

ISABEL JONES

Funeral services for Isabel 'Johnnie' Jones, script girl, who died Friday following brief illness, will be held at 10:30 a.m. today at McNamara mortuary. Surviving are her husband, T. Leonard Jones; brother, Harry Walker, and a sister residing in Chicago.

EDWIN HAMPTON ALLEN

Funeral services for Edwin Hampton Allen, 57, stage and screen actor, will be held at 2 p.m. today at Pierce Brothers Hollywood chapel. Interment will be in Valhalla cemetery.

Set Hollywood Canteen Location Tomorrow At Session

Meeting will be held tomorrow to reach a decision on one of three spots that will be used as quarters for the new Hollywood Canteen, entertainment industry place for dispensing hospitality and amusement to the armed forces.

Project, endorsed by the Hollywood Victory Committee, is patterned after the Stage Door Canteen, operated by the American Theatre Wing in New York, but in no way connected with that organization.

Sponsors so far include the following guilds and trade unions: Screen Actors Guild, Screen Cartoonists Guild, Screen Directors Guild, Screen Office Employes Guild, Screen Publicists Guild, Screen Set Designers Guild, Screen Writers Guild, Locals 47 and 767 of the American Federation of Musicians, American Federation of Radio Artists, American Guild of Variety Artists, Federation of Amusement and Allied Crafts, Film Technicians, Local 683. Others are expected to join list of sponsors.

Agreement was reached at special meeting last week of the guilds and trade unions to avoid overemphasis or glorification of any individual connected with those organizations or aiding in the arranging of details or entertainment, committee holding to belief that the canteen is an all-industry contribution rather than that of any individual.

Postpone War Relief Report Meeting

Final report meeting of the film industry's drive for Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Reliefs scheduled for Wednesday has been postponed indefinitely. The decision was made yesterday by the campaign committee when a weekend check up showed at least another week would be needed to put the drive over the top. It is hoped that a telephone survey Wednesday will show the drive past the 90% mark.

MG Has 'Without'?

New York, Aug. 16.—Price of Philip Barry's play, 'Without Love,' which opens on Broadway next month as Katharine Hepburn starrer, has reportedly been quoted as $260,000, with Metro understood to have the property tied up for pictures at that figure. Deal also involves further services of Miss Hepburn for the film after play finishes run locally.

F-WC Gang Picnics; All Prizes War Bonds And Stamps

Fox-West Coast's seventh annual picnic held at the Riviera Country Club Friday brought out some 200 employes and guests, event concluding early in the night and marked as the quietest get-together to date. Suddenness of event's announcement caused the light attendance, time being sprung on execs, partners and employees just two days before the meet.

F-WC offices shuttered at one to allow for the trek to the club where golf tournaments opened festivities around 1:45. Series of four golf flights, one for partners and guests, and the other three office events, occupied the afternoon.

Though Charles Skouras, F-WC president, failed to win first prize as he did last year in the office flights, he received a special sportsmanship gold cup.

War note was evident in prizes this year with bonds and stamps being rewards in all flights. W. H. 'Bud' Lollier copped first office flight to take a $25 bond. George Milner, second, received $10 in stamps; Gordon Hemitt, third, $5 in stamps, and Hal Rutherford, fourth, got $2.50 in stamps. In second office flight John Lavery, Bob Weeks, Al Hodson and Stan Brown came out in the order named to get same prizes. Third flight was taken by Freddy Stein, with W. W. Jenson and Herschel Morgan runners up.

the oil field. Valiant work of a girl, who used a comeon to get fare to San Francisco, and a kid passenger, save the day and the blackguards are rounded up to get their just desserts.

Richard Travis is deserving of much better casting. Julie Bishop, Charles Drake, Eleanor Parker and Elisabeth Fraser are the other featured castings, but it remains to Willie Best as a gin-drinking bus station porter to give the picture its best point. Peter Whitney, the Nazi agent; Chester Gan, the Jap, and Frank Wilcox, a detective, try hard.

A looker with talent, Miss Emerson should move along fast. John Ridgely acquits himself well as an FBI operative. Charles Lang has a good short spot as the friend who is killed. Robert Warwick, the master spy; Frank Reicher, the hotel owner; Rex Williams, Frank Wilcox, George Meeker, Roland Drew, Addison Richards, Cliff Clark and Monte Blue capably hold down their parts.

Ben Stoloff draws credit for the expert direction. James Van Trees photographed, and the other production credits are all in keeping.

ASC Defers Action On Ban Against IATSE Cards

non-compliance with the resolution. It was pointed out, however, that those failing to comply were liable to suspension or expulsion. Strict enforcement of ban today might have interfered with production, which the ASC said it was anxious to avoid if possible.

IATSE Local 659 has called a strategy meeting of its executive board and legal counsel for Tuesday night, but in the meantime was marking time and watching developments to see if any disciplinary action was taken by the ASC against lensers keeping their IA cards. Business Representative Herbert Aller of 659 said 41 resignations had been forwarded to the union, but claimed 10 of them had already been repudiated. He said those resigning would have to pay a $500 initiation fee to return, provided their application was accepted.

Aller has intimated that an ultimatum will be drafted at Tuesday night's session giving all cameramen a specified time in which to affiliate with Local 659. It was indicated that after that time IATSE members would decline to work with non-IA cameramen. The union claims it has many operating cameramen who could qualify as directors of photography and that there would be no interference with production.

The board of governors of the ASC met Friday night with members who have resigned from Local 659 and Attorney George E. Bodle, who has been retained as counsel because of the absence on vacation of Attorney Sam Wolf. Officials said that 52 of the 90 first cameramen affiliated with Local 659 had resigned up to Friday, and that resignations since have been averaging two or three per day.

Prexy Fred Jackman, before training east Saturday, told the lensers they had a valid contract with Producers. He said the unfair labor practice charge filed against the Producers and the IATSE was withdrawn by the ASC to expedite merger of the ASC with the IBEW. He said the action had no effect on the ASC contract, and that resignations of ASC members from 659 were effective immediately upon being signed and they served as a revocation of any agency given that organization to act as their bargaining agent.

Jackman was expected to confer with Prexy J. Brown of the IBEW while in the east to ascertain just how far the national organization could be counted on to support the cameramen in their jurisdictional fight with the IA. It was apparent over the weekend that each organization was attempting to jockey the other into making the first offensive move, with possibility a showdown would come this week.

EXTRAS CONDUCT ON SETS THREAT TO CLOSED SHOP

imagination covers such flagrant violations of working behavior. Such occurrences (and they've been too frequent to be tolerated), place the entire membership in a dangerous position. If Producers cannot, by filling their sets with Guild members, be assured of responsible workers, they will ask for the right to open their books to non-members. Both the Producers and the Guild insist that extras perform the work for which they're hired.'

After pointing out that in some instances the pay of a large number of $5.50 atmosphere extras had been revised to give them $10.50, the Guild stated:

'The theory behind such an upward revision is that the studio will get its money's worth in a more cooperative corps of extras. Instead, according to complaints received by the Guild offices, no sooner was the day's work launched than the extra players wandered off the set at will and were generally unavailable when needed.'

The SAG said it was among its objectives to secure the best working conditions and a strict Guild shop for extras, but these could not be achieved without full cooperation of the Guild membership.

The heavy calls referred to by the SAG were for $5.50 checks, but the studios raised the ante to $10.50 when Central Casting Corp. experienced difficulty in securing sufficient players. Studio casting departments complained they expected to get more experienced and a better class of extras by going into the higher pay bracket, but that it didn't work out that way.

It is understood the SAG plans to make a closer check of studio sets and that charges may be preferred against extras who flagrantly violate work rules by leaving sets while shooting is in progress, or without permission of assistant directors.

Fire Watchers Corps Sought in Studios

All studios are cooperating in organization of a Forest Fire Watchers Corps in the film industry, as requested by William V. Mendenhall, forest defense coordinator of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Mendenhall urged the greatest possible enrollment, pointing out that the danger of fires in southern California due to carelessness or sabotage is greater than ever.

Studios are being circularized with membership applications and forest fire warning posters are being distributed to stimulate interest in the FFWC's activity. Location department workers, spending much time in wooded areas throughout the state, are particularly active in the organization.

Through efforts of the War Activities Committee, a five-minute screen subject titled 'Vigilance', made for the Forest Service, has been approved for showing in West Coast theatres.

AND BROUGHT BACK FOR RETURN ENGAGEMENT IN OCTOBER

How the Critics Raved

W. E. Oliver in Herald-Express: This band has more of the downright boogie rhythm than any heard here since popular music really went hot.

Sam Abbott in Billboard: Count Basie moved into the Orpheum and first shot out of the box set a new record for the opening day. SRO sign was up all day.

Neil Rau in L. A. Examiner: Just what the jive-hounds and hipper-bugs revel in and right down their groove. Easily the top band — — — .

Frank Mittauer in the Daily News: Basis and his crew, who have speed and precision for a motto, play blues in a manner most other bands can't hope to approach.

Is Giving Your TIME Enough . . .
When American Boys are GIVING THEIR LIVES?

Many American boys—too many—are dying at this very moment in the inferno at the Solomon Islands. They know how to give . . . unstintingly, unreservedly, to the last drop of their blood!

And yet there are men and women in Hollywood who have not yet given MONEY to the Motion Picture Industry's Drive for Navy Relief and Russia-China-Dutch War Relief . . . perhaps because they feel they're given so much time and energy to any one of a dozen worthy War efforts.

But you can't stop there. Money is urgently needed—for the families of these boys dying in the Far Pacific . . . for the men, women and children of our Allies left in terrible need as a result of their gallant fight against our common enemies.

You have until August 26, the deadline on this drive, to enroll your name on the Honor Roll of those who gave not their lives . . . but only money!

Give . . . through your studio . . . or through your Agent!

ARNOLD SINKS UMPI SALES PLAN

COOPER OUT FOR % DEAL OF PICTURES

Gary Cooper, who is now a free agent with completion of his work in 'For Whom the Bell Tolls', has various contractual offers besides working on a plan to join United Artists as a producer-star.

Sam Goldwyn still wants him to do one picture a year over a five-year period, with numerous other major companies holding out enticing offers.

However, nothing is being done

Warners have been authorized to move the 'Edge of Darkness' troupe into restricted military zone at Del Monte for three weeks location work. Unit, under direction of Lewis Milestone, heads north next week.

America Looks Abroad

It certainly is no empty phrase to call the just-announced United Nations confab in Moscow's Kremlin 'an historic meeting and probably the turning point of the war.'

Its implications are most far-reaching, not only because, according to official communiques, 'important decisions have been reached', but also because (in my opinion) this is the first practical attempt to create understanding and with it, close cooperation between Allies engaged in fighting a common enemy.

The psychological weapon, added to our own fighting strength, will prove of enormous value.

The suddenly stiffened resistance of the Russian troops in the Caucasus is already an indication of Allied intervention from Iran and Iraq under General Wavell.

And since the Solomon Islands battle progresses favorably while the U. S. Air Force batters Europe, this looks like the first real 'good day' for our side.

SOEG STRIKE SHOWDOWN TODAY ON WAGE DEMANDS

New York, Aug. 17.—Negotiations between representatives of the Screen Office Employes Guild and executives of the major picture companies reached the showdown stage today when the scheduled meeting of the SOEG delegates and the titular heads in Pat Casey's office this afternoon was postponed due to illness of Nate Blumberg, Universal head. Meeting now is set for 11:30 a.m. tomorrow, with the union men ready to return to the Coast and pull the studios if

THERE'S A NEW MRS. TARZAN WAY DOWN IN JUNGLELAND

Frances Gifford, on loanout from Paramount, reported for work yesterday as the femme lead in Sol Lesser's RKO production, 'Tarzan Triumphs'. Miss Gifford was picked after tests of 30 girls were made to find a replacement for Maureen O'Sullivan in the cast. Lesser also borrowed Cheeta, trained chimp who appeared in the 'Tarzan' features at Metro, from that studio on a regular star loanout contract. Another cast regular is Johnny Sheffield, who does young Tarzan.

2 Coward British UA's

New York, Aug. 17.—Noel Coward has signed a deal with United Artists to produce two pictures annually in England. 'In Which We Serve,' the first, is due shortly for Washington and Hollywood premieres. Coward has 'Blithe Spirit,' Broadway click for which he turned down all offers from American companies, and is planning to produce it in England. Piece may be his second UA picture this year, but it is possible he may hold it over for next season's release.

HEDDA HOPPER'S exclusive yarn which gave first intimation that Clark Gable was about to join the Army Air Corps as a buck private appeared in early editions of the Los Angeles Times and the New York News. Both dailies yanked story after one edition because Metro put up a squawk that it was not so. Hedda took the bows couple of days later and is still taking them. Metro got its fuzz up apparently over the Hopper exclusive on the ground that her grabbing it first off by herself would take the edge off news value for other papers and syndicates. Columnist is now doing a sizzling burn because the studio unwarrantedly attempted to hold her up before her various editors in a highly criticized light as a newshawk who rushes into print with unverified facts. Hedda had a feedbox tip on Gable and grabbed her on the level beat out from under all opposition noses.

TWENTIETH CENTURY-FOX and RKO must get together soon to decide on which studio gets the services of Maureen O'Hara for her next assignment—and just what the picture will be. RKO, which sold half of the O'Hara contract to 20th-Fox in April, 1941, has not had the player on the home lot since—while 20th has had Miss O'Hara in four features—'How Green Was My Valley,' 'To the Shores of Tripoli,' 'Ten Gentlemen From West Point,' and 'Black Swan.' During the past two months, 20th has announced three picture assignments for Miss O'Hara—all starting in September—while RKO has handed out news she'll be co-starred with Charles Laughton in an untitled picture on that lot during the same month.

Farnol after being commissioned a Captain was in Hollywood and warned by a newspaper man not to try any of his sensational publicity gags in the army as accomplishments of this sort would not merit commendation for ability but commendation for ignorance and stupidity.

RKO's advertising and exploitation department has a tough problem to crack in handling the billing on 'Here We Go Again.' Edgar Bergen has a contract with studio calling for first billing on at least half the credit sheets, posters, etc., sent out on the picture. Fibber McGee and Molly's ticket calls for them to receive top billing on at least half such advertising and exploitation with the balance permitting first listing to Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. Telegraphed invites sent out by studio for press screening of picture last night at the Hillstreet were equally divided as to billing for the comedy teams and credit sheets handed out alternated in listing the teams first.

Three were mailed to the Satevepost and all were accepted, believed to be some kind of a literary speed record. They are 'Shiny Pants,' 'Levi's Leather and Lead' and 'The Mojave Kid.' It was Chase's 'Pay to Learn' which the Post reprinted, said to be the only repeater ever to appear in the weekly slick. RKO bought the yarn and gave it the title of 'The Navy Comes Through.'

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

Remember when they tossed a custard pie
And smacked a comic actor on the eye?
They slapped him with tomatoes
And beaned him with tomatoes,
But that was in the peaceful days gone by.

Ah, that was in the carefree days of yore
When pumpkins felled a comic to the floor.
With eggs they used to hound him,
With fruit they used to pound him,
But now they can't afford it any more.

N. Guy Pharis writes from super-heated Barstow:

'Here I am in the Morale Department out in the middle of the Mojave Desert, working my fool head off trying to keep entertainment alive for these kids. Certainly a lot different from my old occupation as stage producer-actor. With no money to spend for entertainment, it is much different. The reason I am writing you this letter is to inform you of a sincere act of patriotic kindness. I went in to see Bill Horsley, who now operates the Hollywood Film Enterprises, I went in to make a rental of some film for one show, with full intention of paying for it out of my own salary because my particular department has no funds for such things. Don't ask me why, I don't know. But the fact is that Horsley has been sending from two to three films per week, gratis. It warms my heart to know that Hollywood has among its citizenry people who will do something for the boys without publicity. There was one group that wouldn't come out because I told them there would be no 'press.' So they said "It's too damn hot out there." Horsley is one of Hollywood's pioneers, and a darn gracious one.'

Miranda Buys Herself From Shuberts For $60,000 Tag

Carmen Miranda has purchased term contract with the Shuberts for estimated price of $60,000, and henceforth can negotiate her own picture, stage and other deals through Agent George Frank. Argentine entertainer was brought to this country by the Shuberts, who had signed her to a contract for stage appearances about three years ago.

After clicking in 'Down Argentine Way' for 20th-Fox two years ago, studio tabbed her for one or two pictures annually, depending on her New York stage commitments and studio requirements.

For the past several months Miss Miranda has been attempting to effect settlement on her Shubert ticket, with check being passed over for the document about a week ago.

SOEG STRIKE SHOWDOWN TODAY ON WAGE DEMANDS

the meeting is again postponed, or an agreement is not reached.

Conferees had agreed on practically everything right down the line until wage clauses were reached. These were nixed by the Producer representatives, and the SOEG asked to meet with the top company executives before pulling out, since any SOEG strike might seriously interfere with production, as the SOEG is affiliated with the Conference of Studio Unions. Casey asked, and the SOEG reps agreed, to give him until Tuesday to round up the required head men.

The negotiators had agreed on two weeks' vacations with pay, two weeks' sick leave, six holidays per year with pay, Guild shop, and had agreed to discuss further the problem of severance pay. The union is asking for one week for each year up to a three-week maximum.

On the problem of wages the exchange representatives had agreed to a $23.50 minimum and 10% tilts for all earning over that figure, but blankly refused to consider the six classifications and scale requested by the union.

The SOEG is seeking minimums ranging from $28.80 for the lowest classification to $72.80 for bookers.

The employer representatives are shying away from the classifications because what the Coast exchange Collarites get will probably touch off and pace the demands of an intensive unionization drive in exchanges in other parts of the country. To SOEG, primarily interested in maintaining their wage scales on the Coast and avowedly not interested in unionizing exchanges elsewhere, the classifications are important, since they jibe with comparative scales in their studio contracts.

General belief is that Pat Casey will urge the company heads to make best deal they can with the SOEG, with probability of a compromise on wages to replace the demanded classifications. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, is here as one of the negotiators for the SOEG. Other representatives are Business Representative Glenn Pratt and Blanche Cole.

Play Review

ARSENIC AND OLD LACE

The macabre humor that cheered New York audiences for such a long run struck the funny bone of Los Angeles and Hollywood names attending the opening of 'Arsenic and Old Lace' last night at the Biltmore. Joseph Kesserling's comedy, presented by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, looks set to make Los Angeles audiences forget their troubles just as long as the producers want to hold the play's local run.

Not often do a group of players show so much enjoyment doing their work (we all like to be crazy at times) as the fine performers that work over the risibilities as a delightful bunch of homicidal insane living in an old Brooklyn home. The mad Brewsters—Boris Karloff, Josephine Hull, Jean Adair and John Alexander—are a prime bunch of wacks. Karloff is nasty about his murders as his ego feels abused because he resembles Boris Karloff, the Misses Hull and Adair are a gentle, playful pair of poison givers. John Alexander, who every one suspects is crazy—is, but not homicidal so. He just likes to play he's Teddy Roosevelt.

Clinton Sundberg is a foster nephew of the mad household and pleased the first nighters. Margaret Joyce adds a nice note of sex as Sundberg's girl friend. Edgar Stehli is swell as a mad Dr. Einstein; Donald Macdonald, a cop who is also a wouldbe playwright and the others of the talented cast make a trip downtown to the Biltmore theatre well worthwhile—bad tires or not.

Vallee To Coast Guard; Sealtest Searches For a New Boy

Lacking definite information on the radio status of Rudy Vallee, following his induction into the Coast Guard as bandmaster, with rating of chief petty officer, execs of McKee & Albright agency, which produces his Sealtest program, were looking over the field of availables in the event a substitution is made necessary.

James McFadden, radio director of the agency, and Dick Mack, producer of the show, have been negotiating with several radio names, but will make no changes until official word from the Navy is received. McFadden was recently in Washington to sound out the Navy on the possibility of Vallee continuing with the present series, but was unable to get any definite assurance.

Vallee has been given a week to clean up his affairs before reporting for active duty at the Coast Guard operating base at Wilmington. Regarding further radio activity, the Navy order said, 'For the time being he can continue on the air.' Just how long that is must remain indefinite until an official order comes through.

Vallee will donate his Coast Guard earnings to his outfit's welfare fund.

ARNOLD SINKS UMPI PLAN; ORDERS PIX TRADESHOWN

citing objections to the suggested package system and abandonment of tradeshows. A sharp declaration that the decree, while bringing some improvement, has not provided all the desired relief from the alleged major-company domination was made by the head trustbuster. Unless Paramount, Metro, Warners, 20th-Fox and RKO engage in more sincere rivalry and make further concessions to exhibitors, the Federal government will press the pigeonholed demands for drastic punishment, Arnold implied.

Signatories are free, through the escape clause, to peddle films in any way they desire, Arnold admitted, but if they make 'concerted' attempts to bring about any 'uniform' distribution scheme they will be subject to new charges of anti-trust law violation.

The 800-word statement made it plain that the Justice Department will ride hard on the five majors. Between now and expiration of the compromise in November, 1942, signatory companies will be on trial, and any more to bring about standard license agreements will be considered when the time comes to decide whether to renew the drive for divorce and dissolution. While the trustbusters will not penalize the five signatories for putting their heads together to draft the rejected scheme, no more huddling will be permitted, Arnold emphasized.

Any agreement or concerted action by the consenting distributors to put into operation any uniform method of selling their 1942-43 features will be viewed by the Department in the light of its effect upon competition in the industry and with particular reference to its effect upon the ability of independent exhibitors to compete, he declared. He said, 'In the judgment of the Department, the motion picture decree has not yet succeeded in accomplishing its objective and its operation must be watched during the remaining period before a final decision is made as to whether it affords adequate relief without invoking the remedy of divorcement and dissolution.'

Proposal to give up trade showing was the principal ground for objection to the UMPI plan. Arnold claimed previews for exhibitors had brought about improvement in product and said continuance of this procedure 'is desirable'. 'There is no reason, with nearly 100 of the 1942-43 product finished, why the distributors cannot continue private screenings if they have faith in the merit of their pictures.'

Although numerous independent exhibitors joined in recommending modification of the decree, Arnold shrugged off their contention that the UMPI plan is the only way they can get more liberal cancellation privileges and protection against other abuses. The signatories can compete with each other to offer the most liberal rejection clauses, he noted, and the freedom to sell in blocks of any size should encourage rivalry along this line. 'The purpose of the decree was to determine whether the industry could be restored to competitive conditions without invoking the remedy of divorcement of distribution from exhibition and dissolution of the distributor-owned circuits of theatres. It was not the intention of the Department to sanction non-competitive control of the industry, either by an industry council or by the Department itself' Arnold declared.

Arnold continued: 'The only limitation at present existing with respect to features released and contracts made on and after Sept. 1, 1942, is the general provision of the Sherman Act preventing concerted action to establish non-competitive practices. A plan for selling the features of the five consenting companies during the 1942-43 selling season, known as the UMPI plan, was presented to the Department in July of this year with the approval of most of the organized independent exhibitors. To carry out that plan the Department was asked to consent to an amendment to the decree approving the sale of pictures in blocks of not more identification than a reference to a star or featured player appearing in the picture, or the title of a book or play on which it was based. Such identification is the kind of blind selling the Department complained about when it filed its suit.

'The plan also provided for a certain minimum cancellation privilege which was not offered for incorporation in the decree, but which each company represented itself, by a letter to the Department, as being willing to incorporate in its 1942-43 contracts. All of the public groups which communicated their views to the Department opposed the plan, as did the organized independent producers and a number of independent exhibitors. The Department has decided that it cannot consent to the proposed amendment to the decree for the following reasons:

'1. Experience under the decree has persuaded the Anti-Trust Division that trade showing of motion pictures before their sale is desirable. Such trade showing tends to encourage the production of better features and thus confers a substantial benefit on the public.

'2. There are now trade shown or ready for trade showing approximately 100 of the features which the consenting defendants will release during 1942-43 season. Season competitive practices should lead these distributors to tradeshow these completed pictures rather than sell them blind, insofar as each has faith in the merit of its product.

'3. To expressly sanction blind selling of motion pictures would be to take a position inconsistent with the position the Department took at the institution of its anti-trust proceedings.

'4. So far as the cancellation privilege sought by the independent exhibitors is concerned, there is nothing in the decree which prevents the distributors from competing with each other in giving cancellation privileges equal to or in excess of these proposed in the UMPI plan. Such a grant should not be conditioned upon express Departmental acquiescence in blind selling. The existence of the large backlog of features already completed, referred to above, will permit the consenting distributors to sell in blocks as large as 13, grant the cancellation privileges they have represented themselves as willing to grant in selling blocks, and still tradeshow them before licensing.'

Govt. Tax Clampdown Staggers Aussie Film Industry

Sydney, Aug. 17. — Australian film industry was staggered last week by the fresh proposal of the Federal government to tax cinema admission tickets in order to raise $12,000,000 additional revenue. Government under Prime Minister John Curtin proposed the new taxation.

Under it, it is proposed to put a tax of 2c on every 12-cent admission ticket, ranging upwards to about 50c on $1 ducats.

Picture business here views this tax as the first move by the government to clamp down on the entire film industry as a means of raising required additional revenue. Exhibitors anticipate a public taboo of higher-priced seats if the new taxation goes into effect.

Curtin has indicated that Anzac cinemas are regarded as a luxury, and that therefore they should come under heavier wartime taxation. Exhibitors don't mind a reasonable scale of taxation but agree that the present proposal is too drastic.

Amos 'n' Andy 30-Min. OWI Airer Aug. 24

Amos 'n' Andy will have a half hour dramatic show built around them for Aug. 24 broadcast of Victory Theatre over CBS. It marks the first time they have appeared in longer than a quarter hour program in their long career on the air. Supporting cast for Office of War Information show will be drawn from radio and pictures.

'Sarong' Is B. O. For U

Currently on release in the East, Universal's 'Pardon My Sarong' is playing to 122% of the business done by the U's last Abbott and Costello picture, 'Keep 'Em Flying.' 'Sarong' looks to be in the 'Eagle Squadron' gross class, according to exchange reports here, getting as much extended playing time as the air story.

Beiersdorf to Great Lakes District manager, and Clare Hilger to Oklahoma City Branch manager.

Actors Discuss Bond Tours with Writers

Film stars who will launch the 'Stars Over America' tours Sept. 1 in the billion dollar War Bonds drive met with a group of writers last night at Hollywood Victory Committee headquarters to begin preparation of material they will use at the 300 rallies to be held throughout the country. Edward G. Robinson, Gale Sondergaard and Kay Kyser, who have made several tours in the interest of selling bonds, were on hand to give those just starting out the benefit of their experience.

Those in the first group leaving Sept. 1 attending last night's parley included Ronald Colman, Irene Dunne, Greer Garson, Charles Laughton, Joan Leslie, Herbert Marshal and Ann Rutherford. Others present who also will participate in the tours were Henry Fonda, Hugh Herbert, Janet Gaynor and Anthony Quinn.

Alan Scott of the Writers Mobilization, headed a group of scriveners who will assist in preparing material for the players. Included in the Scott delegation were Talbot Jennings, E. E. Paramore, Jr., Hal Finberg, George Seaton, Samson Raphaelson, Charles Lederer, Norville Levy and Harry Jurnitz. Others present included William Dover, Paul Price and Martin Broones.

Prutzman In From NY For U Tops Huddle

Charles D. Prutzman, chief counsel and vice-president of Universal, got in yesterday from New York for 10-day studio conference with Cliff Work. Nate Blumberg, who was to have returned here with Prutzman, plans leaving tonight or possibly Thursday after conferring with Joe Seidelman, foreign sales chief, due back today from London where he was for two weeks, and with Bill Scully, sales head, who returned there over weekend from Hollywood, and J. Cheever Cowdin, who got in yesterday from Washington. Prutzman plans going to Colorado for a two-week vacation before returning to New York.

COOPER MULLS STAR DEALS AT 200G PER AFTER FWTBT

until Cooper completes his present Par chore.

The UA negotiations, as reported several weeks ago by Daily Variety, probably will get under way within the next three weeks upon return of both Cooper and Loyd Wright, his attorney, who heads to attend American Bar Association meet in Detroit on Thursday. The Cooper deal probably would be on a basis of appearing in one yearly and producing one for UA over a seven-year period.

On outside deals where Cooper would figure on starring in two pictures a year, he will insist his remuneration be paid on a percentage basis with a minimum guarantee. His value currently is figured at around $175,000 to $200,000 a picture, with several studios prepared to take up his services at that price.

However, Cooper has figured out that on the guarantee of the amount producers calculate his value currently, he gets 12½% to 15% of the gross of his productions' income with the guarantee assured at around the $200,000 mark. In this way, when coin could come through from the present foreign markets that now are frozen, and also new territories opened after the war, he would prove himself one of topnotch coin-getters for the industry, as he has been in past years.

Understood several other stars who have deals coming up shortly are figuring on same basis as Cooper, wanting the minimum guarantee for their services against a percentage of the gross. With war conditions and scarcity of top male name values, it is reported that the major producing companies are most receptive to deals of this kind.

Believed around that stars who figure themselves as value in the bracket from $75,000 a film and up will in future make deals on percentage against minimum guarantee basis.

Obituary

CHARLES DILLON

Funeral services will be held today in Sausalito for Charles Dillon, 72, retired newspaperman and journalism teacher, who died Aug. 16. A New Yorker, he came here in the 90's, and formerly worked on the Times. As a representative of the Kansas City Star and other papers, Dillon accompanied nine presidents on their campaign tours. His widow, two sons and a daughter survive.

MILTON BRIDENBECKER

Milton Bridenbecker, 42, second cameraman at Columbia, died yesterday in Cedars of Lebanon hospital following a major operation. He was employed for years at Paramount and was well known in the industry. Funeral arrangements have been deferred while Business Representative Herbert Aller of International Photographers Local 659 tries to locate relatives.

SHAFTER HOWARD

Shafter Howard, 79, composer, died Aug. 16 at his Santa Barbara home after injuries suffered on Aug. 1 while loading cinnabar from his quicksilver mine in Santa Ynez valley. His best known opera was 'Yankee Doodle', composed for a celebration of San Francisco Bohemian Club. His widow and two step-daughters survive. Funeral arrangements are pending.

'Inn' Moved Up

Paramount has advanced local opening of 'Holiday Inn' from Aug. 27 to Aug. 25. Pic will play the Paramount Downtown and Paramount in Hollywood with possibility of two to three weeks run.

Benny On OWI Program

Jack Benny and his Grapenuts troupe have the Victory Parade spot Sunday on NBC for Office of War Information. Studio audience will be restricted to men in uniform.

Republic Makes New Training Film

Start of production on a War Department training film, 'The Cavalry Rifle Platoon', to be made by Republic, was announced today by the office of Colonel Darryl F. Zanuck, chairman of the Academy Research Council. Film is being directed by Les Orlebeck, assisted by George Webster and Joe Dill, with William Nobles as director of photography, assisted by Thomas Morris and Arthur Daniel. Thomas Carmen is in charge of sound recording, assisted by Lawrence B. Olmstead and Archie Cook, with Lee Lukather in charge of grips, assisted by Raymond S. Bouk and George Leon Hill. Joseph Labella is in charge of properties.

The entire picture will be made at the Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kan. The production crew was flown to Fort Riley over the weekend for shooting yesterday.

Lieut. Colonel Charles S. Stodter will act as War Department liaison officer, assisted by officers assigned from the Cavalry School to act as technical advisers.

Femmes May Be Shoved Off 'Third Rail'

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—Resolution prohibiting the serving of women at Frisco bars, and if successful state-wide in its effect, was presented today to San Francisco Board of Supervisors. Prompted by recent Chicago law that shooed women from bars, resolution asks that women not be served unless seated at tables away from bars.

It calls upon State Board of Equalization to 'make, promulgate and enforce regulations,' that would ban femmes from Frisco rails. If the Board took such action it's unlikely that it could or would limit enforcement to but one section of the State.

'No Escape' King Mono

Next production for the King Brothers at Monogram will be 'No Escape,' original by Herman Rich. Picture is down for a Sept. 1 start.

Metro Sales Parleys Close; Top Execs Still in Town

William F. Rodgers and E. M. Saunders, sales execs, remained in town yesterday to complete conferences with Charles Skouras, president of National Theatres, when Metro sales and promotion conferences came to a close over the weekend.

Immediately on conclusion of the meetings yesterday, Division Managers J. E. Flynn and E. K. O'Shea trained out for their posts in Chicago and New York, with Si Seadler, advertising director; W. R. Ferguson, exploitation director, and Arthur Schmidt, eastern publicity director, leaving for New York last night.

Howard Dietz remains for the rest of the week, completing talks with Louis B. Mayer, Howard Strickling and Frank Whitbeck.

TDB Meets Thursday

Meeting of the Theatre Defense Board has been called for Thursday night at the Fox-West Coast offices. Board's regular sessions were cancelled about a month ago to permit investigation of all theatres by committee men before certificates of excellence were issued to participating theatres.

'Stage Door Canteen' Film Grabs More Stellar Names

Katharine Hepburn, Kay Kyser, Katharine Cornell and Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy are latest star names lined up for appearances as themselves in 'Stage Door Canteen' which Sol Lesser will produce for United Artists release. Other names previously announced through the American Theatre Wing, which is sponsoring film, included Helen Hayes, Gertrude Lawrence and Ray Bolger.

Lesser expects to have a script ready for a production start by Nov. 1. Delmer Daves is now working on the screenplay. Because of the big list of star names, some of whom are in New York, picture will be filmed both locally and in the east. Lesser is now seeking a top director who will be free to accept a Nov. 1 commitment to handle the picture. Theatre Wing will receive all proceeds from picture after production and distribution costs are recovered.

'Wake' Preems Sept. 1

New York, Aug. 17.—'Wake Island' will have reserved seat premiere at the Rivoli, night of Sept. 1, starting regular run next day in the house. Premiere proceeds go to the American Red Cross. Barbara Britton, featured in the film, comes on from Hollywood for opening. There will be 200 U. S. Marines as guests at the opening.

Christy Ending Looksee

Frank Christy, president of Evergreen Theatres, National Theatre Corp. affiliate, returns to his home base in Seattle on Friday. He has been here for about three weeks attending National convention and conferring with Charles P. Skouras, president.

Walker In From NY

Thomas L. Walker, treasurer of Edward Small Productions, arrived yesterday from a four-month stay in New York. While east, Walker, in addition to taking care of financial matters for Small's United Artists unit, sat in as New York representative.

20th Ties Montgomery

George Montgomery has been signed to a new two-year contract at 20th-Fox, replacing the original agreement by which he began working at the studio three years ago. Montgomery recently finished 'China Girl', playing opposite Gene Tierney.

Herbel North For WB

Henry Herbel, western district manager for Warners, left for Frisco yesterday to work on northern circuit deals for company's 1942-43 product. Returns over the weekend.

STUDIOS MAY ASK ACTORS TO WAIVE PULLMAN RULES

Transportation problems, resulting largely from military priorities, are making it difficult for studios to move large groups of actors, technicians, camera crews, etc., to distant locations. The situation has become so acute that picture companies may ask the Screen Actors Guild to waive contract clauses calling for first-class train accommodations, sleeping quarters, etc., for actors.

Practically all passenger trains now operating in the state are carrying all coaches allowed by state law. This makes it impossible for the railroad companies to add additional coaches to take care of film location crews, and only a limited number of them can usually find seats on the regular accommodations because of the large number of military personnel traveling in all directions.

Buses are now used on nearby locations, and studios may have to resort to these for more distant location points. Here, too, they will be up against military priorities, with the possibility of delays when buses are taken over to move military units.

Warners is now trying to arrange passage for about 100 persons of 'The Edge of Darkness' company to Del Monte for location work on the 'Norway-like coast' there. The studio has called for interviews for 25 extras as Norwegian sailors today. The company plans to check out Aug. 23, and it is estimated it will take three railroad coaches to move about 100 persons in the group.

Because of the transportation problems, studios are now trying to shoot all scenes possible on the lots, but this often is impossible, especially currently because of the large number of productions with war and sea backgrounds. If the transportation problem cannot be solved any other way, it is possible that location crews will be moved in separate groups as transportation facilities become available, and in buses if the SAG waivers are forthcoming.

Last Night's Practice Dim-Out Falls Flat

Last night's anticipated dim-out warmup remained only tepid, a few theatres, amusement spots and hotels voluntarily pulling the shutter act for practice. Job of verbal instruction was given to air raid wardens who perambulated around suggesting and warning against the deadline of Wednesday midnight. However, for most part, LA and Hollywood remained well lighted.

Initial weekend of dim-out as voluntarily instituted throughout Fox West Coast's southern California houses brought no change from normal business. According to George Bowser, F-WC supervisor who ordered the dim-out last Tuesday night, 10 days before the Army-ordered deadline of Aug. 20, there was no perceptible change in any of the 145 theatres affected. Public is educated to war's changes, it's thought, and taking such events in stride.

Explanation that car lights need not be dimmed unless in shore areas, and elimination of night games, and curtailment of backyard social functioning is making theatre operators a bit more cheerful about the order. Unaffected business in houses already practicing dim-out is also cheering.

Pressburger's Two Pix In Work At Once

With Fritz Lang production of 'Never Surrender' set to roll Sept. 15, Arnold Pressburger figures to have two United Artists features going simultaneously when 'Tomorrow Never Comes' starts around Nov. 1. 'Surrender' has been allotted a 10-week shooting schedule. Scripter John Wexley is collaborating with Lang on the screenplay.

M.P. Engineers Name Griffin for Prexy

New York, Aug. 17.—Herbert Griffin, vice-president of International Projector Corp., has been nominated for presidency of Society of Motion Picture Engineers for 1943-44. Loren Ryder, head of Paramount studio sound department, is candidate for the executive vice-president post. Both have been active in SMPE affairs for a number of years.

Other nominees on official nominating ballot being mailed to members include: A. C. Downes, for editorial vice-president; William C. Kunzmann, for convention v.-p.; E. A. Williford, for secretary, and M. R. Boyer, treasurer. Nominees for board of governors are: William A. Mueller, of Warners studios; H. W. Remerschied, Coast v.-p. of Bell & Howell; Joseph Spray, and H. D. Bradbury.

MCA Peddling 'Jupiter'

New York, Aug. 17.—20th-Fox has bowed out of its option on 'By Jupiter' and the Broadway musical is being offered to all comers by the Music Corporation of America. Price tag for screen rights is $150,000. Several major studios are reported interested. 20th-Fox owns the rights to 'The Warrior's Husband,' legiter on which 'Jupiter' is based and is asking $50,000 for former, that figure being included in the total sale price on the new musical.

ings have also been asked to provide space for the 'Remember September' campaign.

WAC has issued a bulletin reminding theatre operators in every part of the country to 'Stop Your Show' at 9 p.m. Sept. 1 for the sale of War Bonds. Exhibs are advised to put on a four-minute 'Salute To Our Heroes' along the following lines:

(a) Line up a color guard from a local patriotic organization. Get four uniformed men or women to carry flags.

(b) At 9 p.m. light the house, play 'God Bless America' on film or non-sync., as the color guard marches down the aisle. As they reach the front play the 'Star Spangled Banner'.

(c) Have a good speaker give a one and one-half minute speech on your drive and War Bonds.

(d) Arrange in advance to have persons present to buy Bonds; they'll start the ball rolling.

(e) At the finish, have everybody stand and give three rousing cheers for our men in service at the front.

(f) That night send a wire to Henry W. Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C., stating volume of Bond sales.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Notice of Harold Oldham having been lost while ferrying planes from Canada to England with the RCAF was received at RKO yesterday. He had been in the construction department. Weldon MacNichols, former RKO messenger, was reported killed while in the Air Force training in Florida.

New entrants to the service continued apace with the Army enlistment of Edwin Bartlett, Charles Boyer's standin, who reports on Aug. 24; the enlistment of John Armetta, Henry Armetta's son, and the Navy enlistment of Lawrence Bachman, Metro writer, who left yesterday.

Stanley Kramer, associate producer with David Loew, has received standby orders from the Signal Corps and will soon report for his lieutenancy. Capt. Harry Maynard, former publicist, has been upped to rank of major in the Marine Corps. Capt. Henry (Hank) Fine, another publicist, has been elevated to major's rank in the Air Force, and Capt. Arthur Powell also has been upped to major. Private Herbert Lubart in the Army formerly was Guy Rennie, nitery performer.

MAJORS GO AHEAD WITH NEW SALES

New York, Aug. 18.—Detailed study of the Thurman Arnold manifesto on the UMPI revised film selling plan leaves several avenues open to distributors in the sale of 1942-43 product. While the five consent decree companies are expected to check each other as to what the others are going to do, in order to avoid any semblance of uniformity, policies to be determined doubtless

Optimism Well Founded

New York, Aug. 18.—Usual pre-season optimism which annually excites show business is apparently born of fact this year with plenty of indications that spending is free and a wow 1942-43 is in the offing. Business in cafes, film and legit theatres is way up with operators claiming the current excellent business is only a minor manifestation of the prosperity to come.

with ROBERT ARDEN

If Churchill promised Russia action, he lost no time giving it. Only 24 hours after the Moscow confab, a sudden shift in British military commands freed Generals Auchinleck and Ritchie, two top-notchers, for 'assignments elsewhere'.

Obviously revitalized by recent news, Russ armies in Stalingrad sector threw Nazis back several miles, while Caucasian units held Hitler advances to a minimum. Reports from other battle sectors also indicated rising preparedness for Allied action. Cairo reported arrival of 'largest U. All in all, situation seems a little improved, with promising prospects for new offensive actions.

Lehman Crackdown Is Just Wee-Bit Late

New York, Aug. 18.—Crackdown by Governor Lehman on Saratoga, which had been wide open, came too late to 'ruin' the season, which has only another week to go. Sporting mob had already hit town and the casinos had spotted a goodly share of the dough required to show a profit on the four-week season. Last year Lehman ordered a gambling shutdown just before the track opened, killing dice and roulette spots. PAPERS in New York's Harlem are burning over clipping of two sequences featuring Negros for the last Bette Davis picture, 'In This Our Life.' When film played the Harlem theatres, while showing elsewhere in New York, sequences were not cut. Deletions were ordered by top Warners executives to obviate disturbances since. When picture was first released about three months ago there had been several clashes between white and Negro troops in the east as well as the south, plus lynchings in Dixie. Warners figured it was better to risk censure than aggravate the then hair-trigger tempers. One scene was between Ernest Anderson and Miss Davis where she has led him, her chauffeur, into a murder rap and he tells off. Other was between Hattie McDaniel and the star with the former asking Miss Davis to recant and save the life of her son, character played by Anderson.

WHAT looks like poor showmanship and may affect the business being done this week at the two Paramount houses is the booking of a seven year old reissue film 'General Died At Dawn' to top the program over what Paramount feels is a top film in its class and should head the dual show, 'Tombstone'. Marco Wolff who operates the local Paramount houses felt that he had to have opposition to Gary Cooper playing in a new picture at two opposition houses so booked 'General' in which Par starred Cooper. Par execs figured this being poor judgment on the part of the theatre operator and were not reluctant at all about criticizing the short sightedness of the program arrangement.

PHENOMENAL sales record of Abbott and Costello's current War Bond tour, which sold $40,000,000 in bonds, has created optimism that show business will hit and possibly top the billion-dollar goal. Results of the A & C tour will not be included in the show biz drive but their achievement augurs well for the great contingent of Hollywood stars and players who will troupe across the country next month.

Preview Dim-Out Last Night Is Success

Unofficial practice dimout asked for by the authorities last night met with almost 100% cooperation of show business, and others, with the exception of a few diehard saloons. Theatres, hotels, night spots, dancerries and restaurants blotted glow-throwing neons, marquee sides, vertical signs over the Hollywood and L. A. areas at the specific request of authorities.

Tour of theatre and other usually brightened belts brought evidence of the cooperation that will be further shown tonight at midnight when the Army ordered dimout goes into effect officially. Top test of night came with large turnout for Pantages theatre premiere of 'Pride of the Yankees' which went on full force—but minus kleigs. Like other theatres, the Pantages worked only with marquee under-lighting.

Officials were happy with the result of the first test dimout but feel that the official arrival will not meet with full approval. Differences of opinion among instructors, etc., will cause as many differences and errors among those who are obliged to dim. However, they feel that by Thursday night, offenders will be straightened out.

Show business through committeemen Rodney Pantages, Ralph McCullough, Fox-West Coast engineer and lighting expert, Jack Berman, theatre operator, and George Watters, of the Theatre Defense Board, will act to inform all under their supervision. Willard Keith, of the OCD, yesterday gave his okay to the body and promised a full report today on what is expected of theatres. Committee will then clarify and interpret the dimout rule for all.

Laurence MG 'Reunion'

Margaret Laurence has been set at Metro for role of the French girl in 'Reunion.' Arthur MacArthur agented.

Hire Name Bands To Bolster Studios

New York, Aug. 18.—Picture companies are sewing up name bands on an unprecedented scale this year in an attempt to create new strength to offset the loss of male stars to the armed forces. Majors, finding bands potent at the box office, are making term deals with lesser orchestras as well.

Among the outfits set are Jimmy Dorsey, Tommy Dorsey, Dick Jurgens, the latter on a five-year Metro contract; Glenn Miller for seven years at Metro, and Benny Goodman, gavier Cugat is scheduled for a second picture at Columbia where Freddie Slack is also set. Bob Crosby has been contracted for Metro's 'Presenting Lily Mars.'

Metro, with L. K. Sidney and Arthur Freed strongly favoring musicals, is actively signing bands for future use, usually via exclusive options on services with specific time limits.

Miller deal at 20th calls for one picture a year at progressively higher salary. Studio can ask for a second picture each year at the same price as the first. Most contracts at the moment call for one film, with the possible takeover of several big New York hotels by the Army, as is persistently reported. Army needs housing for aviation students in the metropolitan area. Also needed are barracks for troops being aimed for overseas duty and hospital space.

Thornhill Penciled Out Of Film by De Sylva

New York, Aug. 18. — Claude Thornhill orchestra is not going to the Coast for Paramount. B. G. De Sylva last week wickered the script for the Thornhill film because it was unsuitable. Paramount execs in New York and Tommy Rockwell, head of General Amusement Corp., which books the band, huddled to settle the outfits contract which would have started Aug. 24.

In the left field bleachers at Ebbetts Field, where the Brooklyn Dodgers hold forth, there are many volunteer managers, and many slugfests. The volunteer manager, known as a 'fan,' is a non-combatant who has achieved his baseball knowledge through spinal contact with a seat about 400 feet from home plate where the vital statistics of the battle are recorded. He knows more about the intricacies of baseball than the professional guy who has spent his life at it. If there were only one volunteer manager it would make little difference. He would howl himself hoarse in a few innings, even though equipped with leather tonsils. But there are many seats in the bleachers, all warmed by oratorical experts endowed with more baseball acumen than Lippy Leo, who happens to be the professional guy who draws a salary for making first guesses on the bench instead of paying money to make second guesses in a left field seat. Your correspondent has not seen a ball game in Ebbetts Field for a number of years, but he was reminded of it on his day of leisure, sitting beside the radio and listening to various news and views of the war. Too bad the boys in the battle zones can't hear the second guesses of non-combatants in the left field bleachers. Or maybe it isn't too bad.

F-WC Film Buys For New Season Proceed At Slow Pace

Film buys for the new season by Fox West Coast are slowly materializing. With the RKO deal being held up until terms on Sam Goldwyn pictures are softened, the circuit buyers, Larry Kent and Cullen Espy, in association with Frank Christie of Evergreen circuit, have been meeting for the past two days with William Kupper, western sales manager; Herman Wobber and Jack Dillon of 20th-Fox, on a product deal. Indications are that the deal may be negotiated by end of the week, when Kupper plans returning to New York.

Another buy matter is that of Metro product. With the old five-year franchise having expired with last season's product, Metro has been anxious to make a similar deal for the same period. However, as this deal was based on a percentage participation after an overall theatre operations cost deduction before the participation takes place for Metro, the F-WC organization on the new deal—due to upped cost of operations—wants to make a substantial increase in this item before Metro gets its share. William F. Rodgers, on the other hand, wants the participation to start under the terms of the previous agreement, with result that prospect of any negotiations is stalemated until the overall operations costs allowance is arrived at for a basis of figuring the deal and its scope.

Rodgers, who has been here working on program lineup, will remain in town for another week, during which it is hoped that he, Charlie Skouras and Arch Bowles will be able to get the deal started.

EXHIB LEADER HITS ARNOLD FOR BLASTING UMPI PLAN

Myers suggested, if the defendants decided 'individually' to sell films in 13 picture blocks, continue tradeshows, and grant satisfactory cancellation privileges. Spokesman for the indie exhib group, which was the principal burr under the DJ tail, complained about Arnold's tendency to 'double talk', and implied the latter was afraid to test his strength with the major film companies.

Myers observed scornfully that the trust-buster ranted about 'concerted action' on the part of the five signatories, but agreed to 'overlook' their 'collusion' in framing the rejected amendment to the 1940 compromise consent decree. Pointing to Metro's announcement it will use the UMPI formula, Myers suggested that the other distribs can offer 13-picture blocks, tradeshow their product, and give generous rejection rights without incurring governmental wrath. There would be no risk of prosecution if, presmably by accident or coincidence, the other four followed Metro's lead, he stated.

The Allied States chief agreed that the signatories cannot put their heads together to map out a new film selling and licensing system. At the same time, he said Arnold's nixing of the UMPI plan lifts all restrictions against discrimination and favoritism. From now on, 'the sky's the limit', Myers reacted.

Arnold's scoffing comment that the consent decree did not approve 'non-competitive control of the industry' by either an industry council or the government, gave Myers a laugh. The Allied spokesmen noted that the five-picture selling scheme was approved by the Justice Department and framed by attorneys for all the defendant companies. In addition, the 'trial' plan brought 'greater uniformity than had ever existed before.' Signatories to the decree unquestionably will engage in 'a great deal of griping and recrimination,' Myers snorted. This will be a disguise, he intimated. Nothing in the decree or the trust-buster's statement prohibits blind selling of the whole line; preferential treatment of affiliates and favored independents, and other types of discrimination or abuse directed at balky independents, Myers suggested.

He pointed out gleefully that he had predicted a pocket veto for the UMPI plan and chided Arnold for failing to say whether he would approve the suggested changes if they included tradeshowing. He said the buck had been passed to the distribs in a 'none too helpful way.' Noting that the bulk of exhibs around the country favored the UMPI modification, who are the public groups and independent exhibs who balked at the plan? Myers inquired. None of them have appeared in the open or made their feelings known to other exhibitor groups who crusaded for abolition of block booking. Apparently no alleged reformers except those 'who used to accompany the Hays office representatives to Washington to testify against the Neely Bill' put a curse on the suggested changes, Myers concluded.

Films May Guarantee Profit To Writers

New York, Aug. 18.—One new idea aimed at solving the story shortage is to make deals with authors and book publishers whereby latter are guaranteed a profit. 20th-Fox is in the van with such a plan, having reportedly made several pacts for biographies.

20th-Fox agrees to purchase 3,000 books, that being the profitable margin for publishers. Advance payment to writers is split between the picture company and the publisher, who also agrees on a figure for film rights to the writers.

One of the 20th-Fox deals is with Random House for the Victor Hugo biography by Matthew Josephson. It also has a similar deal with Doubleday, Doran for another tome.

ARMY STARTS TRIM OF SANTA ANA AIRSHOWS

Investigation by the War Department into overemphasis on radio at the Santa Ana Air Force training center is under way, with indications pointing to an appreciable diminution of programs from the base. Spokesmen for the Army declare that Washington has taken full cognizance of the large number of shows from Santa Ana and are agreed that 'too much Air Force radio is coming from one point.'

With the idea being to fan out the programs so that other camps won't be entirely neglected, it is believed that some of the officers there identified with the radio activity may be transferred to other air bases. War Department is said to have been miffed at the large concentration of radio talent at Santa Ana, with the resultant radio splurge on all networks, and ordered the programming spread so that other camps also will receive some recognition.

Col. Arthur I. Ennis, public relations officer for Army Air Force, is here from Washington to look into the situation, and passed most of yesterday at Santa Ana. One of the first moves to break up the heavy concentration of radio there was to move Gene Autry's show to March Field last Sunday and to KNX here this coming sabbath, despite the fact that Sergeant Autry is stationed at Santa Ana. After Sunday's airing, Autry planes to Washington to participate in Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's junk salvage affair. Reports that the band at Santa Ana also will be broken up and many of its members shipped to other points were branded as unfounded by Army spokesmen.

Obituary

WALKER WHITESIDE

Walker Whiteside, 73, veteran stage star, died Monday at his home at Hastings-On-the-Hudson after a lingering illness. He retired from the stage in 1935 after 47 years in the profession, first in Shakespearean roles and later as the star of 'The Melting Pot', which he played at the Queen's theatre in London; 'Mr. Wu', 'Typhoon' and many others. He had his first role in 'Richard III' at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, in 1884, and made his New York bow in 1893 at the Union Square theatre as Hamlet, later appearing there with his own company as Richelieu. He was born in Logansport, Ind., March 16, 1869, the son of Judge and Levinia Whiteside. Surviving are his widow, the former Lelia Wolston, of St. Louis, and a daughter, Mrs. Rosamond Pettibone, formerly with the St. Louis Opera company. Funeral arrangements are being completed.

WESLEY M. BARR

Wesley M. Barr, 61, associate editor of the Los Angeles Herald and Express and political writer for the paper under the nom de plume, 'Don Politico', died yesterday in Glendale hospital. During his nearly 30 years on the paper he served as city editor, chief of public relations and associate editor, besides writing on politics. He was born at Monmouth, Ill., on Oct. 19, 1880. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Helen B. McCormack; two sisters, Eva Louisa Barr and Mary Barr Miller, and a brother, George Barr. Funeral arrangements are being completed.

MILTON BRIDENBECKER

Funeral services for Milton Bridenbecker, 43, cameraman, who died suddenly on Monday, will be held at Pierce Brothers mortuary on Friday. At Paramount for 17 years, Bridenbecker was a staff man at Columbia during the past year, his last assignment being 'You Were Never Lovelier'. Surviving is a sister, Irene.

Ginsberg Names 10% Bond Committee

Henry Ginsberg, chairman of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff of the Treasury Department, speaking at the luncheon period of an all-day session conference on the Payroll War Savings plan for southern California, Arizona and New Mexico, in the Ambassador hotel yesterday, announced the formation of a committee of important film executives to assist in the industry's nationwide $1,000,000,000 Bond campaign in September.

Ginsberg read a paper on the operations plan of the Motion Picture committee in its handling of the payroll plan, which has been conceded by the Treasury Department as an outstanding model that could be adopted by other industries.

The session was attended by about 500 various industry execs and the conference was presided over by Orville S. Poland, staff assistant to Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau. Howard D. Mills, local Treasury administrator, conducted the meeting, with he and other administrators discussing and outlining operation phases of the plan.

The special committee appointed by Ginsberg consists of Bert Allenberg, Edward Arnold, George Bagnall, Joe Breen, Sidney Buchman, Harry Cohn, Rex Cole, Walt Disney, Y. Frank Freeman, William Goetz, Dr. H. T. Kalmus, Chas. W. Koerner, L. B. Mayer, Joe Schnitzer, D. O. Selznick, Vic Shapiro, George Stevens, Howard Strickling, Arthur Ungar of the Treasury Department, War Savings Staff; Walter Wanger, Willie Wilkerson, Cliff Work and Loyd Wright.

Blumenstock Easting

Mort Blumenstock, eastern advertising and publicity chief for Warners, left for New York yesterday on the super Chief, accompanied by his bride. Blumenstock has been at WB studios for the past week, since close of regional sales convention in San Francisco, conferring with Charles Einfeld on sales and exploitation campaigns for coming releases.

Labs Divided on Move To Eliminate Nite Processing

Studio and commercial laboratories are split equally between operating night shifts and confining film processing to daytime hours. Warners, 20th-Fox, Paramount and Consolidated laboratories have discontinued the night shifts during the past several weeks, while Metro, Columbia, Technicolor and Pathe have failed to swing into line with the others.

Major reason for elimination of laboratory night shifts is laid to new scale of time and a half for lab technicians working between hours of 6 p.m. and 6 a.m., with those companies discontinuing night work figuring that the extra payroll required to meet the union rates would run costs up between 20 and 30%.

Labs continuing night negative processing figure that added labor costs are insurance for efficient studio operation, in that dailies of one day's shooting can be projected for executives, directors, etc., the following morning, and after scenes are okayed, sets finished can be struck and others erected. Fast look at previous day's scenes also allows for retakes immediately, it is argued. In comparison, with those labs now confined to daylight processing, dailies are not delivered to projection rooms until afternoon, and any necessary retakes must necessarily be held over an additional day, which holds up sets and in some instances will keep actors on the payroll an added period.

Consolidated is the only commercial lab discontinuing night processing, while Pathe will roll along as previously, figuring added cost will be recouped through more business and better service to customers. Technicolor, which processes both negative and positive prints in its local plant, is understood to be contemplating no change in shifts, as lab must necessarily run on virtual continual basis due to tint production and orders for release prints.

Star Likely For Zanuck; Paul Sloane Promoted

New York, Aug. 18.—Colonel Darryl F. Zanuck is reportedly slated to become a Brigadier General. Promotion has hit writer-producer Paul H. Sloane, who has been upped to a Lieutenant Colonel at Astoria, Long Island, in the Signal Corps. He is chief executive producer under Col. M. E. Gillette, commanding officer of this photographic unit. Major Hal Roach has been transferred from Astoria to Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, where the Air Force training pictures are produced.

Lawrence In London

New York, Aug. 18.—Laudy Lawrence, 20th-Fox foreign sales manager, has arrived in London to inspect branch offices in Britain and possibly make some changes in the distribution staff. He may also revamp production setup abroad.

Vogt Takes Life

St. Louis, Aug. 18.—George Lewis Vogt, 58, father-in-law of the late Joe Penner, committed suicide here last week. He left a note that his son, Sergeant G. I. Vogt of Camp Bragg, and his daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Penner of Hollywood, be notified.

DAILY VARIETY:

"The violent baptism of a hellroaring western town, certified with many a lurid fact and oldtimer's recollection, is told in bold, exciting melodrama in 'Tombstone'. It is made to order for a multitude of customers familiar with the Harry Sherman product. Also, the picture's ferocious action and its general quality set it up for solid competition with the war-slanted films, alongside which it will be billed in a wide range of situations.

"Harry Sherman has loaded the picture with production, including the girl show and the singing in the old Birdcage theatre, a diverting change of scene from the assorted ferocities. In preparation, casting, handling of the material and general assembly of all the elements, Sherman sets a new level of showmanly excellence for his unit."

FILM DAILY:

"Solid western, excellently photographed and directed, is good boxoffice. With an actual background of documentary material to bolster it, and a slick production under the supervision of Harry Sherman, this saga of the lawless days in Arizona is solid entertainment."

BOX OFFICE DIGEST:

" 'TOMBSTONE,' to the veteran exhibitor, is just a 'helluva' good western. But you must appreciate the emphasis that a veteran theatre man can put into 'helluva' before you realize what Sherman hands over the counter to his customers."

HOLLYWOOD REPORTER:

"Harry Sherman's name is a guarantee of showmanly excellence in the western market. Occasionally Sherman turns out a 'special' that takes him far out of the program field and into competition with more pretentious product. 'Tombstone' is one of his big-budget pictures, and its success is a feather in his sombrero."

NORBERT LUSK. N. Y. TIMES:

"A good western film is even more unusual on Broadway than a good film of any description these days. That is why reviewers were taken by surprise on discovering 'Tombstone, the Town Too Tough To Die' at the Rialto, and consequently raised their voices in unanimous praise. Here, they said, is a crackerjack picture of the West, and then proceeded to point out why."

NEW YORK VARIETY:

" 'TOMBSTONE' is a compact package of adventurous entertainment and slated to give a good account of itself in the regular bookings as a topnotch entry of its type. Wyatt Earp, one of the most colorful characters in the history of the west, is vividly characterized by Richard Dix, who handles his best part since that of Yancey Cravat in 'Cimarron,' and takes advantage of every opportunity to smack over his role in most convincing fashion."

Majors Go Ahead With Sales For New Season will vary sufficiently to avoid conflict with the Department of Justice.

Presumption of the Arnold opinion is that distribs may operate under the UMPI plan to the extent of selling pictures in blocks of 13, with cancellation privileges, as long as all the pictures are screened in advance of selling.

Unable to wait any longer on Arnold's expressed attitude on the UMPI method, 20th-Fox already has started selling two different blocks of five each, in addition to 'Tales of Manhattan' on a solo basis. Warners this week began selling a package of five features, Paramount announced an initial block of four, and Metro one to eight. RKO screened five new pictures this month, and was prepared to start immediate selling of this group when the Arnold decision arrived.

In the face of the Arnold position, all distribs, if having sufficient product ready for screening, may add to the groups already for sale or on sale. Thus, accounts not already sold on 20th's two groups of five each may be offered the 10 at one clip. With big backlogs of pictures completed, Paramount and Warners both are in excellent positions to immediately tradeshow and offer any number up to 13. Metro, having already tradeshown eight new features for the 1942-43 season, and RKO are in a less enviable position.

Whether the distribs stick to the decree method of selling in blocks of five or go to a maximum of 13, there obviously is nothing to prevent any company offering blocks of six to 12 instead, depending on film inventory of readied productions, but always provided all pictures offered are screened in advance.

In the meantime, Columbia, Universal and United Artists continue selling on a full line basis and practicing blind selling, which Arnold warns the other companies against. This indicates that Arnold may be planning a new offensive against the Little Three.

It is likely several days will elapse before each of the five majors set their definite sales policies in line with the legalistic phases of Arnold's ruling. Metro, chief proponent of the UMPI sales plan, which would have allowed that company to regain much of its lost prestige and preferential percentage playdates monopoly through selling an expanded amount of pictures, is expected to peddle as many pictures as possible in each block. It is known that Warners and Paramount, along with 20th-Fox, have made serious inroads into the Metro preferential dating of percentage pictures by delivery of better box office product under the consent decree blocks-of-five plan, and this trio undoubtedly will continue with the smaller groups of pictures which have proven to be more profitable than under the blind-selling policy.

U. S. SET TO FREEZE RAW FILM; SAVINGS DECREE DUE

the proposed decree framed last week by Harold Hopper, chief of the WPB film section, but have indicated that the long-awaited ultimatum will be forthcoming tomorrow unless there are more mind changes. Whether there will be a cut on top of the volunteered 19-plus percentage slash cannot be ascertained here.

Before leaving for Hollywood last Thursday (13) Hopper indicated that the order might limit the number of features produced by the entire industry, but would not fix any production quotas for individual studios or companies.

From all indications the idea of decreeing a ceiling in terms of individual pictures has been lost in the shuffle. There still is a possibility officials will say the voluntary conservation plan does not go far enough. The order is likely to require registration with Federal authorities by all users of raw stock. This would pave the way of fixing quotas on consumption. The main purpose, however, would be to track down companies using up around 300,000 feet annually whose productions are not covered by reports from established producers.

A complete shutdown on makers of advertising and commercial reels is considered highly probable. These do not seem essential to the war effort as far as WPB is concerned.

Considerable doubt has been reflected this week whether the voluntary curtailment plan will release enough raw stock for the military services and ease the demand for chemicals simultaneously required for munitions. One WPB spokesman went so far as to say that the military-naval requirements might necessitate shutting off all film deliveries to studios making only entertainment pictures.

According to reports from authoritative sources it is understood a freezing order on all 35mm. raw stock will be issued from Washington today, effective on Thursday. The order, it is said, would require that no film be sold or transported without permit from the WPB.

Harold Hopper had a meeting with producers yesterday and is said to have informed them of the forthcoming freeze order and what its effect would be.

Likely under the new order raw stock will be rationed to the film companies on the basis of their 1941 usage, with the voluntary cuts to be figured from the footage used by them. So far as raw stock is concerned on negatives made here, it is said the WPB is satisfied with the average 24% voluntary usage cut already taken here. However, on the matter of future production, there is a likelihood that companies making over 40 feature pictures a year on their program will be required to hold product down to a 40 maximum for 1942-43 season.

Main problem to confront WPB will be release prints. No group decision has been made by major distributors as to their voluntary savings. One problem is matter of prints being used by Metro. Several of its competitors want prints placed at a ceiling of 300 to a production. Metro currently uses from 360 to 380 on an important picture, while the other big majors use from 40 to 80 less prints on their big features.

Metro points out it is willing to take its cut on footage, but does not want to be bound to take it on prints, feeling it will make the right cut in footage, but does not want to be tied to the mast on amount of prints it needs. Another phase is that of Columbia, which uses 88,000,000 feet a year, with less product output than Universal, which trimmed its requirements to 85,000,000 feet a year before the war emergency measures were talked of, but in anticipation of an emergency arising later. Columbia wants Universal to take a 17½% cut from its present top footage, same as Columbia would be required to do. However, Universal took the position, and was supported by other majors on it, that with Columbia making less pictures and using more footage for them, it take its cut down to same footage as Universal uses and that the latter be left alone.

These are few of problems that Hopper will have to iron out after the freezing becomes effective.

Since start of the war there has been a marked drop in production of commercial and advertising films, and it is likely those engaged in manufacture and distribution of these films will shut up shop all about the country.

Though nothing has been advanced as to using films for amateur motion picture photography in the 8mm. and 16mm. widths, likely the WPB decree may shut off this supply, excepting X-ray photography, which is necessary for medical research and diagnosis by Army and civilian medicos. In case the order is issued in this class, some 40,000 dealers in this type of supplies will be affected and their biz virtually suspended.

'Moscow Strikes' Held 'Too Strong'; U. S. Release Nixed

New York, Aug. 18.—'Moscow Strikes Back', Artkino picture currently playing at the Globe theatre to critical raves and good business, has been nixed for national release by major distributors on the basis that picture is 'too strong' for audiences, especially outside of New York. Understood that Washington rates the film as a propaganda must and would like to see it get a major release, but will not attempt to pressure anyone into a deal.

The same firms that nix the national distribution are willing to make a deal for circuit release of the film. Artkino wants national distribution since picture will benefit from expert exploitation by the majors. Last bidder for picture was purportedly Warners, with the probable idea of using it as an aperitif for 'Mission To Moscow'.

term applicable to both. Most of the audience kept wondering what it was all about. Now and then a character threatened to reveal the secret, but although he talked plenty he never got around to the revelation.

Nearest thing to the 'Across' title is a horse tip from a barkeep to a taxi driver just at the end of that playlet. What goes before may be philosophic, but it's strictly Saroyan's own brand.

Second playlet has a Negro boxer in training adopting a little deaf boy continually asking him whether he can hear. Others in the alleged entertainment are a girl without any lines, a felon and armed midget. Canada Lee, Negro player, has much to do in both playlets, and in the first long speeches during curtain drops would have caused somnolence but for the fact that the theatre was so hot the audience was busy shedding sweat. Saroyan is a specialist on saloonitics and the theme line in 'Across' is 'gimme another drink'. Show is originally slated for two weeks, and that should be plenty.

When 'Across the Board' was given its world premiere at the Pasadena Community Playhouse Feb. 11, 1941, Daily Variety's critic was equally puzzled, and said in part: 'Pasadenans are still trying to figure out what the young man (Saroyan) is trying to do or say. Playgoers sat in bewilderment at what they saw, and the mist hung heavy over the heads of the sitters.'

IA Local Sues Majors For Browne-Bioff Union Fraud

on alleged fraud perpetrated by the defendants in their negotiations with George E. Browne during his reign as president of IATSE, which 'illegally, unlawfully and wrongfully' influenced his discretion and judgment so that he would withhold necessary authorization to Local 306 to exercise its right to strike. The union cites the testimony given by Nicholas Schenck during the extortion trial of Browne and Willie Bioff, which disclosed payments made to Browne in the amount of $150,000.

Testimony revealed that $100,000 and $50,000 made its way to Browne through C. C. Moskowitz (Loew's), and Major Leslie Thompson (RKO), respectively. Complaint charges payments were made by the defendants under agreement and an understanding with Brown he would deprive the Local of its legal right to strike against a proposed reduction of wages.

The union is making no claims against legality of the contract, but is seeking $3,000,000 for past damages due to imposed reduction of wages and $750,000 for the contract's continuation from 1941 to 1945. It is claimed wages of operators were reduced from $2.12 per hour to $1.68.

It was recalled last night, as studio IATSE locals studied the New York action, that Browne and Bioff had frequently interfered in local negotiations. After Sound Technicians Local 695 had ordered a strike at Republic, Willie Bioff ordered the men back to work by telephone. In a number of other instances Browne and Bioff took negotiations out of the hands of the studio locals and settled them to suit themselves. Local unions were studying these various negotiations last night to determine whether they had grounds for seeking damages.

Would Keep Women Away From Bars

San Francisco, Aug. 18.—Proposal of a county supervisor to relegate women in taverns to tables away from the bar, was expanded today to one calling for complete ban of all unescorted women from drinkeries.

Tacking the amendment on the original resolution, the police committee of the board of supervisors recommended that the amended measure be adopted by the board.

Since the resolution requests the State Board of Equalization to decree the ban on women in taverns—any action taken by SBE along the recommended line would be statewide in effect.

STELLAR GALAXY TO GLITTER AT WASHINGTON BOND PREEM

Plans for a Washington premiere Aug. 30 of the film industry's 'Stars Over America', highlight of the campaign to help the Treasury Department sell a billion dollars worth of Bonds during September, were completed yesterday, with the assurance that eight of the motion picture personalities participating in the campaign will be present for the ceremonies.

Definitely set to headline the Washington festivities are Edward Arnold, James Cagney, Irene Dunne, Greer Garson, Virginia Gilmore, Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford and Gene Tierney, stars who will make the first 10-day tours over five of the nationwide routes. Herbert Marshall, Joan Leslie and Walter Abel, and Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari, who have been assigned western routes, will go directly from Hollywood to their starting points.

At yesterday's meeting, presided over by Field Director Charles Einfeld, managers also were selected to accompany the players on their trips. They are:

Norman Manning, Warners, with Herbert Marshall, Walter Abel and Joan Leslie on Route No. 1; Joe Steele, with Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari, on Route 2; Oliver Hopps, 20th-Fox, with Edward Arnold and Gene Tierney on Route 3; Cameron Shipp, Warners, with James Cagney on Route 4; Ed Lawrence, Metro, with Greer Garson on Route 5; Margaret Ettinger with Irene Dunne on Route 6; Ray Bell, Metro, out of New York, with Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford and Virginia Gilmore on Route 7. The latter two are additions to the star list.

Upon arrival in Washington the star contingent will be escorted from the station to the Treasury Department by an Air Corps band, Government and Army representatives. Ceremonies on the Treasury steps will be headed by Secretary Morgenthau and the presence of the Hollywood personalities also will be made the occasion of a press conference.

Director Einfeld at a meeting with the newly-named managers went over each route with them, providing them with schedules and covering every activity of the players hour by hour. Before leaving Hollywood, each of the stars will know exactly what the program calls for at every stop, and will be given assurances that deviations from the lineups will not be countenanced. Also attending the conference were Ed Manson, Sam Clark and Ed Scofield.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Joe Newman, Metro director, has joined the Signal corps, with rank of first lieutenant. His last picture was 'Gambler's Choice'.

Bob Lanning, KNX publicist, goes into the Coast Guard as an eilisted man, with Jean Meredith taking over his old job.

William Baker, RKO research department. will be inducted into the Army on Aug. 25, having passed his physical examination on Monday.

Frank Conners, shipper at 20th-Fox exchange, goes into the Army next Thursday.

Phil Berle has gone into the Coast Guard as an enlisted man. Sid Silvers has been ordered to report for his physical examination within 20 days.

Clover Club Reopens As Bob Murphy Spot

Bob Murphy of House of Murphy has taken over lease of the Clover Club, most famous Hollywood night spot and will open it around Sept. 10 as an American Oriental night spot. Place will be remodelled with two dining rooms and have a spacious dance floor.

Murphy who has been most successful in operating a spot combining food and entertainment at his House of Murphy will provide top flight entertainment in the new establishment. Place when revamped will seat around 350.

Par Signs 'Jordan' Duo

Hans Schumm and Miles Mander have been signed at Paramount for feature supporting roles in 'Lucky Jordan' through the Monter-Gray agency.

Chas. Skouras Hosts Bond Drive Group

Charles P. Skouras, president of National Theatres, will give a luncheon today at the Ambassador, where plans will be formulated for California's participation in the Treasury Department's $1,000,000,000 motion picture industry September Bond drive. Skouras is state coordinator for the War Activities Committee on the drive, and the meeting is to coordinate the industry's operations.

Those invited include D. J. McNerney, Charles Einfeld, Howard Mills, Arthur Ungar and John Ryder, of the Treasury Department's War Savings Staff; Dave Bershon, James Smythe, Arch Bowles, Henry Ginsberg, Lou McIntyre, George R. Morton, George Topper, Bob Molton and George Watters.

Calhern To 'Chunking'

Louis Calhern, star of 'Life With Father' which had a 14-week run here, has been signed by Paramount for a principal role in 'Night Plane From Chunking.' Production starts rolling today, with Ralph Murphy directing and Robert Preston and Ellen Drew heading the cast.

Mann Ex-Rep To RKO

Edward Mann, cutter at Republic for six years, has resigned to accept post of director and chief film editor on new series of RKO shorts that Edward Ullman will produce in the east.

refused to go better than a $23.50 minimum for workers with a 10% increase of all employes receiving above the minimum.

Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions did most of the talking at today's meeting with company executives. He told them that SOEG would insist on its demand for classification of employes, with minimums ranging from $28.80 per week for typists to $72.80 for bookers. He said if the SOEG ordered a strike the Studio Painters and other technicians would not cross the lines to report for work. His ultimatum was backed up by Business Representative Glenn Pratt and Blanche Cole of the Guilders.

SOEG representatives said they would call a meeting of the strategy group upon their arrival on the Coast Sunday. It was indicated that a walkout would be a foregone conclusion unless a settlement was reached before the negotiators landed in Los Angeles.

General belief, however, was that company executives had told Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, to make the best deal he could, and that a settlement would be reached before Casey and the Guilders land on the Coast. SOEG representatives are scheduled to board the train at Lafayette on which Casey is heading Coastward, and opinion was that an agreement would be worked out en route.

Major companies are opposing classifications and scales demanded by the SOEG in the belief that they will be used as a precedent for an organizing campaign of exchange clerical workers throughout the country. SOEG is not interested in this organizing campaign, but drive is planned by the IATSE and other union groups.

RKO-Erskine Johnson 'Spotlight' Tie-Up

RKO has made tie-up with Erskine Johnson for presentation of dramatic skits for a 13-week period on his 'Hollywood Spotlight' air show over KECA starting Sept. 8. Studio will provide scripts of old screen properties for the sketches in return for plugs on current and new releases during first-runs at the Hillstreet and Pantages theatres. Talent will be provided by Robert Whitten, head of the Radio Drama course at LA City College with winner of 13-week contest to get a role in a future RKO picture.

The commando raid on Dieppe, France, shapes up as a brilliant test of Allied power. The selection of one of the most strongly guarded areas in Nazi-held Europe and 60 miles across open water from England taxed Allied offensive strength and Axis defensive strength to the utmost. The results: 'All objectives reached' for the Allies and 'one-third of its airpower smashed' for the Axis, can leave no further doubt as to the practical feasibility of a continental invasion.

All other fronts without important changes. Looks like the lull before an Allied storm.

Fleeting thought: How many men were 'left behind' at Dieppe to organize underground moves, operate radios, sabotage Hitler's lines?

TRIPLE SPROCKET FILM IS CONSERVATION HOPE

Despite the immediate need of curtailment of film use in release prints by all of the majors, under Government requirements, film conservation experts of the studios and the Academy Research Council are proceeding with further cconsideration of the three-sprockets-per-film frame from four, with saving of 25% in film footage on all prints.

Plan, which is being given more than passing consideration by Harold Hopper of the War Production Board, has both advantages and disadvantages, which must be weighed for final analysis and approval by industry engineers and company officials.

Major drawback, according to some engineers conversant with industry technical problems involving around 17,000 theatres, is necessity of changing sprockets, rollers and other minor adjustments to aper-

PARAMOUNT'S sound department has lost 13 men to the service during the past year according to check of technical crews on the lot. Majority of those leaving have gone into research to aid the war effort. Last to leave was James Norton, operations superintendent of sound, who is now at Berkeley working on harnessing of atomic energy with the Cyclotron. He is sixth Paramount sound man to join the Berkeley Radiation Laboratory, others being Ralph Spotts, Harry Lindgren, Lloyd Russell, E. E. Christie and John Pond. In Submarine Detection Research at either Point Loma or New London are Charles Hisserich, Donald Ross, Henry Fracker, C. G. McProud and Floyd Campbell. Raymond Crews is with the Western Electric labs and Homer Tasker with the Gilfillan Brothers lab.

Alias Boston Blackie

(Melodrama)

Columbia roduction. Stars Chester Morris. Features Adele Mara, Richard Lane and George E. Stone. Balance of east: Lloyd Corrigan, Walter Sande, Larry Parks, George McKay, Cy Kendall, Paul Fix and Ben Taggart. Produced by Wallace MacDonald. Directed by Lew Landers. Original screenplay by Paul Yawitz, based on the character created by Jack Boyle. Assistant director, Eugene Anderson. Editor, Richard Fantl. Photography, Philip Tannura. Art direction, Lionel Banks and Robert Peterson. Musical direction, M. W. Stoloff. Reviewed at the Orpheum theatre, Los Angeles, Aug. 19, 1942. Running time: 67 MINS.

Chester Morris continues to outsmart the coppers at their own game and continues amusingly and with suspense to offer a moderately entertaining meller series with the latest, 'Alias Boston Blackie'. Like its predecessors in the series, this will attract and hold its own in double bill situations.

Paul Yawitz, writer, has included more than the usual amount of wiseacre humor for Morris to mouth, and smart timing retains the zip intended as Morris gets off the cop-slapping nifties. When he's not doing that he's still slapping them by showing them up with his own fast detective work. Consequently picture contains as much fun as any other element and may even be regarded as a comedy except for all the mystery action and suspense.

There's a show business angle that lends novelty in yarn starting with the reformed Morris taking a troupe to the pen at Christmas time to entertain 'the boys'. One of the boys, Larry Parks, switches places with a clown to get out and murder two crooks who framed him into the jug. It becomes Morris' job to get to him before the killings, but the cops are hot on the trail, too, besides some other hoods who beat Parks to the killing. From there on in it's toss and turn between both sides, with Morris engineering impossible escapes, fighting the guy he's trying to save, but again coming out as the all-around pal of cops and robbers.

Time lags but for a few minutes in this chase-laden entry, thanks to speedy, if uninspired, direction. More might have been got out of role portrayals. Action, however, will cover up there and leave audiences pleased with the general result. Morris' work is up to the usual standard, Richard Lane's flat-footing is good, and George E. Stone's comic foiling holds up. Others in the cast scrape by.

ture gate on the estimated 35,000 projection machines installed in the theatres.

Major advantage is the estimated saving of at least 25% in overall film footage through slower running through projectors. Slower speed of film running through the intermittent movement will result in less wear and scratching of prints, giving longer usability, according to one technician's observation. Projector motors would run at same speed as at present, requiring no readjustment in that direction, and photographic quality on the screen would be retained.

Disadvantages to switchover includes the materials necessary for making and supplying total of at least 150,000 sprockets and rollers to be installed in theatre projection machines to take care of the new standard film. It is estimated that at least 80 tons of steel would be required, with statements made that the War Production Board has already earmarked this material for immediate availability should the industry plan go through. In addition, there would be many hours of machinist manpower necessary to fabricate the sprockets and rollers, which might run into a bottleneck as war work of precision machinists and toolmakers takes precedence at all times.

Slower speed, it is advanced, will impair reproduction of high frequencies on the sound track at least 25%, a sound engineer stated. Equipment manufacturers already have stated the sprockets can be manufactured and changeover effect through all theatres in approximately nine months' time, unless war work of the machinists necessitates stoppage and waiting for manpower to be available.

Major difficulty with the general idea is the fact that nearly a year will elapse before the full value of the film conservation program intended can be put into effect. Major companies, whose representatives are in on discussions of the changeover, have indicated they will underwrite expenses of remodeling and readjusting theatre equipment to the extent of $2,500,000, although an official of an equipment manufacturer which would do the bulk of the sprocket fabrication stated the entire undertaking could be accomplished for much less than that figure.

The three-sprockets-per-frame idea was advanced originally in 1935 by John Arnold, head of Metro's camera department, who got a diplomatic brushoff on his proposal at that time among the technicians he had let in on the idea. When film conservation came to prominence during the past six months, however, plan was taken up in other quarters and advanced as the best film-saver possible.

I. E. Sponable, 20th-Fox's eastern technical engineer, has been advancing the three-sprocket film method since arrival from the east several days ago, and a projector equipped with the new inner workings proposed has been on display at 20th-Fox for some time.

Switchover from four to three-sprocket frames through theatre bookings will be accomplished, according to one engineer who has been in on detailed discussions, through supplying both types of prints on the borderline release dates the changeover would take effect so that theatres and distributors would be able to take advantage of all playdates. Argument is advanced that small number of such prints would involve only a minor amount of footage in comparison to the total to be saved in the future.

New technical standards would not disturb prints for the foreign market, or those for showings on standard 35mm. equipment now in use by the American armed forces here and abroad. These prints would be optically-printed on the four-sprockets-per-frame standard film, which would eliminate any saving of film in that direction. Attitude is taken that it would virtually be impossible to change over sprockets on projectors throughout the world, and the old standard could easily be adhered to along the line proposed.

Secondary plan for film saving, involving cutting of photographic image to approximate size of that now on 16mm. prints, has been discarded as entirely unfeasible due to inability to obtain new projector lenses which would be necessary for such a move.

O'Keefe Starts '42-'43 Selling Mission

Al O'Keefe, western district manager for Universal, leaves today on an extended selling trip throughout his territory, taking in Portland, Seattle and Frisco for at least two weeks. Yesterday he concluded sales confabs with Bill Heineman, assistant general sales manager who is on from the East. Pair has also been working on details of U's term agreement with Fox-West Coast which has a year to go. Heineman will probably leave for New York on Friday.

BEST DRESSED GAL OF THE WEEK—

Irene Dunne seen lunching at the Beverly Hills Brown Derby wearing a black poplin suit. Soft shirring gave mild fullness to the skirt, and the jacket was of the brief Victorian variety. Her blouse of black organdie featured lace-edged flouces and was revealed at the throat and wrists. Her hat was of pink baku with an extremely tall crown and deep cloche brim. Black belting extended almost to the top of the crown, and ornamenting one side of the belting was her ivory diamond-studded chessman clip. Black patent pumps, bag and pink doeskin gloves added the finishing touches.

Theatre Divorcement Threat Holds Top Companies in Line

New York, Aug. 19.—Threat to push for theatre divorcement from the five consent decree distributors, as voiced in Thurman Arnold's veto of the UMPI plan, will keep the decree majors selling mainly in blocks-of five. Twentieth-Fox may offer 10 pictures at one clip—especially to launch the new season selling—but all will be previously tradeshown at the time of offer to exhibitors.

Although the escape clause in the original consent decree allows the five majors concerned to deviate from the decree starting in June, 1942, none will resort to this means —according to roundup of the companies involved. Blocks-of-five selling is viewed by the majors as a lesser evil than bringing down theatre divorcement proceedings from the Department of Justice. Some of the companies concerned may sell one to 10 pictures instead of five, to offset possible future charges that they are fostering an industry monopoly and setting up uniformity of selling.

School NBC Answer For Manpower Shortage

Manpower shortages and threatened further depletions of production ranks has caused NBC to institute classes in air show production among all help who would attend. Classes are being held twice weekly for two hours each time, with all interested persons invited to attend, although there is no promise of graduation. Net, like CBS, has for years graduated help from lower brackets, particularly from among male employees. However, net is now using girls in many jobs formerly occupied by men, and girls are included in the classroom setup.

Hope To Keep Airing From Service Bases

Bob Hope will continue to originate his Pepsodent broadcasts from military establishments next season, possibly starting his tour from Seattle when he returns to the air Sept. 22. Agency has thumbed under a proposal for an airing from Alaska due to uncertainties of transmission from outside the country. Hope and his aire troupe, however, will possibly do two shows for servicemen there and then move down to Seattle for start of the season.

FILM HOUSES WILL SHUTTER FOR 'STARS' BOOMING BONDS

Theatres in many towns across the country will not screen pictures on visiting days of the 'Stars Over America' in order that the film industry's War Bond message may reach the largest possible number of picture fans 'in person', according to reports received by Charles Einfeld, field director of the 300 Bond rallies. Elimination of regular programs is calculated to boost attendance at the Hollywood celebrities' Bond rallies in the various spots. Theatres will remain staffed, however, for the purpose of selling War Bonds.

Two other decisions announced by Einfeld are expected to intensify the Bond-selling effort. Throughout their tours the stars will decline to sign autographs unless such signatures are used to further Bond sales. They also will refrain from giving press interviews in regard to their recent pictures, confining their statements, rather, to the all-out effort in behalf of the Treasury Department.

Point Pleasant, Va., the country's largest inland shipbuilding center, has been added to Route No. 4 for Sept. 21. Roy Yoke, state administrator for the Treasury Department, who suggested the addition, assured the committee an outstanding day.

The tri-cities, Rock Island, Ill., Moline, Ill., and Davenport, Ia., with the aid of the Sept. 8 appearance of Edward Arnold and Gene Tierney, expect to total $1,800,000 in Bond sales for the month. And Dubuque, Ia., expects to add another $450,000, according to reports received by Einfeld yesterday.

Col Using Nine More Cutting Rooms Off Gower St. Lot

With studio estimates of production up from 20 to 40% over the output at this time last year, Columbia yesterday announced leasing of nine additional cutting rooms away from the lot in order to keep pace with the product. The annex is located adjacent to the studio on Beachwood drive, with arrangements being made for stocking the quarters with auxiliary equipment.

Nine pictures, already completed, are now being cut, including 'You Were Never Lovelier' and 'My Sister Eileen.' In addition, seven others now in production require daily cutting, while three more, 'City Without Men', 'Prairie Thunder' and a 'Glove Slinger' comedy are starting today.

School Reopening Gives Theatres Problem

With vacation coming to a close and kids who have been working in theatre returning to schools, theatre operators see their personnel problem becoming acute. Though it's been a tough problem for all businesses, theatres haven't felt the pinch too greatly due to youngsters of both sexes taking the fairly easy ushering and other type jobs in preference to others. Theatre glamor helped too.

Some kids have been working on special permits over the summer but school work will prevent them from continuing in late night jobs. Days will be taken up with school. Defense instruction, etc., will further aggravate the situation.

Mono's 'West' Washes Up Year's Program

When Monogram completes production of 'West of the Law', eighth of the Rough Riders westerns turned out by Scott R. Dunlap, company will have washed up its entire 1941-42 program of 32 features and 16 westerns. The Buck Jones-Tim Mccoy-Raymond Hatton western rolls Monday. Last productions on the Mono schedule for the current season, now in the cans, include 'Homicide Squad', 'Foreign Agent', 'Phantom Killer', 'Police Bullets' and 'King of the Stallions'.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Mel Williamson, former radio head of the Russel Seeds agency here, has been commissioned a captain in the First Sea Search Attack Group, and is stationed at Langley Field, Va. He was a flying lieutenant in the last war.

Alan Hale, Jr., forsakes his film career and shortly reports for duty in the Merchant Marine. Buddy Cohen, son of Louis N. Cohen, also goes into the same branch of the service.

Murray Weintrab, of the Gus Dembling agency, has enlisted in the Marines.

Gray Fiefield, of Paramount casting office, has joined the Coast Guard.

Classed as 1-A, three agency men are going into the Army next week. They are John Cook, of the Lou Shurr office; Bill Beggs, of the Max Shagrin office, and Lou Duoec, veteran of the last war, now with Alex Kempner.

Donald Clark, son of M. R. 'Duke' Clark, Paramount branch manager, goes into the Army Sept. 1.

Olaf Bolm, Paramount research man, will be inducted into the Army this week. He's the fourth DeMille staffer to enter armed forces, others being Frank Colvin, Theodore St. John and Jesse Lasky, Jr.

Carl Campbell, KNX engineer, is on a two-week furlough before reporting for active duty in the army.

Edward P. Leonard, RKO sound man, will don Army uniform Aug. 30.

NBC Presenting Show At Bond Shelter

Makeshift Tent Shows In Boom Areas Have Distribs Pondering

Possibility of a mushroom growth of film exhibition in tents or other priority-escaping methods to cash in on boom areas has distributors guessing on whether or not to service newcomer opportunists with new product. Though a couple of established exhibs have taken to improvising where they could not build by converting a super market into a theatre, and the other attempting a tent show, it's felt that others not necessarily connected in show business would attempt crashing and cashing-in via similar steps.

Majority of distribs feel that unless they can be certain to not offend already established customers in given areas, they will not service such types of theatres except with plenty of clearance over regular exhibitors of at least 90 days. Under section six of consent decree, distribs are permitted to refuse sales where they can show that such sales would injure other accounts. Some others will probably resort to price-raising and other means of more gently avoiding a brief boom account at the expense of irritating regulars. Five majors are thumbs down on any but known customers taking such steps, and will refuse. However, couple of others are giving it more consideration, not wanting to lose anything if it can be helped.

Relief Drive Colonels Receive Reports

Colonels in the industry's campaign for Navy, China, Russia and Dutch War Reliefs received progress reports yesterday and one advised the drive will continue only one more week. Making a final appeal to higher bracket earners, who are being contacted by the Artists Managers Guild members, Chairman Jacob H. Karp reported the rate at which substantial contributions now are being received is gratifying and expressed the hope they would continue to come in during the next few days in order to put the drive over the top.

Suds Account Seeks Glamor Airshow To Orig. Here

Mitchell Benson of the Lord & Thomas Chicago office is here to prepare a show for audition aimed at Pabst sponsorship. Understood brewer is partial to a glamor show, which would pitch the origination here. In view of Benson's preparations here, it is believed that Vick Knight's recorded program built around Pat O'Brien for the Milton Biow agency has failed to register with the client. Another pitch for the Pabst account is that by Bernard Schubert, recently arrived from the east. His chief candidate as star of the show is said to be Jack Carson, although he also is trying to line up a sponsor for Louella Parsons.

Networks recently lowered the bars on beer shows, but the chances of NBC landing the business would depend on the attitude of Harrison Holliway, general manager of KFI-KECA, who has steadfastly held out against beer shows on his network outlet.

Kiepura Settlement In Wind—

An out-of-court settlement was attempted yesterday in the suit of Oskar Gluck, former Austrian film producer, against Jan Kiepura and his wife, Marta Eggerth. Gluck is seeking $18,593 allegedly due from a payment for a film in which the pair were to appear, but which the war caused to be canceled. Trial was delayed when attorneys for the plaintiff asked for more time to complete conferences regarding settlement.

NY UNIONS IN FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF COLLARITES

New York, Aug. 19.—The Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild today asked Herbert Yates, Consolidated prexy, for recognition as representing home office workers at Consolidated and Republic. At the same time the Guild filed for representation of United Artists exchange Collarites in New York city, and will attempt to include the exchangers in a National Labor Relations Board hearing for UA home office crews which had been postponed from Thursday to Friday.

The SOPEG hearing before NLRB for Paramount home office, exchange, newsreel, and Par-controlled music publisher staffs, started today. Representatives discussed which staffers are eligible to vote and recessed until Friday. The IATSE was present with a claim for the exchange workers and produced membership cards.

The Motion Picture Office Employes which recently won a Warners strike with IA aid, was present with a request for the home office, newsreel and music publisher staffs, but showed no membership cards, and may not get on the ballot.

The SPOEG is affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, while the MPOE is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, as is the IATSE.

PREVIEW OF SHORTS

Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences last night presented the second group of shorts selected by its Short Subjects Branch at the Filmarte theatre for press preview.

Eleven outstanding subjects (with emphasis on the war effort (contained two that will not hit commercial theatres while the others, with the exception of 'Community Chest' reel, will go out through regular releasing channels to the public.

Topnotcher of the program was 'Beyond the Line of Duty,' an example of the new military morale or war training type of film detailing the entree into the Air Force of that Mighty Might, Captain Hewitt T. Wheless, and his exploits ending with the presidentially acclaimed seat of accomplishing a mission and returning to base in the west Pacific despite great odds. Short, running 24 minutes, is for showing in Army Camps only, but if ever the public needs a morale hypo this stands out as a great example of a new type film making.

Program got underway with 'Terror of the Midway', a Paramount cartoon of eight and a half minutes depicting that incredible pen-and-ink character, Superman, displaying his undying heroics in a circus fight. Number nine in the Dave Fleischer-directed series is swell entertainment.

Second was an eloquent plea for the Community War Chest in a four and a half minute production by the Motion Picture Industry for the Community Chests and Councils of New York for national distribution. Directed by Mark Sandrich and photographed by Charles Lang it has film names Marlene Dietrich, George Raft and Edward Arnold explaining necessity for continued giving when drives open this fall.

Pete Smith explains 'Victory Vittles' with the aid of home economist Polly Patterson in a Metro technicolor short running 10 minutes and directed by Will Jason. What to do to cut corners on wartime food bills, and at the same time be able to digest economy-concoctions, is wittilly detailed by Mr. Smith vocally and by Miss Patterson visually. Another Smith success.

A Leon Schlesinger-Warners cartoon 'The Duck-Tators', is intentional in its ridicule of the world's three mad men and its typical American humor spares no punches in dishing out the laughs for audiences. Supervised by Norman McCabe and running eight minutes the cartoon will be enjoyed.

A more serious study is offered by Metro's 'The Greatest Gift,' a Miniature based on an old French legend of a juggler befriended by Friars with Edmund Gwenn as the itinerant who makes his gift to the Saint by a juggling show. Richard Goldstone produced this excellent 11 minute short and Harold Daniels directed.

Robert Benchley stages another of his drolleries, this time under the title of 'The Man Angle,' for Paramount. Explaining that it presents the things women do to irritate men Benchley rambles on delightfully for nine minutes of laughter.

Walt Disney gives Olympic performers a working over in a seven minute Technicolor cartoon 'The Olympic Champ' with Goofy as the hardy who is animated hilariously through the various sports of champion athletes. This is a continuation of the series which included 'How to Ride a Horse,' 'How to Ski' and 'The Art of Self Defense.'

Number eight on the program shows the preparation of a Sand Table, an Army training film produced by the Academy Research Council for the Signal Corps, and for screening before Army personnel only. Subject is to be used in basic infantry training as instruction for non-commission officers in the technique of setting up tactical problems on a sand table. Film industry has completed nearly 200 reels of such training films, to aid instruction in all branches of the service.

'Woodman, Spare That Tree,' a Columbia cartoon in the Color Rhapsody series, pits a wily crow against a fox. Typical cartoon fun, short romps laughably through six minutes as the crow outwits the fox's efforts to add the bird's tree home to his collection of logs.

Next was the outstanding 'Beyond the Line of Duty' produced by Gordon Hollingshead, directed by Lewis Seiler and narrated by Lt. Ronald Reagan at Warners. Picture has a more general theme than the usual instructional film for technical training, being intended to emphasize the importance of the Air Force flying instructors' work. Captain Wheless plays himself, from the time he left a Texas cattle ranch for Randolph Field up to the present day. Others of the cast are also Army personnel.

Program finished with 'The Blitz Wolf', a Metro cartoon in color running 10 minutes with Fred Quimby as executive producer and Tex Avery as director. This parodies 'The Three Little Pigs' and the 'Big Bad Wolf' for solid laughs.

Lt. Col. Capra Named To Command Army Camera Unit

The War Department has authorized affiliation of the 834th Signal Photographic Detachment and has assigned the Signal Corps unit to the Special Services branch of the Army, it was announced yesterday by office of Colonel Darryl F. Zanuck. Lieut. Colonel Frank Capra, recently promoted from major, has been named commanding officer of this detachment, to be composed largely of motion picture directors, writers and technicians.

Purpose of detachment will be production of a series of educational and training films exclusively for the use of the armed forces. The Signal Photographic Detachment will be an 'affiliated unit' sponsored by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Council is charged by the War Department with securing the personnel for a number of photographic companies which will operate on motion picture and still photographic missions throughout the world.

Par Buys Radio Time For 'Wake' Preem

New York, Aug. 19.—Spot announcement time has been purchased on stations KNEW, WMCA, WABC, MJZ, WOR, WHN, WQXR during the week preceeding the premiere of Paramount's 'Wake Island' at the Rivoli Theatre Sept. 1. Premiere is for benefit of the Red Cross. In addition, three national feature broadcasts will tie in with the picture's exploitation.

Big Steel Aids Film

One of the industrial plants to be used for Universal's forthcoming 'Pittsburgh' will be the United States Steel Corporation's plants. US Steel has also offered its recently completed documentary film on steel making for use by studio.

Kruger in 'Chungking'

Otto Kruger, back from the Broadway stage, has been signed by Paramount for one of the top roles in 'Night Plane From Chungking,' starring Robert Preston and Ellen Drew. Ralph Murphy will direct.

RKO Skeds 32 Based On Originals; New Koerner Policy

In line with the policy set forth by Charles W. Koerner at the company's recent sales convention, RKO has announced the largest list of original screen stories in the studio's history as the highlight of its 1942-43 schedule. List includes 45 features for the new season, with 32 of these to be made from stories expressly written for the screen, in excess of 70%.

This is in keeping with Koerner's statement of policy in which productions were to be tailored to the needs of the exhibitors.

It contrasts sharply with the programs of previous years during which many stage plays, requiring extensive adaptation, were purchased by the studio. For the new season, only one picture of the 45 is based upon a stage offering. Of the remaining 12, six each are to be taken from published books and magazine stories published in periodicals.

Arch Bowles Starts New Job Monday

Arch Bowles, supervisor of northern and southern California districts for Fox West Coast, arrived in town Monday to assume his new duties at the enlarged F-WC offices here. His upping relieves Charles P. Skouras, president, of detail duties, etc., and allows him to devote more time and effort to his position as president of F-WC and National Theatres Corp.

Bowles arrived with his wife after several postponements while he wound up business and personal matters in the north, where he formerly was in charge. Delay also was occasioned by establishing B. V. Sturdivant as his successor as operations head in the north.

FREEZING WON'T STILT FILMS, ASSURES HOPPER

time, and will be effective until Nov. 18.

The order also requires manufacturers, motion picture producers and other users, except the Army and Navy, who have any 35-millimeter film on the effective date, to file a statement with the WPB within 15 days, giving the amount in linear feet and style of film in stock, and to keep and preserve for two years accurate and complete records of such film and all sales and shipments. These records are to be submitted to audit and inspection by duly authorized representatives of the WPB.

The effect of this order will be to limit motion pictures to the amount of film used last year, Harold Hopper, chief of the WPB motion picture and photographic section, said.

'For the present at least the Producers will not be permitted to use more film than they did in 1941 and will be expected to use less under the conservation plan now in effect,' Hopper stated. 'Further discussion of the allocation of film under the order will be held at a meeting of that industry's advisory committee on Aug. 25.'

Main purpose of the order, WPB explained, is to enable the armed services to obtain all the film they need. Film for commercial advertising pictures will not be available, Hopper said, but factual and morale films being made by the various Government departments, when approved by Lowell Mellett, chief of the motion picture bureau of the Office of War Information, will be allowed 'sufficient film to handle the subjects properly.'

'It was explained that 35-millimeter film for still cameras was not included in the order 'because raw materials for the manufacture of amateur films have already been curtailed under the production requirements plan and a WPB order affecting films for amateurs will be issued shortly.'

Any one desiring 35-millimeter film must, under the order, apply in writing to the WPB director general for operations, fully setting forth the amount by types of film desired, the reasons considered appropriate to obtain the film, and the use to which the film is to be put.

Film in transit at the effective time of the order is not frozen, and may be delivered to its immediate destination.

Hopper at a meeting with major and independent picture producers in Hollywood yesterday, told them the freezing order would not stilt production so long as they continued to comply with WPB allocations. He is understood to have said the WPB was satisfied at present with the voluntary savings plan initiated by the companies themselves, and declared they would not be deprived of their raw film stock. He said they would be given what they need under the reduced consumption plan as outlined at meetings with company representatives.

He said there was no occasion for the industry to be frightened by the freezing order, so long as they complied with allocations, and that an overall formula for raw film stock would be worked out shortly. He indicated the matter of cutting down on the number of prints was a matter for the east, and latter is expected to be handled separately from film actually used in shooting pictures.

Film Canteen Plans Premiere Party

A fund-raising program, combining the highlights of a premiere and a party, was announced by unions and guilds yesterday, to establish permanently the Hollywood Stage Door Canteen for servicemen. The Canteen has obtained the cooperation of Fox West Coast Theatres, which has made the Four Star theatre available for Aug. 29; Columbia, which contributes its latest release, 'Talk of the Town', and a night spot which will open its doors especially for the occasion.

'Talk of the Town' premiere-party, as the celebration has been labeled, will comprise seven hours of continuous entertainment. Supper, dancing and entertainment will be featured, all being available with purchase of one ticket. All proceeds from the party go to the Canteen. Establishment of the Canteen is being sponsored by 17 crafts, including practically all of the picture organizations.

ette, Ind., to get strike sanction from the Brotherhood of Painters, parent union of the Guild, and then will head for Hollywood.

Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, continues his talks with employers, and then meets the SOEG representatives in Chicago Friday and will present the final employer offer en route to the Coast with the union men.

The SOEG, reporting at a meeting of that organization Sunday night, expects to get a strike order for Monday unless an agreement is reached before that time. General belief, however, is that Casey will get together on a deal before reaching the Coast.

RKO Gets Frozen Coin; Others Must Wait

New York, Aug. 19.—Application by RKO to unfreeze $2,000,000 in English currency was approved by the British Treasury, with the money probably forthcoming shortly. Previous objections of various other distributors were withdrawn to pave the way for RKO to get the coin. Application for all other majors to unfreeze approximately $50,000,000 is still pending.

U. S. Order Limits Production To 1941 Level

New York, Aug. 19.—The War Production Board order limiting the 11 production companies to the 1941 level of raw film stock consumption 'for the time being,' is no lasting solution to the industry problem.

WPB is still insisting that the industry cut down and various companies are confronted with the problem of fixing their own figures on print reductions. Only advantage of the order is that film for advertising and commercial purposes are banned.

Applications for raw film use, both negative and positive, will be made under affidavits so that the government will have an inventory of all stock used and be able later to determine which is unessential. Whether this will ease the situation for the picture companies is questionable.

Execs of major companies still hold divergent views on print ceilings, and a further and drastic reduction of positive stock availability looms—depending on savings effected through elimination of commercial and amateur photography uses. Film for government shorts will be available only after approval of the necessary footage by Lowell Mellett. All requirements for the army and navy will naturally be allowed.

Next meeting of the industry's advisory conservation committee has been set up for Washington on Aug. 25.

Grable To Ft. Bragg On Jaunt For HVC

Betty Grable, latest addition to the Hollywood Victory Committee's roster of camp show talent, trains out today for Fort Bragg, N. C. Accompanied by Charles Henderson, song writer-pianist, Miss Gable will join the USO unit, 'Hollywood Follies,' in a three-day engagement at Fort Bragg. She is booked for two days at Camp Davis and one at the New River Marine Base in North Carolina, two days at Camp Croft and four days at Fort Jackson, S. C., returning to Hollywood Sept. 10.

IATSE LOCAL 659 FORCES TWO LENSERS OFF LOCATION

ers, and raising a second cameraman to director of photography and sending him to Oklahoma in charge of a location crew.

Wrigley in his suit, filed by Attorneys Mitchell and Gold, claims he was suspended without a hearing and without notice. He claims the action was illegal, unlawful and unwarranted and asks that the ASC be required to reinstate him to good standing.

Jimmy Howe and Hans Konekamp, two ASC directors of photography who had resigned their membership in the IATSE, were forced off Warners 'Air Force' location at Tampa, Fla., yesterday, and Ernest Miller, a director of photography under contract to Republic, was sent south by plane last night to take over the cameras. It is understood Miller was borrowed from Republic by Business Representative Herbert Aller of Local 659. Miller is a director, but is not affiliated with the ASC, Republic having no contract with that organization.

Lionel Linden, a second cameraman, has been raised to a director of photography by Local 659, and is now in charge of a location crew for Paramount at Fort Sill, Okla., where an Army training picture is being shot. Action indicated Local 659 is determined to shut the ASC out of all location work and to push its demand for union control of all cameramen.

It was reported last night the ASC had sent wires to several directors of photography asking them to attend a conference at ASC headquarters tonight. It is understood purpose of session is to ask them why their resignations from Local 659 have not been forthcoming. The ASC passed a resolution stating all directors who failed to resign by Aug. 15 would be liable to suspension or expulsion, but to date no action has been taken to enforce this resolution. More than 40 directors already have turned in their resignations.

Prexy Fred Jackman of the ASC was in New York yesterday. It was understood he planned to confer with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact; Prexy J. Brown, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with whom the directors of photography are now affiliated, and perhaps heads of the IATSE International.

Wrigley was expelled by the ASC because he accepted an assignment on a 20th-Fox location in Utah after Virgil Miller had been forced off the job by Local 659 because he had resigned his membership in that organization. The ASC claimed Wrigley accepted the assignment without permission of the ASC board of governors.

Dim-Out Eclipse Gets Full Cooperation

dimming brought relief to theatre operators and others, who feared boxoffice damage. Result to date has indicated no apparent hurt since marquees were dimmed, vertical signs blacked out, and other mazdas shielded. Late last night officials reported no offending lighting, but expressed the opinion there must be some, and that they will be met and dealt with.

Clarification of dim-out rules as affecting theatres was not forthcoming yesterday from Willard Keith, of Office of Civilian Defense. Committee of Theatre Defense Board members had requested specific information on lobby lighting, so far not covered in published regulations; also as to sidewalk-line illuminated signs. It was thought some theatres might be prompted to increase lobby lighting after dimming marquee under-lighting, which brought up the question. Keith was in San Diego yesterday and is expected to return today.

Stories in daily press intimating night construction and production in studios would not be affected by the order, are untrue. Truth is that all studios already are revamping their production schedules to conform to regulations, going to added expense to insure compliance. Case in point involved Columbia last night when outdoor sequences of 'The Frightened Stiff' were shot indoors, following building of special night sets.

Observation of general public gave no indication of objection to the dim-out. Continued support of places seemingly requiring light indicates they have fallen in line.

Obstacle marker lights on radio towers do not come within restrictions of the dim-out regulations, the Fifth Fighter Command has advised Richard F. Connor, radio coordinator for Southern California Broadcasters Association. Memo from Col. Ernest Moon stated these lights may remain on until ordered out by the regional command. Neon call letters and other lights on towers must be turned off to meet regulations. Fighter Command holds that obstacle marker lights are an aid to aerial navigation.

Loretta Young Tagged By Par for Two Pix Annually

Loretta Young has been signed to a Paramount contract calling for two pictures annually it was announced yesterday. It will be her second appearance on this lot since the inception of her career, Miss Young having worked there only once previously in a Cecil B. DeMille production.

Story material, the announcement added, is under consideration for her first subject under the new set up, with a decision expected shortly.

Miss Young's latest film appearance was opposite Frederic March in 'Bedtime Story' and she is currently making 'The Frightened Stiff' with Brian Aherne.

King of the Stallions

(Western)

Monogram release of an Edward Finney production. Stars Chief 'Tonto' Thundercloud. Features Nakoma, the Wonder Horse; Paint, the Killer Stallion; Princess Bluebird, Ric Vallin, Dave O'Brien. Supporting cast: Chief Yowlachie, Ted Adams, Sally Cairns, Gordon Demain, Forrest Taylor, Joe Cody. Producer-director, Edward Finney. Screenplay, Arthur St. Claire, Sherman Lowe. Original story, Roger Merton. Photography, Marcel Le Picard. Executive assistant, Samuel Wallis. Assistant director, Don Verk. Production aide, Aaron Klein. Film editor, Fred Bain. Sound engineer, Ben Winkler. Trainers, Frank Sanders, Curly Twiford. Musical score and direction, Frank Sanucci. Previewed at studio, Aug. 20, 1942. Running time: 63 MINS.

'King of the Stallions' has some thrills for the Saturday matinee kiddies, but offers little for adult audiences. Composed of stock footage and scenes filmed in Crater Canyon, Calif., and Monument Valley, Ariz., picture is mostly a cutting job of piecing together of wild horses and the staged action of males and trained equines in the cast. It will serve its purpose in the neighborhood and other small houses.

Plot furnished by the Roger Merton original, scripted by Arthur St. Claire and Sherman Lowe, has something to do with a horse rustler who uses a trained killer stallion to run off with ranchers' strings, with the blame being pinned onto a tribe of Indians. One young Indian captures a big black stallion, and through the horse (player of the title role), vindicates his tribe and brings the villain to an unhappy end. The black also takes care of his wicked rival in a well-staged fight of flashing hoofs and nipping teeth.

Nakoma, the wonder horse, and Paint, the killer, are the featured equines. Chief 'Tonto' Thundercloud is starred as an Indian living apart from his tribe. The young redskin who clears things up is Ric Vallin. His Indian love is Princess Bluebird. Dave O'Brien is a friendly horsetrader, and Chief Yowlachie is head man of the tribe. Ted Adams, Sally Cairns, Gordon Demain, Forrest Taylor and Joe Cody are the other credited players.

Edward Finney produced and directed, and Marcel Le Picard did the photography. Picture uses more of a musical score than usual with a budget production, written and directed by Frank Sanucci.

means that all of them will cease operations for the duration.

Film stocks from the manufacturers can only be secured on permits issued to producing and distributing firms by the War Production Board in Washington, and the only companies authorized for permit issuance are the 11 established producing and distributing outfits—Warners, Universal, Paramount, Columbia, RKO, United Artists, 20th-Fox, Metro, Republic, Monogram and Producers Releasing.

Under the regulations, no company is to get more film than in 1941, but all firms have provided assurances that reductions in 1941 footage will be made voluntarily. Producers who have pictures completed, but without release deal through one of the 11 companies listed, will not be enabled to secure positive stock for release prints. Further, none outside of the firms listed can secure raw stock for Army, Navy or Government films unless a permit is secured, and latter will be virtually impossible to obtain under the stringent regulations set up.

Through plugging up the commercial, advertising and other production activities where film does not go through the regulation entertainment channels, WPB officials figure that around 300,000,000 feet of film a year will be conserved. Companies affected by the film freeze have privilege of appealing to Harold Hopper, chief of photographic and motion picture division, WPB, and final decision will be made by Lowell Mellett. Only chance of getting concession, it is reported, is for pictures on which stock is required to carry strong appeal for morale of the public or armed forces.

ADVERTISING FILMS DISAPPEAR

Sweeping icing will close up virtually all firms that have been turning out advertising reels for commercial companies, small outfits and laboratories making short ad trailers, and all other similar enterprises. Hardest hit will be Alexander Film Co. of Colorado, which has developed a large business in screenad trailers in addition to advance trailer service for coming attractions of major releases for theatre use. One raw stock representative estimated the Alexander concern used at least 25,000,000 feet of positive stock annually. Another large special trailer service of 20 years' standing is Filmack in Chicago, which has developed a substantial business in short one-minute adfilms and other trailers.

It is estimated there are around 100 advertising film producers scattered throughout the United States, all of which will have to take a siesta for the duration. Largest in standing and volume of work done are Jam Handy and Wilding Pictures, both with Detroit headquarters. During the past several years both were turning out large numbers of features and shorts for some of the largest automobile, refrigerator, soft drink and other manufacturers and distributors, and each had permanent offices and organizations in Hollywood.

Producers who have been in the habit of turning out special independent roadshow features to catch coin among the smaller theatres without regular releasing channels, now find their film supply dried up. No film sign is also up for producers in the east who have been making films with colored casts for the Negro houses, while a small outfit in New York which has been turning out Hebrew dialog films will wind up pronto.

FILM PLUG TRAILERS STAY

Advance trailers on coming attractions, which have been turned out by National Screen Service under contracts with the major companies, and which contain actual scenes of the pictures being plugged. NSS trailers, already trimmed to around 200-250 feet, will continue under the new regulations, with NSS making raw stock purchases from the distributors and charging footage against the individual companies.

Hopper called a special meeting yesterday afternoon in projection room of Eastman Kodak building of all studio and laboratory purchasing agents, studio managers and laboratory officials. He explained the details of the freezing order of WPB to the 65 present, and then threw the meeting open for general questions.

It was explained that, for the present, the freeze regulations only apply to 35mm. film, but it covers all types of negative and positive in that size. Neither 8mm. nor 16mm. film comes under the present order, it was stated.

Hopper informed the group the freeze order would go into effect at midnight, after which time only recognized companies designated could have access to negative and positive. Raw film suppliers were informed that until applications for permits are received in Washington and proper orders issued, the designated companies could continue to draw film from the warehouses until permits arrive back on the Coast.

HOPPER TO WASHINGTON

After cleaning up a number of loose ends today and tomorrow around the studios, Hopper pulls out Sunday for Washington. In the capital he will attend meeting of eastern company heads who will go down from New York to sit with WPB officials Tuesday on general film conservation by the 11 companies involved in film withdrawals.

Indie Session Likely To Be Postponed

Regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, scheduled for San Francisco Aug. 26-27, likely will be postponed due to inability of trustees to be present. Indies feel more will be accomplished through a short wait during which further UMPI developments may appear, and sales policy announcements of majors, now that UMPI sales plan has been nixed, may be made known.

Factorites Head East

Bill Hardwick, advertising director for Max Factor's, and Mike Harris, general office manager, leave for the east today on company business. Pair will visit New York, Washington and Canada before returning to the Coast.

Film Industry Readies Sept. Billion Dollar War Bond Drive

New York, Aug. 20.—Top film executives, meeting today at Toot Shor's, pointed out that the picture industry for September becomes the spearhead of the billion-dollar Bond drive. George Schaefer reviewed progress of the industry campaign, along with Richard C. Patterson, Jr., and others, and brought up to date the campaign's progress. He highlighted the fact that 4,104 theatres become official Bond issuing agents, thus placing theatres in the same category as banks for the first time. A new dignity for the theatre and a great surprise for the bankers themselves.

Schaefer also mentioned other contributions by the industry to date, including the pledge of 15,266 theatres to show Victory shorts and that the industry is policing itself to see that the shorts are shown. Hollywood actors were saluted for their part in the campaign. James Cagney and Kenneth Thomson both spoke briefly. The 33 Commando execs pledged themselves to sell $33,000,000 in Bonds before Sept. 1, so the billion dollar campaign tees off with one-thirtieth of the quota in the bag.

It is hoped that at the Sept. 1 breakfast at Stanton Griffis' apartment fulfillment of this pledge can be formally announced. Oscar Doob, in the midst of all the enthusiasm, was the only one who highlighted the great and difficult task facing the business in raising the billion. The solemn, serious note impressed greatly.

Among those present were Nick Schenck, Barney Balaban, Spyros Skouras, Peter Rathvon, Arthur Mayer, Herbert Yates, Herman Place, Herman Robbins, J. E. Brulator and W. C. Michel. At the same time today the Public Relations Committee, eastern division, met at the New York Athletic Club to go over the organizational work of the drive, while Francis Harmon, WAC vice-chairman, spoke on the September campaign before the Publicity Club of New York at Delmonico's.

GINSBERG HYPOS PUBLICITY HEADS IN BOND SALE SPUR

The film industry's determination to highlight the nationwide September Bond Drive by topping all previous records for Bond sales among studio workers themselves, was voiced by Henry Ginsberg, chairman of the Treasury Department's Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, at yesterday's meeting of the Public Relations Committee.

Ginsberg outlined details for speeding up the drive in September. In cooperation, the Public Relations Committee agreed to give particular attention to house organs, preparation of posters and circulars, and including Bond-selling messages to the industry in all advertising.

First coordination step between Ginsberg's special September drive committee and the permanent chairmen of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, took place yesterday with joint discussion at Metro between Louis B. Mayer, member of the special committee; Studio Chairman W. K. Craig and more than 50 departmental, union and guild captains. Allover objective of the campaign was outlined by Mayer, with importance of War Bond investments. Today's meeting was first of many slated to take place.

Perry Lieber assumed the duties of chairman at the meeting, succeeding Howard Strickling. The retiring chairman was given a desk set 'in grateful appreciation of his leadership'.

Lieber announced the personnel of two important committees, the executive and planning groups. The executive committee is composed of Perry Lieber, Howard Strickling, Harry Brand, John Joseph and George Brown. Members of the planning committee are John Joseph, chairman; George Brown, Alex Evelove, Howie Mayer and William Hebert.

At the request of Jean Hersholt, prexy of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, the committee will take an active part in dedication of the Relief Fund Country Home Sept. 27. Hersholt is being invited to attend an early meeting of the committee so that the members can be in touch with all the plans for this industry event.

The committee also is cooperating fully on the Army Emergency Relief football game Oct. 30. Posters are being put up in all studios, and the publicity directors are aiding promotion of the game in every way.

Story Buys

Metro has purchased 'Two Against Tomorrow', story of Bataan, by Peter Viertel, son of Salka Viertel, and who now is in the Marine Corps. Edgar Selwyn will produce.

Columbia has bought 'Women At War', an original story by Lester Cohen. It deals with women in war industries.

Lux 'This Above All' Opens 9th Season

Lux Radio theatre returns to the air Sept. 14 with a dramatization of 'This Above All' to initiate its ninth season on CBS. Production setup is unchanged from previous years with Sanford Barnett as producer; George Welles, scripter; Lou Silvers, music director; Harry Kerr, writer of the C. B. DeMille spot, and DeMille as producer-emcee.

Disney 5-House Preem Stirs Rio Splurge

World premiere of Walt Disney's first production about South America, 'Saludos', will be held in Rio de Janeiro Monday. Preem has been set up for five theatres in the Brazilian city and picture will be shown under its Portuguese title, 'Alo Amigos'. Sponsoring premiere is Mrs. Getulio Vargas, wife of the president of Brazil. Picture goes in the five houses for a minimum of two weeks at increased admissions as the first world premiere of a Hollywood-produced film.

'Saludos' is first of several South American musicals Disney will produce, using data collected on a tour through the Latin-American countries. Probably his next will be a feature on Mexico. 'Saludos' contains four episodes, covering Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru-Bolivia. Picture is not likely to be released in this country for some time, Disney reportedly feeling 'Bambi', which just opened in New York, should have advantage of a healthy headstart before another feature from the Burbank lot goes into distribution.

'Stars' Bally Campaign Wins Plaudits Of U. S. Treasury

The Treasury Department, in a wire from Carlton Duffus of the War Savings Staff, yesterday, expressed complete satisfaction with advance work on arrangements for the September 'Stars Over America' Bond-selling tours. Duffus wired local campaign headquarters:

'Star's' appearances being heralded by page one publicity, excellent radio coverage, special trailers on screens, announcements at luncheon clubs, in churches, at county fairs, at labor rallies in factories everywhere.'

With plans all set for the first 10-day tours over the seven 'Stars Over America' routes beginning Sept. 1, Field Director Charles Einfeld notified all advance men to double-check War Activities Committee heads and other local committeemen in every city to make certain that the stars' appearances are limited to three a day. Interest thus far aroused, it was explained, has caused committees in a number of situations to plan more appearances than the players can handle in the time at their disposal.

Another potential million-dollar rally is being planned at Cedar Rapids, Ia., where Edward Arnold and Gene Tierney will close their 10-day tour, according to a wire from Connie Krebs. A wire from Gene Murphy indicated the type of results that may be expected from the many side tours into smaller communities arranged for the stars. Murphy reported Bond sale expectancies from 10 communities in Virginia, all based upon visits by Greer Garson, as follows: Martinsville, $35,000; Danville, $40,000; Charlottesville, $100,000; Winchester, $20,000; Staunton, $50,000; Arlington, $25,000; Harrisburg, $20,000; Waynesboro, $20,000; Roanoke, $100,000; Fredericksburg, $30,000—a total of $440,000.

Ludwig's 'Sabotage'

Edward Ludwig gets the assignment as director of 'School For Sabotage,' which Bryan Foy will produce for 20th-Fox. Story, on which Michel Jacoby and Ben Redman did the original screenplay, was inspired by revelation of the German school for saboteurs, existence of which was brought out in testimony during recent trial of eight Nazi spies before a military court.

Seeks Goodwin

Loanout of Bill Goowin from Paramount to play the role of a War Production Board representative in 'Pittsburgh' is being sought by Robert Fellows. Latter already has received approval of Washington on Goodwin to play the role in the Universal production.

Kenward's 'Last Lesson'

Allan Kenward will direct a special Metro miniature, 'The Last Lesson,' a one-reeler based on the German domination of France after the Franco-Prussian war.

JACKMAN TO TALK ASC MERGER WITH IBEW HEAD

would reach Hollywood this weekend, but reports from New York yesterday stated ASC prexy had arranged conference with International Prexy J. Brown of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers for Wednesday of next week. Unless parley is shoved up to an earlier date, ASC head will not return until last of next week.

Before Jackman left for east it had been indicated he was making trip to ascertain just how far the IBEW could be expected to go in supporting the first cameramen in their jurisdictional fight with the IATSE. He has been assured of full support by Vice-Prexy Joseph Milne and International Representative Gene Gaillac, but it is understood he wanted assurance from somebody higher up.

Program of ASC is said to call for immediate merger of that organization with the IBEW, which has issued a charter to first cameramen. Current ASC contract with major companies would be transferred to the IBEW, legal representatives having advised that could be done without jeopardizing the agreement. There is possibility the ASC also may ask the National Labor Relations Board for certification as bargaining representative for the first lensers, although it is understood strategy group favors having the IBEW use its economic strength to gain same point.

In the meantime, International Photographers Local 659 had succeeded in forcing all ASC men off out-of-town locations and replacing them with 659 cameramen. Each group apparently was trying to jockey the other into a position of having to make the first drastic move, with the idea of escaping blame for any interference with production.

William Snyder has been assigned by Local 659 as first cameraman on a James FitzPatrick unit now en route to Oregon to shoot travelogs. Snyder was one of two cameramen formerly in charge of 20th-Fox location in Utah when jurisdictional fight broke between the IATSE and the IBEW.

Benny, Williams File Incorp. Papers

Sacramento, Aug. 20.—Incorporation papers for the new Jack Benny Productions, Inc., were filed here today for okay by the Secretary of State. Another picture company, Sydney M. Williams Productions, Inc., of 6253 Hollywood blvd., Hollywood, also entered its articles of incorporation.

Papers of the Benny company stated it planned to produce motion pictures and cartoon and listed Benny, Loyd Wright and Myrt Blum as directors. Firm is capitalized for 5,000 shares of no par value stock. Williams Productions lists Williams, B. Burger and Eugene S. Goodwin as directors with 2,500 shares of no par value stock. It will engage in all phases of entertainment business.

DuPont Must Reveal Books in Pathe Suit

New York, Aug. 20. — DuPont Film Manufacturing Co. was ordered today by Judge Simon Rifkind in Federal court to submit records, books, etc., relating to production cost of film, to Pathe Laboratories for inspection.

Records called for are to be dated from Feb. 3, 1925, to Sept. 30, 1936. Pathe has sought the information in reference to its $610,000 damage suit claiming breach of contract with DuPont dated Feb. 3, 1925, which was to reorganize the Pathe price of raw film stock to cost plus 30%.

Pathe complaint alleges the defendant film manufacturer refused to deliver film under the agreement as of Oct., 1936, demanding 1% per foot in excess of the stipulated agreement figures.

New 'DuBarry' Ditties

Musical numbers were announced by Roy Del Ruth yesterday for Metro's 'DuBarry Was a Lady,' starring Red Skelton and Lucille Ball. Among the originals written for the film are 'DuBarry Was a Lady,' 'I Love a Pretty Girl,' and 'Madam, I Like Your Crepes Suzettes.' Taken from the stage show are 'Do I Love You?', 'Katy Went To Haiti' and 'Friendship.'

them a minimum of $6,000,000 a year when applied to the exchanges nationally. Company executives anticipate War Labor Board intervention in event of a strike because of the war films now being turned out in most of the studios.

In event of a strike and WLB intervention, Producers figure the SOEG would get a percentage wage tilt, but not as much as they are now asking. The SOEG to date has refused to discuss any percentage increases, contending they would not be sufficient because of the low scales now being paid by the exchanges.

Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, who has been supervising the SOEG negotiations, and Business Representative Glenn Pratt of the Guild, left Lafayette, Ind., for Chicago this afternoon, after reportedly getting strike sanction from the Brotherhood of Painters, parent union of the SOEG. Sorrell and Pratt planned to board the same train with Casey in Chicago and continue with him to the Coast.

It was believed Casey would make every effort to reach a deal for the exchange Collarites before arriving on the Coast, but the reluctance of the majors to make an agreement that would set a precedent for the remainder of the country makes his task difficult. It is understood that a special membership meeting of the SOEG will be called upon arrival of Sorrell, Pratt and Blanche Cole, SOEG representatives, to decide on future action.

Goodale Sues Wurtzel Over Split on Autry

George Goodale, independent publicist, has brought $25,000 damage action against Harry Wurtzel, agent, charging money is assertedly due on an oral contract made in 1936. Suit alleges agent agreed to compensate plaintiff for bringing Gene Autry into the agency as a client, but that nothing has been paid.

Goodale, who was publicity representative for Autry in February, 1936, claims he was instrumental in getting Autry to sign the agency agreement, and that Wurtzel orally promised to pay him a portion of the percentage collected by the office on Autry's film earnings. Suit declares that during past two years Wurtzel has received more than $50,000, and that plaintiff is entitled to at least half that sum. Action was filed by David Sondel of Goudge, Robinson & Hughes for Goodale.

Wurtzel recently effected a settlement of his managerial contract with Autry for $20,000, covering past due commissions, shortly after Republic western star entered the Army Air Force as a sergeant.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Bod Eddless, checker for Ross-Federal, is readying himself for Army induction in about 10 days. Charles Piercy, Fox-West Coast film booker, has also taken his initial physical examination.

Read 'Speed' Kendal, Los Angeles Times Hollywood reporter, has been accepted by the United States Marine Corps and reports within 10 days with the rank of sergeant.

Bruce Gear, business manager for radio and picture players, joins the Army Air Force Monday as a private.

Ill in Pix

CHARLES BUCKLEY, vice-prexy and legal head of Fox West Coast Theatres, is in St. Elizabeth's hospital, New York, suffering from carbuncles. He left here about two weeks ago on company business.

CLAYTON LYNCH, branch manager of Metro, back home for further convalescence. Had been working a week, but was advised to take added rest after operation.

ROY BUTLER, character actor, had his leg broken when kicked by his horse while riding with cavalry unit of the state militia, of which he is platoon sergeant.

HERB McINTYRE, RKO western district manager, abed with the flu.

Frisco Tivoli Becomes Moveover Theatre

San Francisco, Aug. 20.—Tivoli theatre was unable to make the grade as the second combo vaude-picture house here, and today became the moveover theatre for the Blumenfeld circuit. With Hugh Jones as new manager, circuit reopened the house three weeks ago and installed stage bill-B picture policy that failed to click.

In the three weeks gross never reached six thousand dollars while the nut was a grand above that figure—high for the 1590 seating capacity and low tariff at 50 cents top. In switching policy, Blumenfeld will route films into the house from the Orpheum and United Artists. Jones was shifted over from assistant manager at the Orpheum and Henry Goldenburg, who was brought over from circuit eastbay houses to get the vaude-picture policy under way, has returned to his own bailiwick. E. O. Bondeson, associated with Goldenburg in the Tivoli management, has also departed.

Top Execs Mull Film Savings Due To New Gadgets

New York, Aug. 20.—Following luncheon meeting of the industry's New York Commando group on the September War Bond drive, top executives of the major film companies huddled today on the Sponable and Douglas Shearer suggestions for projector changes throughout the industry as a means of saving at least 25% in raw film stock.

A committee of five company reps from the east coast, including top engineers, will be named to pass on the feasibility and workability of the two gadgets designed to slow projection and conserve raw stock in prints. Two and three-sprocket pulldowns for projectors have been suggested and diagrammed in previous discussions on film conservation, but this will be the first action by major executives to thoroughly investigate the practicability of a changeover of projector and film standards. After getting a line on possibility of adequately changing over, industry leaders then probably will decide whether they could stand the cost of shifting over from the present standard projection, and how the costs would be apportioned among the companies.

Condor Corp. Accuses Felix Cunningham

Charging that coin remitted to Condor Corporation, liquidating organization for creditors of the defunct Condor Pictures Corporation, had been appropriated by Felix Cunningham through improper endorsements of checks, action has been filed in Superior Court against Cunningham and the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association.

Complaint asserts Cunningham owed the corporation around $18,000 and that checks drawn and delivered to Condor were appropriated by Cunningham to a total of $20,350.77.

Circus Day At Chinese

In order to comply with dim-out regulations and at same time provide news-reel and still men with action shots of the occasion, 20th-Fox plans to erect a tent over the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese Theatre for the premiere of 'The Pied Piper,' Sept. 2. Flashlight and spotlight photos will be taken of stars, as usual, with the overhead effect blanketed by the canopy.

FILM HOUSES OFFER ONLY ENTERTAINMENT IN ISLES

New York, Aug. 20.—Great Britain is worried over the possible reduction in American film production because the public wants and needs pictures more than anything else, according to Joe Seidelman, Universal foreign manager, who returned from England Wednesday. 'A bombed theatre is a greater calamity than a bombed home,' he stated, because the cinema is the only place left where people go for entertainment and relaxation.

Picture house grosses are up around 40% despite the curtailment in turnover due to the last show being held at 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Upswing is due to the increased coin in circulation, with more customers for the 50c and 60c seats than previously, and a heavy play from service men on leave.

Film production problems are acute. Denham is the only studio available, and it is booked 16 months in advance. Producers wanting facilities must pay cash in advance and if not appearing lose their coin and priority. Shepherds-Bush studio's limited facilities have been entirely taken over by Gainsborough Productions. Warners also has a small studio.

Personnel shortage is hitting distribution as well as production. Actors and other help are becoming tougher to borrow from armed forces and many hitherto deferred now are in active service.

Seidelman reported the formation of an American War Activities Committee for England, with Joe Freedman of Columbia the counterpart of Seidelman here. Managing directors of all American distributors are on the committee.

Invites DeMille To Head Bond Sellers

New York, Aug. 20. — Arthur Mayer has wired C. B. DeMille an invitation to head a committee getting stars who sold Bonds during the last war to repeat under the slogan, 'We did it before and we're doing it again'. Bond-selling vets would include DeMille, Charles Chaplin, Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Adolph Zukor, William S. Hart and others who are still around.

2-Hour Bond Program

Two-hour program on Blue Network Aug. 29 will be dedicated to 'Bond Night', with radio stars putting in appearance at Chicago, New York and Hollywood to help sale of War Bonds. Orson Welles emcees local portion of show, with Bill Bacher handling New York end. Program titled 'I Pledge America' will be aired from 6 to 8 p.m., and dialers will be enabled to buy Bonds by putting in a call to Western Union. Volume of national sales will be tabulated and announced at brief intervals.

WB Guns Bogart, Raft

'Action In the North Atlantic', with Humphrey Bogart and Raymond Massey heading the cast, starts Aug. 26 at Warners. 'Background To Danger', George Raft starrer, goes the following day. Both are Jerry Wald productions.

20th-Fox Far Ahead On Schedule For 1942-43 Release

New York, Aug. 20. — Pointing out that 20th-Fox is further ahead with production than at the start of any previous selling season, Tom Connors today announced titles of 30 pictures scheduled for 1942-43 release.

He said that besides the 11 pictures tradeshown, there are 17 productions being edited or on the active shooting stages, with the result that studio is so far advanced it is readying productions not intended for release before spring and summer of next year.

Connors said 30 pictures have been definitely promised for delivery during the coming season. Present plans call for delivery of some 17 specials and two Darryl F. Zanuck specials.

Upton Close Sponsor Sheaffer Pen Co.

Upton Close's commentary program, 'World News Parade,' has been put under sponsorship by Sheaffer Pen Co. on a year's contract beginning Sept. 20. Quarter hour program will be spread over 125 NBC stations, airing here on KFI at 12:15 p. m. on Sundays.

Series pitches for most of the first quarter in Chicago, moving here Dec. 6. First 10 or 12 minutes will be given over to Close's commentary, with the remaining time allotted to guest analysts. Close goes to Stockton Aug. 27 to deliver baccalaureate sermon to 200 air cadets at the base there.

Delay Ambulance Drive

Drive to raise funds to buy 250 ambulances for the American Field Service Ambulance Corps by the Amusement Industry Division of that organization has been postponed until Oct. 8 due to request of Neil Agnew that action be suspended so that the industry's $1,000,000,000 drive through September not be hampered by other activity.

Quota from the L. A. district will be 16 ambulances, with others of 250 coming from 30-odd exchange centers throughout the country.

Minor's Ticket Oked

Marie McDonald, former Universal contractee recently pacted at Paramount, had her contract ratified in superior court yesterday by Judge Emmet H. Wilson. Ticket, running over a seven-year optional period, calls for starting salary of $100 weekly and ranges to $1,250 per week.

Hold $1.10 Top For 'Yankee Doodle' Screenings

New York, Aug. 20.—As a result of strong out-of-town grosses, 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' will not be shown anywhere at less than $1.10 top and 75c matinees. Picture opens in 30 additional Warners theatres by Labor Day at advanced prices.

Question whether the increased admissions merchandising policy would be advisable was decided by company sales executives following the new all-time record at the Boyd theatre, Philadelphia, with around $43,000. The Strand, Albany, doubled take of 'Sergeant York' at $23,000. Picture collected $20,000 at the Roger Sherman, New Haven; over $30,000 at the Hippodrome, Cleveland; topped $20,000 in its 11th week at the Hollywood, New York, and is hitting $18,000 on its 12th week in the house.

Col 'Talk' Will Follow 'Pride' Daydater

Columbia's 'Talk of the Town' follows 'Pride of the Yankees' into the Pantages and RKO-Hillstreet theatres. Date is not set yet due to expected extended run of 'Yankees,' but likely in around second week of September.

America Looks Abroad
with ROBERT ARDEN

It looks as if the next few days, hours perhaps, will be of historic importance. Hitler, warmed by the recent aggressiveness shown by the United Nations, is throwing everything he has with reckless abandon into an all-out attempt to crush Soviet resistance.

The situation around Stalingrad, Novorossiijsk and the Grozno oilfields is highly critical, more so than at any other time in the war to date.

Allied intervention will have to come, and come very soon, before the Axis can free forces to prevent it, or at least make it more difficult.

RUSH IN 2nd FEATURE TO BOLSTER SKIDDING 'PRIDE'

Samuel Goldwyn's 'Pride of the Yankees' is hitting foul balls at the box offices of Pantages and Hillstreet theatres, with management bringing in Universal's 'There's One Born Every Minute' tomorrow as supporting feature in an attempt to bolster biz.

In addition to insisting that his baseball feature be single-billed for the two houses, Goldwyn required a 10c tilt on all admissions for the engagement, and dictated other policies that were opposite to those of

DISTRIBS WANT NEW LONDON PACT WITH COIN UNFROZEN

New York, Aug. 23.—Joseph Seidelman, Universal's foreign sales chief, who returned during the past week from London, reviewed for major company top officials chances of the American film industry unfreezing around $50,000,000 in Great Britain, and possibilities of dropping the frozen coin pacts starting with expiration of the present agreement next October. Seidelman gave the company execs the information Friday at a Hays office session.

It is understood Seidelman outlined the significance of the forth-

REVELATION that there was a group of specially training Canadian Commandos used in the very recent raid on Dieppe, France, in the daily newspapers brings to light there will shortly be a picture out showing similar Canadian units in action. Training units receiving instruction in raid tactics near Victoria, performed for the cameras for two weeks for 'The Commandos Come at Dawn,' Lester Cowan production for Columbia release. Canadian government, which is aiding production of the picture through excellent cooperation, allowed training units to go through shock troop tactics for the film, which depicts a Commandos raid on Norway among other things. Footage was taken two weeks ago, but film company was pledged to keep mum until it became general knowledge that Canadians are going through such training. Technical advice came from Major General A. E. Potts, who organized and led the first Commandos raid on Norway some time back.

POSSIBILITY that 'Green Mansions,' novel laid in Venezuela, will shortly be brought to the screen after several false starts is seen in desire to foster better relations among the Americas. Tome, written in 1908 by William Henry Hudson, is still the most popular book in the Latin Americas and sells around 400,000 copies in this country each year according to a statement by Bennett Cerf. Tome was purchased some years back for production by Meriam Cooper when he was head of RKO but never reached the screen. Studio had a reported book charge against it of approximately $62,000 including scripts and treatment, among which was one by John Balderstone and Jane Murfin. Year ago rights were purchased from studio for less than $10,000 by James B. Cassidy, who is now here working on a deal which would include his services in a production capacity in case a studio takes story over.

RADIO'S best nights, when the percentage of set owners dialed to a program are at highest levels, are Sunday and Monday nights, according to a survey completed by Cooperative Analysis of Broadcasting. Through the 39-week season, Sunday listeners rated around 40% while the Monday dialing reached 35%. Other nights were pegged as follows: Tuesday, 33.8%; Wednesday, 31.9%; Thursday, 34.2%; Friday, 29.7%, and Saturday, 27.3%. Interviews with 700,000 set owners in 33 key cities by CAB also revealed that one-third of radio sets are tuned to some broadcast during the average half hour between 7 and 11 p. m. of any weekday night in the winter season. Night time listening is at its lowest point on Saturdays when one-fourth to one-third of the radio families have their sets in operation. Daytime average of sets in use is around one-half of the night time percentage.

AVAILABLE nitery talent has become so scarce that Earl Carroll is turning to youngsters with possibilities for grooming and development. On a recent trip north he scouted schools and colleges and singled out several promising youngsters who will be given a chance to make good. The home market has been practically drained, as has Chicago and New York, and Carroll is searching out-of-the-way places for material that will fit into his revue formula. Youths subject to early military call are said to be plentiful but Carroll is not too eager to gamble with such risks. He is now faced with keeping two spots going, having recently leased Terrace Room in Chicago's Morrison hotel. Plans of alternating floor shows here and in Chicago are still indefinite pending the number and quality of recruits he can muster before the Chicago spot is unveiled.

The Old Homestead

(Comedy With Music)

Republic production. Stars Weaver Brothers and Elviry, with Dick Purcell, Jed Prouty, Anne Jeffreys, Maris Wrixon, Robert Conway, Linda Brent. Director, Frank MacDonald. Associate producer, Armand Schaefer. Original screenplay, Dorrell and Stuart McGowan. Photography, Ernest Miller. Film editor, Arthur Roberts. Art director, Russell Kimball. Interior decorator, Otto Siegel. Musical director, Cy Feuer. Previewed at the studio, Aug. 21, 1942. Running time: 67 MINS.

A crackerjack rural comedy about a femme mayor who hires a crook to catch a crook and gets herself mixed up in some doubtful doings. 'The Old Homestead', which Republic states 'has no connection with the play, "The Old Homestead",' figures okay for its market, looking particularly strong for the smaller first runs and family trade houses. It has four songs, appropriately presented; comedy by the Weaver Brothers and Elviry, and a topical note to its story.

Elviry, mayor of Farmington, goes to the big city to proposition a smart crook to take over her town, hoping he will smoke out a small-time operator responsible for a crime wave. The smartie moves in, uncovers the crook as a city council member operating a private protection service. A nearby defense plant gives the big-town boy ideas of his own, and he takes over in earnest, threatening her honor with exposure as a partner in the enterprise unless she continues police protection. In prohibition days Uncle Sam's income tax laws put the big gangsters behind bars. In this it's the sugar rationing regulations that prove the undoing of the big-shot and his gang, when the Weaver Brothers, the town's police force, dig up some sugar hoards and turn the mob over to the Federals.

The Weavers and Elviry exhibit their particular brand of comedy for top honors. Dick Purcell is a slick big-town crook and Jed Prouty the village penny-ante racketeer. Both are good. Maris Wrixon and Robert Conway provide the romantic touch as daughter of the mayor and newspaper publisher, respectively. Anne Jeffreys is Purcell's attractive moll and also sings one of the production numbers.

Frank MacDonald's direction of the original script by Dorrell and Stuart McGowan is tight, pointing the comedy ably for laughs. Armand Schaefer as associate producer furnished excellent executive guidance. Ernest Miller did the expert photography, and other production credits are favorably presented.

the theatre operators. Result was a weak opening for 'Pride', with biz failing to generate pace after the first day to bring take up to expectations of the theatre officials.

It is understood that the theatre execs battled Goldwyn on latter's insistence of both solo booking and upped prices, and he was informed that, through past experience, houses found regular prices had to prevail if attraction was soloed, or a second feature was required for support if prices were tilted. Despite this advice from experienced operators, Goldwyn continued to force through his ideas.

When biz failed to hit proper levels Thursday and Friday, and Saturday matinee audience on the light side, the theatre officials informed Goldwyn an immediate hypo was needed and they were bringing in a second feature to support.

It is reported that as a result of the mild biz being done here with 'Pride' as a solo, RKO circuit execs in the east have reversed previous decision to placate Goldwyn by single-billing the picture over the circuit, and now will set it in the RKO houses as a bill-topper. 'Pride' local gross is expected to hit borderline gross for holdover, but will stay a second week at the Pantages and Hillstreet, with theatre execs figuring inclusion of the supporting feature on the program will get the bill through a second stanza without red ink for the engagement.

JACKMAN TRIP MAY DECIDE FIGHT FOR STUDIO LENSERS

learn whether the IB International can be counted upon to go all out in supporting the director's of photography.

If Jackman is satisfied the IB International can be counted upon to risk a jurisdictional fight with the IA over the cameramen, plans will be immediately made to merge the ASC with the IBEW. If the IBEW pledges are not sufficiently strong and if Brown refuses to come out in the open in the fight, the first cameramen may decide to go it alone as an independent group or else look elsewhere for another affiliation.

Before heading for New York, Jackman was assured every support by vice prexy Scott Milne and Gene Gaillac, IBEW International representative on the Coast. It is understood, however, he wanted this promise of support confirmed by Brown himself and perhaps the IB General Executive Board.

Jackman has already talked with Y. Frank Freeman, head of the Producers Association, Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, and other industry leaders. It was reported from New York last night that he planned to talk today or tomorrow with prexy Richard Walsh of the IATSE.

It was considered doubtful, that any result would come from the Walsh conference since International Photographers Local 659 has already voted against issuance of a separate charter to first cameramen. The IA convention also having instructed Walsh to aid Local 659 in its jurisdiction fight, he could hardly take any other position than to urge them to affiliate with Local 659.

The IBEW claims that it now has all but four or five of the top cameramen, and that of 92 formerly affiliated with Local 659, more than 51 have resigned. It was claimed that Local 659 in forcing ASC members off location jobs had lost the majority it formerly had. In the meantime, business representative Herbert Aller of Local 659 is apparently awaiting word from Walsh before making any move to take over lensers.

Lesser Lines Up 'Door'; Allstar Cast Promised

Although star talent and entertainers will donate services or obtain token payments for appearances, production crew, personnel and actors in the story side of 'Stage Door Canteen' will be paid regular scales. This statement was made over the weekend by Sol Lesser, who will assemble and produce picture based on the American Theatre Wing entertainment enterprise for servicemen in New York, which will eventually have branches in all principal cities of the country.

Lesser's picture is to carry story thread with romantic angle; with episodes set up to allow for inclusion of the name talent which entertains the boys at the New York canteen. He states appearances in the film already have been assured by Katharine Hepburn, Lunt and Fontanne, Gertrude Lawrence, Tallulah Bankhead, Helen Hayes, Ray Bolger, Kay Kyser and others. Reenactments of the entertainment side undoubtedly will be shot in the east, with this phase of the picture in the hands of the American Theatre Wing.

Producer, who will supply production organization and necessary investment, has made deal with American Theatre Wing for latter to get all profits with exception of minor percentage for interest on money required for the enterprise. Picture will be released through United Artists, and income will be devoted to maintenance of the various Stage Door Canteens now operating and to be set up around the country. Motion Picture Relief Fund also will come in for a share of the profits.

NEW EQUIPMENT BIG POSER IN KEEPING THEATRES OPEN

Washington, Aug. 23.—Keeping theatres going will be increasingly difficult with the war demanding more and more materials necessary for the maintenance and operation of film and legitimate houses, an exhibitor group was warned by the War Production Board late last week.

Continued operation of film houses is highly desirable because of the public need for diversion and the close relationship existing between amusements and sustained public morale, WPB spokesmen told a dozen exhib representatives, but conservation and curtailment orders are going to make it hard to get the replacements for sound equipment, lighting systems, air conditioning, and other mechanical equipment, while the fuel shortage may cause considerable discomfort this winter.

The educational session, called by Chris Dunphy, chief of the amusement section, was told the Government wants to keep all theatres going during the war, but operators must realize they're going to have mounting troubles. And while exhibs have done fine work to date in maintaining present equipment and salvaging everything possible, even greater efforts are necessary if theatres are to survive, Dunphy warned. He continued that there was little likelihood exhibitors can convince Federal authorities that continued operation of theatres is 'essential' to the war effort.

Government representatives were sympathetic during the conference, although exhibs present appreciate they cannot expect preferential treatment, industry leaders said after the huddle. Considerable encouragement was radiated, though there was disappointment that the WPB does not do more to help theatre owners get necessary materials for replacements, besides cracking down on suppliers who decline to sell to any customers lacking high priorities.

Greatest possible savings in raw materials of all descriptions must be emphasized by all sections of the amusement industry, N. G. Burleigh, chief of the WPB Services Branch, declared. He told the visitors, 'You can be very valuable in making it plain to everyone that the effect of curtailment orders and materials shortages on civilian activities is going to be much tougher from now on. Exhibs were backpatted for expediting the war program, especially their War Bond sales promotion.

Situations in many lines affecting theatres were described by various WPB officials. Topics included air conditioning, copper, fuel, building materials, legal problems, etc. Among the exhib group participating in the huddles were: Carter Barron, Loew's Washington manager; Paul Biesman, American theatre, St. Louis; Joseph Bernhard, of Warners; Gus Eysell and Newton Barkadon, of Music Hall, New York; William S. Crockett and Ed Kuykendall, of MPTOA; M. A. Rosenberg, Allied States Association; Thomas Gorman, of RKO, and Lewis Letito, of the Martin Beck theatre, New York.

Dim-Out Eclipse 94% Effective

Dim-out, effective last Wednesday night, now is 94% perfect, according to the County Defense Council checkup. In making its statement, Council reported several defense plants have not yet been completely dimmed out, but expected compliance with the military order would be 100% effective by tonight, following warnings to offenders.

Studios and theatres are finding Army order has worked no hardship, although film plants have had to rearrange previously scheduled night exteriors, sending companies indoors or putting canvas covers over outdoor sets.

Motorists and pedestrians have been warned to be cautious in the dim-out districts to avoid increased traffic injuries and deaths. Motorists have been advised to give careful attention to speed and signs marking such districts. Pedestrians are urged to wear or carry something white and cross streets at intersections only.

Council also advised that no air raid warden has powers of compulsion or technical advice, and may only warn of a violation.

Six Biggies with War Themes on Year's Slate at 20th

Hedy Lamarr Joining Film Stars On Bond Tours

Hedy Lamarr, who will make a five-day tour over Route No. 6 with Walter Abel, opening Sept. 1 in Philadelphia, is the latest addition to the top-flight screen personalities slated for the 'Stars Over America' Bond rallies next month. Miss Lamarr and Abel also will be among the celebrities in attendance at the Washington premiere festivities Aug. 30, and will cover the first part of the schedule originally assigned to Irene Dunne. Because of illness, Miss Dunne has been advised to rest before undertaking the tour.

Miss Dunne, however, will journey east for the Washington premiere and, after a few days' relaxation, will follow Miss Lamarr and Abel on Route No. 6, making a 10-day tour through New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Others definitely set for the ceremonies with Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau presiding, are Edward Arnold, James Cagney, Greer Garson, Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford and Virginia Gilmore.

Reports from advance men received by Director Charles Einfeld over the weekend continued to reflect increasing enthusiasm on the part of Treasury Department representatives and War Activities Committee leaders across the country, as plans for the industry's leadership of the War Bond drive during 'Salute To Heroes' month progressed.

John del Valle reported Kansas City leaders are planning to fill the Civic Auditorium, with a seating capacity of 10,000, for the appearance of Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari. Wichita, with the same headliners, is counting upon Bond sales of a million dollars.

The movement in Kansas to convert 10% of the state's greatest wheat crop into War Bonds, as a patriotic bellwether to agriculturists of the nation, was reported gaining impetus, with a number of banks volunteering to forego payments on mortgages by farmers who put sizeable percentages of their wheat proceeds into Bonds.

Claude R. Erickson, chairman of the Lansing, Mich., War Savings Bond Committee, wired that arrangements are being made for James Cagney to appear before a labor rally of 20,000 men.

'Corregidor' Tabbed On PRC '42-'43 Sked

'Corregidor' has been scheduled as third of the six special productions for Producers Releasing Corp., on its 1942-43 program. Govt. Amusement Take $18,423,924 in July shadowing a healthy rise in box office business, carried the Federal yield from taxes on amusements to a record level in July. Latest Treasury Department figures, showing collections for the first stanza of the new fiscal year, disclosed a Federal haul of $18,423,924 from all types of commercialized entertainment last month.

This is by far the fattest grab, due chiefly to the need of getting permits sold on a fiscal year basis for mechanical gadgets, alleys and billiard emporiums.

Admissions tax, which fluctuated over a narrow range all this year, took an upturn again and climbed to the year's peak. Collections from patrons based on June ticket sales hit $129,484,881. This is the largest sum ever pocketed from this source, topping the previous record (May collections) by $680,960. Take from the box office levy was $934,737 greater than the haul in June (which was off from the May peak but nevertheless the second biggest total on record). July receipts were $5,724,020 better than in the corresponding 1941 stanza, which was better than average under the old tariff.

Government so far this calendar year has shared $78,344,900 from the ticket purchasers. This is more than was recorded during 11 months of 1941 and roughly $33,000,000 more than the harvest for the first seven months of the past year.

Continued down-beat in radio sales was evident. With the government ending manufacture, July tax payment hit the lowest level of the year. Only $1,249,005 was derived from the levy on receivers and phonographs, compared with the high mark of $2,769,303 last February. The total was down $372,140 from the June level, though $753,931 more than in the corresponding month last year, due to a heavier tax rate.

Continued fluctuation in record sales was revealed by the Treasury report. Yields from the platter bite in July was $123,356, up $48,802 over June but more than $100,000 short of the May peak. Levy on discs has fallen lower only twice this year (June and January).

Raises were shown in receipts from the tax on musical instruments and sale of permits for slot machines, etc., alleys and pool rooms. Juke boxes and gambling devices licenses brought $3,415,017, a jump of $2,704,906 in a month. Alley and pool room certificates yielded $884,718, up $601,302. Instruments produced $266,947, a raise of $21,875.

Roxy Backlog Stymies NY Booking for 20th

New York, Aug. 23.—Owing to a jam in advance bookings for the Roxy theatre, all theatres in the New York metropolitan area will have to wait for 20th-Fox product.

In addition to 'Pied Piper', which is scheduled to run three or possibly four weeks, 'Footlight Serenade', 'Loves of Edgar Allan Poe', 'Orchestra Wives' and 'Careful, Soft Shoulder' are also set for the Roxy. With 'Iceland' going into release around Oct. 2, the product situation will become even tighter.

'Tales of Manhattan' is scheduled to go into Radio City Music Hall following 'Talk of the Town'.

Shearer's Pre-Nup Deal

Announcement of a prenuptial agreement between Norma Shearer and Martin Arrouge, in which the ski instructor will not share in actress' community property, was made Saturday. In making announcement, Miss Shearer also denied reports that she is Hollywood's richest woman. Estate left by her late husband, Irving Thalberg, was only around $1,500,000 after tax deductions, instead of the popularly quoted $6,000,000 to $10,000,000, and is in trust for the two children.

Distribs Want New London Pact With Coin Unfrozen

coming visit of R. C. Somervell, undersecretary of the British Board of Trade, to the United States, who is expected to arrive during the coming week. The Board of Trade, which represents British film industry interests, is reported in London as seeking a new monetary product pact with American film companies. In recent weeks American foreign sales managers opposed renewal of any frozen coin agreement with Great Britain, and have always bitterly opposed linking product releasing agreement with the securing of legitimate distribution of the coin presently frozen to extent of 50% in England. There is a growing conviction among foreign sales managers that the U. S. Treasury will eventually be requested to solve the situation on behalf of the American film industry.

Serial Fans To Find New Thrills In Chapter Plays

Serial fans are likely to find new thrills in their favorite chapter-plays, replacing the standard sawmill, train-wreck, etc., stunts formerly used to leave an audience, and the hero, in suspense until next week. Situation has arisen through clamp-down by military and naval authorities on use of many locales and equipment that played such a prominent part in supplying thrills.

Fast-wheeling automobiles skidding around corners no longer are popular with tire-conscious audiences. Filming of thrill sequences in quarries, aboard trains or in sawmills aren't favored by officials, and naval restrictions make it tough to turn the camera on water thrills in the harbor areas. Situation is taxing writer ingenuity to get the hero into and out of scrapes that will meet with audience approval and at the same time pass official censors.

Out at Republic scripters on 'G-Men vs. the Black Dragon', which William O'Sullivan is producing, are hampered in penning the long-favored stunts, so are concentrating on developing new tricks that will pass scrutiny of ticket-buyers. Reluctance of serial fans to accept anything but the familiar standbys isn't helping the situation any. Columbia is launching 'Secret Code', a Ralph Cohn production in the Darmour unit but doesn't expect difficulties because suspense in dealing with ciphers and other spy tricks doesn't have to be physical to get over, although chapterplay will contain plenty of nip-and-tuck action.

Out at Universal, another studio which finds the serial a profitable production, there is not much worry about the coming change. Studio has the acreage to build its own lakes and ships right on the lot, and space to operate trains, etc., when these types of thrills are required. Henry MacRae and Ford Beebe operate the chapterplay factory for the valley studio under former's supervision.

When budgets will permit, serial troupes can move to the coast below Newport for water footage, but under supervision. Film companies also are permitted to make use of ships not in government service under certain conditions, provided photographing its outside restricted areas. Process work is about the only substitute for aerial footage, unless budgets permit jaunts east for plane stunts.

'Holiday Inn' Air Plug

Paramount has bought a half hour on 85 stations of the Columbia network tomorrow night to exploit 'Holiday Inn.' Appearing on the program will be Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, Betty Rhodes, Joseph Lilley chorus and Bobby Dolan's orchestra. Program airing from KNX at 6:30 will be produced by Bob Hussey of Paramount's radio department and directed by Paul Pierce.

Whitman Poem Short

Warners will produce 'I Hear America Singing', two-reel subject using poems by Walt Whitman. Moe Jerome and Jack Scholl have been assigned to write music and briefie starts Sept. 1 with Jean Negulesco directing.

SOEG STRIKE DEADLINE SET FOR SIX TUESDAY

bined exchange and studio walkout this morning, but date was shoved back following a telephone conversation between George E. Bodle, SOEG counsel, and Pat Casey, Producer labor contact. Casey was reached at home of Mendel B. Silberberg, where he was attending a meeting of company representatives, and is said to have requested Guild give him more time to discuss situation with company heads.

Following a conference between Bodle, Prexy Margaret Bennett of the SOEG, Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions, and other leaders, it was agreed to accede to Casey's request. Plans for walkout this morning already had been made, and Sorrell had called a special meeting of the executive board of Motion Picture Painters Local 644 to advise them of action. Action also was being taken to advise other studio unions not to cross SOEG picket lines.

SOEG representatives returned from New York Sunday after negotiations with company heads bogged down over minimum wage demands. Majors offered minimum of $23.50 for exchange clerical workers, with a 10% tilt for those getting above the minimum. Guild was seeking a $28.80 to $72.80 minimum, but is understood to have dropped this to $26.50 to $62.50.

Majors claim it would cost them approximately $7,000,000 to grant the demands because of scales that would be demanded by exchanges throughout the country. Situation here is being closely watched by the IATSE, which now is in the process of organizing front office exchange workers in other cities.

Casey is expected to talk with Sorrell and Pratt today in an effort to reach a compromise agreement that would be satisfactory to the companies and the workers and avoid any interference to production through a walkout of collarites. Latter are being supported by other unions affiliated with the Conference of Studio Unions, which includes the Machinists, Painters, Laboratory Workers, Set Designers and Cartoonists.

Obituary

ALICE DUER MILLER

Mrs. Alice Duer Miller, 68, author and screenplay writer, died in New York Saturday after an eight months' illness. A writer of novels for the past 40 years, as well as many screenplays, Mrs. Miller's most successful book was 'The White Cliffs', 70-page novel in verse written two years ago. Among her screen credits were 'Irene', 'And One Was Beautiful', 'On Borrowed Time', 'Rose Marie', 'Wife Versus Secretary', 'Soak the Rich', and others, including adaptation of 'Bridge of San Luis Rey' shortly after she entered pictures in 1919. Among her novels were 'Gowns By Roberta', 'The Charm School', 'Come Out of the Kitchen' and 'The Beauty and the Bolshevist'.

MURDOCK MacQUARRIE

Funeral services for Murdock MacQuarrie, 64, character actor of stage and screen, will be held today of 3 p.m. at the Sawtelle Cemetery chapel. Interment follows at Sawtelle cemetery. MacQuarrie entered pictures with the old Biograph company after stage work with Henry Miller, W. A. Brady and others. He both directed and acted for Biograph, Universal, American, Selznick, Goldwyn, Associated Exhibitors, FBO and First National, and of late had been doing character roles. He is survived by his widow, Clarice MacQuarrie. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

J. PARKER READ

Funeral services for J. Parker Read, Jr., 57, former film producer, will be held today noon in the Little Church of the Flowers, Forest Lawn. Read, public relations counsel for a beverage firm, formerly was associated with Thomas Ince in film production, and also with the old Pathe studio. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nell Read; two daughters, Mrs. Stanley Barbee and Lillian Read, and a brother, George Read.

ALLEN SEARS

Funeral services for Allen Sears, 55, silent film actor, were held Friday at Pierce Brothers Hollywood chapel, with interment in Valhalla cemetery. Sears, who died last Tuesday following brief illness, is survived by daughter, Mrs. Zeda Bettes.

HENRY EICHHEIM

Henry Eichheim, 72, cellist and composer, died Saturday in Santa Barbara after a two-year illness. He was first violinist of the Boston Symphony for 20 years, and composed 'Bali' and 'Java', Oriental word poems.

'Swing Shift Frolic' For Night Owls

Special 'Swing Shift Frolic,' starting at 1:30 a. m. and designed to furnish amusement for war plant workers, will be a feature of the new musical comedy revue which Harry Abbott, Jr., opens at the Music Box Theatre Sept. 5. Regular program, tagged 'Swing Shift Revels,' will go on each night at 8:30 p. m.

Operating policy set up by Abbott, brother of Bud Abbott, will call for matinees Saturdays and Sundays with complete change of show every two weeks. He will produce and direct, combining modern musical comedy and burlesque. Abbott has taken the Music Box under five-year lease and will feature chorus of 26 and 30 principals.

Manning's WB Task

Warners has assigned Knox Manning to narrate 'The Mankillers,' two-reeler made by Howard Hill under water off Laguna.

Loew's Books Rep Serial

New York, Aug. 23.—Loew's Metropolitan circuit has booked the Republic serial, 'Perils of Nyoka.'

NLRB Orders Citation Against Disney For Babbitt Release

National Labor Relations Board is issuing an unfair labor practice complaint against Walt Disney Studio, based on charge of Art Babbitt that he was let out last November because of his union activities in behalf of the Screen Cartoonists Guild. Hearing before a trial examiner will be ordered by the NLRB to determine whether the company will be required to reinstate Babbitt with pay for the time he has been out.

When the Disney strike was settled by James F. Dewey, conciliator for the U. S. Labor Department, it was ordered that Babbitt, a strike leader, be reinstated without prejudice. It also was specified that he was not to be considered in any reduction of personnel then planned by the company as an economy move.

Despite this, Babbitt, one of top animators in the industry, claims he was dropped from the payroll. A protest was filed with the Labor Department as well as the NLRB. Babbitt claimed that Disney had not complied with the Dewey conciliation award the company and SCG had signed.

Abbott-Costello In NY On War Bond Drive

New York, Aug. 23.—Abbott and Costello slipped into New York tonight preparatory to a series of appearances in behalf of war bond drives. They went to Paterson, N. J., home of Lou Costello, where they helped in bond sales, and returned to N. Y. Tuesday afternoon to sell bonds at the Yankee Stadium baseball game.

Two Universal screen comics are to participate in several other bond rallies in and about N. Y. forepart of the week. Abbott-Costello team, then swings out on the industry's September personal appearance tour in behalf of the billion-dollar drive that month.

Sell $1,000,000 Bonds

Purchase of a $25 bond by Leo J. McGuire, a studio carpenter, put the Paramount employees' War Savings Bond drive above the $1,000,000 mark over the week end. Sale was made by the Motion Picture Committee, War Savings Staff, Treasury Dept., which is conducting industry campaign.

McGuire, employed at Paramount for past 14 years, was sergeant in Marines for nine years and was former bodyguard for President Wilson.

Rosson's War Effort Job

Upon completion of script of 'The Edge of Darkness' at Warners, Robert Rosson will leave for New York where, as chairman of the Hollywood Writers' Mobilization committee, he will confer with the Writers' War Board. Purpose of talk is closer cooperation between two writing groups on projects having to do with the war effort.

MG TOPS IN FILM CONSUMPTION

Disney Film Footage Increased Tenfold Next Season

Between 200,000 and 300,000 feet of film will be produced at the Walt Disney studio during the coming year, or nearly 10 times the amount filmed in any previous 12-month period. Stepping up of footage total is the result of extensive government activity in training and educational films, all made at cost at the Burbank cartoon lot. Three-fourths of the estimated footage to be produced during coming year will be for the Army, Navy and other government agencies.

In addition to heavy schedule of government films, studio will continue its various series of short subjects and several feature productions, including the already completed 'Saludos', first of several features complimenting Latin-American countries, and the currently preparing 'Victory Through Air Power', from the Major Alexander P. de Seversky book. Disney now has 'Bambi', animated feature of less than 7,000 feet of film, just going into pre-release bookings, while 'Fantasia' is now filling out distribution started year ago.

Among studio's Navy subjects is the important film on aerology, to be used to teach fliers about every weather element that can be encountered in the air. Film combines actual experiences by fliers plus textbooks.

Another group of pictures deal with aircraft identification, such as 'Rules of the Nautical Road', plus educational subjects like 'Protection Against Chemical Warfare', 'Water Supply', 'The Mosquito and Malaria' and 'Corn and Corn Products'.

Start of production on a series of 12 films on identification of Army aircraft, each dealing with a different type of Army plane, was announced yesterday by the office of Colonel Darryl F. Zanuck, chairman of the Academy Research Council. Films will be produced by the Walt Disney studio under direction of Erwin Verity, assisted by Robert McCormick.

Carl Nater has been assigned as unit manager, and Andy Anderson as director of photography, assisted by Ernie Smith; with John Hersch as layout man and Henry Gottleib in charge of grips.

Seeks 'Dead' Release

Ben Judell leaves for New York this week, carrying print of 'Hitler, Dead or Alive,' to work out a releasing deal for the film. Story is based on offer made some time ago by an American business man of a $1,000,000 reward for Hitler's capture or death. Ward Bond, Paul Fix and Warren Hymer are featured and Nick Grinde directed.

Airs On Victory Hour

Cecil B. DeMille will appear with Amos 'n' Andy for the government on the Victory Theatre air show over the Columbia network tonight at 6 o'clock.

OVER BILLION FEET USED IN 1941 DOMESTIC PRODUCTIONS

There was a total of 1,054,075,941 feet of raw stock consumed domestically by the eight major film companies and Monogram during 1941, with an additional 142,151,718 feet used in the foreign market by the eight majors, showing a total world-wide consumption for the year of 1,196,227,659 feet consumed in the world market.

The 142,151,718 feet of raw stock used in the foreign market for films distributed was stock produced in those countries, and not shipped from America.

Of the domestic footage that was used, a total of 200,601,635 feet was consumed for the release of the five newsreels that are distributed by Loew's, Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox and Universal.

Metro used the top amount of footage during the year, a total of 169,962,228 feet, for feature prints, and 46,477,544 for the newsreel, making the gross domestic footage used 216,439,772 feet. In the foreign market it also led with the usage of 27,723,126 feet. Its world consumption was 244,162,898 feet.

Next heaviest consumer was Paramount, which had fewer pictures but needed 131,690,561 feet for features released domestically, 51,505,278 feet for its newsreel, and 18,848,596 feet for the foreign market. Film used for the world market totaled 202,044,435 feet.

20th-Fox ranked third for 1941. Feature films in the domestic field required 103,774,008 feet, with the newsreel absorbing largest footage in its division, or 54,531,000 feet. In the foreign market there were 16,295,831 feet used, while the world consumption of footage amounted to 174,600,839 feet.

Warners, which has no newsreel, used 112,282,260 feet of raw stock for its domestic prints, and 19,067,108 feet for its foreign output. World distribution required 131,349,368 feet.

RKO, for the prints released in the domestic market, made use of 88,601,674 feet, and 27,683,619 feet for its Pathe newsreel, while its foreign consumption amounted to 14,331,053 feet, with the world absorption being 130,616,346 feet.

Universal in its domestic output required 85,334,499 feet for features and 20,403,635 feet for newsreels, and 15,587,136 feet in the foreign field, with its worldwide total being 121,325,270 feet.

Columbia, which has no newsreel, used domestically more footage than RKO or Universal, by requiring 98,834,712 feet for its features and 20,551,841 for the foreign field, with its entire world consumption being 119,386,553 feet.

United Artists used for domestic prints 46,095,682 feet, with the foreign usage only 9,747,027 feet, making a combined requirement of 55,842,709 feet for the world market. Monogram showed a total of 16,899,241 feet for the domestic market, and with its foreign rights sold to distribs in these markets makes no report as to the amount of footage used there.

No figures on the footage used either by Republic or Producers Releasing Corp., as well as state right producers and distributors, were available when the above figures were submitted to the Hays office.

Figured that of the total footage of 1,054,075,941 feet used for domestic prints in 1941 on newsreels and features, a reduction of more than 200,000,000 feet will be made at least to comply with the industry's intent to cooperate with the War Production Board's film conservation plan. It is expected the figures listed here will serve as the base for the proportionate cut that will be asked of the various companies at the conservation meeting to be held in Washington tomorrow.

Col Has 6 In Work; Two Started Friday

Two new pictures, 'City Without Men' and 'Prairie Thunder', went into production at Columbia over the weekend, making a total of six pictures now before the cameras on that lot. In the first-named production, Sidney Salkow is directing Linda Darnell, Michael Duane, Doris Dudley and Leslie Banks in the top spots. Russell Hayden and Bob Wills have the top roles under William Berke's direction in 'Prairie Thunder'. In addition to the six pictures now shooting, studio has eight more preparing for the sound stages next month, and 11 are in the cutting rooms.

Leserman Easts

Carl Leserman, general sales manager of United Artists, left last Friday for New York but is due back in two weeks to resume talks with Fox-West Coast on a product deal.

James Ork For Benny Grapenuts Air Bow

Orchestra of Harry James will be in the music spot on Jack Benny's Grapenuts show when the season is cracked open Oct. 4 in New York. Routine will be built along the lines of 'where's Phil Harris?' He joins the show later, although there has been some talk that Abe Lyman may land the assignment in the event Harris enters the military service.

March Broadway Bound

Fredric March heads for New York around Sept. 15 to start rehearsals for 'Skin of Your Teeth', Thornton Wilder play which Michael Meyerberg will produce. March has interest in presentation and his appearance in play means he will not be available for Warners 'Mission To Moscow' as rumored. He is now playing in 'The Adventures of Mark Twain'.

Lawrence in London On 20th-Fox Sale Of Its G-B Stock

Distributors, to buy the 20th-Fox interest in G-B, has been in the making since early this year.

Completion of the deal for the sale of 20th-Fox's interest was to have been consummated last March, but was delayed due to the death of Sidney Kent, 20th-Fox prexy, who was handling the deal.

Rank purchased the Ostrer Brothers' interest in G-B early this year. Officially the deal has not been sanctioned by Spyros Skouras, new head of 20th-Fox. Lawrence, however, starts his talks this week on the proposition of the sale to confirm it with New York by cable.

Lawrence also is discussing the possibility of raising the price on film rentals, which, it is claimed, are too low in view of present biz conditions in the cinemas. He also will endeavor, following investigation, to work out a plan of seven-day instead of six-day showings of features on future bookings.

Motion Picture Group In Bond Sale Meet

Second studio conference of members of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood took place when Y. Frank Freeman, special September campaign committee member, and William Dozier, permanent studio chairman, met with the 40 Paramount committee members to discuss War Bonds, their importance to the war effort and the vital part they play in individual financial security.

Further meetings take place this week of all major and independent studios and many groups in the allied industries and among agents, business managers and independent publicists for purpose of coordinating and organizing the nation-wide $1,000,000,000 industry campaign.

Ratoff Adds More Vaude

Gregory Ratoff plans to recall several standard vaudeville acts used in previous sequences for additional scenes in 'Something To Shout About' at Columbia. Among those to be used in further sequences are Harry Green, Frank Mitchell, Dorothy Lloyd, 'Chuckles' Walker and Beatrice Blinn.

Winston Churchill's return to London may (we hope) bring the long-awaited signal for an Allied invasion of Europe. Latest reports indicate that we are ready for it.

Hitler's continuing advances into the Caucasus and the Stalingrad area far overshadow other Allied successes, such as the recapture by the Chinese armies of several cities from the Japs.

The critical situation on the eastern front threatens all the United Nations and needs immediate relief.

It is easily possible that the next few days—hours, perhaps, will see history in the making.

AMOUNT of print stock that RKO will use during 1942 will be greatly reduced as a consequence of the withdrawal from distribution of 'Yank In the Phillipines,' a reissue of 'The Real Glory' which Sam Goldwyn originally released in 1939 thru United Artists. Goldwyn, it is reported, with war on, told RKO it must release 'Glory' under the new title and around 200 prints of the film are said to have been made. However, after the picture, which had as its subject matter quelling an insurrection in the Phillipines with American troops battling with natives, the War Department became perturbed at protests reaching it. Department in turn turned the matter over to Lowell Mellett, coordinator of Government films at the time, and he immediately requested RKO to cut out its distribution. This, it is said, was done most cheerfully by the RKO sales organization as exhibs recognized the film as a reissue when offered them under the new title and were wary of playing it due to the subject matter. Greater part of the film prints made up in advance did not reach playing time, with result RKO has been debited for amount of film that got no circulation.

SEVERAL of the exchanges on LA film row are working clerical help over- time—including Saturday afternoon and Sunday—in order to get records and billings far enough in advance to prevent exchange disorganization in the event of any strike by members of the Screen Office Employes Guild. Metro exchange, according to report to leaders of SOEG last night is currently hiring new and inexperienced help at $25 weekly rate, despite the fact that several of the girls working in the exchange here for a year or more are still in the $22.50 bracket, and has been nixed on raises for the past six months. Metro exchange has also indefinitely postponed all office vacations also attributed to threat of a strike.

INDEBTEDNESS of the Variety Club, Tent 25, has been wiped out through income received from the bookings of the Weyerhauser Lumber Co.'s promotional film, and from special midnight shows put on at Fox-West Coast theatres over past several months. Local tent was organized about a year ago and group went overboard in spending around $40,000 for remodeling and furnishing the club headquarters in the Ambassador hotel. Checks were sent yesterday to various theatre execs who subscribed the amount required for the club rooms. Interest on the loans was paid but returned to the Heart Fund of the club and will be used for charities.

IN order to obtain shots for sequence depicting the 'Johnny Doughboy' troupe entertaining soldiers at an Army camp, Republic last week sent the cast and crew to a nearby camp to put on a regular show for the boys. Arrangements were made with the command to photograph the soldier audience and talent on the stage in long shots—so that the specialties will be made at the studio during production. Procedure prevented necessity of using materials to construct suitable army camp theatre set on the studio stages.

SHOW folks at primaries today are strongly in support of candidacy of Congressman John Costello of 15 district (Hollywood) for reelection as well as the candidacy of Will Rogers, Jr., for the congressional seat in the 16 District (Beverly Hills and environs) as well as that of Assemblyman Jack Tenney for post of State Senator to succeed Senator Robert Kenny. Costello and Tenney have always been helpful to films in legislative matters.

Lee Marcus To 20th As Dietrich's Heir

Lee Marcus yesterday checked in at 20th-Fox on a term producer contract. First assignment has not been made, but he will inherit most of the slate which Ralph Dietrich was to have made but which now is being redistributed as Dietrich prepares for induction into the Army Signal Corps. Pictures on this schedule are 'Condors of the Sky', 'Women With Wings', 'Eight Men In a Boat', 'Margin For Error', 'Ground Pilots' and 'Lady At Large'.

Marcus recently was associate producer on 'The Spoilers' at Universal, and previously was at RKO for many years.

'Command' Comes Into Its Title Aug. 30

Radio's 'Command Performance' comes into its title on Aug. 30 when show moves to National theatre in Washington, where it will be recorded in the presence of Congress, foreign diplomats, government officials and Army and Navy heads, and with the possibility of President Roosevelt participating in person or on remote pickup from the White House.

Deal already has been set for Bing Crosby, Dinah Shore, Kay Kyser, Charlotte Greenwood, James Cagney, Charles Laughton and Hedy Lamarr, latter trio in a comedy bit. Others being worked on are Marion Anderson, Negro singer, who was refused use of Washington auditorium by Daughters of the American Revolution; Dr. Frank Black's NBC orchestra, and Abbott and Costello.

Glenn Wheaton writes and produces, with Norman Panama and Mel Frank assisting on writing, and Cal Kuhl co-producing. Lieut. Col. E. M. Kirby, chief of radio branch of War Department Bureau of Public Relations, is setting Washington end.

A flock of film stars underneath a tent
And not a single searchlight skyward sent.
A dim-out picture preem in Hollywood
Would fill the oldtime fans with wonderment.

Time was when half a million bright lights glared
And ermines, silks and emeralds were bared.
The show was held outside the playhouse door.
There was a film inside, but no one cared.

Gone is the brilliant mazda ballyhoo
When Old Man Sun has disappeared from view,
And in the place of tails and lofty hats
Are Army uniforms and Navy blue.

Long before the wartime dim-out, the searchlight had lost its novelty. When you saw a beam fingering the night sky, you couldn't tell whether it meant the opening of a picture or a drive-in eatery.

Babe Ruth and Walter Johnson appeared for a few moments in the Yankee Stadium and drew a tremendous crowd. It was the nostalgic feeling that lurks in the heart of Joe Public, the old softie. Showmen who are trying to revive vaudeville might profit by the same idea. How about bringing back some of the oldtimers, if only for a bow? There are plenty of ancient vaude customers who like to remember way back when.

Barrymore Sale Draws Femmes as Rarities Sell for Peanuts

Throng of 700 persons, most of them women seeking personal mementos of John Barrymore, crowded an auction hall at 3123 West 8th st. yesterday for the initial session of the auction of the late stage and film star's possessions. Women paid out-of-line prices for articles valuable for sentimental associations, while rare collector's pieces went for peanuts.

Auction went on again last night and will continue all day and evening tomorrow.

Clarence Bergen, bidding for his brother, Edgar, bought a pair of shrunken girls' heads picked up by Barrymore in Ecuador, for $185. He said Edgar did not intend to make use of them as substitute Charlie McCarthys as far as he knew.

Portrait of Barrymore by John Singer Sargent was bid in for the account of the San Diego Fine Arts Gallery at $250, a song by comparison with the prices normally commanded by Sargent portraits.

John Carradine bought a large number of Barrymore relics to cherish the memory of a former pal. Anthony Quinn obtained the suit of armor worn by Barrymore in 'King Richard III' for $250. J. Carrol Naish paid $15 for Barrymore's ponderous overnight bag and also carted home a needlepoint chair. The Paul Manship bust of the actor was bought in by Lionel Barrymore at $160, John's favorite piece and the best likeness of him in marble.

Spencer Berger, of New Haven, Conn., commissioned Douglass Rudd to buy in all the Barrymore-owned paintings. The canvases brought good prices. The James Montgomery Flagg crayon sketch brought $150.

Collection of Barrymoriana is so vast and contains so many items that conclusion of the auction today was thought unlikely. Includes a huge amount of hunting and fishing trophies, a 20-foot mounted crocodile shot by John, his two-ton Kodiak bear skin, stuffed birds and fish, cages, guns of many calibres and makes, swords, dueling pistols, fishing tackle and rods, shells, stilettos, etc.

Probably the most potentially valuable relic, Abraham Lincoln's letter to Louisa Drew, Barrymore's grandmother, in his own handwriting, was knocked down to Charles Curtis, an interior decorator, for $325.

Many of the belongings are being held for the estate interest of Barrymore's son and daughter, children of Dolores Costello Barrymore. Federal Referee Ernest R. Utley was present to protect the government's numerous income tax liens, etc. Utley says it is impossible to say at this time what disposition will be made of money accruing from the auction due to the confusion of various claims that have to be adjudicated.

STARS HEAD FOR WASHINGTON THURSDAY IN BOND JUNKET

Seven players in the first contingent of film stars lined up for 'Stars Over America' tours to every section of the nation next month will entrain Thursday noon for Washington to participate in the War Bond drive's official premiere festivities next Sunday and Monday. Group comprises Irene Dunne, Greer Garson, Virginia Gilmore, Hedy Lamarr, Ann Rutherford, Walter Abel and Edward Arnold. The players will be accompanied by Carlton Duffus to supervise the trip to the capital, and Margaret Ettinger, Ed Lawrence, Cameron Shipp, Bob Sunderland and Milton Weiss, assigned as tour managers.

Outside Washington the stars will be met by two fellow Bond salesmen now in the east, James Cagney and Charles Laughton, and by Abbott and Costello and Bob Hope, who also will participate in the premiere activities.

The film luminaries will be met by an Air Corps band and escorted by jeeps and tanks to the National Press Club, for what the Treasury Department announces as the largest press interview in entertainment history. Official premiere ceremonies ushering in the 'Salute To Our Heroes' Bond drive for the month of September will take place Monday on the Treasury steps, with Secretary Henry Morgenthau presiding, following which the players will proceed to Dallas, Chattanooga, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, starting points on their tours Sept. 1.

Personalities assigned to western routes will not go to Washington, but will leave Hollywood next Monday for their opening cities. Herbert Marshall and Joan Leslie, accompanied by Norman Manning as tour manager, will go to San Francisco; Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari, accompanied by Joe Steele, will proceed to Fresno.

The first contingent of 'Stars Over America' emissaries will be replaced on the seven routes by another group of players in approximately 10 days, and 10 days later by a third group. Finally, topflight headliners have been provided for War Bond rallies in 300 cities and towns throughout the country.

The seven tour managers, together with Barry Buchman, Sam Clark, William Dover, of the Victory Committee; Edward Mason, Jack Marshall, in charge of transportation, and Arch Reeve, attended a final planning session yesterday under the chairmanship of Charles Einfeld, field director of the tours.

Par Intensifies Bond Campaign at Studio

Paramount studio, spurred on by Y. Frank Freeman, yesterday launched an intensive drive toward 100% enrollment of company employes in the payroll war bond savings plan, to increase weekly subscriptions of workers already investing, and to augment spot sales.

Plans were outlined at a luncheon of 40 Par studio committee members meeting with Freeman, special September committee member, and William Dozier, permanent studio chairman.

Freeman told the gathering that New York, whence he has just returned, looks to Hollywood and the film industry as a pattern to guide bond-selling activities of all other industries.

Many other meetings for the purpose of stimulating bond subscriptions and sales are planned in all studios and among allied crafts and groups this week.

'Dandy' Holds At $1.10

New York, Aug. 24.—Warners has set $1.10 night and 75c matinee scales for all bookings of 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' until at least January of 1943. Decision was made by company sales execs following initial bookings in Warner houses at the upped scales — with exceptional grosses resulting.

In addition to wide scale bookings in Warners own houses scattered throughout the country, RKO has booked picture into eight houses at the advanced scales for tryouts, and if runs are successful, will extend bookings throughout the RKO circuit.

Arbitration Looms For Screen Office Employes Deal

Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions.

It is understood both company representatives and Guild officials made some concessions in an effort to reach an accord, but that two groups are still apart on wage minimums for the six classifications, particularly classifications four and five. Nearly two-thirds of the Coast exchange workers are listed in classifications four, five and six.

There was a possibility negotiators could get together on the lower bracket, although the Guild is still insisting on $26.50 for that group, with the company representatives offering $23.50. Main differences, however, are over classifications four and five, where original SOEG demands called for increases of more than $10 per week for some employes.

Casey is scheduled to confer with SOEG representatives again today in a final effort to reach an agreement. If two groups are unable to get together, Producers are certain to agree to Guild's demand for an agreement or arbitration by 6 p.m. today. Even though majors agree to arbitration, Casey and SOEG representatives are expected to continue their efforts to work out a contract acceptable to both sides in an effort to completely eliminate any possibility of interference with production.

Fearing walkout would be ordered in studios yesterday, many lots called in extra painters at double time in order to get sets completed. Boys drew double pay for holiday and then enjoyed day off yesterday, deadline having been moved back from Monday to 6 p.m. today.

Golden Back At 20th

Max Golden returns to 20th-Fox after absence of a year as production assistant. He will work out of Lefty Hough's office.

GOLDWYN HOLLERS 'UNCLE' AS HIS 'PRIDE' DOES B. O. NIPUP

'Yankee' film on the terms of the circuit, which provides for double features, as well as capitulating from his 50-50 booking deal for rental.

He made a deal with F-WC similar to one circuit now has with Paramount, which provides for a sliding scale on percentages of from 20% to 50%, which, on an overall, should the film do terrific business, would net him an average of from 30% to 35% on the percentage basis, while on various bookings he would receive a flat rental and no percentage.

The reason leading to Goldwyn's breakdown on the stand of solo showing of 'Yankees' was failure of the film to hold up on showings after the initial week, with circuits that hold over the film insisting it needed the second feature bolster, as was the case here for the local RKO and Pantages houses that are putting in Universal's 'There's One Born Every Minute' for the second week of the picture.

This was done after the theatre and distribution department of RKO informed him it felt that withholding a second feature would impair the run of 'Yankees' generally, and that it was not anxious to jeopardize its policy, that has been in effect for a long period. Also the distribution group of RKO informed Goldwyn that circuit buys would be very hard to negotiate if he did not come down from his high horse.

So Goldwyn counted dollars-and-cents possibilities and capitulated.

Indie Exhibs Using Crying Towels

Unless they are on a main drag in a big town, in a defense plant or military camp area, or are located near the Coast, indie exhibs are suffering from extremely poor business. That's the report of itinerant district film salesmen, who state that neighborhood, outlying and small town theatres are now really crying the blues—and truthfully.

First runs and big nabe circuit houses have pulled business from the small theatres to such an extent, according to one district manager, that starvation is really set in for some. This is particularly true of the Frisco area, and around other large city areas where there is military or defense concentration. And in the smaller towns, where there are neither camps nor plants, and where populations have been depleted, it doesn't matter whether or not that there is only one or just a couple of houses. None are doing business because of the defense attracting those who were not taken by the Army.

Femme trade is hit by the absence of males, is the beef, gals having no one to take them now that the boys are gone. Situation is true of families, too, who could once afford more shows when there were salary-earning boys around the house. Also cited is the moving of whole families to defense areas, leaving once small towns virtually empty.

'Bit' Next Henry Aldrich

Paramount has switched its next 'Henry Aldrich' feature to 'Henry Aldrich Does His Bit,' instead of the previously scheduled 'Henry Aldrich Plays Second Fiddle.' Hugh Bennett will direct.

Mary Pickford makes a guest appearance on 'Toast to Victory' program over KFWB tomorrow to explain the operations of Hollywood Guild.

Karp Issues Last Plea In War Relief Drive

Pointing toward the close of the combined Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Relief campaign, Chairman Jacob Karp yesterday made a final appeal to actors, writers and directors who have not as yet contributed. Telegrams over his signature were directed to non-subscribers urging them to make their returns to studio colonels by tomorrow morning so they will be in time for the final report to be made at a luncheon Wednesday noon at the Roosevelt hotel.

Treasury Aide Arrives To Guide 'I Pledge America' Airer

William Rainey of Treasury Department's radio division arrived yesterday from the east to supervise production of the Hollywood portion of Saturday night's broadcast of 'I Pledge America' over the Blue Network. Bob Moss will produce. Two-hour program to accelerate the sale of War Bonds will carry pickups from all over the world and go out on all shortwave beams.

Local talent assembled for the show by George Gruskin of the William Morris office include to date Nelson Eddy, Dinah Shore, Amos 'n' Andy, Fanny Brice, Red Skelton, Edward G. Robinson, and as emcee either Orson Welles or Bob Burns. Either Eddie Cantor or Lanny Ross will run on the talent at the New York end. Meredith Willson directs the music here.

Film Rowites Sell War Bonds To Army Boys

Film Row's Flying Squads of war bond and stamp salesmen drove into their first assignment yesterday on a half hour's notice and came up with $1,250 total sales to Army personnel at the U. S. Defense Training School, Figueroa Street and Santa Barbara Ave.

Flying Squads were formed last week as the Row's means of participating in the industry's $1,000,000,000 September bond drive, and are headed by Charles Feldman, Universal branch manager.

to Groucho Marx, who draws star billing. Others on the program are Donald Dickson, Lucille Norman, Virginia O'Brien, Joan Bennett, Louella Parsons, Robert Armbruster's orchestra and a mixed chorus. Here for the waxing are Paul and Jack Warwick, agency execs, and Wallace Gould, radio director of Warwick & Legler.

Others here on the Pabst pitch are S. J. Andrews, radio head of Lennen & Mitchell, who will audition two shows; Hal Hackett, radio director of Music Corporation, whose chief candidate is Jack Carson; Lord & Thomas, which is currently handling the account, and possibly two other agencies, which are working under cover. Richard Marvin, radio head of William Esty agency, also got in yesterday from New York, but disclaims any intent to buck the free-for-all. His mission is to get down to cases with Eddie Sherman and lay out the Abbott and Costello show for Camels, which is slated for NBC in the current Bob Hawks Thursday night spot.

Bernard Schubert also is in on the Pabst shuffle, but his chief interest is in la Parsons, whom he recently signed to a contract. Convergence here of the agency execs followed announcement by Pabst that it was in the market for a Hollywood glamor show.

STUDIOS START ISSUANCE FINGERPRINT CARDS MONDAY

cation cards for casual workers who completed arrangements for them at Central Identification Station at 5512 Hollywood blvd., have been fixed at 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 5:30 p.m. daily, starting Monday. Extras, freelance players and other casual workers concerned must bring in the slip of paper, bearing their signature and the number which they received when they first applied, in order to receive the permanent card, it was stated by Howard R. Philbrick, Central Casting general manager who was in charge of the citizenship registration.

In pointing out the importance of all employes having a card, Producers said there have been cases already of players being barred from locations or government property because they did not possess identification cards attesting their citizenship.

There are about 1,800 industry workers who have not yet been processed because they did not have all the data concerning their citizenship and other necessary information. These 1,800 also should call at Central Identification Station next week with the needed facts and complete the identification cards requirement. This probably will be their last opportunity to do so.

No new registrations will be accepted now. New workers, or those who thus far have failed to start their processing, will have another opportunity, but at a later date. The identification cards must be picked up in person. None can be given to anyone but the individual concerned, and none will be put in the mails.

Studios had planned to pass out identification cards to regular studio employes this week, but move was postponed when it was learned the cards would not be ready before next week.

Quarterly earning statements are ready for all Class B members of the Screen Actors Guild and may be picked up at the same time identification cards are called for.

Coordinating Bond Group Sesh Today

Following a three-hour meeting yesterday in the offices of Charles P. Skouras, state coordinator in the industry's $1,000,000,000 September Bond drive, a coordinating committee composed of Marco Wolf, Thornton Sargent, Mike Rosenberg and Gus Metzger was formed to supervise the activities of 10 other committees formed to further the drive from the exhibitors' side. George Bowser, operations chief for F-WC in southern California, and Dave Bershon, of the Theatre Committee of the Treasury's War Savings Staff, will direct all activities, reporting directly to Skouras.

Purpose of the meeting was to map plans for a concerted drive through all possible industry channels, besides non-theatrical firms and organizations. Committees were formed to cover various outside fields, and another meeting will be held today by the coordinating committee at the Paramount Hollywood theatre and more committees will be named.

Named as committee heads are Sherrill Cohen, special events; Rodney Pantages, F. & G. Bonds; Bob Poole, 10% Payroll Plan; Maury Goodman, publicity; Ben Wallerstein, Victory Committee contacting, and Jack Berman, schools, churches, organizations and clubs. A finance committee will be named today, plus a committee to contact department stores and other type retailers.

Kyser's March Of Time

Kay Kyser will be cut in from here on Thursday's March of Time broadcast over NBC for a brief appearance following a dramatization of his bond-selling technique in the south.

Metro corrals Wolfgang Reinhardt on a producer ticket, assigning 'Next of Kin,' by Gina Kaus and Jay Dratler for his first at the Culver City plant. Joan Crawford is slated for top spot.

A Heart to Heart Talk
WITH PEOPLE of the INDUSTRY

THESE are challenging times. War with its lightning changes has placed new, complex responsibilities on the shoulders of the industry and its people. What to do and how to do it are not easy decisions for individuals and institutions to make. Nevertheless in this crisis, the industry is moving all its creative and technical skill in complete cooperation with the demands of war.

BUT what about public relations? Isn't the positive force of publicity, more essential in this period?

FOR the answers, let's look at the record . . . The public is more alert today to those personalities, pictures and policies which are keeping pace with ever-changing trends . . . The national wire services are calling for that vital material about Hollywood in tune with the times.

INITIATIVE and trigger ideas, constructively aimed and followed through, are at a greater premium in this era than ever before . . . A selective flow of provocative facts . . . balanced with human drama . . . is essential to stimulate the public's imagination and hold its interest.

TO meet all the changing and challenging situations . . . to continually inform and remind . . . to win and hold public favor today and tomorrow . . . sincere and skillful publicity is indispensable.

ENTRUSTING the responsibility of public relations into trained hands eliminates guesswork and assures competent craftsmanship and result-getting coverage.

IN starting today . . . to build for tomorrow . . . repetition makes reputation.

CAGNEY PICKED FOR SAG PREXY

'Upon' Windup Gives RKO 17 Films For 1942-43 Release

With completion of 'Once Upon a Honeymoon' yesterday, RKO marks up a total of 17 features either in the cutting rooms or awaiting release on its 1942-43 program of 45. Production pace is expected to continue without lulls during next two months to bring studio well ahead of release commitments.

Included in the total of 17 features finished are six Tim Holt westerns. Features are 'The Navy Comes Through', 'Here We Go Again', 'Army Surgeon', 'Seven Days' Leave', 'Cat People', 'Seven Miles From Alcatraz', 'The Falcon's Brother', 'Ladies Day', 'Mexican Spitfire's Elephant' and 'Highways By Night'. Studio also has two outside features ready for distribution, Herbert Wilcox's 'Wings and the Woman', and the Mercury production, 'Journey Into Fear'.

NT Personnel Arrives Tomorrow From NY

Executive personnel of National Theatres Corp. are expected to move in from New York tomorrow to take over their new quarters under Charles P. Skouras, prexy, in the Fox West Coast offices. Only about six key men will accompany Harry Cox, treasurer, with other employes, including clerks, stenos, etc., to be recruited here.

Finishing touches to the renovated offices will be added today. Offices will be located in the remodeled rotunda of the Boulevard theatre. Transfer west of the NT personnel has been postponed several times to allow for completion of the offices and to permit settling of affairs of the men involved in the changeover.

Rep Gears Cliffhangers To U. S. War Themes

Republic's serial program is being geared to the war effort, with studio concentrating on military action as basis for chapterplays to be released this year. In addition to 'Sky Dragons,' which will be based on exploits of American flyers in China, studio has announced a super-serial, 'Rogers of the U. S. Rangers,' depicting action of the American commandos.

ELECTION IS SCHEDULED FOR ANNUAL MEET SEPT. 27

James Cagney has been nominated for president of the Screen Actors Guild, subject to the annual election Sept. 27. He will succeed Edward Arnold, who declined to stand for re-election after serving for two terms.

SAG officers nominated for re-election are George Murphy, first vice-prexy; Paul Harvey, second vice-prexy; Walter Abel, third vice-prexy; Lucile Gleason, recording secretary, and Porter Hall, treasurer.

Emma Dunn, Lloyd Nolan, Franchot Tone and Jane Wyman are new candidates for the SAG board of directors. Directors nominated for re-election are Walter Abel, James Cagney, Cary Grant, George Murphy, Walter Pidgeon, Elisabeth Risdon and Charles Trowbridge.

Other nominees may be qualified by petition up to midnight Sept. 16 by signatures of 50 Class A members in good standing. Ballots will be sent out on that date and will be canvassed at the annual meeting on Sept. 27. Selection by official nominating committee, however, usually is tantamount to election.

10,000 Marines View 'Wake Island' Preem

Camp Elliott, San Diego, Aug. 24. —Special Marine Corps preview of Paramount's 'Wake Island' here today played to a staggered audience of 10,000 men in uniform. With facilities limited at Camp Elliott for showing feature to an audience of that size, studio ran off several shows to give all Marines at this encampment an opportunity to view the picture, which depicts the heroic stand of a Marine garrison on the Pacific island.

Following the preview, Marines and Hollywood newspaper guests of Major General John Marston, commanding the Second Marine Division, moved into the new amphitheatre at the camp for formal dedication ceremonies and a 'live' show. Brian Donlevy and William Bendix, from the picture's cast, were presented to the audience. Martha O'Driscoll and Betty Hutton joined in the entertainment program, which was featured by a show provided by the Hollywood Victory Committee and included June Havoc, Max Terhune and Mr. and Mrs. George Riley.

Approximately 20 Hollywood correspondents came down by bus for the preview at the invitation of Major General Marston. Latter and his staff acted as hosts to the entire party at a reception and dinner at the Camp Elliott Officer Club after showings. Hollywood party will spend the night at the Del Mar hotel, returning tomorrow. They were greeted upon arrival by camp's entire personnel, with exception of those on duty, and the Second Marine Corps band led the parade from the camp entrance to the outdoor theatre.

Preview details and the reception were arranged by George Brown, Paramount studio publicity head, with the cooperation of Major Raymond Hanson, Camp Elliott's recreation officer, who detailed Private Walter Seltzer, former Hollywood publicist and now on Major Hanson's staff, to help out.

Geo. Balanchine Preps Ballet For 'Magic'

George Balanchine started nine days of rehearsals yesterday at Paramount on 'Black Magic' ballet number for 'Star Spangled Rhythm'. Vera Zorina stars in the number.

Yank John Kimbrough Off Kraft Program; Reason Withheld

War Department yesterday ordered Lieut. John Kimbrough off Kraft Music Hall broadcast Thursday without assigning any reason, leading to the general belief that uniformed men hereafter would be severely restricted in their appearances on transcontinental commercial programs.

Kimbrough, former football star who will play in Sunday's Army Relief game, was to have made a guest appearance to get in a plug for the benefit contest. Spokesmen for the War Department here said the Kimbrough cancellation cannot be interpreted as affecting all radio guest appearances by men in uniform and that officials in Washington had their own reasons for removing him from the broadcast.

Another substitution on the program also was made necessary due to illness in Victoria, B. C., of Maureen O'Sullivan. Pinch-hitters are Desi Arnaz and Eve Arden.

America Looks Abroad

The battle of the Solomon Islands may have far greater effects than can be envisaged now. Its outcome may decide, once and for all, supremacy in the south Pacific, Burma and China. It may, in case of a crushing defeat of Japan's naval forces, forestall an attack on Siberia.

That, in view of the highly critical situation on the eastern front, with Stalingrad's fall apparently only a question of days, may be of utmost importance.

Indications are that the war is going to last a very long time — much longer, perhaps, than anyone is ready to admit now.

BRITISH COIN THAW PUZZLING FILM TOPS

Paramount won the race among major companies to register picture title of 'American Rangers' at the Hays office, and will turn out picture based on exploits of the United States Commandos who took part in the raid against Nazi-held Dieppe last week.

Walter MacEwen has been handed production reins on the picture, with Maurice Clarke getting assignment to prepare original screenplay.

ROCKEFELLER L-A IDEAS PERTURB FOREIGN HEADS

New York, Aug. 25.—With no intention of criticizing the Rockefeller committee, major film company foreign managers are perturbed about efforts to start native film production in Mexico and Chili. They fear a precedent may be set. This would be a threat against their own distribution biz in Latin-America and other foreign countries after the war.

The foreign managers always have frowned on such production aid, since a steady flow of native-made product cuts into playing time available for American pictures.

A peculiar situation arises from the fact that such aid is supposed to be good neighbor policy, which confuses the rank and file in foreign lands, who figure the best good-will from United States film biz is more and better Yank pictures. Goodwill, according to general opinion in these lands, comes more through establishing industrial plants and a better break in trade pacts.

New York, Aug. 25.—W. R. Wills, Variety correspondent in Japan, who returned this week in the Jap-U. S. exchange accord, details in this week's Variety how the Japs took over American picture firms and divvied the money the morning after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Wills relates how all Yankee film distributing offices were closed and product impounded, with American pictures being yanked off the screens. Nipponese office crews, who had repeatedly vowed their loyalty, were given a free hand to clip the tills, whack up the cash booty and high pressure substantial severance pay payments from the companies.

PRESIDENT FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, according to Eddie Cantor, is the only one who can take the heat off the top show business names who are sticking to their work and realizing public scorn for not being in uniform. Cantor, now in New York, figures the Chief Executive could best explain, possibly in a radio chat, that top performers, by heir influence on morale, are as important to the war effort as, say, Donald Nelson. Cantor had a date for tomorrow wih Steve Early, President Roosevelt's secretary, but had to break it to appear at the 'Harvest Moon' ball finals in Madison Square Garden.

VALUABLE radio exploitation for pictures is assured on the new season with what is interpreted as a policy announcement by Ted Collins, headman on the Kate Smith show, that two films have already been set for dramatized sequence on the new Jello series. They are Paramount's 'Wake Island' and Metro's 'The War Against Mrs. Hadley.' Edward Arnold and Fay Bainter appear in the latter airing. Monetary arrangement for appearance of film players on the Kate Smith show is altogether different from that which obtained on Louella Parsons' program, the former paying prevailing market prices with no attempt at effecting a minimum payoff. Kate Smith hour is one of the most sought after on the air by studios which know the value of a ready made audience of around 35,000,000 persons. Other top shows are also expected to take a helping of guest stars for the mutually attractive purpose of getting names on the program and giving the picture which they dramatize a rousing sendoff just ahead of national release. The Collins treatment of adaptations, which is looked upon with high favor by studios because it acts more as an air trailer than a plot tip-offer, will find many stencilings on the networks.

MINNEAPOLIS circuit heads and exhibitor leaders are indorsing the proposal to eliminate film credit blurbs in the interest of film conservation. The move has practically unanimous indorsement hereabouts. One good effect would be to curtail a film's running time and, thus, enable the exhibitor to shorten his show where a larger turnover is possible and essential, it's pointed out by John J. Friedl, president of the Paramount circuit here. Both Friedl and Harold Field, prominent independent chain owner, feel that the average fan doesn't care a whoop who's responsible for the various details of a picture, including even authorship of the script. In fact, they believe that the credits are a bore and frequently try the patron's patience by unduly delaying the start of the film proper. Friedl says he himself never remembers the names of those mentioned in the credit lines and his managers tell him the same goes for patrons. In the Paramount circuit houses here the cast of pictures now is posted in the lobbies for the benefit of patrons who wish to refresh themselves regarding certain roles. If the credit lines go off the screen they could be included with the cast for any who might be interested, Friedl says.

FREEZING order on raw stock issued last week in Washington by the War Production Board was purely a stopgap, applying only to 'shipments,' so that stocks on hand are further depleted for the time being. Government rationing of stock for film production and distribution will be instituted under rules and procedure shortly. Rationing has been removed from the hands of the 11 film companies, whose previous efforts to establish a uniform basis of film conservation proved fruitless. The brief spell of conservation on the honor system, considered satisfactory as far as it went, is now over for the duration. Industry requirements—insofar as film is concerned —will hereafter be regulated by government decree.

TECHNICAL stunts designed to use from one-third to one-fourth less film than usual have been tried on a number of scenes being filmed at Victoria for 'The Commandos Come at Dawn.' One was a seven and a half-minute boom shot of a wedding party that consumed approximately 675 feet of film for the single take as against a normal 4,000 to 5,000 feet required when numerous camera setups are made to capture closeups, long shots, etc. Another saver was a scene lasting five minutes in which camera did a 360 degrees turn to avoid setups. A dialog scene, running two minutes, 40 seconds, was recorded in one take with Paul Muni, star of the Lester Cowan production for Columbia, doing the reading.

Sargent and Bowser met with Rodney Pantages and Watters last night to discuss their joining the Board.

JIMMIE FIDLER is nursing a sore ego these days. Last Sunday he lashed out at columnists for breaking up happy film families and got a rise out of nary a one. If the deodorant peddler wants to know why, the simple fact is that no one was listening. They just don't seem to take him seriously any more so why waste time dialing him where there are so many more interesting things to do and programs to listen to. Only comment following his air blast came from one outside the trade, to wit and pungently, 'look who's talking.' Several columnists expressed surprise that Fidler was still on the air.

Here We Go Again

(Comedy Drama)

RKO production. Stars Edgar Bergen-Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee and Molly. Features Harold (The Great Gildersleeve) Peary, Ginny Simms and Ray Noble with orchestra. Supporting cast: Bill Thompson, Gale Gordon, Isabel Randolph. Produced and directed by Allan Dwan. Screenplay by Paul Gerard Smith and Joe Bigelow. Story by Smith. Material for Fibber McGee and Molly by Don Quinn. Photography, Frank Redman. Special effects by Vernon L. Walker. Film editor, Desmond Marquette. Assistant to producer, Edward Donahue. Assistant director, John E. Burch. Lyrics by Mort Greene; music by Harry Revel. Music by Roy Webb. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Art direction by Albert S. D'Agostino and Walter E. Keller. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 25, 1942. Running time: 76 MINS.

Parading a number of upper-bracket and high Crossley-rated air comics, 'Here We Go Again' is deliberately set up to generate laugh entertainment via the specialized talents of the various performers. It's a neatly packaged and zestfully produced offering that will obtain added boxoffice impetus from the radio listeners who will gander their air faves on the theatre screens. Picture will prove a profitable attraction in the regular runs, especially along the family and hinterland circuits, and parallel biz done by its predecessor, 'Look Who's Laughing'.

Producer-Director Allan Dwan and Scripters Paul Gerard Smith and Joe Bigelow deftly handled the story end by presenting all of the radioites with material closely similar to that used by the various individuals on the air. Result is a highly satisfactory combination of entertainment for the regular audiences, in addition to displaying the broadcast favorites to utmost advantage for their dial following.

Story is a light framework on which to build the specialties of Edgar Bergen, with Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd; Fibber McGee and Molly, Harold The Great Gildersleeve Peary, Ginny Simms, and Ray Noble with his orchestra. Fibber and Molly, with a short bankroll, decide to vacation at the mountain inn where they honeymooned 20 years before. Resort is so ramshackle they move to the swank and expensive Silver Tip Lodge across the lake, where Bergen, Peary, Miss Simms, Noble and others are vacationing. Gale Gordon, former suitor of Molly, is trying to promote coin for a chemical formula to revolutionize airplane and auto engines, and gets the financially embarrassed Fibber to have Bergen put up the coin. After check is put up, formula is discovered to be a washout, but Bergen finds it worthwhile to soften moth cocoons for thread unraveling. Gordon scrams with the check, with the rest of the gang following for a wild rig-and-wagon chase over the mountain roads for thrill finish.

Interspersed throughout are specialties by the several radioites. Fibber and Molly, backed up by solid material, make the most of their numerous opportunities to catch and hold audience attention. Characterizations and deliveries will be familiar to radio listeners.

Bergen and McCarthy are liberally displayed for plenty of laughs, while

Previewed at Hollywood Pantages, Aug. 25, 1942. Running time: 89 MINS.

Without detracting from the contributions of all the others in this vastly amusing farce comedy, it is first of all a showcasting for the young Diana Barrymore. In a vehicle adroitly designed to test and exploit her gifts, she richly demonstrates her right to stardom as the legitimate heir to the Barrymore theatrical tradition — a resourceful, confident, vital and attractive personality and actress. She has the stuff to hold and sway audiences, and she goes in this picture, by right of her own talents, plus the careful direction of Henry Koster, the complementary playing of her co-star, Robert Cummings, and the splendid support from a trouping cast, into the front rank of important young screenlings.

'Between Us Girls' has all the earmarks of a highly successful property, with evidence throughout of the showmanship of Koster as producer-director, the canny purport of Universal's executive experience and creative cooperation from every department. It is built for easy laughter, has bright lines and amusing situation and keeps up its fast pace of delightful foolery without a sag.

The core of the screenplay by Myles Connolly and True Boardman, from a French play, is the commandable but devastating effect of a young actress home on a vacation, to conceal the age of her mother by appearing as a juvenile in the presence of the mother's suitor when both women fear that revelation of their true ages might be disastrous. Thus Miss Barrymore appears in turn as Queen Victoria, in elaborate makeup of age; as an eager daughter in reunion with a beloved mother; in a masquerade as a pigtailed brat; in the guise of her own aunt, slightly spiffed and very tough; as herself, rehearsing for the role of Sadie Thompson in 'Rain', and as Joan of Arc in a stage presentation. The range is wide, and the shadings of performance are a remarkable demonstration of versatility and skill. Robert Cummings is at his peak in the part of son of the suitor of the girl's mother, Kay Francis. Cummings' sincerity in the face of the girl's masquerade maintains the suspense delightfully and affords one of his best characterizations. Odd is the love story thus developed between the two young people, rip-

There's One Born Every Minute

(Comedy)

Universal production. Stars Hugh Herbert, with Tom Brown, Peggy Moran, Guy Kibbee, Gus Schilling, Edgar Kennedy, Catherine Doucet, William Henry, Elizabeth Taylor, Alfalfa Sweetzer. Director, Harold Young. Associate producer, Ken Goldsmith. Photography, John Boyle. Art director, Jack Otterson. Costumes, Vera West. Sound supervisor, Bernard B. Brown; technician, Charles Carroll. Film editor, Maurice Wright. Assistant director, Seward Webb. Reviewed at the Pantages, Aug. 25, 1942. Running time: 59 MINS.

Hugh Herbert triples himself in 'There's One Born Every Minute', a mildly amusing little comedy that plays satisfactorily through 59 minutes. Appearing as son, father and great-great grandfather, Herbert turns on his typical antics for chuckles. This time he is the manufacturer of a family pudding, handed down in the family since his great-great grandfather purchased it from the Indians for $24. He's also candidate for the mayoralty of Witumpka Falls, without much chance of winning until a smart young lad points out that Twine's Tasty Pudding contains vitamin Z — for 'Zumph'.

Success of the vitamin campaign puts Witumpka Falls on the map and makes Herbert a strong candidate. The opposition, engineered by the village merchant prince, rings in some old pudding to prove Herbert's vitamin claims are phoney, and things look dark. The smart lad comes to the fore again, proving the pudding must be fresh to make old ladies feel young, and Herbert wins in a walk.

Tom Brown is the progressive lad, teamed in a romance with Peggy Moran, Herbert's daughter. Both zip through their assignments. Guy Kibbee is the merchant prince, easing through the role. Edgar Kennedy is the opposition mayor and injects a few slow burns. Gus Schilling portrays the village chemist who first discovers the Z vitamin. Catherine Doucet is Herbert's wife, clowning favorably. Elizabeth Taylor and Alfalfa Sweetzer are two younger members of the Twine clan. William Henry does the son of Kibbee, providing a romantic menace to the Brown-Moran team.

Harold Young directed, keeping the pace moving along. Ken Goldsmith served as associate producer, figuring budget results closely for intended market. John Boyle photographed and other technical credits serve their purpose.

RKO Contracts for Two Technicolor Features On '42-'43 Sked

RKO will produce and release two features in color during the 1942-43 season, according to contracts just signed with Technicolor. Pictures will be 'Grand Canyon', with Richard Dix slated to star, and 'The Gibson Girl'.

This will be the first in many seasons that RKO has released Technicolor features, and initial production of tinters on its own lot. Company released the first three-color Technicolor production, 'Becky Sharp', in 1935, following it up with 'Dancing Pirate' a year later, but both had been produced by Jock Whitney's Pioneer Pictures.

Studio made an initial start a few years back for a tinter, with David Butler taking production troupe back east for shooting running of the Kentucky Derby and to pick up background material in the bluegrass state for a horse racing drama. For some reason story got sidetracked and never was made. A number of months ago studio execs were considering doing 'Bombardier' in color, but decided production costs would run too high on top of an already hefty budget.

'STARS' WASH. BOND PREMIERE GETS COAST-TO-COAST AIRING

National importance will be given the start of the film industry's 'Stars Over America' Bond tours, to be signalized by a premiere ceremony next Monday at Washington, through a coast-to-coast broadcast of the event. The premiere, slated for 2:30 p.m., with Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau presiding, will be broadcast from the Treasury steps over NBC Blue Network.

Irene Dunne, Greer Garson, Virginia Gilmore, Hedy Lamarr, Ann Rutherford, Walter Abel, Edward Arnold, James Cagney and Charles Laughton, all of whom will start Bond selling tours the following day, are slated for the program. Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, will speak for the Hollywood Victory Committee, and Bob Hope and Abbott and Costello also will take part.

Final plans for the stars' activities in Washington were completed by Thomson yesterday and relayed to local headquarters by telephone.

Arriving in Washington Sunday morning, all of the players will be engaged from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. rehearsing for 'Command Performance', the radio program shortwaved each weekend to men in the service. The 'Command Performance' show will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday in the National theatre, with Bing Crosby as emcee, before an audience of 1,000 dignitaries and more than 800 soldiers who are being invited as honored guests. In addition to the 'Stars Over America' headliners, the program will present Dinah Shore, Kay Kyser and his orchestra, Charlotte Greenwood and others.

At 8:30 p.m. the entire Bond selling group will attend a reception at the National Press Club, where, after being interviewed themselves, the stars will be given an opportunity to interview the nation's top correspondents.

Monday the stars will be luncheon guests at the Treasury Department, with the premiere ceremony and air program, for which Howard Dietz is preparing the script, following at 2:30 p.m.

A visit to the White House later in the afternoon may be added to the schedule. All of the personalities must depart from Washington before 6 p.m. Monday in order to reach the starting points of their Bond selling tours the next morning. Washington's reception of the 'Stars Over America' group will be matched in enthusiasm by the send-off planned for them as they board the Santa Fe Chief in Los Angeles at 12:01 noon Thursday. With a band, an armed guard of honor and a special police escort on hand to lend color to the occasion, the Bond volunteers will be sped on their way with the good wishes of a large group of fellow stars, many of whom will follow them on tours 10 days later, by officials of the Treasury Department, Victory Committee representatives, etc.

Edward Arnold, who planned originally to travel with the group to Washington, will leave today instead, in order to fill a personal appearance engagement in New York ahead of the premiere. Withdrawal of Charles Laughton from the premiere ceremony loomed as a possibility, because of a radio booking arranged for him in New York the night of Aug. 31.

Korda Hops To London; May Produce at MG

New York, Aug. 25.—Alexander Korda flew to London, following his wife, Merle Oberon, who had gone abroad with the first USO overseas unit to entertain American troops in England and Ireland.

Before leaving Hollywood Korda conferred with Metro execs about making two pictures for that company, as his contract with United Artists provides he can make two outside pictures. Deal is understood pretty much in the bag and probably will be consummated when Korda returns in about two months.

It's also problematical whether he will produce in London. It is thought he could get Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier, David Niven and others if he were inclined to work there. Likewise, he would have no studio problem, as Denham, even though crowded, is his property, and he has priorities on its facilities.

Rowland's PRC Tie

New York, Aug. 25.—Bill Rowland's independent producing firm, shooting 'Ziegfeld Girl' flimusical in the east, has set up releasing deal with Producers Releasing Corporation. Donald Flamm, former president of radio station WMCA, New York, has a piece of the Rowland setup.

Bud and Lou Repay Burley Sponsor

Cleveland, Aug. 25.—Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, remembering a favor done some seven years back, paid tribute to their Cleveland friend, George Young, operator of the Roxy burlesque theatre, who is credited with comedians' discovery by introducing them to New York agents. A & C had their current Bond selling tour rearranged so they could spend two days here with Young and appear at his burley house.

Appearances at the tiny theatre were not commercialized by the local dailies but gave their sentimental gesture splash coverage, and the customers hung from the rafters. Boys had intended only taking a bow but wound up doing several original burlesque routines.

Rathvon Here Monday

N. Peter Rathvon, president of RKO, arrives from New York next Monday for conferences with Charles W. Koerner, studio chief and production head. Huddles will principally concern basic layout of RKO's 1943-44 production policy and program, and just how much outside product the company should handle in addition to pictures made on the lot. Program for 1942-43 season is in concrete form, and ahead of schedule, according to studio spokesman.

Phil Rapp Back Here Burnishing Legiter For Broadway

Phil Rapp, playwright and scripter of Maxwell House airshow, has returned from New York to put the finishing touches to the libretto of his musical, 'Needle In the Haystack', which the Shuberts stage on Broadway for opening New Year's eve at the Winter Garden. He also returns to air scripting Sept. 3 when Maxwell House Time resumes after giving over the summer time to Post Toasties. Rehearsals for the Shubert piece begin Nov. 1, and if Rapp decides to direct the show he'll commute between the two coasts.

Don Cope, who has been holding reins on the Fanny Brice-Frank Morgan airer during Producer Mann Holiner's sabbatical, returns next week to New York. Jack Hurdle, also of the Benton & Bowles radio staff, makes tracks for the east after tonight's finals of the Shirley Temple soap opus.

Mortimer Snerd is brought in for a couple of appearances decked out as mountain trapper. Both dummies are provided with legs—insertion of several long shots having midgets doubling for the woodenheads and romping in the distance. Charlie sings one comedy number, 'This Delicious Delirium', while Miss Simms is not generally displayed except in the background, save when she sings 'Goodnight While I Live Again' in front of Noble's orchestra. Latter roams in and out of the story at the resort, coming on for several numbers with his band to add to the entertainment factors.

Dwan's direction keeps proceedings moving at a consistently fast pace, with timing of the numerous gags and situations expertly developed. Smith and Bigelow aim their writing for lightness and laughs, succeeding in slick fashion in attaining that goal. Photography by Frank Redman is high-grade, with musical contributions by Roy Webb and direction by C. Bakaleinikoff meritorious.

Bill Thompson, Gale Gordon and Isabel Randolph provide strong support.

many of whom could not be reached yesterday.

Unless a compromise agreement is reached today, majors are certain to accede to the SOEG's request for arbitration, as refusal would place them in an awkward position. General belief, however, is that even if the situation is submitted to arbitration, an accord will be reached before the arbitration machinery is set up.

The SOEG has submitted new wage minimums for the six classifications to Casey, who is making a study of them to determine just how much it would cost to put them into effect. Another conference is scheduled for today between Casey and Business Representative Glenn Pratt and Secretary Bernard Lusher, representing the Guilders. It is probable that Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions also will sit in on the session, since the Conference is on record as pledging full support to the SOEG.

Special membership meeting of SOEG, set for 8:30 last night, was called off after the deadline for an agreement or arbitration had been postponed for 24 hours. Guild leaders, however, made it plain a definite decision will have to be forthcoming from the major companies tomorrow if they desire to avoid a studio walkout that might seriously interfere with production.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Leif Erikson, who enlisted in the Naval Reserve a year ago, has received call to active duty and reports Sept. 7 at San Diego.

Jack Mass, Coast representative of Shapiro-Bernstein music publishing house, will be inducted into the Army today.

Robert Northmore, Fox West Coast auditor, reports to the camouflage branch of the Army on Friday.

Wolfe Reade, Universal publicist, reports to Army Sept. 8 for assignment to officers training school.

Bob Smith, Columbia publicity planter, has enlisted in the Coast Guard and reports for active duty Sept. 5.

Kenny Stevens, vocalist in 'Blackouts of 1942' at El Capitan, leaves show tonight to report for Army induction. He is slated for officers training school.

Lyle Talbot, 38-year-old stage and screen actor, applied yesterday for enlistment in the Army Air Corps. He will be sworn in this week and will finish a picture he's working in, while awaiting call to active service.

Craig Stevens reports today at Fort MacArthur for active service in the Army. Ben Cohn, Warners publicity department, also enters Army at Fort MacArthur today.

Frank Saputo, of the NBC staff orchestra, reported to the Army at Santa Ana yesterday.

Irving Kumin, assistant to Phil Friedman in the casting department at Warners, reports as second lieutenant to Army Air Force at Miami Beach, Aug. 31. Russell Trost steps up into vacated spot.

Exhibitor Charlie Minor left yesterday for induction into the Army.

Sydney Pink, operator of Century and Princess theatres, joins the Navy in 30 days.

Michael M. Cohen, makeup man at Metro, leaves Friday to join the Merchant Marine. He reports Sept. 7 to officers training school at Great Neck, L. I.

Bob McElwaine, son of Don McElwaine, Metro publicist, was sworn in yesterday as naval cadet, and goes to St. Mary's in October for preliminary training.

Theatre Division Bond Drive Heads Map Plans

Meeting of the coordinating committee of the industry's $1,000,000,000 September Bond drive, appointed Monday by Charles P. Skouras, state coordinator, was held last evening at the Paramount theatre, Hollywood, with Marco Wolf acting as chairman. Plans were set for a series of events which will give the drive a sock opening, but committee would not reveal the ideas until clearances have come through from participating groups.

In addition to setting initial drive plans, the coordinating committee appointed two more committees. Robert Sutton will handle the exhibitors' follow-through committee, and Bill Sreres will head the merchants' and business men's committee. They will work with eight other committees appointed on Monday. Thornton Sargent, Mike Rosenberg, Rube Wolf, Gus Metzger, Dave Bershon and M. Goodman met with Marco Wolf yesterday.

Another meeting of all committee chairman, including Bob Poole, Ben Wallerstein, Rodney Pantages, Sherrill Cohen and Jack Berman, will be held today at the Paramount at 4.30 p.m. Following that a general meeting of all exhibitors will be held Friday at the Boulevard theatre at 1 p.m. Wires have gone out to all exhibs in L. A. county to attend the latter.

It is questionable, also, whether all pictures made this year will be released during the 1942-43 selling season. This remains to be decided, as at 20th-Fox and Paramount, in relation to the holdover power of product already on hand and in extensive backlogs.

Fonda's Pre-Naval Hitch

Henry Fonda will star in 'The Immortal Sergeant' at 20th-Fox before reporting for Navy duty Nov. 1. Picture to be directed by John Stahl with Thomas Mitchell in a top role, has been shoved ahead on the schedule to allow its production before Fonda's Naval hitch starts.

War Relief Campaign Final Reports At Luncheon Today

Final report meeting of the combined Navy, Russia, China and Dutch War Relief campaign will be held today at 12:30, following a luncheon at the Roosevelt hotel. Chairman Jacob H. Karp hopes to be able to announce the last-minute response to the solicitation has put the campaign over the top. Active campaigning for subscriptions ends today, although the drive's books will be kept open for some time to receive additional voluntary pledges.

Among the guests at the meeting will be Dr. Corydon Wassell, Navy medical corps hero of the Java Seas battle, who turned over to the campaign a $20 bill which he carried through the south Pacific conflict. Local heads of the four relief organizations that the drive has aided also will attend. They are Preston Hotchkis, of the Navy Relief Society; David R. Faries, of Russian War Relief; Calvin C. Vanderlip, Dutch War Relief, and Robert L. Smith, of China War Relief.

Lieut. Commander A. J. Bolton, who has cooperated with the committee as a Navy representative, also will be present, as will Bert Allenberg, prexy of the Artists Managers Guild and chairman of the Permanent Charities Committee; William Morris, chairman of the AMG campaign committee, and the Labor Executive Committee which has cooperated in the last two industry campaigns, composed of L. C. Helm, Herbert Sorrell, A. J. Moran, Jack Cooper and Ned Glass. All guilds will be represented, with Francis Faragoh attending for the Screen Writers Guild, J. P. McGowan for the Screen Directors Guild, Jack Dales for the Screen Actors Guild, and Adrian McCalman, as well as Allenberg, for AMG.

Following the luncheon Chairman Karp will call on the colonels for their final reports, which will be tabulated as they are read off to determine whether the campaign has topped the goal.

Philly Mastbaum Opens As De Luxer After Seven Years Dark

Philadelphia, Aug. 25. — The 5,000-seat Mastbaum theatre, Stanley-Warner $5,000,000 'white elephant', reopens Friday, Sept. 4, with 'Tales of Manhattan'.

House, built in 1929, has been closed since the late Sam L. (Roxy) Rothafel failed to make it pay during the 1934-35 season. Originally the Mastbaum was operated with stage presentation-film policy. Under the new setup it will concentrate on first-run pictures only.

The Mastbaum, named in honor of the late Jules E. Mastbaum, onetime head of the Stanley Company of America, has been a headache to the Warners organization since buyout of the Stanley company, with reports that it cost the WB circuit upwards of $5,000 weekly to keep the house shuttered.

Decision to reopen the Mastbaum as a de luxer was the result of terrific upturn in theatre biz locally due to the great influx of war and government workers into the Philadelphia zone.

USO-Mt. Sinai Benefit Set For October 18

The USO and the Mount Sinai Hospital will jointly present the annual get-together of Comedians and Leading Men this year. Event, to be a football game instead of the usual farced baseball match, will be staged at the Coliseum Sunday afternoon, Oct. 18. Dr. A. H. Giannini, chairman of the LA area Board of the USO; Max E. Marks, executive director of the Mount Sinai Hospital; J. A. McCaffery, chairman of the USO Campaign Committee, and Harry Cohn, Columbia prexy and chairman of the USO Sports Committee, are working out details of game.

Rep Signs Al Rogell As Prod-Director

Albert S. Rogell is contracted at Republic as producer-director on an exclusive term. His first production as a director only will be the musical revue, 'Hit Parade of 1943,' to be made by Edmund Grainger as associate producer. Rogell is negotiating for a Broadway stage property for his initial full producer effort. He has made several for Republic on free lance basis.

Scribbling

John Twist and Ken Gamet have turned in final script on Universal's 'Pittsburgh' to Producer Robert Fellows. Picture starts this week, Lew Seiler directing.

Sam Hoffenstein has completed script assignment on the Charles Boyer-Julien Duvivier production at Universal, 'Flesh and Fantasy'.

Sheridan Gibney is resuming script on 'Tomorrow Never Comes' for Arnold Pressburger at General Service, following vacation.

WPB LISTS STUDIOS THIRD IN LINE FOR RAW STOCK USE

States government agencies; third, the industry itself.

While no formal orders have been issued by the WPB in respect to rationing, the classification of users points in the direction of raw stocks allocation and gives an indication of possible future priority rating. Result of the meeting today was that newsreels are assured of all the film they need. Their requirements will be exempt from any restriction that may be made upon the industry itself. The government in other words acknowledges the value of newsreels for morale purposes.

The armed services of the United States come first in the categories of fim users set up by WPB. All requests for film from the services must be made direct to the WPB. If, however, a studio makes a film at the request of one of the armed services, the government outfit itself must apply to the WPB directly, but the film used in the picture will not be included in the industry's consumption.

United States government agencies form the second category of users. Film to be used for purposes for the Office of War Information must be requested by Lowell Mellett, chief of the motion picture and photographic section of the Office of War Information. Other government agencies wanting film for pet projects must make their requests through Mellett.

The motion picture industry itself is in the third category. All requests for film coming from the industry must go to WPB through the 11 distribution agencies.

When prints of films are made for exhibition at training camps, posts and other military centers for the entertainment of men of the services, the film used will be exempt from any restriction that may be imposed on the industry.

When the WPB froze all stocks of unexposed film in the hands of manufacturers last Thursday and ordered all users of film to report to WPB on or before Sept. 4 the amount and types of film on hand, it became apparent that a step such as was taken today was expected.

Reason for the order advanced by the WPB at that time was to assure the armed services of all the film they need. From today's action it looks as though the services and the government agencies will assure themselves of enough film for their needs and that the industry's wants will come next in line. If the industry's voluntary approximate 20% cut in film consumption, which it made some time ago, would be sufficient to allow for the additional government demand for film, the problem would be a long way toward solution. If the voluntary cut is insufficient to meet government demands, which will probably continue to increase as the war goes on, then no matter how much it yelps, the industry will have to line up with ration cards to get its film. At any rate, very soon major studios will have to prove their need to get what film they want.

Elimination of newsreels, war training pictures, etc., for any quota restrictions that may be placed upon the industry will give most of the majors considerable play in raw film stock. Of the total domestic footage used in 1941, 200,601,635 feet were consumed for the release of five newsreels that are distributed by Loew's, Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox and Universal. In addition, practically all the studios, including many independents, are making war films, as well as pictures for exclusive entertainment of the armed forces, and which also would be exempt.

250 F-WC Execs Meet At Ambassador Fest

Meeting and luncheon has been called for tomorrow at the Ambassador hotel by Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast, and National Theatres prexy, of all managerial and executive personnel of F-WC. Some 250 theatre, city and district managers and executives will attend the afternoon session, coming from all parts of California.

Announcement will be made of awards to winners in the Spyros Skouras Showmanship drive, just ended. Details of the forthcoming National Theatres drive, first under Charles Skouras since he succeeded Spyros, also will be announced. New drive starts Sept. 27.

'Invasion' Filming Oked

Military and F.B.I. permission has been granted Warners for filming of a staged invasion scene in the Monterey territory for the picture 'Edge of Darkness.' Director Lewis Milestone and principals, Errol Flynn, Ann Sheridan, Walter Huston, move into the restricted area next week and will recruit scores of natives to simulate enemy efforts to land troops.

Eight Films Get Gun At Rep in Sept.

Republic has set eight films on its September production slate to start the Roy Rogers special, 'Heart of the Golden West', on Sept. 2, with Joe Kane producing and directing; an untitled whodunit, Leonard Fields producing and William Morgan directing on Sept. 8; Edmund Grainger's 'Hit Parade of 1943', Albert S. Rogell directing, Sept. 15.

On same date studio will start the Armand Schaefer production, 'Eleven Were Brave'; the serial, 'G-Men Vs. The Black Dragon', William O'Sullivan producing, Sept. 20, and the Don 'Red' Barry western, 'Sundown Kid', Edward White producing, on Sept. 21.

Mayo, Shamroy Return For 'Dive' Footage

Archie Mayo, director, and Leon Shamroy, cameraman, on 20th-Fox 'Crash Dive' have returned from location work on the Atlantic coast for studio footage. Tyrone Power and Dana Andrews of the cast return Friday. A second unit with Harry Jackson as cameraman, remains in the east for additional background footage.

SOPEG Files for NLRB Election Covering 75 White Collarites

New York, Aug. 25.—The Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild, Local 109, UOPWA, continued active on the National Labor Relations Board front in New York by filing for a NLRB election covering about 75 white collar workers in Republic and Consolidated. Action followed failure of Herbert J. Yates, prexy of Consolidated, which controls Republic, to reply to SOPEG letter requesting a bargaining confab for home office staffs of both companies. Hearings are aimed at deciding who is eligible to vote.

The IA intervention plea at United Artists was dropped when it was unable to produce membership cards, and NLRB hearings at Paramount have been set with the SOPEG claiming home office, newsreel, exchange and music publishing white collar staffs. IA Local B-51, film handlers, also is claiming Par exchange collarites, which is a new departure from previous steps.

Motion Picture Office Employes, the IA Federal union which recently won the Warners strike, is claiming Par home office, newsreel and music publishing staffs also. B-51 will make the ballot since it has membership cards. MPOE, still showing no evidence of membership, may not be able to make the ballot.

Three Way Coast Preem For Wilcox's 'Wings'

RKO is setting up triple coast premiere of Herbert Wilcox's English-made production, 'Wings and the Woman,' with simultaneous openings in San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego. Booking arrangements for the three-barrelled stunt are being set up by RKO exchange officials, with picture to play the Pantages and Hillstreet locally and the RKO Golden Gate in San Francisco, addition to a Fox-West Coast house at San Diego.

Valerie Hobson Handed Selznick Termer

Valerie Hobson, English film name, has been signed to a term contract by David O. Selznick. Miss Hobson, who was slated to leave London immediately for Hollywood, will now stay there to co-star with Robert Donat in 'Saboteur's Agent' on a Metro loanout granted by Selznick before coming to the states.

Obituary

LINDA LEE

Linda Lee, 27, radio and stage singer, fell to her death Monday night in New York from a seventh floor window of a Central Park flat, shortly before she and her husband, Kermit Bloomgarten, a theatre manager, were planning to go to dinner. Police said they found nothing to indicate the fall was other than accidental. Clad in lounging robe and red slippers, the actress apparently fell through an opened French window and died in an ambulance en route to the hospital. She had appeared in the Broadway shows, 'Pal Joey' and 'Yes, My Darling Daughter'.

Exhib Down on Farm; There's Nothing To Do Till Tomorrow

Minneapolis, Aug. 25. — Harry Dickerman, one of two wealthy and prominent local independent theatre circuit owners who hired out as harvest hands for a war bit, writes from a Gardner, N. D., farm, detailing his daily routine.

Dickerman says he's up at 5:45 a.m., feeds the chickens and pigs and helps milk 12 cows. Then, he says, he has breakfast, after which he stacks bundles of grain. Then he milks cows and feeds other animals until 7:15 p.m. Dinner follows and then to bed, he relates.

When he wrote, Dickerman had been at it for 10 days, and said he intended to remain three more weeks. He's ineligible for military duty and, with crops bountiful and a shortage of farm labor, figured he'd contribute to the war effort in this way while doing himself good physically.

'Abie' Returns To NBC For Drene Sept. 12

New York, Aug. 25. — 'Abie's Irish Rose', Ann Nichols' comedy, returns to National Broadcasting network Saturday, Sept. 12, for Drene shampoo. There also are tentative plans for a new film version of the play. Click of the radio show last spring brought authoress several picture offers. Comedy originally was filmed in 1928 by Paramount, but Miss Nichols retained all rights to remakes. She is mulling the idea of selling rights again or producing herself with a major release.

Training Girls To Operate Theatres

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Major theatre circuits here will soon inaugurate schools for girls, training them to take over all theatre jobs. Idea is to release men for the armed service with the girls replacing. Latter would be pledged to return the jobs to the men after the war. Balaban & Katz, Standard Theatre Circuit, Great States Circuit, Essaness and others are participating.

Raft, Bogart Start Pix

Warners tossed two pictures before the cameras Monday to step up production activity. Pictures slated for start include: 'Background to Danger,' with George Raft starred; and 'Action in the North Pacific,' starring Humphrey Bogart.

Barrymore Books Auctioned—

Rare books from the John Barrymore collection went on the auction block yesterday, with Elliott Nugent bidding in a rare copy of the Jehan Froissart Chronicle, written on skins in 1425, for $750. Late actor is reported to have paid $5,000 for copy. Other books brought similar below-market prices.

Morgan Nuptials Deferred—

Marriage of Michele Morgan and William Marshall, both film players, has been postponed two weeks while actress recovers from flu attack. They were to have been married this week.

TWO CLASSES FINISH SIGNAL CORPS COURSES; MORE SIGN

With two classes completing courses in camera work and two groups now going through, U. S. Signal Corps will continue its photographic instruction indefinitely to fill expanding needs of camera technicians with various branches of the Army services.

Candidates selected, after passing physical exams, are signed up with the Army Signal Corps Reserve. Evening instruction courses three nights weekly cover all phases of photography, with final week devoted to students shooting 150 feet of film with four specified lenses — and choosing own setups. Allowances are made for requirements and different technique for military work as compared to studio procedure.

First two classes finished courses at Metro and Paramount. Class three winds up Friday at Columbia, while fourth class started last Tuesday at 20th-Fox. Initial two classes passed entire groups of 20 each, with practically all immediately called to active duty with non-com ratings of technical sergeants, staff sergeants and corporals, based on standings of finals.

According to one leader in the enterprise, there's no waiting list of candidates at present, but results to date indicate the Signal Corps can secure in excess of 500 photographic technicians annually through the studio instruction method set up by the Academy Research Council. Although most recruits have so far been selected in the western area, it is expected that candidates will be culled from all over the country.

Photography in war activities is being stressed by all branches of the combat services, and all are high-grading the Hollywood cameramen field in an endeavor to secure adequate supply of experienced photographers.

pling with comedy and alive with farced sex implications.

Kay Francis handles the maternal assignment effectively, with warm emotion. John Boles as Cummings' father, himself very cautious that the relationship should not be revealed for the same reason Miss Francis has withheld her daughter's age. Boles does an excellent job.

Andy Devine has a role well off his usual recently offerings as Miss Barrymore's manager, and socks it with gusty vehemence and comic candor. Outstanding in the part of an uncompromising devotee of truth is Ethel Griffies in the role of a housekeeper for Miss Francis—a delightful characterization. Walter Catlett creates an important scene as a police sergeant; Andrew Tombes contributes a mellow and funny role as a doctor whose examination of the girl after she has been on a wild auto ride with Cummings hints at her true age; Lillian Yarbo is droll as a muttering, melancholy maid, and Irving Bacon, Mary Treen, Guinn Williams, Scotty Beckett have their moments.

Koster's direction comprehends every essential of entertainment with a flawless skill in handling his people and the situations.

Phillip P. Karlstein contributes importantly to the quality of the offering as his first associate producer assignment. Joe Valentine's camera is used as a fine technical credit, and Jack Otterson's art direction creates precisely the kind of elegance and theatrical flash appropriate to the comedy. R. A. Gausman did the set decorations. Charles Previn directed the music. John Jacoby made the adaptation from the play, 'Le Fruit Vert', by Regis Gignaux and Jacques Thery. Writing job is a bright credit for all concerned. Especially deft with innuendo is the delicate reference to sex in terms of soft drinks in an ice cream parlor.

Divorcement Threat Slows Sales Plans

New York, Aug. 25.—Threat of theatre divorcement, implied in Thurman Arnold's veto of the new UMPI sales plan, is understood to be the major factor which will keep the five major companies selling pictures in blocks of five or less during the 1942-43 season.

Although the escape clause ostensibly allows the decree companies to deviate from tradeshowing and limited block-selling provisions of the decree as of last June, none of the five companies is resorting to the escape provision. Execs of the companies concerned figure continuance of consent decree type of selling is the lesser evil than calling down divorcement proceedings by the government officials.

Bodle Joins Staff Of Manpower Commish

Attorney George E. Bodle yesterday assumed his new duties as special assistant to the regional director of the U. S. Manpower Commission. Bodle, who represents more than a dozen film unions and guilds, will headquarters in San Francisco, but will continue to operate his law offices here. Details of union work will be handled by Attorney Louis R. Stein, who has been associated with Bodle for nearly two years.

McDaniel Aids Savings

Hattie McDaniel trains out tomorrow night for Indianapolis where on Sunday she will address an interracial rally in the interest of War Savings. Before leaving she will join Jack Benny, Ann Sheridan, Rosemary Lane and The King's Men in a recording session at CBS to prepare a transcription for the War Department's weekly 'Mail Call' program.

ey and future remittances being available to U. S. distributors in the near future.

While not professing to know what Somervell is doing, foreign sales managers would not be surprised at an attempt to link the frozen coin situation with the British quota film production in postwar stages. It is no secret to the foreign sales chiefs that the British Board of Trade has been mulling postwar production possibilities in Great Britain for the last six months.

Somervell is highly regarded in New York, and is reported friendly to American producers, despite which the picture business is going ahead with its program to dislodge revenue in Great Britain.

Power Saving May Cut Theatre Play

New York, Aug. 25.—Possibility that film houses, especially those in concentrated war production centers, will have to close at least one day weekly—as in the last war—or otherwise curtail operations by shortening hours of operation or some other avenue of restriction, was increased by last week's War Production Board announcement that 'keeping all theatres open during the war will become increasingly difficult'. Coincidentally, stepping up of war production, with added siphoning of electric power to industrial plants, is pointed as further angle of the serious problem.

Gillespie Slated Head UA Field Exploiteers

New York, Aug. 25.—Jimmy Gillespie, formerly with United Artists exchange in Atlanta, is reported heading the company's exploitation department under Dave Weshner. UA field exploitation forces have been disbanded pending alignment of next season's product, and setting of release schedule.

America Looks Abroad
with ROBERT ARDEN

It becomes increasingly evident that the duration of the current conflict must be proportionate to the extent of the battlefields.

Global warfare, literally, broke into full fury as four continents became enveloped in bitter fighting. Australia (Solomons), Asia, Africa and Europe are linked to America by the thread of human effort and human blood, a thread which the Axis tries to sever.

Upon its continuance depends the outcome of the war.

LEGAL BEEF OVER PRODUCER CREDIT ON UA JUNGLE FILM

Jeffrey Bernerd, Monogram producer, yesterday served formal enjoinment notice on Jules Levey, Mayfair Productions and United Artists that if Levey claims producer credit on UA jungle feature, 'Jacare', matter will be taken to court for adjudication. Bernerd is represented by Attorney Don Marlin.

Trouble between Bernerd and Levey has been brewing for some months. Bernerd, former exec with Gaumont-British, and for years a prominent figure in the British film industry, asserts idea of making 'Ja-

20th Peddles Chillers Off Blocks-of-Five

Because of the specialized bookings existing for horror pictures, 20th-Fox is lifting 'Dr. Renault's Secret' and 'The Undying Monster' from regular consent-decree blocks-of-five, and will sell the two chill-thrillers as a separate pair in a solo block.

Decision was made by 20th-Fox production and distribution execs after it was pointed out that many theatres get adverse audience reactions to pictures of that type, while others do top biz.

'Bambi' Closes At Hall

New York, Aug. 26.—Walt Disney's 'Bambi' closed its two-week stay at the Music Hall tonight and goes out on the RKO Manhattan circuit. Benny the Gouge sez—Every day the war covers more territory, and the more territory it covers, the more gas it needs. Bonds will buy the gas if you will buy the Bonds.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

STUDIO readers have considerably revised their approach toward submitted and published material regarding the war, following conference last week with Nelson Poynter, Hollywood representative of Office of Government Films. Readers indicated their awareness that vital material will not sift through to the screen unless they know how to recognize important war themes. Poynter emphasized that the reader can do more to help the true war effort by finding one box office story about the difficult issues of the nature of the enemy and of true democracy, for instance, then by recommending half a dozen conventional melodramas which would merely be played against the background of fighting forces.

BRIAN DONLEVY'S appearance on the Vox Pop program from San Diego Monday and his turn at Camp Elliott for Paramount's Marine preview of 'Wake Island,' cost him exactly $500. Although actor was paid $1,000 for the broadcast, Universal, where he is working in 'Nightmare,' docked him a day's pay for the time off. Since pro rated daily stipend figured out to $1,500 it left him short the $500.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Two KGO commentators will become regular fixtures of the Blue web's weekly war journal Sunday, giving this city double measure on worldwide news and comment roundup. Major General Paul B. Malone, U. S. Army retired, will dope the military moves, and Dean Dickason will expert the Far Eastern situation.

Two commentators are first to go transcontinental from here. They were tabbed for the spot on War Journal by G. W. Johnstone, Blue's director of special features, when he was here last week. Dickason was tried out last Sunday and made the grade. Johnstone has had nibbles for services of Malone and Dickason on nation-wide basis and hopes to cinch deals with Sunday broadcasts.

George Banyai Prods.

Sacramento, Aug. 26.—Articles of incorporation were filed today by George Banyai Productions, Inc., which announced its intention of 'producing and exhibiting theatrical productions', with headquarters in Los Angeles County. Stock at par value of $100 a share will be issued. Directors are George Banyai, Joseph J. Cummins and M. N. Davis, all of Los Angeles.

Reis 'Hitler's Children'

Irving Reis has been assigned at RKO to direct 'Hitler's Children,' the Edward A. Golden production based on Gregor Ziemer's book, 'Education for Death.' Ziemer's report is based on 12 years spent inside Nazi Germany studying Hitler's method of warping the youth of his country.

SOEG TO ARBITRATE AS WALKOUT THREAT REMOVED

White Collarites, but major companies continued to refuse the Guild wage demands.

Despite agreement effected yesterday when Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, told the Guild that companies would submit to arbitration of the disputed minimums, there still is a possibility the two factions will get together on wage scales before the arbitration machinery can be set up. SOEG will appoint one member of the arbitrating board, while exchanges will fill a second spot with their representative. Both will okay a third, impartial member of the board.

Membership meeting of the SOEG was called last night at Hollywood Roosevelt for a discussion of arbitration move by Glenn Pratt, business representative; Bernard Lusher, secretary, and others, and a report on recent New York trip made by Guild representatives for negotiations with company heads which reached a stalemate.

Several times the Guild had set time limit for walkouts, but postponed such moves in last-minute efforts to get together with companies and avoid production holdups.

Main differences on wages are in classifications four and five, involving pay raises of more than $10 weekly for some employes. Other scales in dispute involved an offered $23.50 minimum in the lowest brackets as against the Guild demand for $26.50.

F-WC Mulls Girl Help For Managers Posts

Already heavily hit by the draft and enlistments, Fox West Coast is mulling training of girls for theatre manager and assistant posts. No official move has been made yet, but one is likely within a couple of weeks, according to one exec. Mass reclassification of men by Selective Service will make further inroads, and F-WC doesn't want to be left seriously hampered.

Idea was thought of before, but junked, majority not wanting femmes in theatre posts if it could be helped. Now, however, the idea has been introduced in the Evergreen circuit, Oregon-Washington affiliate of National Theatres, with some success, and will spread. Village theatre, in Claremont, has Chelle Janis, femme, managing. There a couple of months, she formerly managed Loew's Ziegfeld theatre in New York, and is generally regarded as a competent manager.

Biz Tops Set Exchange Bond Drive Chores

New York, Aug. 26.—Hays office directors met today to discuss means whereby exchanges throughout the country can be used to coordinate and speed up the September War Bond sales. Industry toppers discussed various phases of the tremendous task involved in raising one billion dollars through theatres and the picture industry. Among those present at session were Nicholas M. Schenck, Barney Balaban, Spyros Skouras, Peter Rathvon, Arthur Kelly, John O'Connor and Charles F. Coe.

Oldknow Heading Out On Month's Travels

Oscar Oldknow, local head of National Theatre Supply Corp., left yesterday on an extended Eastern trip to visit midwestern branches and Atlanta. Following trip South, he will go to New York expecting to be gone about a month.

Cabot-Kelly's Ciggie

Bruce Cabot and Nancy Kelly will appear on the Philip Morris Radio Playhouse broadcast from New York Sept. 3. Cabot headed east last night and Miss Kelly leaves tonight.

Scribbling

Marc Connelly will prepare script of 'The Last Best Hope' at 20th-Fox, checking into the studio next Monday on the assignment. Yarn is novel by Helen Deutsch, and will be published by Redbook this fall. Nunnally Johnson will produce the picture.

Nick Grinde set to work with Norman Reilly Raine on the script of 'We've Never Been Licked', forthcoming Walter Wanger production at Universal.

Ben Holmes is writing the next Leon Errol two-reeler which Bert Gilroy will produce for RKO early in September.

George Bricker is doing polish job on his script for 'Four Star Murder Case' at 20th-Fox.

Topkick's Letters Basis Of New Metro Film

Film rights to 'See Here, Private Hargrove,' short novel including series of army life articles by sergeant Marion Hargrove, originally written by the latter for his home town paper, have been purchased by Metro, and handed to George Haight to produce. Ned Brown handled negotiations for the film rights as author's representative.

Third Skelton Starrer Another 'Whistler'

Third in Metro's series of Red Skelton starrers will be 'Whistling In Brooklyn,' original yarn by Everett Freeman, Boris Ingster and Samuel Ornitz. Picture will be third Skelton feature with 'Whistling' on front end of title; other two being 'Whistling In the Dark' and 'Whistling In Dixie.' George Haight continues as producer of the series.

Brahm Leads 'Project'

John Brahm draws directorial assignment on 'Project 47,' which Bryan Foy produces at 20th-Fox. Director is currently winding up megger job on 'The Undying Monster.'

BEST DRESSED GAL OF THE WEEK—

Dorothy Lamour lunching at Lucey's in one of the new coat-dresses in changeable moire of wine and black. The skirt had two wedge-shaped revers, repeating the revers on the bodice in reverse. Her wine felt beret was draped to one side and caught by a cluster of black cotton cord balls headed by a thick twist. Wine moire gloves and black moire pumps with matching black moire bag completed her ensemble. Her jewel accent was a diamond and garnet pin worn in the new way, on the side of her bag.

SHERRILL COHEN and Mike Rosen- berg each ante-upped $500 for incubators that will be installed in the premature birth clinic at the Cedars of Lebanon under sponsorship of the Variety Club. IT'S IN THE AIR!

"WINGS and the WOMAN"

THEY ALL RAVE

JIMMIE FIDLER—"The best picture of the week . . . Makes a thrilling movie . . . Story told with amazing frankness . . . The picture's ending will bring a cheer to your lips . . . Women especially should see "WINGS AND THE WOMAN."

HOLLYWOOD REPORTER — "Neagle and Wilcox triumph in drama . . . An epic . . . Beautifully reverent and moving in its utter sincerity."

VARIETY—"The activities of the women ferry pilots . . . An absorbing story with a capital exploitation theme."

GEORGE FISHER, Hollywood Whispers, C.B.S.—"Anna Neagle in a role as inspiring as the one all women are playing in real life today. So good I feel like shouting its praises every day from coast to coast."

MRS. LYMAN H. JOHNSON, National Board of the American Red Cross—"It touches the heart with its sincerity and truth. Miss Neagle's depiction of Amy Mollison and of how she opened up new horizons for women the world over is breathtaking."

BOX OFFICE—"Impressively and engrossingly told. Skillfully produced and directed . . . The sheer dramatic impact of the film and its timeliness assure it a wide-spread and profitable reception."

FILM DAILY—"Swell . . . Stirring . . . Mass entertainment . . . Anna Neagle excellent."

MRS. OVETA CULP HOBBY, Director Women's Army Auxiliary Corps—"A most inspiring picture, and one which I shall not soon forget.'

COMMANDER BETTY LUND, Founder of the Eaglet Squadron—"I can honestly say that I have never been so deeply moved by any motion picture."

HOLLYWOOD SPECTATOR — "A really great motion picture . . . Anna Neagle has never given a better performance. Herbert Wilcox makes his players human to the point of playing havoc with our emotions, keeping lumps in our throats. On this side of the Atlantic we make no pictures of greater technical worth."

SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW—"Will entertain everyone, especially the women. Certainly one of the most timely pictures of the day . . . at the boxoffice from one end of the country to the other . . . Loads of entertainment, suspense, acting, interesting love story, wonderful air shots . . . A thrilling, exciting story."

DAME MAY WHITTY—"The most emotional and beautiful film I have ever seen."

HOLLYWOOD MOTION PICTURE REVIEW — "Excellent suspense, comedy, human appeal . . . A timely subject . . . Miss Neagle's personality shines out brilliantly."

MAJOR MABEL PATTON, Executive Officer, Civilian Defense, L. A.—"It's the greatest inspiration that women in war work could have."

MRS. S. S. HAHN, Executive Board, Marion Davies' Hospital, Calif. State Guard—"This picture conveys an all-important story from the women of England to our women in America. And Anna Neagle has delivered that story perfectly."

ERSKINE JOHNSON, Daily News and K.E.C.A.—"One of those rare adventures in movie going. It's a motion picture you can't afford to miss—with star, Anna Neagle, that shines more brilliantly every time she appears on the screen."

Glamour Shows Urged To Doom Nazi's S.A. Popoffing

concern to the war effort, he said.

Weaver stated that Hollywood holds an important position in the dissemination of programs to the Latin countries due to the immense popularity of film stars with nationals to the south. It's the glamour phase of the Hollywood-originated program, whether live or on wax, that carries the wildest appeal to the South American populace. Weaver called radio the greatest single factor to influence the South American mind, and pointed out that 550 Spanish and 150 Portuguese radio stations attest to the wide range of such appeal.

Network and station heads here were asked for their full cooperation in helping put down Nazi propaganda by means of entertainment that would change the dialing habits of the Latins. Weaver said when the job is done thoroughly by radio there will be no further need to suspect the motives of these people. They're glamour-conscious, and that's Hollywood's cue to get into stride, Weaver added.

Jack Runyon, Coast head of Office of Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, presided at the luncheon and told of the full research facilities of CIAA being at the disposal of radio. Weaver goes east next week to wind up his affairs before joining the Navy.

Feldman Heads Talent For War Bond Drive

Charles K. Feldman has been named special talent chairman of the Motion Picture Industry's Billion Dollar War Bond Drive. Announcement was made by War Activities Committee yesterday.

In addition to his new post, Feldman recently was appointed west coast representative for the Army Relief Show to be held at Madison Square Garden on Sept. 30. He also is talent chairman of the Hollywood Victory Committee and was in the talent chair for the recent Navy Relief Drive and Hollywood Victory Caravan.

LEGAL BEEF OVER PRODUCER CREDIT ON UA JUNGLE FILM

care', a crocodile picture filmed far up the Amazon river in Brazil, was his, and that he put in 21 weeks on the production job. Asserts he engaged Frank Buck's assistance and that he subsequently brought the late Charles Ford down to the jungle to direct sequences.

Film was shot with Mono's bankroll and backing of Trem Carr, and for that reason Mono has been made a friendly participant in the threatened enjoinment action. Understood cost ran around $90,000, and film later was peddled to Levey's Mayfair Productions, which put up $92,000 for the releasing rights, plus agreeing to pass on 50% of the profits to the Mono-Bernerd interests. Levey then made deal with UA to release the feature.

According to Bernerd, it looked like a sweet deal, with all parties likely to pocket substantial profits. In his formal notice to Levey and Mayfair, served through his attorney, Bernerd complains that Levey prevailed upon him to withdraw his name as producer of the film because of certain British developments which, it was felt, would operate to curtail the picture's gross in the British market.

With Bernerd consenting to forego producer credit, he asserts, Levey then proposed to assume such credit himself. Bernerd thereupon did a burn, in view of the fact that according to his rights he was initially responsible for the entire venture and also was the one to see it through.

Jules Levey informed Daily Variety last night he intends to release 'Jacare' as 'a Mayfair production', with no individual producer credit. He said further that UA did not take over for distribution the film brought back from Brazil by Bernerd, but a completely revamped feature with prolog and narration by Frank Buck. It was only after footage shot in Brazil had been thus rearranged, with a fresh ending to the story, that UA saw possibilities which induced it to conclude a deal. Bernerd, according to Levey, has no beef whatsoever, and in fact bowed out of the picture totally when Mayfair purchased footage from Mono.

Biz War Relief Gifts Total $185,089

Motion picture industry has contributed $185,089 to the combined Navy Relief and Russia-China-Dutch War Relief campaign, according to figures announced yesterday at the drive's final luncheon. Figure brings the industry's contributions to various charities during the past 12 months to $1,969,510.29, according to report by Chairman Jacob H. Karp.

Industry will keep its campaign books open for an additional time to see if a total of $200,000 can be reached, although it has already over-subscribed the original quota.

Leading studio was 20th-Fox, with 2,914 employes contributing $41,414.82. Metro was second, and will continue its part of the campaign in an effort to reach a figure surpassing 20th-Fox.

Karp paid tribute to the various unions, guilds and individual groups in the film business that made possible the large total. He also voiced thanks to Hollywood trade dailies and their publishers for complete cooperation during the drive.

Receiving thanks of representatives of the four charities benefited by the campaign were the Screen Actors Guild, Artists Managers Guild, Screen Directors, Screen Writers, the Permanent Charities Committee and the individual crafts which contributed a substantial part to the drive's success.

F-WC Closes 3-Year Col Deal, Working On Other Majors

Fox West Coast circuit is making progress in film buying for the 1942-43 season, which formally gets under way next Tuesday. Circuit has closed new three-year franchise deal with Columbia for output of the latter distributor. Negotiations have been under way for some time and were virtually set several months ago.

First 10 pictures of 20th-Fox for 1942-43 have also been bought by F-WC. Circuit deal for Metro product is being worked out but it is expected that some time will elapse before closing due to the complicated nature of percentages involved between circuit and exchange.

Discussions for buy of Universal's 1942-43 program have been shelved for the time being, due to departure of Sales Exec William Heineman for the east on other U biz. Deal is slated to be revived shortly for concluding confabs.

Treasury Lends Rider To Local Bond Staff

Howard D. Mills, State Administrator for the U. S. Treasury War Savings Staff of Southern California announces that John Rider has been loaned to his staff by Washington from the office of Vincent F. Callahan, Chief of the Press and Radio Section of the War Savings Staff for an indefinite period.

Rider, who has been in show biz for a number of years, joined the Treasury Staff recently after completing his chores with the Fred Allen radio show as assistant producer and personal representative for Allen.

Chores Rider will perform while here will be in association with Arthur Ungar, chairman of promotion and information for the area administered by Mills.

'Doubt' Troupe Checks Back For U Shots

Troupe of 'Shadow of a Doubt,' checks in at Universal today after four weeks of filming on location in Santa Rosa. Interiors on the feature start at the studio tomorrow. Alfred Hitchcock, directing the Jack H. Skirball Productions, Inc., feature, is bringing back two Santa Rosa children. Edna May Wonacott and Estelle Jewell, to continue their roles in picture.

U Pages 195 Extras

Universal called a total of 195 extras yesterday for work in three of its nine currently filming productions. 'Sin Town' drew 148 of the call; 'Arabian Nights' used 25 and 22 went to 'Passing the Buck.'

Story Buys

Republic has purchased 'Mail Boat', by Houston Branch, to use as a basis for 'Back To God's Country', which Armand Schaefer will produce. Branch will work on the screenplay. Studio also has purchased 'Elusive Lady' from Frank Fenton and Joseph Hoffman for production by Robert North. Isabel Dawn has been set to do the script.

RKO Finds Increased Location Trips Saves Money

Preliminary survey at RKO of increased location trips due to ceiling costs on studio sets shows that in majority of cases money was saved by moving the companies afield.

During past month 10 pictures moved to 16 locations. Approximately 90% of these trips would not have been made before the government ceiling was put on set construction. Films going farther out for RKO included 'Bombardier', for which backgrounds were shot at Midlands, Tex., Phoenix and Albuquerque; 'The Big Street', for which actual scenes were shot at Miami Beach and in New York; 'Seven Days' Leave', with scenes in Chicago and New York radio stations, and 'The Navy Comes Through', which used Newport Naval Training Station and scenes aboard the U.S.S. Constellation. Shorter trips were for 'Stand By To Die', 'Once Upon a Honeymoon', 'Seven Days' Leave', 'Cat People' and 'Ladies Day'.

Marshall Femme Lead Opposite Geo. Raft

Brenda Marshall gets the femme lead opposite George Raft in 'Background to Danger' at Warners. Other set for picture include Sydney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre. Raoul Walsh directs the Jerry Wald production, starting Monday. Bhogwan Singh, Hindu turban expert who prepared head pieces for 'The Desert Song,' stays at studio to do same chore for 'Danger.'

'Joe Smith American'

Monday's Victory Theatre broadcast over CBS, next to last in the series, features Screen Guild Theatre presentation of 'Joe Smith, American,' with lead roles taken by Robert Young, Ruth Hussey and Roger Pryor. Curtain on the Office of War Information series will be rung down in New York the following week by Fred Allen.

Break For Unemployed

Warners will use around 200 unemployed residents of Monterey, Calif., for scenes in 'The Edge of Darkness,' in addition to a number of cannery workers to do their own jobs for the cameras. Townspeople are being registered by the U. S. Employment Service for the mob scenes. 'Darkness' unit trains for location Friday night.

MAGNESIUM CORP. PUTS UP 700-SEATER NEAR LAS VEGAS

Answering a need for entertainment among its workers, Basic Magnesium Corp. is building its own film theatre as an adjunct to the plant and housing development, now under construction 10 miles outside Las Vegas, Nev. Event may start a trend toward theatre building in defense areas by industrialists since priorities have nixed regular theatre building.

A temporary 700-seat house will be ready for operation within 30 days, it is reported, and a permanent set-up will be ready within 90 days. Plant management is seeking bids from operators, offering a guarantee and percentage of the profits.

It is expected that some 15,000 workers will be in the Las Vegas area when the plant is operating full blast. Added to the already overcrowded town are nearby camps which have swelled the population enormously. Recently Earl Strebe, Palm Springs and Arrowhead exhib, tried to open a theatre, but was stymied. He later erected a tent, which was later blown down in a hailstorm, and has since attempted operating a four-wall open-air theatre without much success.

Government is permitting builders of developments to include theatres, stores and other necessary adjuncts in their building plans. Las Vegas deal is believed to be the first put through.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Irving Kumin, casting director at Warners, dons his Air Force shoulder bars Monday. His studio job is to be taken over by Phil Friedman.

Glenn Ford leaves this weekend for cruise with U. S. Coast Guard as part of his training in qualifying for a commission in that service.

Exhibs Expect Dim-Out To Be Worse, Though To Now, Not Bad

Though feeling no bad effects yet from the dim-out, exhibs in this area are looking with apprehension to dimmed street lighting and dimmed car driving. When further shuttering comes, theatre operators expect to feel it at the b.o., for strictly local reason of transportation. Unlike the east, where the dim-out has not hurt business because transportation problem is not so involved, Coast can expect its drive-conscious andiences to react differently, operators believe.

Authorities have not applied the dim-out to street lights or automobiles except in shore areas. However, it is inferred that such extension of the dim-out orders may be expected. Feeling is that public is getting it in easy doses, and as soon as they get used to the present dimming, darkening will increase.

Theatre trade remains unaffected here except for a couple of isolated situations away from main show belts. Poor location cuts former transient trade.

WPB TO GOVERN ALLOTMENTS OF RAW STOCK EXPORT FILMS

New York, Aug. 27.—Allotments to cover raw film stock requirements of foreign countries for release prints of American-made product will be made by Washington officials in departments concerned with heads of the War Production Board. Although the promotional and propaganda advantages of American pictures will play a major part in generating a favorable reaction of neutral countries to the United Nations' war effort, steady flow of pictures must be made to our Allies and South American countries. SONGWRITER members of Ascap are in pretty much of a dither as to their rights in licensing music direct to radio stations gratuitously without drawing disciplinary action from the Society. Bewilderment is the result of a right-about by Thurman Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney general, who last month warned against an 'induced' action on the part of an Ascap writer in dealing with Broadcast Music for the purpose of getting his songs plugged on the air. Now Arnold reneges on himself by advising BMI that it's right and proper for Ascap writers to deal with that outfit, stating that Ascap made too narrow an interpretation of a previous communication with the intent of penalizing defecting songwriters. Tin Pan Alley now say it's up to Arnold to take himself off the spot and deliver a ruling that will put everyone in the clear. What was first considered a victory for Ascap is now a triumph for BMI with the rubber game on Arnold's next deal.

SONJA HENIE doesn't contemplate taking out a troupe on her usual annual skating tour this fall, and thereby figures to lose some $300,000 which she has averaged the past few seasons from her ice capers. Uncertainty of transportation, which preliminary survey indicated would involve definite delays and complications of a probably costly nature, and anticipated difficulties in rounding up chorus boys for her troupe revue are responsible for probable abandonment of the venture this season. Miss Henie's second picture on the three-pictures-in-two-years deal at 20th-Fox, 'Quota Girl,' is slated for December. First, completed, is 'Iceland.' Studio may move up start on 'Quota Girl' to abbreviate star's idling time, if her plans remain as they now are.

INVENTIVE abilities of studio technicians are being called on to supply substitute for balsa wood, in view of government freezing of the latter due to its need for airplane and other war manufacturing needs. Scarcity of balsa, which grows in South America, is occasioned by present shipping shortage. Balsa wood has long been used by studios for breakaway chairs, tables, and other articles that have to be used in screen fights; with lightness and breakability similar to that of cork, allowing actors to battle with it without chances of injury. RKO studio execs were the first to issue instructions to technicians to seek a suitable substitute for the frozen wood.

'Wildcat' is another first-rate action drama from Paramount's William H. Pine-William C. Thomas unit. Some good footage of oil drilling and burning wells supply thrills for the trade and assure satisfactory reception in the supporting spots. The pace hits slow spots due to overlength (73 minutes), but otherwise feature is a handily presented action saga of wildcat oil men with accurately gauged marketable possibilities.

Richard Arlen is the forthright wildcatter with a likely oil lease who cuts his friends in on it in return for their work. Boys hope to clear debts incurred in sinking the well by win-

Paramount production. Stars Ginger Rogers, Ray Milland. Features Rita Johnson, Robert Benchley, Diana Lynn. Supporting players: Edward Fielding, Frankie Thomas, Raymond Roe, Charles Smith, Larry Nunn, Billy Dawson, Lela Rogers, Aldrich Bowker, Boyd Irwin, Byron Shores, Richard Fiske, Norma Varden, Gretl Dupont. Director, Billy Wilder. Producer, Arthur Hornblow, Jr. Written by Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder. Suggested by a play by Edward Childs Carpenter and a story by Fannie Kilbourne. Photography, Leo Tover. Music score, Robert Emmett Dolan. Art direction, Hans Dreier, Roland Anderson. Film editor, Doane Harrison. Costumes, Edith Head. Makeup artist, Wally Westmore. Sound recording, Harold Lewis, Don Johnson. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 27, 1942. Running time: 100 MINS.

'The Major and the Minor' is delightful comedy diversion, guaranteeing money in the boxoffice for exhibitors and another top credit for Ginger Rogers. Its handsome production values marshaled by the showmanly hand of Arthur Hornblow, Jr., provide the springboard for the highly successful display of talent and the directorial debut of Billy Wilder, writer of the script with Charles Brackett. Wilder shows a keen knowledge of comedy and dramatic values that rate him other important assignments.

Story demonstrates that kid playing grownup isn't half as much fun as a grownup playing kid. Give Out, Sisters

(Comedy)

Universal production. Cast: The Andrews Sisters, Grace McDonald, Dan Dailey, Jr., Charles Butterworth, Walter Catlett, William Frawley, Donald O'Connor, Peggy Ryan, Edith Barrett, Marie Blake, Fay Helm, Emmett Vogan, Leonard Carey, Richard Davies, Irving Bacon and the Jivin' Jacks and Jills. Director, Edward F. Cline. Associate producer, Bernard W. Burton. Screenplay, Paul Gerard Smith and Warren Wilson; from original story by Lee Sands and Fred Rath. Photography, George Robinson. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Robert Boyle. Film editor, Paul Landres. Gowns, Vera West. Set decorations, R. A. Gausman; associate, J. Andrew Gilmore. Musical director, Charles Previn. Orchestrations, Vic Schoen. Dances staged by John Mattison. Songs by Gwynne and Lucien Denni; Lester Lee ad Zeke Manners; Ray Stillwell and Ray Gold; Walter Donaldson; Sid Robins and Al Lerner. Previewed at RKO-Hillstreet theatre, Aug. 27, 1942. Running time: 65 MINS.

Here is an all-out comedy, expertly built and played for laughs, which will win audience preference from many a more pretentious running mate on the general run of programs. What it may lack in name glitter it makes up in just plain, unabashed hilarity, with a group of good troupers and the canny entertainment wisdom of the director, Edward F. Cline, taking it to town.

The giggle and guffaw routines are catipulted from a tale of farcical socialite horror of professional dancing, represented in the relationship of three old maid sisters and their sprightly niece. Grace McDonald is the gal, attractive and graceful. She is a sneak-away-from-home student at the dance academy of Charles Butterworth. Her fellow students get their big chance at a specialty in a swank nitery. But without the social-name heiress, who has made a hit at a tryout appearance, the kids are sunk. So are the dance professor and his oily promoter parisite, Walter Catlett. The problem of getting the maiden aunts' consent to Miss McDonald's dancing contract, involving numerous ruses, masquerades and fantastic farce situations, builds the thing to swift-paced peaks of laughter.

The Andrews Sisters justify their entertainment repute not only in the four songs the trio chants, but also in a masquerade as the three spinsters, which displays plenty of comedy talent. Final mixup at the nitery when the two femme trios get mixed up in the kids' dance routines is a genuine piece of comic novelty. Featured in the dances are the Jivin' Jacks and Jills.

Butterworth and Catlett give their skillful clowning a fast ride. William Frawley is right on the beam with a choice characterization as the safe proprietor whose antics tie in with the other two. Dan Dailey, Jr., carries the romantic lead with Miss McDonald. Peggy Ryan delivers an effective showing of her own brand of juve funning. Edith Barrett, Marie Blake and Fay Helm are the angular, suspicious and dried-up spinsters, all contributing greatly to the amusement with outstanding enactments. Leonard Carey is excellent as the sympathetic butler. Irving Bacon, Donald O'Connor and Richard Davies ably complete the support.

Nature of the broad comedy is much to the liking of Director Edward F. Cline, and he knows by taste and experience exactly what to do to exploit it for widest entertainment. Bernard W. Burton competently carries the associate producer task. The screenplay, smooth, warm and jovial with a lavish throw-away style, is by Paul Gerard Smith and Warren Wilson from an original by Lee Sands and Fred Rath. George Robinson rates a commendable credit for the photography. Jack Otterson maintains his excellent art director's standard. Dances — very attractive and lively — were staged by John Mattison. R. A. Gausman and J. Andrew Gilmore did the set decorations. Charles Previn directed the music, with Vic Schoen on the orchestrations.

Songs are neatly interpolated and

Shadows On the Sage

(Western)

Republic production. Stars Bob Steele, with Tom Tyler, Jimmy Dodd, Cheryl Walker, Griff Barnette, Harry Holman, Freddie Mercer, Bryant Washburn, Tom London, Yakima Canutt. Associate producer, Louis Gray. Director, Lester Orlebeck. Assistant director, George Blair. Editor, William Thompson. Original screenplay, J. Benton Cheney. Reviewed at the Hitching Post theatre, Hollywood, Aug. 27, 1942. Running time: 56 MINS.

With any other name than the unexciting title given, this western would remain a better-than-average leather lope that will both amuse and excite the fans. The perennial ingredients of the mine and the gal are there, but the formula is different. Everything is done the fancy way this time, right down to the corraling of the outlaws through very tricky means. It all makes for twists that lift it above the crowd.

Again the local banker is the undercover rat who seeks the mine and lets his hirelings do the dirty work for the loose cash lying around. Bob Steele, playing dual role of bandit and hero, comes onto the scene in answer to a SOS from his aging sheriff friend. He is captured by the gang leader, who then impersonates him. There's a lot of suspense in watching the evil doings of Steele, the killer, and excitement in watching how Steele, the honest cowhand, and his pals extricate and exonerate themselves from their tough situation.

There's action a-plenty in stage robberies, chases and running hill battles before the outlaws get their desserts. The 'different' manner in which things are done and plots and counter-plots conceived and executed give it unusual interest. There's no just shooting them down in the chase. The bandits are laid low by swinging tree branches into them, fancy rope work and trick riding, all making for kid enjoyment.

Film is not without its humorous side. Sometimes, as nearly always in westerns, it's stretched, but still gets laughs. Particularly amusing are the songs of Jimmy Dodd, who rattles off a couple of unusually entertaining novelty numbers in the cowboy canto.

Acting on the whole is as sandy as the scene, but escapes attention through story intricacies sustaining interest. Action takes care of the rest, and the director and writer rate notice for these too strong points.

Hays Majors Boosting War Bond Sales With Clips on Films

Major company members of the Hays organization will each make and attach to minimum of three pictures during the coming year, short clips running up to 100 feet with direct appeal to the public to purchase War Bonds to the maximum.

Plan is to have War Bond appeal clips spliced onto the ends of features that carry patriotic wallop in their subject matter, with one of the stars or top personalities of the picture appearing for the Treasury Department talk.

First picture to carry the War Bond clip will be Paramount's 'Wake Island', with Brian Donlevy to deliver the appeal and with diolog stressing the need of the home folk getting behind the boys who are battling on the war fronts with War Bond purchases. Donlevy, now working at Universal, will switch over to Paramount to do the short monolog nights.

63.8% OF WORLD FILM COIN PRODUCED BY U. S. MARKET

from the domestic market. Fear at the beginning of the war was that, with loss of various phases of revenue from the foreign field, especially those countries lined up with Germany and Italy as well as countries that had capitulated to the Axis, the American domestic market might also take a drop.

However, trade since 1939 increased in the domestic film market, and at a recent Hays office meeting a report was made pointing out that of all worldwide income from films produced and distributed by its members, 63.8% came from within the United States.

The report showed that from the British market the take amounted to 22% of the gross revenue, or around $88,000,000. Though this coin reaches the freezing stages, the American distributors count it as revenue which is available at intervals and safe for their interests.

Balance of the European market, if any, is not counted at all in the report, as Germany, Austria, France, Italy, Rumania and other countries now in the war have cut off relationship with the American companies, and even from Finland there is no revenue available.

No record is made of any coin coming from or possibly available from the neutral countries such as Switzerland, Spain and Portugal at this time, but there is a little coin trickling in from those sources. Canada is calculated as 3.3% of the world market, with income to the American majors from this source of the North American continent being around the $13,000,000 mark.

The Latin-American countries, embracing South and Central America and Mexico, have increased their consumption of American-made films whereby they use 4.7% of the world output of the majors, which amounts to approximately $18,800,000 in current yearly revenue.

The balance of the world market, made up of Australia, New Zealand, China and the neutral European countries, where there is no actual gauge on the income, turn in an aggregate of about 6.2% of the world total of film rental. This figured out in coin will reach around $25,000,000.

With demand for an abundance of films from all phases of the foreign market, it is expected revenue of the American major group of producers and distributors will increase considerably, and that the next inventory of major companies' take from the world market will jump at least another 10%, or reach a total of $450,000,000 within the next year, as the Government has evinced a desire to have film production remain in high gear throughout the war period.

major exchange man is set. It is likely eastern member of the arbitration trio will be able to plane in by Monday if selection there goes through immediately.

If SOEG and exchanges fail to get together on a satisfactory third member, matter will be submitted to John Steelman, conciliation head for the Department of Labor, for a choice.

Par and Indie Move To Guard Interests

Minneapolis, Aug. 27.—Asserting that their business and properties may be affected by any clearance change involving the Hopkins theatre, suburban house, Paramount circuit and the independent St. Louis Park theatre, another suburban situation, have intervened in the arbitration action brought by the Hopkins owners against major distributors here.

Hopkins, 11 miles west of Minneapolis, charges that the 49-day clearance now enjoyed by the Paramount houses here is 'unreasonable'. The St. Louis Park, in the same competitive area and with a higher admission scale, now has clearance over it.

DeLapp New Chief Of U Blurb Brigade

Terry DeLapp has been named Universal studio publicity director by John Joseph, national director of publicity and advertising. DeLapp replaces Lou Smith, who has resigned to take on an executive publicity position under Howard Dietz at Metro starting Sept. 8. DeLapp, former Paramount studio publicity head, has been operating his own public relations office past two years.

Metro Readying Eight For Sept.; 'Comedy,' 'Du Barry' in Lead

Metro is readying eight major productions to hit cameras during September. Heading the list is 'The Human Comedy', William Saroyan yarn, with Mickey Rooney, Donna Reed, Gene Kelly, Marsha Hunt and Henry O'Neill heading cast, under direction of Clarence Brown, set to start first week in September.

Following closely will be 'DuBarry Was a Lady', with Red Skelton and Lucille Ball; 'Cabin In the Sky', with Ethel Waters, Lena Horne, Eddie Anderson, Duke Ellington and Louis Armstrong; 'Assignment In Brittany', featuring Jean Pierre Aumont, Susan Peters, Signe Hasso and Richard Whorf, to be directed by Jack Conway.

Later in the month starts are set for 'Three Hearts For Julia', with Ann Sothern and Melvyn Douglas; 'Private Miss Jones', with Kathryn Grayson and Jose Iturbi; 'Salute To the Marines', starring Wallace Beery; 'Nothing Ventured', Lana Turner starrer.

Six pictures now in production also will carry over into September.

Musicians In New Jobs With Air Force Band

Capt. Eddie Dundstedter's Santa Ana Air Force band has been augmented by five new members. They are Hal Ableser, trumpeter with Gus Arnheim; Bryan Lee, of the Don Bestor crew; Joe Barron, with Rudy Vallee; Carl Pritchard, of the KFI-KECA house band, and John Grimes, drumber with Art Randall.

Plays Aldrich's Sister

Martha O'Driscoll will play Henry Aldrich's sister in Paramount's third Victory short, 'The Aldrich Family Gets In the Scrap', which starts Sunday.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Grant H. Stone, Technicolor cameraman, has left Paramount's production, 'For Whom the Bell Tolls', now on location at Sonora, and is reporting for active duty in the Army Air Force at Miami. He has been commissioned a captain.

Alex Hyde, orchestra manager and composer at Metro, has enlisted as private in the Army Air Force. Stationed aboard Admiral Sims' flagship, he was Navy's youngest bandmaster in first World War.

Robert S. Howard, husband of Andrea Leeds, actress, and son of C. S. Howard, race horse owner, was sworn in yesterday as coxswain in the Coast Guard.

Service flag at KNX now has 65 stars.

20th CONVENTION WILL HEAR SKOURAS OUTLINE PROGRAM

New York, Aug. 27.—Spyros Skouras, president of 20th-Fox, will outline future feature production and company plans at the afternoon session of the company's eastern regional sales convention which opens at the Astor hotel tomorrow morning. Approximately 130 conventioneers, including 70 district and exchange managers, salesmen and bookers from the 10 eastern offices, plus 60 reps of home office departments, will be present.

Sales Chief Tom Connors will outline the 1942-43 product and company selling policy, while Andy Smith, presiding, will discuss selling problems of the first 30 pictures scheduled. Morning session will be devoted mainly to the shorts field, with Louis De Rochement, president, and Don Wood, secretary, of the March of Time, to speak on future production plans of the MT organization. William Clark, 20th-Fox short subject department head, will deal with distribution phases of the one and two-reelers.

Talk is general that 20th-Fox is limiting its output to around 38 features for the 1942-43 season, with Skouras expected to clarify the total tomorrow in his discussion to the sales group.

Among those attending the meeting here will be Herman G. Place, W. C. Michel, Sydney Towell, Felix Jenkins, Aubrey Schenck, William Kupper, W. C. Gehring, Martin Moskowitz, Hal Horne, Joe Shea, Irving Maas, Harvey Day and Paul Terry. Leaving here Sunday to attend further regional sales meets in Chicago, Dallas and Los Angeles, are Skouras, Connors, Smith, Gehring, Horne, Aubrey Schenck, Edward Colling, assistant western sales manager; John Wood and Day.

ning a cash prize to be given the first to strike oil near a western township. The Maxwell Shane-Richard Murphy script, from North Bigbee's original, throws in a dirty-working rival driller, a traveling cardsharp and his femme aide, an oil fire and other hazards to confound the hero and satisfy the action fans.

Arline Judge works opposite Arlen, putting her personality into part of the gambler's come-on who turns straight in the end. William Frawley sells the comedy material in his cardsharp role. Larry 'Buster' Crabbe shows well as the rival driller. Arthur Hunnicutt, Elisha Cook, Jr., and Ralph Sanford are Arlen's three friends, each having their moments. Alec Craig, John Dilson, Will Wright, Jessica Newcombe and Billy Benedict round out the capable credited players.

Frank McDonald's direction pushes the action along ably for legitimate thrills. Fred Jackman, Jr., captured some spectacular footage with his camera, and other credits capably measure up.

The Major and the Minor

discovery of the girl in the compartment nearly leads to his dismissal from school. He drags the youngster in to face the school board and prove his innocence. Staying over as a guest of the major, phoney moppet finds the New York wolves were babes in comparison to the romantic technique of the 'teen-age military cadets who, with tactical maneuvers, try to impress the sweet young thing with their sophistication. Miss Rogers finally gets a chance to be herself and capture the major just as he leaves for active war service — a timely note.

Miss Rogers and Milland carry the top roles with comedy distinction. Actress's characterizations, including herself, the young girl, and a sequence of playing her mother, give ample display of her talent range for fan approval. Milland solidly sells the co-star spot, making humorous the character of a young man having trouble explaining to himself the attraction felt for a mere child.

Rita Johnson socks over her role as the shallow fiancee. Robert Benchley clowns the part of a New York wolf with his usual success. A standout among the younger players is Diana Lynn (formerly Dolly Loehr) as Miss Johnson's kid sister.

Frankie Thomas, Raymond Roe, Charles Smith, Larry Nunn and Billy Dawson are the sophisticated cadets, each with his own technique for advancing on an objective, and each giving high moments to the story. Lela Rogers, real-life mother of Ginger Rogers, makes a strong, short appearance as the actress's screen mother. Edward Fielding, Aldrich Bowker, Byron Shores, Richard Fiske, Norma Varden and Gretl Dupont are other supporting capables.

Wilder's direction socks home every laugh in the workmanlike script he wrote with Charles Brackett from the play by Edward Childs Carpenter and a story by Fannie Kilbourne. Leo Tover gives fine photography to the production values. Robert Emmett Dolan's music score helps the mood. The art direction by Hans Dreier and Roland Anderson, the film editing by Doane Harrison, Edith Head's costuming and other credits earn favorable mention.

Three More In 'Comedy'

Gene Kelly, Marsha Hunt and Henry O'Neill have been spotted for featured roles in Metro's 'The Human Comedy', shaping to start next week under direction of Clarence Brown.

Ainley's 'DuBarry' Role

Richard Ainley gets featured role in Metro's 'DuBarry Was a Lady'.

Service Airer To Pick Top Fighting Band In KHJ Program

Contest to pick the best band in the service by vote of radio listeners is embodied in the formula of a new program, 'This Is the Hour', to be inaugurated at KHJ Sept. 2 for the Mutual network and its Canadian affiliates. Each week a camp or naval band will be remoted and listeners asked to vote for their choice. Half-hour program will be headed by Betty Rhodes as featured vocalist and Dave Rose's orchestra.

Dramatic vignettes of topical events relating to the war supplement the music, all under the direction of J. C. Lewis, Jr. Another feature will be the appearance on the program of three RAF cadets each week, who will tell of their training here for the flier command abroad.

WB Rolls 'Lucky Stars', Sheridan-Bogart

'Thank Your Lucky Stars', filmusical revue which Mark Hellinger will produce and David Butler direct, has been scheduled to roll at Warners Oct. 1. Cast will be headed by Ann Sheridan, Humphrey Bogart, Eddie Cantor, Dennis Morgan, Joan Leslie and Dinah Shore. In addition, star names on studio's roster will make brief appearances as themselves in the feature.

Music and lyrics for picture will be cleffed by Frank Loesser and Arthur Schwartz, and LeRoy Prinz will stage the dance numbers. Melvin Frank and Norman Panama wrote the script.

Par Stockholders Suit Over Bioff-Browne Payments Dismissed

New York, Aug. 27.—Accounting suit filed by stockholders against Paramount Pictures, Inc., in connection with the $100,000 paid to Willie Bioff, convicted labor racketeer, was dismissed today by Federal Judge John Bright.

Action, filed by William S. Ratner and G. Arthur Peck, contended payments were made illegally by officers and directors of Paramount and restitution should be made in favor of the company's stockholders.

Bioff and George Browne were convicted some time ago of extorting more than $1,000,000 from motion picture companies, threatening nation-wide strikes unless payoffs were made.

Bing Crosby Heads Out For Wash. 'Command'

Bing Crosby pulled out for Washington last night to appear on 'Command Performance' shortwave broadcast for army forces abroad. Mrs. Crosby accompanies Bing, and couple have been invited to the White House while in Washington.

Crosby goes to New York for a Treasury Hour program, and then hops to Detroit to play golf for benefit of the Red Cross, and later joins up with Bob Hope for fund-raising golf matches through the south and southwest.

WPB TO GOVERN ALLOTMENTS OF RAW STOCK EXPORT FILMS

titude is unanimous in Washington circles, but allocations of footage will conform with necessity of conserving on raw stock and materials going into latter's manufacture.

Check is now being made by Government officials regarding the present film stock capacities of English plants, with view to having prints for certain countries of the British Empire struck off the British negative shipped from this country on all features. It is not expected the Canadian print stock can assist much in alleviating the film shortage. Although raw stock is manufactured in the Dominion, it is understood that the celluloid base stock has to be shipped in from this country, and only assistance to any extent would be utilization of fullest capacity of emulsion coating machines on the Canadian side.

It is expected Washington officials will get a line on film rationing for various countries, insofar as use of American-made printstock is concerned, and then foreign managers of the majors will be called in for roundtable conferences to work out best way to proceed to get under the quotas set up by Government representatives.

Mono Takes Over NTG Revue for Musical

Monogram has closed a deal for the entire Nils T. Granlund revue at the Florentine Gardens to appear in its special musical, 'Bye, Bye, Baby', which Sydney M. Williams will produce. Talent from the N.T.G. will include principals and chorus. Studio also is after the Mills Brothers, now personaling at the night spot, for the picture.

Gale Storm has the top role in the musical, which starts Sept. 12. Charles Marion and Carl Foreman now are writing the script.

Allied Caravan Pushes Fight On Rentals

Minneapolis, Aug. 27.—The touring national Allied States caravan will participate in the Northwest Allied convention here next week to enlist the local independent exhibitors' organization in the fight for lowered film rentals. Northwest Allied leaders say they favor entry into the fray, but will leave it to members to decide. A decision also will be reached whether the organization shall sponsor an appeal from the district court decision holding the Minnesota anti-consent degree law unconstitutional and issuing a permanent injunction to restrain its enforcement.

F-WC Managers Split $40,000 Jackpot In Second Quarter Drive

Prize melon of $40,000 was split yesterday among 260 Fox West Coast managers and executives for improving their business during the fourth and last quarter of the Spyros Skouras Showmanship Drive. Gravy was ladled at a combination meeting and luncheon at the Ambassador hotel at which Charles Skouras, F-WC president and National Theatres prexy, presided, with theatre managers of the northern and southern California divisions present.

Meeting opened at 10:30 a.m. with announcement of prizes and outline of the first National Theatres campaign under the leadership of Charles Skouras since assuming the presidency, formerly held by Spyros. Under banner of National Theatres Fall Offensive, new drive will run from Sept. 27 to Dec. 26.

Meet concerned California end of drive only, Skouras leaving Sept. 6 for a tour of other NT affiliates to distribute remaining $37,000 in prizes among Evergreen, Wisconsin, Midwest and Intermountain circuits. He takes in Portland on Sept. 8, Denver 17-18, Kansas City Sept. 21-22 and Milwaukee on Sept. 24. Tour includes operations inspection and ends around Oct. 1.

Following talks by Skouras, Arch Bowles, g.m.; George Topper, treasurer; W. H. 'Bud' Lollier, real estate head; Harry Cox, NT treasurer, and Dave Bershon, chairman of the Theatre Committee of the Treasury's War Savings Staff, and other officials, all of whom stressed need for cooperation with the war effort and Bond and Stamp sales, Skouras and Bowles were presented with plaques by the men from the northern California district. Signed by all managers, city managers and district men, plaques expressed confidence in the new president, Charles P. Skouras, and greeted him as president and friend.

Highlighting the meeting was Skouras' speech in which he said: 'Our duty to our country and government comes first. We must be behind it in every effort and cooperate to the fullest extent in all war activities. Our own business of theatres comes second. We must work at that regardless of the cost or time or else we will have no business.'

Following closing of the meeting the attending men started for their respective posts throughout California.

NLRB ORDERS FOUR SEPARATE ELECTIONS FOR COLLARITES

but probably will take place within six weeks. Although separate elections for each unit will be held, they all take place the same day. Delay in setting date is due to inability of guilds and the employer to agree on voting eligibility of 24 staffers. The NLRB will weigh each case, make its decision and then set the date of election.

IATSE came off second best in its attempt to buck the SOPEG in this location. Latter organization is on all the ballots, while Local 51-B, the IA exchange union, is only on the ballot for exchange workers.

Motion Picture Office Employes, AFL federal union which won its strike at Warners with the IA aid and then intervened at Paramount for home office, newsreel and music subsid Collarites, failed to show proof of membership and will not be on the ballots.

SOPEG meanwhile is continuing confabs with United Artists for home office and exchange office employes as to who is eligible to vote. Guild expects to return the NLRB panel on this some time next week.

Two important factors illustrate the current situation in favorable colorings:

One, that the Soviet and Chinese armies, after years of battering by the enemy, are still intact and redoubtable fighting units, and

Two, the growing air power of the United Nations, which has, so far, led to three important victories and which has brought the war closer to Japan and Naziland.

But the Axis will have to be beaten militarily, and not by wishful thinking or waiting for a collapse.

20th DEMANDS UPPED RENTALS WHEN ZANUCK HYPOS BUDGETS

New York, Aug. 30.—Speaking to delegates to the 20th-Fox sales convention at the Astor hotel here Friday, Spyros Skouras outlined list of pictures he viewed on the Coast and stated that company policy in future was that no picture is to be limited by a budget when in Darryl Zanuck's estimation it warrants the spending of extra coin to make it a boxoffice click. He added that this is to be done without cutting the budgets on other pictures.

Skouras pointed out, however, that the studio could not be expected to

IT was one of those moments he had always hoped would some day happen —and happen it did. Ordinarily a meek, easy-going chap with something to sell in the way of talent for radio, he showed up the other day in an officer's uniform and was feted by old friends. One of the bids was to a house party to celebrate the leave-taking for the east of a producer who came out to audition a show. The record was played and all hands applauded loudly—but not this chap. At long last, he smirked, his hour had come. He owed this gang nothing, had nothing to sell, and was free to speak his mind. While the producer and those who appeared in the audition graciously accepted the plaudits, the chap in uniform, after setting down his fifth drink, let go a blast that singed many an ear. He let it be known that the audition was pretty punk and would get a fast brushoff from the client. He let the soft-soapers have it, too, and then sat down, pretty well pleased with himself. He finished his drink and departed.

DURING the year ending Sept. 1, 20th-Fox bought 17 novels and plays at a cost of approximately $750,000, a heavier investment than any made by the company for literary material in a comparable period. Heading the list was John Steinbeck's 'The Moon Is Down,' for $300,000. Others loominy big in the total were: 'The Song of Bernadette, $75,000; 'The Last Best Hope,' $80,000; 'The Pied Piper,' $45,000; 'My Friend Flicka,' $25,000; 'The Meanest Man In the World,' $40,000; 'The Immortal Sergeant,' $35,000, with other properties, not quite so high on the price tages, embracing 'The Bird of Paradise,' 'The Ox-Bow Incident,' 'The Imposter,' 'Birthday,' 'I Escape From Hongkong.' War's inroads on writers and their output has been partly responsible for studio competition on product and prices paid. 20th-Fox also has been trying to compensate for loss of male stars by purchase of stories which in themselves are regarded as having marquee value.

CONTRACT producer-director, producer and director rosters at Republic now are comparable in size to these categories in most of the majors. In the first class, with addition of Albert S. Rogell, there are four producer-directors, others being George Sherman, John H. Auer, Joseph Kane. Producers are Albert J. Cohen, Leonard Field, Harriet Parsons, Harry Grey, Lou Gray, Robert North, William O'Sullivan, Armand Schaefer, Edmund Grainger and Fanchon and Marco. Directors: Jack English, Joseph Santley, Bernard Vorhaus and William Witney.

Scribbling

Having completed the final script of 'White Savage', Richard Brooks has checked off the Universal lot.

George Bricker is doing a polish job on his script, 'One Man Army', the Floyd Gibbons-Sam Dreben story, at 20th-Fox.

E. E. Paramore has been assigned by 20th-Fox to write original script on the current Libyan campaign, which will be produced by Sol M. Wurtzel.

Jack Jungmeyer, Jr., has handed in to Walter Morosco, 20th-Fox producer, completed script on 'Amateur Bride'. Writer's 'That Other Woman', also a Morosco production, is being scored.

Mortimer Braus will write screenplay of 'Tin Fish' at 20th-Fox, from original by Jacob Nelson.

Jack Townley is at RKO to complete screenplay for the Herman Schlom production, 'The Great Gildersleeve'. Writer previously was at Republic for two years.

Stephani Blows MG

Frederick Stephani would up his producer contract at Metro Friday, and takes an extended vacation before making another tieup.

Departure still leaves the Culver City lot with the largest group of one-picture-a-year producers on its staff of any studio in the business.

20th Still Dealing With Steinbeck on Yarn

Tentative deal between 20th-Fox and John Steinbeck for production of story based on certain phases of life at Army camps has not reached the conclusive stage. Understood there is hitch involving author's conditional sale demands. John Swope accompanied Steinbeck on tour of Army camps, securing some film footage to tie in if deal is consummated.

Lift DeFore Suspension

Don DeFore's 60-day suspension by Screen Actors Guild and Equity has been lifted after week's duration at SAG request because of mitigating circumstances. Stage and film actor's suspension had resulted in his starting title role in 'Sailor Beware' in San Francisco four days prior to expiration of his Warners film contract. He goes next into two Columbia pictures, 'City Without Men' and 'Destroyer.'

Kay Harris Oater Lead

Kay Harris, back from vacation, goes into fem lead in the Charles Starrett western, 'Hail to the Rangers,' a Jack Fier production for Columbia.

The Glass Key

(Melodrama)

Paramount release. Stars Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake, Alan Ladd. Features Bonita Granville, Richard Denning and Joseph Calleia. Supporting cast: William Bendix, Frances Gifford, Donald McBride, Margaret Hayes, Moroni Olsen, Eddie Marr, Arthur Loft, George Meader. Directed by Stuart Heisler. Associate producer, Fred Kohlmar. Screenplay by Jonathan Latimer. Based on novel by Dashiell Hammett. Photography by Theodor Sparkuhl. Film editor, Archie Marshek. Music score by Victor Young. Art direction by Hans Dreier and Haldane Douglas. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Aug. 28, 1942. Running time: 85 MINS.

'The Glass Key' is a fine package of murder mystery, tied up with politics, racketeering and romance. Developed at a suspenseful pace, picture carries all ingredients required for successful and profitable box-office reaction.

Toplining trio of Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd, all currently in the spotlight of publicity attention, provides strong attractors for this remake of Dashiell Hammett's novel which was first made in 1935 with George Raft and Edward Arnold. With 'Glass Key' slated to follow 'Wake Island' in release, Donlevy's arresting performance in the latter is certain to lift grosses on this one materially.

Scripter Jonathan Latimer has strengthened the tale over that originally filmed seven years ago, injecting plausibility into the proceedings. Donlevy is the political boss of the unidentified city, Moroni Olsen is his reform candidate for governor, Alan Ladd is pal and assistant to Donlevy, Veronica Lake is Olsen's daughter making a play for the politician to further her father's ambitions, and Joseph Calleia has the gambling house concessions in town. Immersed in the campaign to put over election of Olsen, Donlevy is accused of killing latter's son, a playboy and gambler. Only Ladd figures him innocent, despite the fact that the district attorney is reluctant to bring charges. Calleia, forced to close his establishments by Donlevy, launches a frameup, but Ladd moves in to take a beating before he breaks up the stunt.

Yarn melodramatically weaves through development of the murder mystery—Donlevy's ignoring of suspicion pointed in his direction, and Ladd's determination to uncover the real culprit. At the same time, Miss Lake, although engaged to the politician, sets her heart for Ladd, who gives her the keep-away treatment. Ladd finally reconstructs the murder, pointing to Miss Lake to make the real one disclose himself and absolve Donlevy. Latter at the finish gives his blessing to clinch between his pal and former girl friend.

Donlevy gives a strong performance as the political leader, which is reminiscent of his previous similar characterization in 'The Great McGinty'. Ladd is excellently spotlighted as the cool and calculating pal, while Miss Lake is both decorative and competent as the girl.

Calleia is cast as the gambling king, with Henchmen William Bendix and Eddie Marr doing some strong-arm stuff and former providing comedy interludes with his gruff

City of Silent Men

(Melodrama)

Produceers Releasing Corp. release. Features Frank Albertson, June Lang, Jan Wiley, with Richard Clarke, William Gould, Emmett Lynn, Dick Curtis, Barton Hepburn, Frank Jacquet, Frank Ferguson, Richard Bailey, Jack Baxley, William Kellogg, Charles Jordon, Pat Gleason. Director, William Nigh. Producer, Dixon R. Harwin. Associate producer, Bartlett Carre. Screenplay, Joseph Hoffman. Original story, Robert E. Kent, Joseph Hoffman. Photography, Gilbert Warrenton. Sound engineer, Corson Jowett. Film editor, Carl Pierson. Set decorations, Glen P. Thompson. Story editor, Jo Wickland. Music score, Leo Erdody. Musical director, David Chudnow. Special effects, Techniprocess Corp. Previewed at RCA studio, Aug. 29, 1942. Running time: 64 MINS.

'City of Silent Men', story dealing with the rehabilitation of ex-convicts, doesn't live up to the action promised, but has a number of favorable factors for its intended market. Story drags in too many central characters for budget, and direction hits static spots that are only offset by expertly handled mob action. Musical score is away ahead of usual tune complement given small-budgeted features.

Plot concerns a small-town mayor who turns over a cannery to a group of ex-cons in order that they might have a chance to win a place in respectable society. Townspeople resent intrusion and cause trouble, which isn't helped any by one hot-headed convict who resents slurs. Situation develops to a point where mayor faces recall and the ex-cons mob violence when a girl is murdered. Cannery boys use police-grilling tactics on one of the mob leaders to make him confess to crime and the shamefaced citizens decide to help the mayor's good work when they find his honor did time during his youth.

Frank Albertson is the hot-headed young convict, who with his bumming partner, Emmett Lynn, head the cannery operations with aid of the mayor, William Gould. June Lang, the mayor's daughter, and Jan Wiley, waitress, furnish the romance, both vieing for Albertson's favor, with Miss Lang getting the nod. Both are lookers and add charm to the plot. Richard Clarke, Dick Curtis, Frank Ferguson, a biased publisher, Richard Bailey, Jack Baxley and others do okay by supporting spots.

William Nigh's direction could have tried more for action and less for the sombre pace he used in the scenes leading up to the climax, which is well staged. Dixon R. Harwin produced, with Bartlett Carre as associate producer. Joseph Hoffman scripted from an original by Robert E. Kent and Hoffman. Gilbert Warrenton did the photography, and first-rate music was written by Leo Erdody and directed by David Chudnow.

Johnny Mack Brown also defeated Bernard Brown 6-1, 8-6 to hold singles championship.

Laughton Honor Guest At Griffis $Million Bond Breakfast

New York, Aug. 30.—Charles Laughton will be the honor guest at the 'Million-Dollar Breakfast' to be held at 8 a. m. Tuesday in Stanton Griffis' apartment. It is likely the 'Commando Committee' will announce achievement of its $33,000,000 war bond at the breakfast.

Simultaneously, the New York State drive for $160,000,000 towards the Billion-Dollar mark in the bond-selling campaign will be launched. Mayor LaGuardia, Laughton, Ann Rutherford and Virginia Gilmore will participate in bond rallies at the City Hall and Borough Halls in Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx.

At 9:30 Tuesday morning a motorless automobile will be pushed from Battery Park to Niagara Falls at the price of one war bond sale per push, with the Mayor, Laughton and consuls of the United Nations assisting. Twenty bands will lead the Victory Bondsmobile tour of the city. Later in the afternoon Laughton will dedicate three coffins to Hitler, Hirohito and Mussolini in Times Square. Everyone buying a bond in September is given the privilege of driving nails into the coffins.

More than 300 communities are launching rallies Sept. 1, with seven caravans of Hollywood stars assisting. All 1,400 New York state theatres will stop their programs at 9 p. m. for 'four minutes for Victory Celebration.' Lights will be brought up and first appeals for bonds and stamps will be made directly to patrons.

H'wd. Canteen Pulls In Nearly 5G On Preem

Hollywood Canteen got close to $5,000 on Saturday night for operations coin as its share of the receipts for the premiere of 'Talk of the Town' at the Four Star Theatre.

This coin was donated by Charles P. Skouras of Fox-West Coast Theatres and Columbia pictures from monies taken in for sale of seats for the performance.

quickly as it is made available.

On the other hand, they claim the American forces have not taken advantage of this avenue of information and are keeping the public in ignorance of what is going on in the war so far as our armed forces are concerned.

It has been heavily stressed in Washington by the newsreel heads that mistake is being made in withholding the pictorial action film that has been taken of our troops and naval forces in action, and that not alone would it be inspirational to present the film on the screens of this country, but also to send film into the South American countries showing the activities and achievements of our armed forces in battle. The Latin-American countries have been deluged with German and other Axis films showing their forces in action, while up to now, with Americans having participated in three major engagements in the Pacific, nothing that has been recorded by the great number of cameramen during the actions has been released for public consumption.

Understood that an effort will be made to bring the situation to the attention of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and also Elmer Davis, head of the Office of War Information, with the view to urging them to direct the heads of the various combat forces of the nation to lift the embargo on release of film which is considered as most vital to the nation's morale, now that various units and task forces have been successful in their operations on foreign shores.

remarks. Bonita Granville is okay as Donlevy's 18-year-old sister who believes him guilty of murder, while Frances Gifford catches attention in a few sequences as a nurse. Richard Denning, Donald McBride, Margaret Hayes, Olsen, Arthur Loft and George Meader are neatly cast in support.

Stuart Heisler deftly steers his characters through the maze of meller situations and episodes for maximum audience reaction. Jonathan Latimer provides a fine and compact script, in addition to keeping the dialog both sharp and crisp. Production guidance by Fred Kohlmar is showmanly handled. Camera contribution by Theodor Sparkuhl is high-grade, while production mounting is okay throughout.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Stanley Kramer, associate producer with David L. Loew-Albert Lewin on 'The Moon and Sixpence', goes into the Army Signal Corps as first lieutenant this week, and is assigned to Camp Crowder for active service.

Hilton Kinless, formerly of Warners legal department, now is with the armed forces in Australia as a corporal in the line.

Byron Roberts, assistant director at Warners, has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps. He reports for active duty this week at Wright Field, Dayton, O.

Jack Otterson, supervising art director at Universal, reported for active duty in the Army on Saturday as buck private at Fort MacArthur. He will be assigned to officers training camp later.

Sid Lunt, film laboratory contact at Universal, has been commissioned a major in the Signal Corps, his assignment being laboratory expert.

George Shaffer, Jr., is completing course at California Maritime Academy and off on shakedown cruise before being assigned to sea duty.

Sam Edwards, radio player and member of the NBC Blue program, 'The Edwards', has reported for active service in the Coast Artillery.

Jimmy Durante and John Garfield lose their stand-in and double when Sammy Shack, former boxer, is inducted into the Coast Guard tomorrow. Shack signed up Friday.

Desmond Marquette, film editor for Sol Lesser Productions, has resigned to report for Army service at Dayton, O., today.

Jarrold Brandt, producer of 'Scattergood Baines' series for RKO release, has joined the Naval Reserve and is awaiting call to active duty.

Corporal Palmer T. Beaudette, husband of Cobina Wright, Jr., has been transferred from Fort MacArthur to Army officers training school at Fort Benning, Ga.

Corporal Hank Levy goes to Army infantry officers training school at Fort Benning from Fort MacArthur.

Alan Hale, Jr., did not wait to be called into service by the Merchant Marine, so went to San Francisco over the weekend and enlisted in the U. S. Coast Guard. He reports for duty shortly. Likely he will be given chance to fulfill a commitment in 'Crash Dive' before reporting for assignment.

Blue Sunday (?)

Following was gotten off the chest, apparently with some anguish, yesterday by Jaik Rosenstein, a Warner flack, dateline at Del Monte.

'Exclusive. Warner Bros. company starring Errol Flynn and Ann Sheridan in 'Edge of Darkness' was all set to begin location today (Sunday) at Pacific Grove, Calif., when Robert Rosson recalled that it's against the law there to catch butterflies.

'Three-piece bathing suits are a definite "must" and other such legal curiosa are still on the local statute books. Director Lew Milestone decided to take no chances on committing a misdemeanor or worse by shooting film so unit moved to Cypress Point for the day.'

P. S. There's a golf course at Cypress Point.

Screen Gems Shuttering

Screen Gems plant at Columbia is being overhauled for extensive repairs, and production in the cartoonery will be closed down for two weeks. Schedule for 1942-43 has been completed. Coming up as first of the new season's graphics will be 'Song of Victory' and 'The Gullible Canary.'

TDB Cards to Contain All Emergency Information

Theatre Defense Board will shortly issue cards containing all information and instructions necessary in emergencies for posting in various parts of theatres. Condensed manuals will feature all instruction formerly contained in bulletins, and replace the now complicated system of having to check forms, etc. It will simplify all vital points for understanding by all theatre help. Card eliminates chance-taking due to absence of persons in authority, familiar with requirements.

Wayne Ball, branch manager of Columbia exchange, has been appointed successor to Clayton Lynch on the board. Latter has had to step out due to ill health, Ball having acted as his alternate for two months.

Hirliman Files Motion In $300,000 Action

New York, Aug. 30.—Motion to show cause why George A. Hirliman, indie producer, should not be allowed to inspect the books and records of General Aniline & Film Corp., has been filed in New York Supreme Court. Hirliman is seeking $300,000 damages from General Aniline, AGFA Ansco Corp., and AGFA Raw Film Corp., charging he was sold defective film for a production.

Maguire Vice Cashman

Arnold Maguire of the Blue network production staff here has been named producer of the Kay Kyser Luckies program to succeed Ed Cashman, who leaves for New York in two weeks to head up the Lord & Thomas radio department there. Maguire has been NBC production contact on the Kyser show for the past three years.

McLaglen Back at 20th

After a number of years away from the lot, Victor McLaglen draws a new term deal at 20th-Fox, effective today. Ticket was result of studio exces decision that large number of service pictures on schedule for coming year would easily spot player of McLaglen's calibre.

Sears, Weshner Here

Gradwell Sears, general sales manager for United Artists, and David E. Weshner, advertising and publicity director, planed in from New York over the week-end for confabs with UA producers and look at Loew-Lewin's 'Moon and Sixpence.'

Pat O'Brien Camp Tour

Pat O'Brien leaves tomorrow on an Army camp tour lined up by the Hollywood Victory Committee. He opens Sept. 3 at Rantoul, Ill., and will travel through Michigan, New York and Massachusetts, closing 11 performances on Sept. 16.

Skouras Pledges Upped Budgets But Demands Hyped Rentals Too

exceed the budget on pictures if distributors did not get increased rentals which 'A' product merits. He mentioned 'The Black Swan' as an example of production which had exceeded the original budget, and said, 'We must get more money for big pictures which merit percentage terms.'

Skouras said the picture industry is in the greatest prosperity era it has enjoyed since 1930, and that where there were 14,000 theatres in operation four years ago, there now are 17,000. In view of the great prosperity cycle for producers and exhibitors, Skouras added that the distribution phases of the industry should gear themselves to guarantee studios that they will get increased revenues to justify increased expenditures. He added that the 20th-Fox production budget for 1942-43 will exceed that for the previous year, but mentioned no specific figures.

Citing an example of improved theatre biz, Skouras referred to 'Tales of Manhattan' which, in 11 towns where it has already been shown, has outgrossed every 20th-Fox film released in those towns last year. 'Footlight Serenade', he stated, in eight pre-release engagements had outgrossed any 20th-Fox film released last year in those situations.

Regarding the production schedule, Skouras said there will perhaps be 12 more pictures, in addition to the 30 already announced, but this will be determined by material shortages and loss of talent.

Skouras pulled out for Washington Friday evening to discuss the War Bond drive with Treasury officials, and then heads for Chicago for the 20th-Fox regional convention opening there.

Talking of the drive and of the film industry's war effort, Skouras pointed out that motion pictures had been in the vanguard of agencies rousing the American people to a sense of their grave danger, to which they had been apathetic. He emphasized the important duty the film industry had undertaken and accomplished in strengthening public morale at times when it has been at its lowest ebb.

Tom Connors, Andy Smith, Jr., and Hal Horne also spoke. A. W. Smith, Jr., eastern sales manager, announced that 90% of short subjects in the coming season would be in color. Of the 26 Terry cartoon comedies, 20 will be in color. Four Magic Carpet subjects will be in black and white, but four shorts edited from the Thaw expedition through India, Asia and Persia will be in color.

Shorts program also will be bolstered by the addition of one March of Time issue each month. Also revealed that Movietone has a crew in the Aleutian islands, off Alaska, filming two subjects in color.

PARADE LAUNCHES BILLION DOLLAR BOND DRIVE HERE

Opening gun of the industry's $1,000,000,000 September War Bond Drive is touched off tomorrow for southern California with a parade in downtown Los Angeles starting at 10:30 a.m., and followed at 9 p.m. with stopping of shows in 500 theatres to permit sale of Bonds and Stamps as start of the 'Salute To Our Heroes' Month. Night event will be nationwide and following the sales every theatre manager will wire Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau total of sales.

Plans for the participation of Los Angeles area exhibs were outlined and pledges of full cooperation obtained at an overall committee meeting at the Boulevard theatre on Friday at 1 p.m. Some 250 exhibs attended the meet, addressed by Howard Mills, Treasury Department rep; Charles P. Skouras, Fox West Coast prexy; Arch Bowles, F-WC g.m.; Dave Bershon, chairman of Theatre Committee of the Treasury's War Savings Staff, plus 10 committee chairmen appointed by State Coordinator Charles P. Skouras.

Following playing of the national anthem and showing of the War Heroes reels to hypo the meet, Marco Wolf, chairman, opened the meeting. Voicing special praise for southern California's efforts in the sale of Bonds and Stamps in theatres, Howard Mills thanked the assembly for past cooperation that has accounted for $4,000,000 sales so far, and expressed confidence the industry would set a pace for all to follow, stating that the momentum gained by the September drive would be felt and would benefit through the ensuing months.

Skouras, as state coordinator, promised that California would lead the nation in the drive, and stimulated the gathering with colorful expletives in describing our enemies. 'We all know what is to be done,' he said, 'so let's stop talking and get to it.'

Attending exhibs, after hearing plans of the various committees and receiving instruction in participation, pledged themselves to convert all give-away prizes into Bonds and Stamps. F-WC will include Bond applications with mailing of all rent checks to landlords, accompanying letter requesting purchases. Same application will go to all recipients of F-WC season passes, stated W. H. 'Bud' Lollier, F-WC real estate head.

Theatres will be taxed to finance the committee's activities, each house giving an amount equal to its quarterly Ascap payment, ranging from 2½c to 5c per seat. Theatre men were instructed to contact Dave Bershon's Theatre Committee, or any of the chairmen, including Ben Wallerstein, Thornton Sargent, Bob Poole, Rodney Pantages, Sherrill Cohen, George Bowser, Mort Goodman, Bill Sreres, Jack Berman, Mike Rosenberg, Rube Wolf or Gus Metzger, on problems. It also was asked that any ideas developed by individual managers be turned over to the committee for possible extension to other locations.

Tomorrow's parade will include jeeps and fire equipment, and goes from Pico to First street, where Mayor Fletcher Bowron will greet the assemblage. It then proceeds to Victory House in Pershing Square for a two-hour show and Bond rally. Show will be transcribed and offered to radio stations for added bally.

Prepared speeches were distributed among attending managers, who will endeavor to get local dignitaries to talk at the 9 p.m. events. Men were given copies of a 30-point program already mapped out, and all pledged to carry it through to the letter.

When Dorsey and his crew were here several months ago, idea of having him participate with Metro in a new disking outfit went close to the contract stages, until eastern execs nixed the idea due to shortages of record-pressing equipment and materials.

Harman Cartoons to Help Speed War Production

Hugh Harman Productions added a new unit to its cartoons plant at Metro, the production of industrial-war instruction films. New venture is designed to fill need in war industries for animated or combined graphic-live action reels to teach personnel latest and most efficient methods in speeding up war production and the maintenance of plant morale.

Some of the planned subjects will be made for industries as a whole, some designed for special application to individual plants.

Two-thirds of the Harman plant and manpower has been turned to the war effort. Key men functioning in the new triple-unit setup under Herman and his associates, Charles McGirl, production supervisor, and Melvin Shaw, director of adaptation, are Max Ising, head of camera department; Robert G. Stokes, animation director; John Niendorff, art director, and Charles Payzant, layout coordinator.

Committee Lines Up 10 More Personalities For Bond Tours

Augmenting the contingent of screen personalities who will launch 'Stars Over America' tours from coast to coast tomorrow (Sept. 1), following today's premiere celebration in Washington, D. C., 10 more players have been lined up as headliners in the campaign to boost War Bond sales to the billion-dollar mark during September—'Salute To Our Heroes' month.

With 15 stars already in the field and scheduled for 10-day tours over seven different routes, the Hollywood Victory Committee announced assignments for the new group of bond emissaries as follows:

Joseph, Moberly, Springfield and Joplin, Mo.; Tulsa, Muskogee and Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Gene Tienney and Chester Morris —Madison, Wis:; Rockford, Peoria, Springfield and Decatur, Ill.; the territory from Danville, Ill., to Terre Haute, Ind.; Evansville, Ind., and the territory from Paducah, Ky., to Hopkinsville, Ky.

Fred Astaire, accompanied by Mrs. Astaire, and Hugh Herbert and Ilona Massey—Toledo, Cleveland and suburbs, Lorain, Akron and Canton, Ohio; the territory from Zanesville, Ohio, to Parkersburg, W. Va.; Columbus, Springfield, Dayton and Hamilton, Ohio; the territory from Mansfield to Marion and Lima, Ohio; Cincinnati, Ohio, and Covington, Ky.

John Payne, Jinx Falkenburg and Jane Wyman—Newport News, Portsmout, Norfolk, Petersburg, Richmond, Rockymount and Wilson, Va.; Raleigh, Durham, Burlington, Greensboro and Winston Salem, N. C.; Spartanburg, Greenville and Columbia, S. C.; Augusta, Ga., and Wilmington, N. C.

Dorothy Lamour—Fall River, New Bedford, Brockton, Quincy, Boston and suburbs, Lynn, Havenhill, Lawrence and Lowell, Mass.; Portsmouth, N. H.; Portland, Augusta and Bangor, Maine; Concord, Manchester and Nashua, N. H., and territory to Rutland and Brattleboro, Vermont.

More stars will be assigned routes as soon as their studios assure the Victory Committee of their availability. A number of free lance players also have volunteered their services and will be sent out into the field upon completing pictures in which they now are at work.

At a meeting Friday under the chairmanship of Charles Einfeld, field director of the tours, Treasury Department representatives and local exhibitor groups made tentative plans for 'Salute To Our Heroes' Month activities in the territory from San Luis Obispo to San Diego. An eighth tour route, augmenting the seven already scheduled across the nation, is being drawn up to provide War Bond rallies, with screen star headliners, in all the principal cities of the Southland.

Opening gun will be fired tomorrow (1) at Victory House, Pershing Square, with a program from 12 to 2 p. m. for which a number of players have been scheduled. The event will be preceded by a downtown parade of Army jeeps and fire fighting equipment.

METRO FINALLY GIVES IN TO BARRYMORE ON RADIO SERIES

open the studio's long holdout against radio.

Barrymore's 'Mayor' replaces 'Remarkable Miss Crandall nee Tuttle', which ran into difficulties from the outset. After two weeks on the air Edna May Oliver, star of the piece, was taken ill and had to withdraw. Mary Boland was rushed in and had been doing the broadcast for the past seven weeks, but the sponsor, Lever Bros. (Rinso) felt the original pattern of the show scripted by Martin Gosch and Howard Harris didn't fit Miss Boland snugly enough. Program clicked from the start, and posted a 12.1 Crossley in its first rating.

After four more weeks, 'Mayor of the Town' will move from its present Jack Benny niche on NBC to a Wednesday night spot on CBS, following the Bob Burns Lifebuoy show and giving Lever Bros. a solid hour on the network. Murray Bolen continues to produce and Gosch and Harris are withdrawing for another show soon to get under way. Barrymore piece will be tied in with the Government war effort through dramatic interpolations of various domestic phases.

Barrymore deal is for three years with options, a concession by MG which nullified such delaying obstacles as a short term (13 weeks) and power of cancellation resting with the studio. Barrymore is said to have made a personal appeal to the studio heads, at one time offering to take a new contract with less money in order to get his radio release so he could do the radio series.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Aug. 27, 1942.

Dear Sir:

I am not a member of the Actors Managers Guild nor do I represent actors and actresses, therefore I have no motive in the idea I am submitting herewith other than to lend a constructive finger in these days when all of us should be thinking that way.

The number of agents joining the various United States armed forces has left their business in somewhat of a turmoil. Some of them have made arrangements with their trustworthy friends to conduct their business for the duration on a participation arrangement. Others have had to dismantle their organization, relying on the good faith of their working clients or clients under contract to studios to continue to pay them or their families while they are in the service.

The screen actors, at a recent Guild meeting, have resolved to remain under contract to their agents who have left for the service, a voluntary and patriotic deed indeed.

The proposal I would like to make is that the Actors Managers Guild should volunteer to create an organization conducted by some capable salaried appointee, which department would take over the clients of the departing agents for the duration and conduct their businesses, representing their clients in the usual manner on only an absolute minimum cost. It appears to me that this should be the responsibility of the Actors Managers Guild. It would accomplish many things:

Firstly, it would give the agent complete peace of mind that his business was being properly conducted and his clients properly represented and protected and that there was absolutely no danger of the agent losing any of his clients for the duration.

Secondly, a board comprised of the directorate of the Actors Managers Guild should volunteer to function as a committee in the solution of the various problems which may arise in the relationship between the client and the studios so that the client can have the benefit of the best professional counsel during this emergency.

Those boys who have had to disrupt their normal conduct are but a few in comparison to the number that are yet to go, and for these reasons I believe this idea be called to the attention of the Actors Managers Guild so that they may act upon it without delay.

I truly appreciate the fact that you will publish this letter because of the far-reaching effect of your medium.

Very truly yours,
David Diamond.

Gold Braid to Attend Opening at Rivoli

New York, Aug. 30.—Ranking officers of U. S. Marines and from other branches of the armed services, as well as stage and film names will attend world premiere of Paramount's 'Wake Island' at the Rivoli Tuesday night. Proceeds go to the American Red Cross. Also attending will be near relatives in this locale of the Marines who made the 14-day stand against the Japs at Wake Island, the substance of the film drama.

'Never Surrender' No Gag Says Pessburger

Metro and Arnold Pressburger Productions are squabbling over similar titles, with former protesting use of 'Never Surrender,' designated for the Pressburger-Fritz Lang production, to protect Metro's 'No Surrender,' being adapted from Satevepost story. Altercation has gone to New York Hays office for arbitration.

Pressburger, with an investment of around $800,000 in his original story and a claimed title priority, says it'll be never surrender, so far as he's concerned.

Col's 'Talk' Hangs Up All-Time Record Biz

Seattle, Aug. 30.—Liberty Theatre here has rung up an all time record with Columbia's Cary Grant-Jean Arthur-Ronald Colman starrer, 'The Talk of the Town,' which opened Tuesday. Picture is in for an indefinite run with grosses toward week-end indicating greater take for second week than first.

Jobs in July, '42, Show Drop from Same Month Last Year

Employment in the motion picture industry showed a slight increase for July over the preceding month, but was well under the figures for July, 1941, according to the California Labor Statistics Bulletin. Percentage of employment for past July was given as 98.7, while figure for same period 12 months ago was 106.4. Percentage for June was 93.6.

Payrolls, in contrast to lessening of total number of wage earners, showed a big jump for average weekly checks, rising to 131.4% for July, as against 119.9% for the preceding June and 109.9% for July, 1941. Average weekly earnings increased better than $2, from $56.13 in June to $58.36 for July. Figures a year ago showed average weekly check of $44.98. Wage earners worked slightly more hours to collect the larger checks, an average of 38.6 hours weekly during July as compared to 37.4 in June and 35.2 in July, 1941.

Hourly rates for July were given as $1.512, as compared to $1.501 for June and $1.278 for July last year.

CAPITAL JOYOUSLY HAILS STARS

It's The Great Saroyan At MG Now, His Pic a Biggie

Despite Metro's attempts to backfire William Saroyan, who got around $60,000 for writing an original screenplay of 'The Human Comedy', studio thinks so much of his writing talents that picture, with revised screenplay by Howard Estabrook, and under direction of Clarence Brown, is being cast with idea of making it one of the company's top boxoffice pictures of the 1942-43 season.

Mickey Rooney, Donna Reed, Van Johnson, Gene Kelly, Marsha Hunt and Henry O'Neill will be joined by Lionel Barrymore, Fay Bainter, Spring Byington and Dorothy Morris in the cast.

Decision to make the picture one of the studio's top percentage attractions of the new season apparently follows the first hunches of a studio exec, who raved about the Saroyan story and script when first turned in, but who went cold on the piece later due to pressure of his associate masterminds.

'The Price of Victory' Pine-Thomas Briefie

Vice-President Henry A. Wallace's speech, 'The Price of Victory,' delivered last May before the Free World Association, will be the subject of the third Pine-Thomas Victory Shorts production for Paramount. William A. Pine will direct. Footage showing Wallace repeating the speech was made in Washington and will go out in English and Spanish. The 10-minute morale short is for release as soon as it can be edited and scored.

Reynolds-Britton Team With Bing In 'Dixie'

Marjorie Reynolds and Barbara Britton will split the femme lead with Bing Crosby in Paramount's heavy budgeter, 'Dixie,' saga of the man who composed the anthem of the Confederacy. Miss Raynolds, a dancer, made her film debut in 'Holiday Inn,' and Miss Britton was the only woman in the 'Wake Island' cast.

HOLLYWOOD BOND CARAVAN OPENS BILLION-DOLLAR DRIVE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—The nation's capital went ecstatically Hollywood-conscious today when caravan of stars arrived for the inaugural of the September 'Stars Over America' drive to sell a billion dollars worth of War Bonds. Thousands packed Union Station concourse awaiting arrival of the special Pullman train carrying the film luminaries, but only individuals who were prepared to shell out for a War Bond were given autographs. Sixteen forehanded spectators hauled out their wallets, handed over folding money and obtained stellar signatures.

Preceded by a police motorcycle escort, the stars were escorted in automobiles to the Carlton hotel, where the lobby was packed with early-morning greeters. After a quick freshening up, the Hollywoodians hied to the National theatre for the rehearsal of 'Command Performance'. Greer Garson confessed she was sleepy. The redhead was getting her beauty winks when the special arrived in Pittsburgh at 1:45 a.m. On the platform was the Greer Garson Fan Club, and the star hastily dressed and went out to meet her followers.

Dark-eyed Ann Rutherford was happy over having sold 12 War Bonds on the way east. They went to Pullman passengers who responded to her two-minute patriotic appeal.

When the special arrived at Albuquerque, N. M., a rally was held on the station platform and the Bond selling began. Altogether the stars sold $217,000 wortu of the world's finest security on the way east, according to Barry Buchanan of the U. S. Treasury, who kept the tally sheet. Hedy Lamarr started it, and all the stars agreed, no kisses with the sale of War Bonds. There's a priority on kisses, with the osculatory caresses saved for service men. As Hedy expressed it, 'You shouldn't have to get a kiss for doing your patriotic duty.'

Tickets for the National theatre's 'Command Performance' were hard to get. The War Department took all of the pasteboards and they were distributed among the families of soldiers. An effort to have President Roosevelt attend the broadcast was nixed by the Secret Service as providing an unnecessary risk for the Commander-in-Chief. Five hundred service men were special guests. The house was packed, with Bing Crosby functioning as emcee before an audience of notables.

Heard in the show picked up for shortwave broadcast were Kay Kyser and his band with Ginny Simms, Edward Arnold, Dinah Shore, Greer Garson, Hedy Lamarr, Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford, James Cagney, Irene Dunne, Abbott and Costello, Larry Adler, and the orchestra conducted by Dr. Frank Black. Paul Schwartz, of Local 161, provided 75 local musicians from the National Symphony ork for additional melody.

The stars went around the corner to the National Press Club, where Howard Acton presided over the vociferous welcome tendered by the capital's Fourth Estate: Arnold and Kenneth Thomson introduced the film stars, while Eddie Roddan of the Hays office represented the industry. Dinner and stunts followed.

Top feature at the Press Club dinner was the interviewing of nationally known columnists by the stars. Mark Sullivan, Drew Pearson, Raymond Clapper, Arthur Krock and others were quizzed. Abbott and Costello interviewed themselves.

There will be no free moments for the visitors Monday. On the schedule is a parade from the Carlton in jeeps and all traffic in front of the Treasury will be rerouted while the rally is held on the 15th street side of Secretary Morgenthau's headquarters. Stars will be seated at tables of four each, and Bond purchasers may select the group they would like to have autograph their securities. Between 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. the stars hope to dispose of a few million dollars worth of Bonds. Thirty minutes of this program will be aired.

Following the outdoor ceremonies Secretary Morgenthau will be host at luncheon. Carter Barron of Loew's plans to hi-jack a few celebrities for personals at the F street houses, and it is possible that others will take bows from downtown stages. Then the caravan will split up, with each celebrity assigned to one of the seven tours which will blanket the country during September.

Intensive Bond Drive In Billion Campaign Gets Gun Today

With their efforts spotlighting the entire nation during the Treasury Department's motion picture billion dollar campaign for September, more than 400 enthusiastic committeemen of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff, Treasury Department, go into action today for a new concerted war bonds drive among film employees.

Delegated as the spearhead industry this month for the nationwide sale of war bonds, Hollywood's individual response to its own campaign will be watched with keen interest by every major industry, according to Henry Ginsberg, chairman of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood.

Participating are committeemen from every branch of the industry, with each group augmented by industry leaders making up a special September campaign committee. Not only are all studios renewing efforts to educate employees on the value of bonds to the war effort and to an individual's future security, but enlarged committees fire opening guns today among the thousands of men and women in the 120 different businesses which make up the vast allied industry field.

All-out cooperation has been pledged by complete memberships of the 47 unions and guilds.

To facilitate cash purchases by employees, ten local banks have joined the drive. Purchases at these banks by motion picture workers will be credited to Hollywood's totals.

To assist in complete industry coverage and restimulate its entire program during its participation in the nation-wide billion dollar drive, the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood has included, for the month of September, a special committee of industry leaders.

They will work with the permanent committee of Executive board members Henry Ginsberg, chairman; John McCormick, vice-chairman; Fred Beetson, David Butler, Ralph Byrd, Teet Carle, Frank Carothers, Carl C. Cooper, Dorothy Lamour, Perry Lieber, Jane Murfin, Fred Othman, Joseph Rosenberg, and Herbert Sorrell; studio chairman, W. K. Craig, E. L. DePatie, William Dozier, B. B. Kahane, Sol Lesser, A. H. McCausland, Fred Metzler, M. J. Siegel and Wilson R. Stone; and Tom Baily and Al Rubin, chairman and associate chairman of the allied industry field.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

CLASSIC yarn comes through from New York of the passing of Frank ('Red') Dolan, one of the few genuinely colorful newspapermen of this generation, and well known to Hollywood through several years' work around the film lots. Dolan was sitting in the National Press Club in Washington gabbing with Courtenay ('Brick') Terret, also ex-Hollywood scrib and newspaperman extraordinary. The two were discussing Jimmy Cannon, Broadway figure who started on the NY News as an office boy and rose to reporter status. 'When Jimmy went out on a story,' Red narrated, 'he always came back with an exciting yarn, but it was invariably the story of what had happened to Jimmy Cannon. Quentin Reynolds is a grown-up Jimmy Cannon with stickers on his luggage.' Terret laughed and Dolan laughed. Dolan laughed so hard he got a stroke and died, with his own wisecrack fresh on his lips. And another tradition on his name.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK passed up town of Hanford, Kings county, Calif., real locale of Gordon McDowell's yarn, 'Shadow of a Doubt,' for Santa Rosa, seat of Sonoma county, in shooting on-the-spot footage for his Universal feature bearing that title. Result, Hanford is doing a bitter burn. Aug. 30 issue of the Hanford Journal paid the town's respects to Hitchcock issuing 'fair warning to the rotund director that he'd better not carry his 300-pound carcass inside Hanford's city limits.' Paper beefs because Santa Rosa is grabbing all the glory (and paychecks) that Hanford might have basked in. Director's rejoinder to Hanford townspeople is that they don't have a main public square around which hub the life of the town centers, providing a central point for filming. Furthermore, he added, Santa Rosa has nice old homes and nice old trees.

WITHIN the next six months, various armed services of the government will be operating well over 1,000 motion picture theatres in various camps, bases, ships, and overseas location units. Number does not include the 16 and 35 mm. equipments that are being used for instructional purposes as the theatres operating are and will be for entertainment only. Both the army and navy are rapidly expanding theatres for men in service, and are expected to require at least 500 35 mm. sound projectors before Jan. 1 for the added camp showhouses.

Sue Earle W. Hammons Over Educ. Stock Buy

New York, Aug. 31.—Suit against Earle W. Hammons, film producer and former head of Educational Pictures, was filed today in State Supreme Court by stockholders of Educational Pictures, now defunct.

Plaintiffs Maurice W. and Lee F. Uhlmann (Uhlmann and Co.) seek damages of $4,593; while Jay and H. O. Carlton (Jay Carlton and Co.) want $3,000. Complaint alleges that Hammons, as president of Educational Pictures, made false representations concerning the business potentialities of Grand National Pictures, a subsidiary, which resulted in stock purchases. Both Educational and Grand National filed bankruptcy papers early in 1940.

'Hogan Guides 13 Steps'

'13 Steps to Heaven,' murder mystery, starts at Darmour studio Thursday with Ralph Cohen producing for Columbia release and James Hogan directing. Cast lineup includes William Gargan, Margaret Lindsay, Phyllis Brooks, Jerome Cowan, Dick Purcell, James Burke and Edward Norris.

Harpo Marx, now in the east, will start his second Camp Show tour for the Hollywood Victory Committee at the Charleston Navy Yard, S. C., Sept. 10. Muriel Goodspeed will leave here Sunday to join his act. The tour will extend through North Carolina, Florida, Georgia and possibly Alabama, closing Sept. 24.

Lesser to Re-Release Lou Gehrig Feature

Sol Lesser has decided to re-release the Lou Gehrig picture he made for 20th-Fox in 1939, 'Rawhide'. While no definite date has been set, Lesser has negotiations under way with several releasing organizations.

Picture was made as a combination baseball and western yarn after Gehrig came here to test for the role of 'Tarzan' and decided the part wouldn't fit him. This was about a year before the Yankee ace retired. Cost of the film was approximately $100,000.

Desert Terrain Picked For 20th 'Sergeant'

Three locations have been selected for bulk of filming of 20th-Fox's 'The Immortal Sergeant,' which John M. Stahl will direct. Company will work at Yuma, Brawley and near Palm Springs on sites resembling Libyan desert battle terrain. Sites were picked over week end by Stahl and his staff.

Producers used to spend a lot of thousand dollar bills
To imitate a sylvan scene with phoney rocks and rills
But now they shoot their sylvan scenes out yonder in the hills.

When Uncle Sam observed the scene with economic eyes
And placed a veto on the sets of super-super size
The wails of film producers echoed high amid the skies.

They roam the nearby gayest now to shoot a picture show,
To yonder bosky dells at morn
right merrily they go,
For they are making better films and saving flocks of dough.

IA Tries To Muscle In On SOEG Coast Exchanges of Al Schwalberg of Warners, who previously had been selected.

Scollard is scheduled to reach here Thursday. He probably will confer Friday with SOEG Business Representative Glenn Pratt on selection of a third arbiter. Each side will submit the names of several persons agreeable to them.

The first move by the IA was made Thursday when Vice-Prexy Floyd Billingsley and Anthony Nogero contacted a Warners employe and requested his presence in their office. The worker was advised the IATSE was taking over, that a meeting would be held Friday to issue membership cards, and that the group would get the same contract given Warners employes in New York, plus any additional advantages the SOEG might secure. Joseph Flannagan, temporary SOEG unit chairman; learned of the meeting and immediately contacted Guild leaders here.

Business Representative Glenn Pratt rushed to the Bay City, contacted all individual Warners employes and then filed a petition with National Labor Relations Board there asking for certification as bargaining representative for the clerical workers. Move was believed to have blocked the IA's efforts to horn into the picture at a time when the SOEG was negotiating with the majors for a wage agreement.

The SOEG stated Warners has not yet signed a contract with the IATSE covering exchange workers in New York, claiming the deal inked applied only to home office employes.

in its war effort. This task it has undertaken is a terrific one. Organization in every branch has been most thorough. Execution should be likewise.

A Caravan of Stars has been sent from Hollywood to cover around 300 cities and sell Bonds. Each of the communities visited by these players is expected to show its appreciation for the visit by subscribing to at least $1,000,000 in Bonds the day the Hollywoodians are in town.

Local showmen will be operating the program. They will tie in every phase of effort and cooperation there is in their community. No angles will be overlooked. It will be a straight selling job for 'The Greatest Show In the Nation', and the boys won't fall down.

EVERY exhibitor in the country is lined up to do the job. So are every distributor, every allied manufacturer and sales agency with the industry, and the motion picture studios, too.

Henry Ginsberg, who has done a terrific job as head of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood in handling sales of War Bonds that has brought his work national recognition, is not satisfied with the 10% payroll deduction that is taking place. For September he is asking studio workers who are in a position to do so, to add another 10% for the month, or 20% in all. That's probably daring at this time, one may say. But to us it is a common-sense idea and most likely before 1943 rolls around, may be adopted nationally by all industry for the duration of the war.

GINSBERG is setting a pace in his war efforts that will bring great credit to the Motion Picture Industry. And those in the Industry, we are positive, will help him in fulfilling his job creditably.

Therefore, with the amount of zeal that already has been shown by the tops of the billion dollar job, it looks like a cinch that it will be accomplished. Nothing will be overlooked in the job of selling Bonds, and those engaged in the mission must stick to their knitting, tenaciously and seriously, until midnight ushers in October 1.

It's a big job. The nation is watching the Motion Picture Industry do it, and the nation will be proud of those in every branch of the cinema world when the final count is tabulated. For the boys are going over the top . . . and in a big way, too. You may be sure of that fact.

Laurel, Hardy, Arlen Join Bond Tours

Laurel and Hardy and Richard Arlen have been added to the list of film stars who will participate in the 'Stars Over America' tours this month in the billion dollar War Bond campaign. They will make a 10-day trip, opening Sept. 10 at Helena and Butte, Montana.

Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari trained out last night to open a tour today at Fresno. Adolphe Menjou, Walter Pidgeon and Joan Leslie headed for San Francisco. Others in the first group of 'Stars Over America' volunteers will open tours today in Dallas, Chattanooga, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, to which points they proceeded immediately following yesterday's Washington premiere.

Opening guns in Los Angeles' 'Salute To Our Heroes' month activities will be fired today at Victory House, Pershing Square, with a program scheduled from 12 to 2 p.m. Mary Astor, Ann Miller, Cesar Romero, Chester Morris will appear.

Flynn's Yacht Ties Up For War's Duration

Strongly indicative that Errol Flynn will shortly join some branch of the armed forces, player's yacht Sirocco is being tied up in Newport harbor for the war's duration. Ship is being readied for storage at the dock, and will not be hauled out, according to information along the waterfront.

Another added factor in early induction of Flynn into service was the recent enlistment of his yacht skipper, 'King' Kingsley, into the U. S. Navy. Kingsley has been with Flynn for more than five years.

conferred with international heads of film unions, including members of the executive board of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Jackman said the first cameramen were promised complete support by the IBEW, and that as a result he felt there should be no longer delay in officially molding the ASC into the International. The Jackman recommendation was approved and a general membership meeting will be called later this week to elect officers of ASC Local 1318, IBEW. Last night's meeting was the last to be held by the ASC. Gene Gaillac, IBEW International representative, attended the session.

Move is expected to result in a jurisdictional fight between the IATSE and IBEW. Business Representative Herbert Aller of IATSE Local 659 has indicated his union will refuse to work with IBEW cameramen, but apparently has been waiting word from IA Prexy Richard Walsh before acting. The IA, in the meantime, has been blocking ASC men from working locations outside the state, and the ASC has announced IA lensers will not be permitted to act as directors of photography in the studios.

ZANUCK BOWS OUT OF 20th; REASON IS ARMY DUTIES

rectors was accepted with regret.

Colonel Zanuck has been made a member of the staff of Major General Dawson Olmstead, Chief Signal Officer of the Army, and will be stationed at the War Department in Washington and at the headquarters of the Signal Corps Detachment of the Research Council of the Academy in Hollywood.

Zanuck came here from Washington Sunday to attend the meeting of the board. He had been endeavoring for some time to get relief from his production duties at the studio, but was dissuaded. However, when he arrived here Sunday he conferred with Skouras, told him the studio was in good operating shape from a production and personnel standpoint, that his presence was needed for immediate operations, and that the staff under William Goetz, vice-president, would operate efficiently and capably during his absence in the service. Skouras then suggested he appear before the board today, state the situation, with the body then relieving him of his film work for 20th-Fox during the war period.

William Goetz, vice-prexy in charge of the 20th-Fox lot during absence of Colonel Zanuck, stated last night the withdrawal from the company ranks of the latter was a complete surprise to him, though Zanuck had been talking about it for several weeks. He said future studio operations would be discussed when Zanuck returned here on Friday from Washington to clean up his affairs, and with Spyros Skouras when he arrives here on Saturday to discuss operations policy during Zanuck's absence.

Goetz operated the lot while Zanuck was away for long periods on Government assignment, and some important pictures were made during these periods.

Zanuck was one of the first Hollywoodites to become active making Army training films for some period prior to the start of the war. He has been a reserve officer in the Signal Corps since 1939, was commissioned a lieutenant colonel about a year ago, and last spring was advanced to the rank of colonel. Report has it that he likely will be advanced to star rating shortly. Zanuck was no novice at warfare, having been a member of the AEF in France during the last war, participated in two major engagements and was the youngest man in his outfit, being 15 years old at the time of enlistment.

With Zanuck going into full-time military work, it is expected others in the film industry who have reserve commissions and who have done part-time Army service will likely be called into the Army on full time.

Cal. Film Houses Aid American Legion's Child Welfare

Theatres of California will set up special midnight performances on Saturday, Oct. 24, with all gross proceeds going to the Child Welfare Fund of the California American Legion.

Charles P. Skouras, president of National Theatres and Fox-West Coast, will head the venture; with Bruce Fowler, manager of the Los Angeles Four Star theatre taking charge of lining up the greatest number of participating houses in the southern California area, and Allen Warshauer, manager of the Paramount, San Francisco, handling chairmanship of the affair for northern California.

Fowler and Warshauer are delegated to line up all theatres in the state—both circuit and independent—for the special shows, which the American Legion posts in each community will ballyhoo to the utmost. Special entertainment in the bigger houses that have stage facilities will be lined up as added attraction, with the theatres and Legion officials figuring to obtain a huge sum for the Child Welfare Fund of the veteran organization.

Initial meeting to line up the theatres was held yesterday, with Skouras huddling with Arch Bowles, Fowler and Warshauer at the F-WC offices. Skouras issued instructions that all circuit houses are to co-operate to fullest extent in putting on the shows throughout the state, and managers are to work closely with Legion committees for maximum grosses.

NY Advertising Council Meets Today to Mull Spicy Ad Copy

New York, Aug. 31.—Recent use of sensational advertising copy frowned on by the Hays office has caused some eyebrow-raising and likelihood of meeting of the Advertising Advisory Council today to consider the situation.

Use of words heretofore banned under the Production Code Authority is regarded as greatest offense. Spicy ads employed by one company for its New York campaign and also copy with 'guts', as one eastern ad manager described it, used by another for a New York premiere, are expected to be aired.

Pre-meeting opinion of ad execs is that wartime conditions justify more vivid language and expressions, and that the advertising rules of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association should be altered in line with changed conditions.

Obituary

JOHN WILLARD

John Willard, 57, playwright and novelist, died Aug. 30 at his home here of a heart attack. Born in San Francisco, Willard had been a Hollywood resident for the past 10 years. Among his better known works were 'The Cat and the Canary' and he recently finished a novel on China. Among his other plays were 'Fog' and 'The Blue Flame', and he produced 'Twelve Hours' in London. Previously in his career he had acted in several Broadway productions and also sang in light opera. His widow survives. Funeral services are being completed by Forest Lawn mortuary.

LIEUT. C. J. PRESTON

Lieut. Charles J. Preston, 21, son of Jack Preston, Hollywood writer, was killed in the crash of an Army bomber at Barksdale Field, La., Aug. 26. Formerly a trumpet player in Hollywood high school orchestra, he also played trumpet in numerous film productions. Body will be brought here today and military services will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Veterans Facility Chapel in West Los Angeles. Pierce Bros. are in charge of arrangements.

J. STITT WILSON

J. Stitt Wilson, 74, father of Mrs. Irving Pichel and of Mrs. F. McGrew Willis, also of Hollywood, died Friday at his home in Berkeley. He was a former mayor of Berkeley, former member of State Relief Commission and a member of the State Social Welfare Commission.

Mother of Al O'Keefe, western district manager for Universal, died suddenly at her home in Minneapolis Aug. 28. O'Keefe, touring his Pacific northwest exchanges when her death occurred, planed to Minneapolis for funeral services.

FILM STARS LOOSEN CAPITAL WALLETS; SALES $2,500,000

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—Indications are that Washington's first Bond sale under Hollywood star auspices grossed better than $2,000,000. Returns from the theatres may boost this total by $500,000. Approximately 10,000 were assembled around the Treasury steps when Edward Arnold, prexy of the Screen Actors Guild, touched off the proceedings by introducing Secretary Henry Morgenthau. While newsreel cameras were grinding, with 30 minutes of the program going out over radio networks, stars were busy dispensing autographs, but not for free. Every signature meant a sale.

More than 500 Secret Service men, many of them with cameras, kept the celebrities posing and writing their names. Hedy Lamarr and Irene Dunne vied for popularity. Greer Garson in a stunning black outfit with green gloves did a one-minute Bond broadcast, followed by Walter Abel, Ann Rutherford, Miss Lamarr, Virginia Gilmore, Martha Scott, Dinah Shore, Miss Dunne, Abbott and Costello, and Carl Rcazza's band.

Kay Kyser followed, and then came James Cagney, whose patriotic outburst preceded the introduction of Bing Crosby singing 'This Is Worth Fighting For'. After the radio sign-off, Irene Dunne came to the mike once more, urging the audience to remain for more important entertainment. Morgenthau's speech paid full tribute to the motion picture industry for its all-out patriotism. Speech was interpreted as an indirect apology by Morgenthau for remarks reflecting upon Abbott and Costello a month ago.

The Marine band played for the program on the Treasury steps and then marched ahead of the jeeps which conveyed the stars from the Hotel Carlton. At the luncheon which followed, Secretary Morgenthau was even more fulsome in his expressions to the stars. 'Without them,' he said, 'it would have been impossible to reach a large section of America.'

The Secretary added he was extremely grateful for the wholehearted cooperation of the Hollywood Victory Committee. Edward Arnold sent this message to Daily Variety:

'Any star who refuses to take part in this nation-blanketing Bond parade is missing an opportunity to really get close to the people. This experience riding in the Army jeeps today was worth my entire trip to Washington. I am for more parades and I am certainly for stars being in the line of march. This is where you really know how you rate with the fans.'

Following the broadcast people began moving in lines to four long tables set on the Treasury plaza. At Table No. 1 were Bing Crosby, Ann Rutherford, Ralph Bellamy and Martha Scott; table No. 2, James Cagney, Irene Dunne, Virginia Gilmore and Ginny Sims; No. 3, Greer Garson, Abbott and Costello, and Walter Abel; No. 4, Hedy Lamarr, Edward Arnold, Kay Kyser and Dinah Shore.

First in line early in the day was Mary Carter Thornton, of Fordyce, Ark. She waited from 6 a.m. with $18.75 in her purse and obtained the initial Bond autographed by all the stars. It was announced that sales amounted to $1,528,833 before the public sale began. Crowd purchased Bonds in the $25 and $100 denominations.

Jimmy Cagney said the whole trip was worth it for a picture which he retrieved at the National theatre. Manager Edmund Plohm produced a still of the 'Pitter Patter' chorus in which Jimmy hoofed and in which he found his bride. Redhead was able to pick out and identify 21 of the 22 in the photo and Plohm gave it to him. Plohm was manager of the 'Pitter Patter' chorus in which Allen Jenkins was a chorus man.

SOEG To Pick CLC Delegates, Vote On By-Law Amendments

Screen Office Employes Guild, at a general membership meeting tonight at Carpenters Hall, will elect five delegates to the Central Labor Council, and vote on by-law amendments covering working permits and increased dues. Candidates for SOEG representatives in the Council are Prexy Margaret Bennett, Business Representative Glenn Pratt, Frances Freedman, Philbert Gallagher, Eunice Mindlin and Sid Stein.

Proposed amendment on work permits provides:

'A work permit shall be issued on request to any office employe in any position under the jurisdiction of this Local who is engaged by an employer signatory to an agreement with the Local. Application for work permit shall be made within 15 days of date of employment. Such permit shall be valid for a period not to exceed 90 days, subject to payment of the following fees:

'For those employed in positions in Classification 8, $1 per month from date of employment. For those employed in Classification 7, $2 per month. For those employed in Classification 5, 6x and 6, $2.50 per month. For those employed in Classifications 1, 2, 2, and 4, $3 per month.

'The executive board is empowered to fix monthly permit fees and the effective date thereof for permittees not employed under motion picture studio classifications that are equitably equivalent to the permit fees fixed for studio employes.

'A permittee may, at any time during the 90-day period, apply for membership. Upon his admission, he shall pay the regular initiation fee in accordance with Article 8.'

Members will vote on a proposal to adopt the following quarterly dues, effective Oct. 1, 1942:

'For apprentice members in Classification 7, $6; for members in Classifications 5, 6x and 6, $7.50; for members in Classifications 1, 2, 3 and 4, $9. The executive board is empowered to fix quarterly dues and the effective date thereof for members not employed under motion picture studio classifications that are equitably equivalent to the dues fixed for studio employes.'

Members also will receive a report from Business Representative Glenn Pratt on the status of the proposed wage arbitration with the majors covering Coast exchange Collarites.

CITIZENSHIP PROOF NECESSARY TO CONTINUE IN FILM WORK

Approximately 1,000 of the 8,000 studio identification cards ready for extras and other film casual workers were distributed yesterday at the Central Identification Bureau at 5512 Hollywood blvd. Cards may be obtained during the remainder of this week, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., and 2 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Those applying must bring in the slip of paper bearing their signature and the number given them when they first filed their citizenship proof.

Of the approximately 1,500 workers who have not yet been photographed and fingerprinted, only 100 showed up yesterday with satisfactory evidence of citizenship. It was stated that if the remainder of these 1,500 desire to continue in film work they must bring in the necessary data this week. This applies only to those who applied and were denied cards until better proof of citizenship was submitted.

Announcement is expected about Sept. 15 as to when new workers or those who thus far have neglected to apply for identification cards may do so. A deadline for all studio employes to have identification cards will be fixed after every worker has been given an opportunity to secure one.

Paramount-UA Deal Loses Smoke

Discussions which started in New York a couple of weeks ago between Barney Balaban, head of Paramount, and Grad Sears, of United Artists, whereby latter company would be given some Paramount product to enable it to have immediate releases, it is understood, will not eventuate in a deal of any importance. Paramount, though having an abundance of product, is not inclined to forego its distribution through its own organization through an outside force, but it is said would be agreeable to allow UA to take over pictures of intermediate importance and not classed in its 'A' product group. It is said Paramount was willing to aid UA with two or three pictures in this class, to include at least one Harry Sherman special and two other pictures of like calibre.

However, it is most likely that UA member-owners would be opposed to its sales organization, as it is now set up, taking over distribution of anything that would not be an important grosser, as the company has in its lineup sufficient intermediate product already for the new season.

UA Exchange To Move Into New Quarters

United Artists exchange will move shortly into the quarters now occupied by the Theatre Committee of the Treasury Department's War Savings Staff at 1918 So. Vermont. Site is former location of the Warner exchange before they built their own building. Space is now being sought for the Dave Bershon's Theatre Committee.

Claim Petrillo Orders Curbing Pac. Airers

San Francisco, Aug. 31.—Story carried by Examiner states James C. Petrillo, prexy of the American Federation of Musicians had ordered short wave station KGEI not to transcribe any network programs for rebroadcast to Pacific military outposts without permission, and station would defy the order. E. T. 'Buck' Harris, KGEI manager, said the story had not come from the station, adding it 'leaked out,' lending confirmation by the inference.

He refused direct comment, stating he was under orders to not go beyond the formal statement issued here under a Schnectady, New York, dateline.

Formal statement issued by KGEI under name of Robert S. Peare, manager of General Electric Broadcasting, said they had no intention of entering Petrillo's disc-banning controversy and that it has no bearing 'as we understand it,' on KGEI programs.

Hickey and Saunders North On Circuit Biz

PLANS of a major circuit to seek government approval for building of theatres in the boomed Richmond-Vallejo territory are cooling. Much pains were taken to get factual and pictorial evidence of the need of amusements for the greatly over-crowded area, and appeals were to be made on that basis. However, execs are now glad immediate action and approval was not forthcoming due to possible unfavorable reaction offsetting any possible profit. Looked like a chance for a killing in the boom towns but colder, long range calculating has shown the folly of aggravating the government and the public if the deal had gone through.

One of Our Aircraft Is Missing

(War Drama)

United Artists release of an Alexander Korda presentation of British-made production by Michael Powell. Cast: Godfrey Tearle, Eric Portman, Hugh Williams, Bernard Miles, Hugh Burden, Emrys Jones, Pamela Brown, Joyce Redman, Googie Withers, Hay Petrie, Selma Vaz Dias, Arnold Marle, Robert Helpmann, Peter Ustinov, Alec Clunes, Hector Abbas. Directed by Michael Powell. Written by Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger. Editor, David Lean. Photographer, Roland Neame. Art director, David Rawnsley. Associate producer, Stanley Haynes. Previewed at Los Angeles, Sept. 1, 1942. Running time: 86 MINS.

Made in terse, documentary fashion, this exciting fiction (which may in all essentials comprise factual episodes) has attention-riveting quality both in its human and its technical phases which will give it weight and satisfaction in the support position anywhere.

In an excellent story-telling job, the escape of a group of downed RAF fliers from Nazi-subjugated Holland after a terrific raid is detailed, step by step, through resourcefulness, courage, but most of all by friendly and daring guidance of Dutch patriots devoted to the Allied cause. The persuasive playing of carefully cast performers and the splendid direction give it a very moving sincerity to match the pictorial peaks of raid and escapade. Camera job also is outstanding in the remarkable air shots, the appearance of flak-fire and bombing from on high, and the drop of parachutist pilots through their traps when the bomber is crippled.

Main credit goes to Michael Powell, who wrote the story in collaboration with Emeric Pressburger, and produced and directed the picture with full cooperation of the Royal Air Force, the Air Ministry and the Royal Netherlands government in London.

Godfrey Tearle, Eric Portman, Hugh Williams, Bernard Miles, Hugh Burden and Emrys Jones enact the pilots who find themselves at the mercy of the Hollanders upon whose fields they chute. Pamela Brown and Joyce Redman eloquently play the Dutch women who help the fliers on their precarious way back to the Channel coast and England. Every member of the cast does his share ably.

Treatment in story and direction is typical of the reticence and effective understatement with which British war-theme production is designed for the present world market. Suspense element is well sustained, with very limited showing of the German occupying forces through which the British pilots make their way back toward home. Narrative holds carefully to the adventure-chase pattern, with no obvious effort to incite the patriotic response which is assumed to exist in American audiences.

Technically—in its airplane operations accents—the film is fascinating. Production has the lean directness and good editing which helps give validity.

Lux Will Air 'Valley'

Second Lux airer of the new season will be a dramatization of 'How Green Was My Valley,' with leads taken by Donald Crisp, Walter Pidgeon and Maureen O'Hara.

member's usual motion picture salary.'

It was stated the single exception to the rule is the case of Government training shorts, where the Guild permits actors to work for the nominal minimum. A player violating the rule is subject to trial for 'conduct unbecoming a member' and upon conviction may be suspended, preventing him from accepting film work. The action follows a similar rule in which the Guild prohibits actors from making free radio appearances.

Members of the Guild have been advised to:

'Report to the Guild every request for a free performance at compensation so far below your usual standard as to constitute a violation of Rule 33.

'Consult with the Guild on any question of defining 'usual compensation.

'Urge other actors to comply with this rule.'

In explaining the reasons for adopting the rule, the SAG is advising its members:

'The new rule against free motion picture performances or appearances has been made necessary by numerous recent projects calling upon actors to donate their screen services. The sponsors of these projects make an appeal on the basis of patriotism, by allocating a part or all of the net earnings of the pictures to charity. Some of these projects are entirely of a charitable nature. Others have elements of commercial sponsorship.

'The actors' tradition of generosity and patriotism never has been better demonstrated than during the present war emergency. Through the Hollywood Victory Committee, actors have given their time and talent for every patriotic cause. They have added to their personal appearances, contributions of large amounts of their earnings for the benefit of patriotic and humanitarian projects. The plain fact is that actors are confronted with efforts to exploit their generosity. The trend threatens the whole economic structure of the acting profession.

'There may be a tendency among actors in the higher earning brackets, when asked to appear without compensation in a commercial film with charity sponsorship, to say, "Why not? I don't need the money." The answer is that most actors do need employment. Every free actor on the screen displaces a paid actor. There is only so much screen time. Every picture made with free talent displaces a picture made with paid talent.

'Every individual and group in America is being asked to make sacrifices. But no group is being asked to sacrifice its livelihood. The screen is the film actor's livelihood. If he gives that away he will be in no position to continue his contributions of time, talent and money to war activities. The major producers of motion pictures recognize this. They are not the sponsors of the "free talent projects".'

SSD committee will be headed by Prexy Joseph Sternad, Business Representative Ed Mussa and Les Thomas.

Metro Sets Pace In Cancelling Pics

New York, Sept. 1.—Policy of Metro in permitting cancellation privileges on its first block of eight 1942-43 releases—now being offered for sale—places the other decree distributors in the position of ultimately having no follow suit.

Lead taken by Metro in setting up block of more than five pictures and granting rejection to its customers, puts the other majors on the spot where they will have to follow by granting cancellation privileges of some kind or other.

'Divide' Dunlap's Mono

'Dawn on the Great Divide' will be the first of two outdoor specials Scott R. Dunlap will produce for Monogram during 1942-43 season. Picture is scheduled to start Sept. 28 with Buck Jones, Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton featured.

from a neighboring camp, and ends up entertaining practically the whole army. Free-for-all fracas and near riot are thrown in, and much of the comedy, like the characters, is sophomoric, but topical treatment of quirks of contemporary civilian and military life constitutes the play's chief appeal.

Young Gwen Anderson, latest fugitive from a West Coast little theatre, gives a luminous and pulsating performance in the exacting title role, while Frank Amy scores unexpectedly as her jitteroo civilian boy friend. Herbert Evers is a handsome romantic army private with whom Janie carries on an innocent flirtation in the climactic party. Linda Watkins makes her return to the stage after a long absence as his doting mother, and Betty Breckenridge is admirable as the giggly girl friend. Maurice Mason labors with the father role written right out of a low comedy book, with any resemblance to any living characters purely accidental.

Production is reportedly angeled by Columbia Pictures money, and a careful reprise of the story indicates good film possibilities. 'Janie' will establish Miss Anderson as having plenty of what it takes in the theatre and should catapult her into the front line for stage and screen attention.

VICTORY COMMITTEE IN HIGH THROUGH AUGUST ACTIVITIES

The film industry's army of morale-building entertainers engaged in a peak month of war activities in August, according to compilations released last night by the Hollywood Victory Committee. The activities were highlighted by:

Preparations for the motion picture industry's leadership in the Treasury Department's billion dollar War Bond campaign during 'Salute To Our Heroes' month, with the greatest concentration of talent to date in the war effort enlisting for the 'Stars Over America' tours.

First trans-Atlantic assignments of screen stars to American army camps and navy bases in England and Ireland.

Three new series of recorded shortwave programs, beamed for service men overseas, plus increased activity on government and military radio programs over standard broadcast outlets.

The Committee's figures disclosed that 17 screen personalities headlined around 150 shows on tours and voyages to Army camps and Navy bases during the month. Merle Oberon, Al Jolson, Patricia Morison, Frank McHugh, Allen Jenkins made the unannounced overseas trip to spend a month at troop concentration points in England and Ireland. Edgar Bergen, with Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd, followed earlier trips by other players in Alaska. Constance Bennett, Bob Burns, Bing Crosby, Betty Grable, Rita Hayworth, Carole Landis, Jeanette MacDonald, Rags Ragland, Red Skelton and Phil Silvers traveled to camps and bases in all parts of this country.

The first in a mobilization of 40 or more stars and featured players assembled in Washington Sunday and Monday for the premiere of the War Bond and Stamp drive that will be spearheaded with the 'Stars Over America' tours.

The War Department found that transcriptions furnished by leading Victory Committee players during the past five months for 'Command Performance', shortwaved each Sunday to the U. S. expeditionary forces, were of such morale-building value that requests for other recorded programs was made.

During the month 'Mail Call', 'Hi Neighbor' and the tentatively titled 'Songs of the Range' were instituted as new program series. Other transcriptions, national and regional broadcasts found 98 players giving 117 performances over the airways. Performances in spot shows at military encampments from San Francisco to San Diego, and personal appearances throughout the nation during August, reached a total of more than 350.

Gordon, Small Form Pix-Legit Partnership

New York, Sept. 1.—Max Gordon and Edward Small have formed a play and film partnership. Small, who has been east for several months with the view of embarking on legit, has tied in with Gordon, who has just returned from completing a Columbia picture deal.

'Franklin Square' and 'Junior Miss' may be their initial partnership ventures. Meantime, Small is working on 'The Life of Rudolph Valentino' as his next independent film production for United Artists. It is likely United Artists will get the Gordon-Small pictures as well.

Mark Hellinger Prods. 'Baby,' Helen Morgan

Warners has finally cinched the deal for production of the life story of Helen Morgan under the title 'Melancholy Baby' for a sum said to be moderate. Mark Hellinger, who wanted to do the story when he was at 20th-Fox, did most of the negotiating with the entertainer's surviving mother, and he will produce. Charles Hoffman is assigned to screeplay, having just completed script for next Olivia de Havilland starrer, 'One More Tomorrow,' also a Hellinger production.

Show airs from NBC here Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. in the east and 7 p.m. on the repeat.

Bond Touring Expenses Ruled Deductible

New York, Sept. 1.—Stars and others engaged in bond-selling activities will be allowed to deduct all expenses incurred thereby in making income tax returns, under a ruling just made by Internal Revenue Department. Some doubt had previously been expressed whether show people should be allowed such deductions on the ground that dollar-a-year men, giving all their time to the government, are not allowed to do so.

Theatre Men Organize For Legion Show

Plans for the special midnight shows to be put on in California theatres on Oct. 24 for benefit of the Child Welfare Fund of the American Legion were mapped yesterday by John R. Quinn, Harry Myers and Frank Belgrano of the Legion, and George Watters, Bruce Fowler and Allen Warshauer, of Fox-West Coast. Special Fund Drive seeks $200,000.

Myers will supervise the event for the Legion from offices to be established at 1918 So. Vermont, on Film Row. Warshauer, who leaves tonight for his Paramount theatre, in San Francisco, will set up headquarters at the Warfield theatre, and Fowler will operate from his Four Star theatre here. Letters will start going out tomorrow instructing all F-WC managers to contact Legion Post commanders and indie exhibs in their locations. Legion and their auxiliaries will do the ticket selling for the shows which will include live talent wherever possible.

Detroit Exhibs Want Pix Cut, Not Prints

Detroit, Sept. 1.—Showmen here are generally agreed that with the reduction of film stock, the best way to meet the situation would be to reduce the number of pictures rather than decrease the number of prints.

Admitting it is strictly on the exhibitor's side, the theatre men's argument is based on the fact that profits still must come from showings and that at present the print situation is none too good. That viewpoint was coupled with the new indication that Detroit, which has been solidly double-feature for years, finally would be able to break away into single bills.

Several attempts of this kind have been made here, but lack of faith among the exhibs has quickly ended such moves. However, the film shortage may make success possible.

UMPI As Inter-Trade Medium Wins Favor

New York, Sept. 1.—While the fate of United Motion Picture Industry (UMPI) as an organization of distributors and exhibitors is uncertain at this time, sentiment in the trade here strongly favors retention of UMPI as the medium for handling inter-industry matters other than those relating to sales policies.

Leaders favorable to the movement and its continuance point out that the underlying purpose in formation of UMPI was to establish and continue unity in the industry. They assert this unity is just as important now as it was before Thurman Arnold rejected the UMPI sales plan.

Despite attitude of major distrib execs for UMPI continuance, exhib associations around the country will not further participate unless concrete assurances are provided by the distribs that local conciliation and other factors to alleviate exhib grievances are set up. Exhib leaders take attitude unless such disposition is shown by company reps, former will waste no further time on UMPI.

PAR BUYS JAP LINER MODELS TO AID IN MINIATURE SHOTS

Six detailed models of Japanese de luxe passenger ships, ranging in size from six feet to 12 feet eight inches, have been acquired by Paramount prop department for use in miniature work. Models, displayed in glass cases in various large ticket agencies of the NYK line around the country prior to the war, were purchased at bankruptcy sale of the NYK company in San Francisco about 10 days ago.

Models are exact replicas of the Jap ships, down to workable freight loading winches, lifeboats and rafts, anchor winches and chains, deck appurtenances and portholes. They were made in Japan originally with utmost precision, and total value of the six ships, if they could be duplicated in a studio, would run close to $50,000. The six-foot model of the Tatsuta Maru (sunk a number of weeks ago by an American submarine) is currently at the studio, with other models coming in from various sectors of the country. It weighs 40 pounds, and submerges to the boot-top waterline to allow for wide use in miniature work on several pictures now on the Paramount slate.

Paramount, apprised of the NYK bankruptcy sale some time in advance, dispatched Prop Department Head O. C. Stratton to San Francisco to bid on the ship models. He made the successful bid. Metro production department was trying to pick up the models via correspondence from here.

In addition to using the models for its own pictures, Paramount will loan out the Jap ship replicas to other studios when required, in line with the present cooperative policies of most of the majors in interchanging props and materials to conserve under present government regulations.

A Heart to Heart Talk

with a CLIENT

CONGRATULATIONS on your contract. It was a pleasure to hear the news . . . even at midnight. Generous of you to say those things about us, but believe me, your agent did the face-to-face selling job. . . . He deserves his share of the kudos . . . True, the path had to be paved by publicity . . . but you had the talent all along. We just made people talk because you've got something to talk about.

AS FOR the studio, we've already been in contact. They know from past association they can depend on us to cooperate on any and all ideas which advance your interests . . . Forget about that telephone pest who wants a private interview. We looked him up. He hasn't any publication credentials. Please refer him to our office.

GLAD you've gotten a clearer understanding of what publicity is . . . and what it does. When it's intended as just a sop to vanity, it pays off that way. But when it's planned with skill and imagination and directed toward definite objectives, it's a constructive business force . . . as you've found out.

FUNNY . . . a few people still think publicity is a racket . . . But they're still hanging from trees by their tails. To the majority of show folks, publicity is a legitimate service . . . It meets legitimate needs . . . for legitimate enterprises. Public relations today is a profession. by its technique it attracts attention . . . arouses interest . . . stimulates desire . . . and impels action . . . for a personality, a production, a policy or an institution. As in any other specialty, there's no substitute for experience.

THANKS for the renewal and enclosure. What you added to our income, you can deduct on March 15th. Keep your eye on our next objective . . . and we'll keep hanging away for you with everything we've got. In this war period it's truer than ever—repetition builds reputation.

GALS GET CHANCE TO MAKE GRADE AS F-WC MANAGERS

Innovation of femme managers gets its first test in Fox West Coast houses next week when a half-dozen key cashiers will be spotted in assistant manager posts for trial. Almost daily loss of assistants and managers has created a serious manpower shortage at F-WC due to armed forces pulling those that defense work did not attract. Situation is particularly felt among assistants where light salaries failed to hold young men.

District managers will be polled to get list of girls best qualified, F-WC wanting those who have been employed longest and show most promise. They will be spotted in key situations and carefully observed so F-WC can get a gauge on what to expect when and if idea must be adopted. Evergreen circuit, Pacific northwestern affiliate of National Theatres, already is trying girls with some success.

New York, Sept. 1.—Sam Lefkowitz, Warners New York district sales manager, resigned yesterday. It is reported he is joining United Artists, although he has other offers. Lefkowitz has been with Warners since 1932.

Stockholder Rights May Chill Par-UA Picture Deal

New York, Sept. 1.—If details can be worked out satisfactorily, and legal complications do not arise, United Artists may acquire distribution rights to six westerns originally produced for Paramount's 1942-43 program by Harry Sherman, with arrangements providing for Par to let UA release six similar Sherman western specials for 1943-44.

What was heralded as a huge picture changeover deal, whereby Paramount would turn over a number of backlog pictures to UA to assist the latter to overcome its current dearth of releases, now simmers down to a minor arrangement which, legal circles suggest, would be a dangerous procedure for the present management of Paramount.

It is pointed out that Paramount executives cannot dispose of product which it produced and financed, to another company for either outright sale or distribution, without being liable for stockholder injunctions and damage suits. Legal lights familiar with the industry's complexities observe that danger of stockholder action would prevent Paramount from selling outright or making distribution deal with United Artists on any of its product, and in view of this legal angle, it's hardly likely UA will get even the six Sherman westerns annually.

Along the legal line, it is pointed out that any stockholder would have an exceptionally fine case by going into court to show comparative distribution income from pictures rolled up by Paramount and United Artists, and any detour of product from Paramount channels would be highly detrimental to assets and the stockholders' interests.

Undoubtedly Paramount execs already have been advised along this line by legal counsel, and present negotiations are hanging on the slender thread of whether or not outright sale of the six Sherman pictures, which are financed by Paramount, could circumvent possible stockholder action.

Help Canada Bond Sale

New York, Sept. 1.—Ken Thomson of Hollywood Victory Committee and Jim Sauter, on United Theatrical War Activities Committee, huddled in New York with Canadian reps in town to arrange talent tieups for Canadian billion-dollar war bond drive centered around six Sunday evening broadcasts over Canadian networks between Sept. 20 and Oct. 25.

California Theatres Hit $7,500,000 to Open Industry Bond Drive

California theatres sold an estimated $7,500,000 in War Bonds and Stamps yesterday in the initial day of the industry's $1,000,000,000 September Bond drive, according to Charles P. Skouras, prexy of Fox West Coast and state coordinator of the drive. Following the wiring of that figure to the War Activities Committee in New York, Skouras received a congratulatory wire thanking all California participants.

Los Angeles first-runs, with late sales, touched around $100,000 by midnight. Individual L. A. first-run reports were: Paramount downtown, $7,400; Paramount Hollywood, $8,000; Hawaii, $3,200, with G&S Marcal and Center reporting $1,000 and $550 respectively; Hillstreet, $502; Orpheum, $4,000; other downtown theatres, Rialto, Tower, Newsreel, Palace and Los Angeles bringing in another $6,000; Pantages, $25,300; Warners downtown, $2,700; Warners Hollywood, $4,800; Carthay Circle, $12,250; Grauman's Chinese, $10,750; Four Star, $1,506; Loew's State, $10,000; United Artists, $5,236; Wilshire, $1,025. Among indies, Bill Srere of the Roxie sold $19,400 for his day's total.

Overall reported by Fox West Coast for its southern California houses was $312,869. City houses (outside first-runs), $75,000.

Stars to Dedicate Country House

The industry's Public Relations Committee at its meeting yesterday agreed with Jean Hersholt, prexy of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, that successful handling of dedication ceremonies of the Fund's Country House Sept. 27 should be an industry effort and promised full assistance. The committee will assist in arranging for top stars and players to attend, will post placards and otherwise advise studio employes of its importance. Appointment of Arch Reeve, Committee Secretary, as a member of the dedication committee to act as liaison between two groups was announced by Hersholt.

Hersholt, Vic Shapiro, Joe Hubbell, local chief of the 'News of the Day' newsreel, were guests at yesterday's meeting. Hubbell will visit the Country House next week and advise on how the event can best be filmed.

Final construction on the Motion Picture Relief Fund's Country House in Woodland Hills is being finished this week and will be completed by Sept. 8, it was announced yesterday by Albert Criz, representative of Chief Architect W. L. Pereira. Practically all landscaping and furnishings are already in.

Dedication ceremonies for the Country House will be held Sept. 27, with all branches of the film industry participating. Guests who will occupy the cottages donated by prominent personalities in motion pictures, will move to the Valley home on Oct. 1. The Country House has been under construction for approximately seven months.

STARS TOP ALL RECORDS FOR SALE OF WAR BONDS cases doubling the amounts anticipated for the day.

Tour Managers Norman Manning and Larry Barbier, in San Francisco, reported a tremendous reception of Adolphe Menjou, Walter Pidgeon and Joan Leslie, with a shipyard visit and a Victory luncheon bettering estimated sales by more than 35%, with an evening Bond auction still to be totaled.

Fresno likewise went over the top for Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari at a civic Bond luncheon and an afternoon factory visit, according to a wire from Joe Steele.

In Dallas, a luncheon for Edward Arnold and Frances Dee, with admission only by F and G series Bonds, was a sellout, with hundreds clamoring to get in, according to a wire from Al Rackin.

Cameron Shipp reported from Chicago that the reception accorded James Cagney topped everything in the city's Bond effort to date. The amusement and recreation group, headed by Barney Balaban, bought $1,040,000 at a luncheon in honor of Cagney, attended by Governor Green, Mayor Kelly, Bishop Bernard J. Sheil and publishers and editors of all newspapers.

Chattanooga went overboard for Greer Garson, who spent the day in factory visits, with a Bond dinner and public rally at night, according to a wire from Ed Lawrence.

Philadelphia, with Hedy Lamarr and Walter Abel, went far beyond expectations by early afternoon, according to Milton Weiss, with an all-time one-day record assured.

In New York the $54,000,000 advance sale, announced at Stanton Griffis' 'million dollar breakfast', was being augmented hourly as Bond-buying citizens started pushing an engineless automobile, bearing effigies of Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito, across the state following its 'launching' by Charles Laughton, Virginia Gilmore and Ann Rutherford.

Compilation of the first day's total Bond sales in the seven cities will not be possible until today, when final overnight reports have been made to campaign headquarters in New York and Hollywood. The tour managers' reports, according to Einfeld, indicated perfect organization by Treasury Department and War Activities Committee heads in every city. Francis S. Harmon, executive vice-prexy of the War Activities Committee, wired Einfeld:

'Hollywood in all its splendid past has never reflected greater credit upon our industry. Treasury Department officials are all most appreciative. Thanks a billion for all you have done and are doing.'

Barry Buchanan, Treasury Department representative who traveled east with the first 'Stars Over America' group, returned to Hollywood yesterday. He said en route east one train passenger bought $2,000 in Bonds for the privilege of taking snapshots of Hedy Lamarr and Ann Rutherford.

Tour managers who will accompany the second group of film personalities over the various 'Stars Over America' routes were announced by Einfeld yesterday. Len Boyd, of Republic, will travel with Laurel and Hardy and Richard Arlen on Route 1, opening at Helena and Butte, Mont.; Cameron Shipp of Warners with Bette Davis for five days on Route, 2, opening at St. Joseph and Kansas City; Gabe Yorke of 20th-Fox with an as yet unassigned star for another five days on Route 2, opening at Amarillo, Texas; Bob Sunderland of 20th-Fox with Gene Tierney and Chester Morris on Route 3, opening at Madison, Wis.; Fred Stanley representing Columbia with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Astaire, Hugh Herbert and Ilona Massey, on Route 4, opening at Toledo; Norman Manning of Warners with John Payne, Jinx Falkenburg and Jane Wyman on Route 5, opening at Newport News, Va.; Margaret Ettinger, already on tour with Irene Dunne and Walter Abel, will continue another five days on Route 6 from Binghamton, N. Y., and Murphy McHenry of Paramount will accompany Dorothy Lamour on Route 7, opening at Fall River and New Bedford, Mass.

Victory House opened its 'Salute To Our Heroes' month yesterday with a two and a half hour fashion show and entertainment staged by film names, including Cesar Romero, Anita Louise, Chester Morris, Warren William, Lillian Bond, Irene Rich and Gale Sondergaard. Also on hand to aid the Bond selling show were Mrs. Nigel Bruce, Frances Gladwin and Mrs. Harry Brand.

Yates and Rep Execs Huddle Over Autry Successor If Any

Herbert J. Yates, chairman of Republic's board, arrives next Tuesday for his periodic studio conferences and production slate lineup for the next quarter season with M. J. Siegel, prexy, and other company execs.

Most important decision to be made will relate to the Gene Autry situation—whether or not to start a new series to take the place of the western singing star, now in the Army, but who may be permitted to make one more picture by special arrangement. Autry was on the schedule to make eight for the coming season—four specials and four program westerns.

Special releasing plans will be discussed for 'The Flying Tigers' and 'Ice-Capades Revue', which will be appraised for coming campaign.

RKO Reported Fussing With Walt Disney

New York, Sept. 1.—RKO is reported tiffing with Walt Disney in disagreement over terms set for Disney product—with the cartoon producer again talking shift of distribution.

It is understood that RKO made readjustments with exhibs since 'Reluctant Dragon' and 'Fantasia' did not gross guaranteed figures in some situations, with Disney resisting rental readjustments. As result, RKO had to give exhibs better deal on some of its own product to keep customers happy.

PICTURE stars of the silent era, eager to gain some recognition from the sprocket bosses, have found only one such avenue opened up to them—that by Erskine Johnson on his Tuesday night broadcast. For the past six months he has sought out the oldtimers for his Stars of Yesterday feature and his efforts have already resulted in at least one former screen lass getting a new start. She is Amy Trask, who played leads opposite Hobart Bosworth, and was heard by Bill Thomas. He gave her a part in one of his pictures with another to follow. Others who have appeared on Johnson's passing parade are Wesley Barry, Jane Novak, Sue Carol, Charles Ray, Jack Mulhall, Helen Ferguson, Evelyn Brent, Baby Marie Osborne, Hobart Bosworth, Hank Mann, Lina Basquette, Mildred Harris, Mary Carr, Leo White, William Farnum, Kenneth Harlan, Chester Conklin, Dolores Costello, Buster Keaton, Betty Blythe, Clara Kimball Young, Mae Marsh and Johnny Hines.

RKO Toils On Cutting Welles' 'True' Down To 7,500 Feet

Technicolor and black-and-white footage shot in Brazil by Orson Welles for 'It's All True' now is being assembled and catalogued at RKO to determine how much of the approximately 75,000 feet can be incorporated into the finished picture. Since color dominates the total footage there is a possibility none, or only a slight amount, of black-and-white will be included when editing finally is over.

Finished picture will likely run around 7,500 to 8,500 feet, or from 83 to 93 minutes, but it still is undetermined whether all of this footage will be from the Welles stockpile of film. It is understood RKO distribution executives are leery of public reception that might be given some of the Technicolor scenes showing mixed dancing in the Brazilian pageant sequences.

Biz Staging 300 Bond Preems For Sept.

New York, Sept. 2.—Hypoing effort to raise an additional hundred million dollars for the film industry billion dollar Bond drive, picture distributors will dedicate 300 film preems during September to the Treasury.

All admissions to these premieres in various cities of the country will be limited to Bond buyers, with seats in comparison to size of purchase. Distribs will skip film rentals, and exhibs will donate theatres and all overhead for these opening nights. Strong biz is expected by officials here, as list of month's releases include 'Yankee Doodle Dandy', 'Wake Island', 'The Major and the Minor' and other big coin attractions.

F-WC Abandons Health Tests For Workers

Health examinations of prospective help other than managers have been eliminated by Fox-West Coast after many years of that regulation being in practice. Further notion is that circuit can't be as choosy for the same reasons and must accept nearly anyone they can get.

PAST UA POLICY APPEARS AXE FOR NIXING PIX BUY

which allowed each contributing producer to have his own pictures sold on an individual basis, with maximum returns being based entirely on the boxoffice potentialities of each picture. In view of this basic structure and operation of the distributing organization, any endeavor by United Artists to purchase pictures on the outside for release whereby it would be necessary for the sales organization to push sale of company-owned product in order to recoup negative costs and show a profit over distribution charges, naturally would react adversely to the contributing producers, it is claimed.

Mary Pickford, when apprised last night of the picture-purchase plan and adverse reaction of producers currently holding releasing deals with UA, stated to Daily Variety she had not heard of it, was aware Sales Head Grad Sears was in town but had not talked with him. Miss Pickford commented Paramount would not give up any choice pictures at this time when creative talent and stars are becoming difficult to obtain, and any plan for UA itself buying domestic pictures of any kind was out of line with the company principle since it was founded many years ago. She admitted that UA owner-partners and producers had individually bought American distribution rights to British product, but any overtures made in the past for UA to porduce or wholly finance pictures for its own profit had been flatly nixed by owner-partners.

It is understood several UA contributing producers will strongly protest any move of UA to buy Paramount or other outside product for distribution, as such a move would jeopardize their future releases and is at variance with conditions when release contracts originally were signed.

Proposed UA purchase of Paramount pictures, according to reports current yesterday, has simmered down to four pictures—at least, those are all Sears wants to deal on at this time. Quartet mentioned includes 'Forest Rangers', 'I Married a Witch' and two Harry Sherman western specials. 'Rangers' was ballyhooed during production as a top-line attraction in Technicolor by the Paramount publicity department.

Coin for purchase of the pictures would come from Guaranty Trust Co. jointly with De Luxe Laboratories, with latter getting the release print work. Ed Raftery, president of UA, arrives today from the east to submit the picture-buy proposal to member-owners, who have been kept in ignorance of the deal during preliminary negotiations.

In addition to the adverse attitude of contributing producers to the UA program, it is expected member-owners will turn thumbs down on the proposal. Legal complications on the Paramount side, in which stockholders might institute injunction and mismanagement proceedings against the officers for turning over assets to a competing company, may prevent Paramount going through with the deal.

M. P. Relief Fund 581 Cases During July

The Motion Picture Relief Fund handled a peak load of 581 cases during July, according to the monthly Fund report submitted to the board of trustees. A total of 14 medical appliance patients and 32 dental cases were treated.

Medical cases as listed by Dr. Francis B. Browne totaled 405 for July. The breakdown on the medical report showed the Relief Fund took care of 13 major operations, five minor operations, 78 institutional cases, 53 hospital patients, eight sanitarium and 17 rest home cases.

Recorded as one of the busiest months for the Relief Fund's medical staff, a total of 499 hospital calls and 25 house visits were listed in the report.

Denies Partnership

New York, Sept. 2.—Max Gordon denies he has made any partnership deal with Edward Small on 'Franklin Square,' 'Junior Miss' or anything else. Gordon says he is displeased at any announcement of a hookup with Small as he has still a year to go on a contract with Columbia as a producer.

James Cruze's Will Probated—

James Cruze left an estate of $1,000 in personal effects, according to a petition for probate of his will, filed in Superior court yesterday. Cruze, who died Aug. 3, left everything to his widow, Alberta Beatrice McCoy Cruze, with the exception of a bequest of $10 to Julie Jane Cruze Bosen, daughter by his first marriage to Marguerite Snow, silent star. Betty Compson, director's second wife, was not mentioned.

Seeks to Adopt Hero's Son—

Brian Donlevy, who portrays Major James Devereaux in a forthcoming film, is planning to adopt the eight-year-old son of the Marine hero, it was disclosed yesterday. Patrick Devereaux, the son, was virtually left an orphan recently when his mother died in Washington, D. C. Major Devereaux is a Japanese prisoner.

Show Film Pulldown

New York, Sept. 2.—Demonstration of the three-sprocket film pulldown to replace the present four-sprocket standard for saving of raw film stock will be given tomorrow at 20th-Fox home offices for engineers, technicians and personnel of the other major companies. Idea is being advanced by I. E. Sponable, 20th-Fox sound and projection expert, as means of conserving film under war conditions.

Argentine Censors to Let U. S. Anti-Axis Pictures Ride

Buenos Aires, Sept. 2.—The federal government's advance viewing and censoring of all films with anti-Axis, war or political themes, and drastic cutting of anything likely to arouse totalitarian protest, appears probable as the marching orders to Hollywood henceforth.

Definite decree hasn't been announced yet, though inspired press stories make it appear almost certain. Under the new setup a high foreign office official, probably with a representative of the Ministry of Interior, will view all doubtful films in advance, hand down a verdict and make it binding regardless of subsequent Axis squawks.

Change in method follows government edict reapproving the British-made and Columbia-distributed 'The Invaders', and 20th-Fox's 'Secret Agent of Japan'. Both films were banned Aug. 7 after the German charge d'affairs, Otto Meynen, protested to the office of Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, minister of foreign affairs, who in turn passed it on to Dr. Miguel Calaciati, minister of interior.

PRC Polls Film Public On War Backgrounds

Producers Releasing Corp. has started a survey of its franchise holders throughout this country and Canada to determine extent public is going for pictures with war backgrounds. Letters are being sent by Leon Fromkess, production head, to PRC distributors asking them to check exhibitors on public reaction so findings can be used to lay out production schedule for the period starting Jan. 1.

PRC already has five war films either completed or scheduled for its 1942-43 program, including 'Tomorrow We Live,' 'The Yanks Are Coming,' 'Miss V From Moscow,' 'Corregidor,' and 'The Lady From Chungking.'

nent scenarist, although Robinson remains under contract to Warners for another year. Each of the four names is to make one musical or drama yearly, in addition to the Benny film, under two directors yet to be named.

'Porgy and Bess' is planned either as a Benny or as another Lyons unit production. Ida Lupino is mentioned as likely star for an original being written by O'Neill, who has nine plays completed but kept from Broadway production due to constant rewriting. Porter and Kern will have either the play each now is writing, or an original screenplay. Benny will do either a play or a musical.

All Lyons talent will be paid a percentage of the profits plus an additional salary. Besides Dorothy Lamour, Hedy Lamarr, Ida Lupino, Ilona Massey and Allan Jones, Lyons also has a piece of Fred MacMurray. Most Lyons talent in the studios is on short-term contract, making his own production plans feasible. Lyons talent will be pooled with other United Artists producers when needed.

Lyons stated production arrangements will be made to find a permanent method for carrying artists instead of selling them to studios and using them up. Thus they will make fewer pictures of better quality and have a stake in their own product. He figures this will prolong the professional lives of his clients.

George Bagnall of United Artists, who was present at the interview, said David O. Selznick is planning to produce two pictures this season. Hunt Stromberg, he said, definitely is scheduled for three, and maybe four; James Cagney for two, and Sir Alexander Korda for two or more.

Watch the Bonds Roll Up—All Over U. S.

New York, Sept. 2. — Scattered reports indicate spectacular success for the four-minute salute staged at 9 o'clock last night in approximately 8,000 theatres, with many millions in War Bond sales resulting.

Loew's theatres reported a one-day Bond and Stamp sale of $1,355,837. The Greer Garson Bond dinner in Chattanooga sold $596,000, plus $45,160 from personal visits to nearby factories. Bond pledges totaled $200,000 at noon today in Wilmington, while Dallas preem of 'Wake Island' sold another $500,000 in Bonds. A. H. Blank today reported an additional $100,500 in the Des Moines drive.

SWG Bond Vote

The Screen Writers Guild has voted an additional investment from its treasury of $2,500 in War Bonds, it was announced yesterday by Lester Cole, special committeeman of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood Treasury Department War Savings Staff. The writers also are setting up a bond-selling committee at each studio to campaign for 20% bond investment from every sale of originals made during the industry's September campaign.

There Still Ain't No Hell, Say Haysers, Admonishing Par

New York, Sept. 2.—Hays office directorate today ruled that ads on 'Wake Island' using the word 'hell' were in violation of the MPPDA advertising code and that Paramount erred in permitting ads in the New York dailies for the local premiere.

Robert Gillham, Paramount advertising and publicity chief, was called before the board to give his side. It is understood Gillham explained use of the word in ad copy was justified by wartime conditions—especially since all the United States Generals were using it.

Directorate's attitude apparently is that the ad code should stand—war or no war—unless the MPPDA advertising code is altered. Change along latter line seems unlikely in view of the directorate's attitude at today's session.

given work for the duration.

One of the biggest undertakings is an apprentice school launched by IATSE Sound Technicians Local 695 under supervision of Business Representative Harold V. Smith. More than 60 applied for the first classes which will train cable men, playback operators, public address operators, dubbing machine operators, film loaders, etc. Those who qualify will be given work permits, and will have an opportunity of moving into the higher pay classifications if the employment situation becomes more acute.

Western Electric and RCA are loaning equipment to train the apprentices. Men will be trained in both theory and actual operation. Present plan is to operate three classes. Members of Local 695, as well as engineers from RCA and WE, will act as instructors. No age limit is being placed on students.

Other unions in the technical classifications are planning to issue work permits to outsiders, rather than load their membership rolls, with the difficulty of pruning down when the emergency has passed. Initial training for soundmen probably will embrace three to four weeks, with classes four nights per week. Those who qualify then will be given advanced training, perhaps two nights per week, for a period of six months.

Illustrators Meet Studio Heads

Following a preliminary wage conference yesterday between Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, and representatives of the Screen Set Designers, it was agreed demands of illustrators will be taken up next week with major studio managers at a meeting to be arranged by Casey. Date for parley will be fixed Tuesday when Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions huddles with Casey.

Union was represented yesterday by Prexy Sorrell, Business Representative Ed Mussa and Prexy Joseph Sternad of the Screen Set Designers, and Les Thomas, Lew Gould and Art Lonergan of the illustrators. Both sides expressed satisfaction with yesterday's meeting and belief that an early agreement would be reached.

Coast Indie Theatres Sell $201,068 Bonds

Bob Poole, executive secretary of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, and one of chairmen of the industry's September $1,000,000,000 Bond Drive, reported yesterday $201,068 in sales has been tabbed by 33 reporting indie theatres on opening day of drive. Overall figure for the indies, of which there are some 400 in Southern California and Arizona is expected to swell this figure.

Metro Product Huddles With F-WC Continue

Metro deal with Fox West Coast still is in the works, with L. C. Wingham, San Francisco branch manager, called in this week to work with George Hickey, western district manager for Metro, on the up-state deal. Hickey expects to be on the deal for another month, calling in Portland and Seattle branch managers as their districts come up for covering.

E. M. Saunders, western division supervisor, who left Monday for the east, stops off in Omaha, Des Moines and Chicago before getting to New York.

Three-House Preem Set For 20th 'Iceland'

Fox-West Coast and 20th Century-Fox have concluded a deal for a three-house premiere of 'Iceland' in San Diego on Sept. 21, at the Adams, State, and Fox theatres. Admish will be upped but figure has not been decided with proceeds going to Navy Relief. Following day picture goes into regular run, jumping first run on L. A.

Slash Special Service

Elimination of special service under the government film freezing order, will result in yearly loss of $400,000 in business for National Screen Service. Latter has been forced to eliminate production of all special trailers for theatres, and as a result, general manager George Dembow has already cut 15 employes from staff of the Hollywood studio and laboratory who were assigned to the special service department.

Obituary

WALTER PATERSON

Walter Paterson, 31, radio actor for the last six years in the role of Nicholas Lacy in 'One Man's Family,' was found dead in his parked automobile last night in the 2,000 block on Sunset Plaza Drive. A hose, extending from the exhaust pipe, led into the interior of the car, the authorities listing death as suicide. Paterson was born in Bulawayo, South Africa; appeared for a time on the English stage and entered radio in San Francisco 12 years ago. Surviving are his widow, Helen Clifford, non-pro, and a four-year-old daughter, Rosemary.

Studio Union, Guilds Pledge Support for War Bond Drive

Representatives of 47 studio unions and guilds meeting yesterday at Paramount pledged complete cooperation in the War Bond payroll investment campaign being conducted by the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff of the Treasury Department. Union leaders said in addition to asking every individual to participate, they also would suggest that their organizations vote a portion of the treasury funds in War Bonds this month.

The meeting was called by Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions; Carl C. Cooper, IATSE vice-prexy, and Frank Carothers, secretary of the International Committee of the unions. Henry Ginsberg, chairman of the motion picture committee, outlined the objective of the industry's nation-wide billion-dollar drive for September.

Ginsberg told the union and guild leaders:

'An all-out effort will be carried on to secure pledges from every one of the 32,000 Hollywood employes for 10% salary pledges and to enroll thousands of present subscribers in an honor roll for an extra 10% during September.' It was disclosed that many workers buying bonds on the payroll deduction plan have already increased their purchases to 20%.

START DRIVE TO ORGANIZE CASHIERS, USHERS, DOORMEN

New York, Sept. 2.—The United Theatrical and Building Service Employes Union, Local 1188, CIO of New Jersey, which has concluded a contract covering 'front of house' employes of Warners theatres in Passaic county, now is seeking bargaining rights for cashiers, doormen, ushers, matrons, cleaners, etc., in Warners Hudson county houses. Following deal on Passaic county, meeting will be held tomorrow between Don Jacobs, northern New Jersey Warners zone manager, and Walter Kennedy, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations Local, to arrange for a cross-check of application cards to determine whether the union represents a majority.

The CIO union, blasting the IATSE, states the latter has sought to confuse theatre employes by entering the picture with the one and only purpose of keeping the CIO out of the theatres. 'Our members are familiar with the history of the IATSE five years ago,' the union points out, adding, 'They remember the initiation fees, charter fees and dues paid to the IATSE and then watched the IATSE sell them down the river. Today this same union is asking "front of house" employes to get burned once more.'

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Five Republic electricians, Rudy Shellenberg, Chalmers Snodgrass, James Long, John Kelly and Dudley Darnell, enlisted in the United States Navy this week.

Theatre Push For Billion Dollar Drive Roars

Following meetings of various local War Bond committees yesterday on the industry's $1,000,000,000 September War Bond drive, plans were set for another gala day on Friday, the 161st anniversary of the founding of Los Angeles. Show and sales will be put on at City Hall, with officials, Latin film personalities and others participating.

Meanwhile theatre men continued to push the drive via intensive individual campaigns and special stunts in theatres to help give the drive impetus.

Members of the Retail Advisory Committee to the Treasury Department met with industry chairmen to combine their efforts for the month under the slogan, 'Showmanship and Salesmanship'. Coordinated efforts of the nation's retailers with industry leaders will further insure the drive hitting its figure, according to Stewart K. Widdess, chairman of L. A. Retail Advisory Committee.

Last night Fox West Coast city houses continued Tuesday night's 9 p.m. show-shutdown to permit additional Bond and Stamp sales. House managers again made appeals from stages and stopped shows for the sale period. Understood many indies also extended the initial day's special event.

Tie-up with North American Aviation Corp. has arranged for buyers of Bonds to have their names inscribed on tablets to be installed in bombers destined for Tokio or Berlin, names and addresses of buyers of Bonds in theatres being sent to the plant along with serial numbers of purchases.

QUESTIONNAIRE designed to determine the probable status of personnel so far as military duty is concerned during the forseeable future is being circulated among all employes by number of studios. Blanks to be filled out for filing are designated as confidential and as not affecting the present status of the employe with the studio. Questions asked are about status under the draft—whether person is married or single, has dependents, expects to enlist or wait to be called under draft, if eligible; when person expects to be called, or if there is any reason why he does not expect to be called. Information obviously is to aid studios in classifying employees as to dependability of tenure under existing and anticipated wartime conditions and requirements.

OVERALL figure for California theatres on initial day of industry's $1,000,000,000 September War Bond Drive on Tuesday is estimated so far at $3,300,000 it was announced yesterday by Charles P. Skouras, prexy of Fox-West Coast. Figures are complete for F-WC only, with vast number of indie exhibs still to report. Frisco first runs totaled $50,000, and entire Frisco area accounted for $500,000. Entire north collected $2,000,000 on fairly complete returns, while Southern California tabbed $1,300,000 on still incomplete tally.

QUITE without benefit of ballyhoo, Paramount has prepared itself for all eventualities in case the city water supply is impaired by bombings during an air raid. If ever, and whenever, that should happen, the studio will merely turn on its own water from an especially constructed 50,000 gallon tank and have it circulating in no time by means of an underground pumping system, now in the process of being completed. Project was devised and carried through by Henry Ginsberg, vice-president and general manager.

Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror

(Melodrama)

Universal production. Stars Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce. Features Evelyn Ankers, Reginald Denny, Thomas Gomez and Montagu Love. Supporting cast: Henry Daniell, Olaf Hytten and Leyland Hodgson. Directed by John Rawlins. Associate producer, Howard Benedict. Screenplay by Lynn Riggs. Adapted by Robert D. Andrews. Based on story, 'His Last Bow', by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Photography by Woody Bredell. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Martin Obzina. Musical director, Charles Previn. Music by Frank Skinner. Technical advisor, Tom McKnight. Film editor, Russell Schoengarth. Previewed at Los Angeles, Sept. 3, 1942. Running time: 65 MINS.

'Sherlock Holmes and the Voice of Terror' is the first of three mystery mellers with the super-sleuth as motivating character which Universal has slated for the 1942-43 program. Credited as based on a Conan Doyle story, yarn is completely refurbished to project Holmes into assignment of uncovering Nazi saboteurs and spies in the current war.

Picture is a neat concoction of suspenseful melodrama, and despite the fact that the ultimate finish is obvious from the first reel, it will ride through the regular bookings as a better-than-average program attraction to catch many secondary first-run bookings in the keys; but will hit best stride in the family and hinterland circuits.

The retired Holmes, portrayed by Basil Rathbone, and Nigel Bruce (Dr. Watson), are pressed into service by the British Inner Council on the war to uncover and stop German radio broadcasts that cause jitters among the English populace. Enlisting Limehouse district hordes to uncover a slender clue, Holmes masterminds through the regulation series of suspenseful episodes until he hits the finish line to uncover the Nazi ringleaders and prevent a German invasion along the south coast of England.

Script by Lynn Riggs from adaptation by Robert D. Andrews accentuates the suspense, tieing episodes together in neat fashion despite the fact there are a few brief stretches that bog down. Direction by John Rawlins is high-grade for this type of meller, and he moves his characters about skillfully to hold interest to proper pitch. Woody Bredell's photography is on the low key side, and hits good quality throughout.

Rathbone carries the Sherlock Holmes role in great style, getting able assistance from the flustery Bruce as Dr. Watson. Evelyn Ankers does a fine job characterizing a Limehouse girl who steps in to help Holmes uncover the Nazi ring, while good support is provided by Reginald Denny, Thomas Gomez, Montagu Love, Henry Daniell, Olaf Hytten and Leyland Hodgson.

Vengance of the West

(Western)

Columbia production. Stars Bill Elliott and Tex Ritter. Supporting cast: Frank Mitchell, Adele Mara, Dick Curtis, Robert Fiske, Ted Mapes, Eva Puig, Jose Tortosa, Guy Wilkerson. Directed by Lambert Hillyer. Produced by Leon Barsha. Screenplay by Luci Ward, based on story by Jack Townley. Film editor, Burton Kramer. Art direction, Lionel Banks; associate, Perry Smith. Assistant director, Milton Carter. Sound, Jack Haynes. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, Sept. 3, 1942. Running time: 61 MINS.

On the Zorro pattern, this saddlepic of early California and a half-Spanish Robin Hood who steals by night to right the evils done all day by all-white and all-rat cutthroats will sate the sage-hungry fans once its show opening is passed. For character exposition, film opens without the usual zip, showing Tex Ritter, a troubadour-marshal, and Adele Mara, the suffering cornflower, flirting and singing in a stagecoach. That won't please the customers waiting for the shooting. But after that longwinded yodeling session 'Vengeance' opens up with a vengeance and rides hard to the finish.

Because of its flavor, story carries a little more romance than usual in the pseudo-Spanish backgrounding. But that taffy never gets in the way of gunfire or skullduggery, except for some necessary romantic by-play by Miss Mara. She keeps Ritter from upsetting the plans of Bill Elliott, the do-or-die Don who is hunted because everything is blamed on him by the ostensibly upright underhanders.

Except for a few serious situations that backfire humorously, film is plenty enjoyable from the western standpoint. Lots of night and riding photography of improved calibre is aided by a not overdone theme. Acting is far from heavyweight, Ritter and Elliott being nearest to the muse. Rest, particularly the cherubic Miss Mara, who is as wholesome as a graham cracker, wade through roles when obliged to put down their guns or fists for talking. Direction is good.

Elliott, as Joaquin Murrieta, sets out to avenge the death of his brother by claim-jumpers in post-goldrush era. Others are killed too, while he seeks out the killers, but it's all hung on him. After Elliott convinces Ritter of his honesty, pair go into cahoots to corral the badmen. For finale, the law, the offended, the romantic and the patrons are all satisfied.

Conference of Studio Unions Won't Act On Cameramen

IATSE, the group has since merged with the IBEW, and local IB leaders are said to be anxious for support of the Conference and its prexy, Herbert Sorrell.

Several Conference leaders are said to take the position that the first cameramen could not become eligible for Conference membership so long as the IBEW remains in the Producer-Labor Studio Basic Agreement. Scott Milne, Coast IB viceprexy, is reported in favor of withdrawing from the agreement, but move is said to be opposed by International Prexy Ed Brown. Brown probably would have final say, unless Milne could secure backing of a majority of the IB general executive board. The Conference is limited to autonomous unions of the American Federation of Labor. It always has been interpreted that unions in the Basic Agreement are not autonomous since their deals are made by the International.

The Conference also requires that a union applying for membership first settle all its jurisdictional differences that might involve crafts already holding membership. This would apply particularly to the IBEW cameramen since Film Technicians Local 683 of the IATSE already is affiliated with the Conference.

Other unions are closely watching developments in an effort to learn the attitude of IBEW Prexy Brown, who as yet has had nothing to say on the camera situation. Fred Jackman, head of the directors of photography, announced this week that the ASC had been merged with IBEW Cameramen's Local 1318, but said membership meeting to elect officers would not be called until later because of Labor Day holidays.

Union leaders apparently were little disturbed by reports that a film extra had volunteered to secure the first cameramen an IATSE charter through Benjamin (Bugsie) Siegel. They pointed out the IA had turned down the charter application and the general convention had gone on record as opposing it, making it difficult to reverse that stand even if the directors of photography still were in a mood to join the IA under a separate charter.

Heavy traffic responsible for the plan. . . . Bob Taplinger, who feels the draft catching up with him, has been shopping around for one of those public relations Army berths. Bob says he feels he is equally capable of serving as an Army exploiteer as his pal Major Lynn Farnol has.

Changes and Move-ups In Radio Due to Service Inroads

New production heads are being installed at KFI-KECA and KHJ, occasioned by departures. John 'Buddy' Edwards, after four years as production manager at KFI-KECA, moves up as program director, succeeding Glen Heisch, who joined the production staff in Frisco of Office of War Information, radio division. Don McNamara moves over from the announcing staff to the post vacated by Edwards. Appointments were made by Harrison Holliway, who also named Matt Barr publicity director of the two Earle C. Anthony stations. Barr has been with NBC publicity staff for past four years.

David Young, continuity chief at KHJ, has been named production manager, replacing Jim Barton, who joins Music Corp. as producer. Wallace Ramsey becomes continuity head. Another promotion at the Don Lee station is that of Mary Ellen Ryan as assistant traffic manager.

F-WC Meeting To Spur 200G Child Drive

Meeting will be held today at Fox-West Coast offices to spur drive to raise $200,000 for the Child Welfare Fund of the American Legion on Oct. 24 when all California theatres will be asked to put on special midnight shows. Likely that Charles P. Skouras, prexy of F-WC will head the meeting, with W. H. Popular Priced 'Sarong' Sets SF Orph Record

San Francisco, Sept. 3.—'Pardon My Sarong,' playing at regular prices, is breaking all records at the Orpheum theatre and is also reaping the second highest gross in the history of the house. First week's receipts at the 55c tariff are hitting $19,500. 'Eagle Squadron,' at 65c, holds the gross record of $22,000, and the top picture prior to that was 'The Invaders' with $17,000. 'Sarong' and 'Eagle' are both Universal pictures while 'Invaders' was a Columbia release of a British-made film.

'Battle' For Bonds

New York, Sept. 3.—'Battle of Midway,' two-reel film made by John Ford, is being released at once to provide theatres with additional material for building the sale of War Bonds.

'Yanks' Tune For 'Home'

Universal will use Harry Seymour's patriotic song, 'The Yanks Are Coming Again' in 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home.' Allan Jones is slated to sing the tune in the picture.

AUGUST EXTRA EARNINGS LOWEST IN SIX YEARS improvement for this month, and perhaps October. This is the first time in six years the trend has broken downward in the use of extras, August usually being one of the top months, with the break coming later in the year.

While adjustments and overtime for August have not been compiled, it is certain total earnings will be little in excess of $200,000, if that high. The take for August, 1941, was $283,000, with 27,092 job placements.

Central also announced yesterday it was having to shut down temporarily on extra interviews in order to give casting directors an opportunity to assimilate information secured from 1,000 players during August and to become familiar with their appearance and qualifications. More than 1,000 additional applications for interviews now are on file and still are coming in at the rate of 50 per day.

Howard R. Philbrick, Central general manager, said there was no need of the directors talking with other players at this time, as it would merely result in confusion. He said the policy of daily interviews will be resumed just as soon as the directors are able to clear the information now on hand and catalog in their minds the players they have already talked with.

On only three days during August were as many as 1,000 extras used. The daily schedule follows:

582 MORE PIX TOILERS PLEDGE 10% OF PAY TO BUYING BONDS

Total of 582 new investors have been enrolled in the studio payroll savings plan in the first three days of the nationwide billion-dollar War Bond campaign, it was announced yesterday by the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood Treasury Department War Savings Staff. At the same time, 1,214 previous subscribers who had been under the 10% investment raised pledges to that mark.

The Committee also stated that 947 men and women in the 10% group agreed to invest 20% in War Bonds during the month of September.

With full cooperation of every worker group in the studios, allied industry plants and offices of agents, business managers and independent publicists, the Committee through 450 volunteer solicitors has undertaken the task of contacting every one of the 20,000 regular and 12,000 casual and freelance employes. An effort is being made to have each one become a participant in Bond buying.

At Universal, in three days 69 additional employes have joined the 10% ranks and 116 subscribed an extra 10% for September. All 42 members of the film editing department have signed up for 20% of salary for September.

At 20th-Fox, the committee at its first organizational luncheon secured 54 20% September pledges before the meeting ended, and has since brought the total to 127.

Metro's overall payroll percentage increased a full 1% the first two days of the drive, with 134 previous investors boosting pledges to 10%.

At RKO, where 82 new 10% pledgees have been secured, the publicity department completed a 100% membership in the payroll savings plan in two hours, with 80% of the department investing more than 10%.

Executives and employes of the Producers Association, at a meeting yesterday, established a record of 35.5% of their overall payroll for the week in savings subscriptions and cash sales. A total of 16 employes pledged to invest 20% of their salary during September. These pledges gave the group a regular weekly payroll savings plan average of 16% of total salaries.

Biz's Public Relations Committee Huddles

New York, Sept. 3.—Public Relations Committee, eastern division, huddled today on the industry War Bond campaign, and also went into the matter of saving money in handling publicity and advertising for the individual film companies.

There was no discussion on the industry advertising code or possible changes as a result of the recent Hays office checkup on allegedly objectionable advertising, and no action is likely until after the Hays directors' meeting Sept. 9. While 'Wake Island' advertising matter stirred an MPPDA probe, ads of other companies have reportedly been coming under scrutiny because 'too sexy'.

Goodman, 'Duke' Clark Ogle San Diego BO

Del Goodman, western district manager of Paramount, and M. R. 'Duke' Clark, branch manager, return from three-day trip to San Diego today. Pair trekked south to get first hand knowledge of upped theatre business so they could better gauge the new selling season.

Farnol and Reeves Get Penalized For Hoax

New York, Sept. 3.—Major Lynn Farnol, public relations officer of Mitchel Field, Long Island, was relieved from active duty today, and Colonel D. M. Reeves, commanding officer, first air ground supporting command at the field, was relieved of his command as a result of the so-called 'ground marker' hoax.

Disciplinary orders followed a probe by Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum, commander of the Eastern Defense Command. Farnol was public relations officer of the First Air Force, Mitchell Field and it was his office which released the hoax story and pictures early last month. Story and pictures purported to expose ground markers for hostile planes.

Garmes Returns To RKO

Lee Garmes resumed head cameraman spot on 'Stand By to Die' at RKO yesterday after a week off to do additional filming on 'China Girl' at 20th-Fox. Frank Redman did Garmes' chore on 'Stand By' during latter's absence.

Granville's Camp Tour

Bonita Granville leaves on a four to six-week tour of Army camps Sept. 18, opening her series of one-nighters in the Maryland camps.

WPB Slashes Theatre Building to $200; Sets Unaffected

Washington, Sept. 3. — Building of studio sets remains unaffected by the new War Production Board order which drastically cuts down the amount of civilian construction allowed without specific authorization, but theatre construction is included in the order and is subject to a reduced limitation.

Under the order new construction and remodeling of theatres and other buildings and projects designed principally for public or private amusement can be carried out only up to $200, if no priority assistance is needed, without specific WPB authorization. Prior to the order, $5,000 was the limit.

Theatre repairs are unaffected by the order and can be made when all materials are on hand and no priority assistance is needed. The order is effective Sept. 7.

Three More Execs Move In For SOEG Huddles

Trio of branch operations managers got in from the East yesterday to sit in on the SOEG huddles. Accompanying Pat Scollard, of Paramount, were A. A. Schubart, of RKO; J. S. MacLeod, of Metro, and F. T. Murray, of Universal.

Lyle Talbot's 'Permit'

Lyle Talbot will do a top role in 'Permit to Kill,' Lester Cutler production for Producers Releasing Corp. Barton MacLane and Charlotte Wynters are also cast toppers. Alexis Thurn-Taxis directs, starting Sept. 9.

Skaters Waltz Again Over Ersatz Ice At Pan Rink

Strike up 'The Skaters Waltz,' professor, they're at it again. Those virtuosos of the frozen flooring are up to their old tricks cutting touches on the ersatz ice at the Pan Pacific. The Shipstads and Johnson troupe of trained bladers, as was to be expected at last night's premiere of 'Ice Follies,' had a class mob of opening nighters pounding their paws at what they had seen the skimmers do many times before. And they didn't seem to mind that $2.75 bite into their poke.

An ice Show—any ice show—is getting to be more and more like a circus, and 'Follies' falls snugly into that category. Routines are pretty much the same, the femmes on runners still whirl and spin with a leg in the air and the funny fellows toss each other around with rollicking abandon.

This year Bess Ehrhardt is missing, which is a let-down in the glamor department. Evelyn Chandler, considered by many as the most expert femme of them all, isn't around either, and Roy Shipstad, top man of the rinks, seems to be slowing down. Other than that (ain't that enough?) the troupe is pretty much of the same identity as has prowled the Pan-ice in its many previous appearances. Newcomers are Norah McCarthy, Betty Atkinson of Long Beach, Mae Ross, Bob Blake and Johnny Kinney. As per usual, the juvenile team of Rudy and Bobby Maxson carried off the evening's plaudits with their swing waltz number.

As icetravaganzas go, this one is more lavish and spectacular in production and costuming than any of the previous issues. The Fanchon touch is boldly evident, considerably brightening the ensemble and precision numbers and giving the revue a glamorous coating. The Shipstads and Johnson have plenty of coin wrapped up in this edition and will have to play to near capacity at all performances before they can begin to count their profits.

This edition of the refrigerated sport will no doubt prove as profitable as earlier ventures. Downtown sheets will keep interest feverpitched down to the last performance. Whatever the tieup, it is darkly guarded other than an occasional mention of 'charity.' Those who like their skating shows, and there are enough to pack the Pan Pacific for anyway from four to six weeks, won't have to have their zest whetted by the sport writers. In a name-conscious town like ours, an outfit with such personalities as compose the 'Follies' will pull of its own weight. That $2.75 tap really puts it in the 'Follies' class.

PEASLEE, FRIEDMAN PLEAD CAUSE NORTHWEST ALLIED

Minneapolis, Sept. 3.—Minnesota is the only state in the nation where independent exhibitors will be able to buy Paramount's 'Wake Island' flat on the current contract. It's being sold everywhere else on percentage, according to announcement at the Northwest Allied convention here.

Negotiations resulting in this deal were cited as one of the present administration's accomplishments. Commenting on it when he took the floor to talk on a different subject, M. A. Rosenberg, national Allied States president, called it 'a miracle'.

President E. L. Peaslee of Northwest Allied, reciting other administration 'accomplishments', cited the fact that, as a result of the body's parleys, 'Sergeant York' was bought by Twin Cities independents at 35% and out-of-town exhibitors at 40% at the same time that it was being sold elsewhere throughout the nation at 50%. In some states it has been reported, he said, that independent exhibitors are having difficulty in buying 'Mrs. Miniver' at 60%, 'but nothing like that will be paid in Minnesota'. Negotiations now are under way with 20th-Fox, he said, for delivery of 'Tales of Manhattan' on this season's flat contracts, as allegedly promised, according to Peaslee.

Passage of the Minnesota anti-consent decree law was another meritorious achievement, Peaslee declared.

FRICTION WITHIN BODY

Giving recognition to friction within the body that is threatening to result in the creation of an opposition organization, Peaslee refused to take the blame for increased film rentals and percentage inroads in the Twin Cities area, which he termed a natural development.

In reply to critics who have wanted the association's leaders to 'lay down the law' to distributors instead of parleying with them, Peaslee called attention to the fact that the Minnesota independent exhibitor group represents less than 2% of national film revenue. 'If those who have been squawking think that under such circumstances we can dictate a policy to cover the other 98%, they're insane,' asserted Peaslee.

Peaslee said there had been complaints he wasn't sufficiently 'aggressive', but he felt that his own methods had proved successful. He denied he was a 'pacifist' and defended the sincerity and honesty of himself and Harold Field, who has stepped out as Minneapolis governor. Neither he nor Fields ever had any selvish motives or used their offices to advance their own interests, he declared. His own theatres' film contracts had been shown to S. G. Lebedoff (supposedly his principal foe), and the latter couldn't believe his eyes, because they were so tough, Peaslee said.

Defending the Warners deal which it was felt by some of the critics was the 'worst disaster' ever suffered by Twin Cities indies because it involved surrender on percentage, Peaslee said the company had 'us' over a barrel at the time because product was needed so badly, and it was the best one that could be obtained at the time.

Peaslee blasted distributors' arrogance and said these distributors were somewhat deflated when they opposed passage of Northwest Allied's sponsored anti-consent decree law and obtained only three out of 108 votes in the state senate. He also assailed the 'selfish motives' of some of the body's former 'diehards' who have resigned because they couldn't have their own way and refused to bow to majority rule.

Both Peaslee and Ben Friedman, a veteran leader, pleaded that Northwest Allied be continued. They asserted the organization was more necessary than ever before and the present body enjoys prestige with the state legislature.

STROM'S BELIEF

Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary, doesn't believe such a body should be a film buying organization for members, and he expressed his views in his annual report to the convention. His statement caused a flare-up, Donald Guttman, newly-elected Minneapolis governor, taking him to task.

'I resent Mr. Strom's assertion,' said Guttman. 'Anyway, it doesn't devolve upon our executive secretary to set up a policy for the organization. That's the directors' privilege and duty.'

Strom's views echoed those known to be held by Harold Field, who had refused to be a candidate for re-election as Minneapolis governor.

'Increased film rentals, advanced admission prices and percentage pictures will have to be dealt with by all legal and effective means which independent exhibitors can devise,' Strom declared in his report. 'Northwest Allied exhibitors have a sympathetic legislature with which it will keep faith. We have many friends in the state capitol and will keep them informed of any producer-distributor abuses.'

APPEAL NOT SPONSORED

Northwest Allied will not sponsor an appeal from the District court's invalidation of the Minnesota anti-consent decree law requiring distributors to sell their entire season's product subject to 20% cancellation. This was decided at the convention.

At the same time, the organization will fight to retain the measure on the statute books and proposes to hold it as a club over the distributors' heads. And distributors had better be good or the club will be wielded, it's declared.

Pointing out that decision holding the law unconstitutional and restraining its enforcement applies only to the two Minnesota counties in which Minneapolis and St. Paul are located, the body intimated a new test case may be brought in some other county if distributors don't mend their ways.

The body also threatened it would go to a 'friendly' state legislature, reconvening next January, to have the measure put into legal shape or to obtain other laws for independent exhibitors' protection, 'if necessary.'

Al Galston Launches Variety Club Drive For More Members

Membership drive to increase Variety Club ranks from 275 to 400 was launched yesterday by Al Galston, exhib, and chairman of the drive. Galston returned from vacation this week and immediately started organizing for the drive.

Special committees consist of Col. Ed Schiller, Jack Gross, Lou Notarious and Bernard Luber on studios; Roy Peacock, equipment dealers; George Bowser, for Fox-West Coast; Bill Ring, Film Row; Harry Hollander and Seymour Fisher, exhibs, and Dick Powers and George Alderman, allied amusements. John Le Roy Johnston and Charlie Feldman will also assist generally.

Oiled Exhib Rampages

Failing to get desired advance date on a picture while visiting Film Row yesterday, a beach town exhib got himself hypoed with hooch and somewhat terrorized Rowites. Husky indie paraded the Row looking for trouble with anyone he could find, finally getting into a melee at one exchange that required his being ushered out by three salesmen after doing some damage but still no increased availability on film.

Births

SON, weighing eight pounds, born yesterday morning to Mrs. Betty Proctor Eurist at Queen of Angels hospital. Mother formerly was fashion editor in Warners publicity department and father is assistant director on Warners lot. Baby has been named Clarence Charles, Jr.

DAUGHTER, weighing seven pounds, 15½ ounces, yesterday to Mrs. Eddie Bracken, at Cedars of Lebanon. Mother is the former Connie Nickerson, stage actress, and father is under contract at Paramount. Baby has been named Judith Ann.

PAR USES MANUAL TO TRAIN MALE SCRIPTERS, CRAFTSMEN

Paramount has started the training of male script clerks in order to meet Government's demand for all-male production crews while companies are on location in military areas. Increasing production of Government films, many of them made on military preserves, has created new problem in script clerks, an important production spot heretofore filled almost exclusively by feminine workers.

In order to assure a certain standard of work on part of new male clerks, Paramount's production manager's office under Ed Ebele has established a script manual giving detailed instructions in what is demand of an employe in this classification. Manual is a loose-leaf affair, so corrections and up-to-the-minute changes in method can be inserted.

Another reason for the training of male script clerks at studio is due to heavy outdoor location schedules lined up for many of its forthcoming pictures. Such production entails lengthy stays in remote spots and has occupational hazards for clerks which studio figures males would be better able to stand, in addition to reducing the location accommodations problem.

Plus proving a valuable training book for the male recruits, Paramount expects to make the manual an efficient guide for all its script clerks, changing the individual's method, sometimes unorthodox, of making out daily reports into a system that can be used or interpreted by anyone, eliminating waste motion and reports that might possibly cause confusion when being analyzed.

Studio is going even further in its plans to streamline various production departments to assure the maximum efficiency and common-sense operation, while keeping in mind that time-saving steps taken by the introduction of systems for each craft also will mean conservation of film. Already everything possible is being done to save footage, but executives figure that by the time streamlining of functions is completed additional raw stock can be conserved.

For some time production department has had out a location manual, so that no unit manager handling a troupe away from the studio will have to wonder what steps to take to meet a situation that might arise. Uniform steps to thoroughly cover details of location production are included in the manual, even to taking into consideration the laws of various states where a troupe might work.

Manuals for every craft on the lot are being prepared, carrying working terms. the Paramount procedure for handling details and methods of meeting problems that might occur. Experienced craftsmen, coming in from other studios, will find it an easy matter to adapt themselves to Paramount's way of handling their work, while apprentices will get a clearer picture of what a particular job requires quicker than through the trial-and-error method.

Obituary

WILL JAMES

Will James, 50, cowboy artist, died yesterday at the Hollywood hospital as the result of complication of ailments. He had been in ill health for some time, but his condition became critical only last week when he was removed from his home at 6460 Ivarene to the hospital. Funeral arrangements at the Clark F. and Alice Mean mortuary.

An orphan, James never attended school, but wrote more than a score of books and innumerable short stories, all of which he illustrated himself. He was the owner of a 12,000-acre ranch at Pryor, Mont., at which he spent most of his time. He came to Hollywood a year ago on a film writing assignment, but had been inactive past few months because of ill health. Among his best known books were 'Smoky', filmed by Fox Films in 1933; 'Lone Cowboy', 'Scorpion', 'Sand', 'Home Ranch', 'Sun-up' and others.

NED WAYBURN

Ned Wayburn, 68, dancer and musical director, died Wednesday night in New York. Wayburn, a native of Pittsburgh, made his first start in the theatre as an usher at the Chicago Opera House, moving to the vaudeville stage in the 90's as a singer and originator of ragtime piano playing.

He directed and staged more than 600 musical comedies, revues, plays and dancing shows during his career, at one time operating a dancing school. Wayburn worked with such producers as Florenz Ziegfeld, Klaw and Erlanger, the Shuberts, Oscar Hammerstein, Lew Fields, Major Edward Bowes and others in presenting successful musical stage shows.

Names that Wayburn helped to hit the lights included Fred and Adele Astaire, Jeanette MacDonald, Gilda Gray, Marion Davies, Marilyn Miller, Anita Page, Bessie Love, Harry Richman, Al Jolson, etc. He was said to have been responsible for changing W. C. Fields' juggling act to include lines, took Eddie Cantor out of blackface and persuaded the late Will Rogers to talk more and twirl his lariat less.

Training Pic Washes Up

GROUP IN NY HUDDLE DECIDES ON WAR CHEST FOR COURT TEST

New York, Sept. 3.—Independent producers and distributors, meeting today at the Waldorf Astoria, voted unanimously to set up a financial war chest to battle Harold Hopper on the War Production Board's film conservation plan which would put all but 11 companies out of business. Bert Mayers, attorney representing the group, said at a committee meeting with Hopper in Washington last week they were told 'to get out of business' because there would be no raw stock available for them. Hopper is chief of the WPB's motion picture and photographic section.

The fund is being set up to take the case to the Federal courts for a judicial review unless the WPB grants modifications to its present ruling. The appeal may first be made to the WPB, under regulations so providing. But the independents told Hopper they expected the WPB to deny the appeal, in which case they wanted the denial quickly so they can proceed through legal channels. Hopper is said to have advised some of the independents to let the WPB ruling out and they would be allowed film individually, as, in opinion of Government officials, it was necessary.

Mayers stated relief on an individual basis would be worthless, because the indies would be choked off one by one. He summed up the situation as either a 'quick or slow death' for independents. He warned the gathering their good reissues would soon be exhausted and that it would be impossible to get stock allocation for poorer product.

Hopper, Mayers declared, had said all laboratories but three, apparently Consolidated, De Luxe and Pathe, would have to close up.

The independents are asking for a pro rata stock allotment, as in the case of the majors. Claim that if allotments for the majors are reduced 2% or 3%, enough film will be left over to take care of some of the 150 to 200 indie distributors, possibly 25% of the independent producers and 2,000 small theatres dependent to some degree upon the minor products.

Bond Tour Reports Keep On Soaring

New York, Sept. 3.—Reports from cities and states being covered by the 'Stars Over America' September tour continue to show high bond sales by film names. Greer Garson, bartering live stock for War Bonds and Stamps in Tennessee, has raised $200,000 so far. James Cagney tapped the race crowd at Washington Park, Ill., for $260,000.

Hedy Lamarr got $315,000 from a War Bond Dinner at Trenton, N. J., plus $200,000 in sales in factories and theatres, and sold $60,000 more yesterday. The film industry in Buffalo bought $150,000 in Bonds while theatres sold an additional $73,035 yesterday.

Providence theatres netted $100,000 in bonds last night; the Wilmington theatres sold $25,000 yesterday, giving a Delaware total of over $200,000 for the first day.

RKO Block-of-Five

Initial block of five films in RKO's 1942-43 selling season opens with 'Big Street' today, and is followed by 'Mexican Spitfire's Elephant,' Sept. 11; 'Wings and the Woman,' Sept. 18; 'Highways by Night,' Sept. 25 and 'Here We Go Again,' probably on Oct. 2.

Rep Mulls Promoting Steele to Stardom

In seeking second western star to replace Roy Rogers, who moves into top spot on the company's program due to enlistment of Gene Autry, Republic officials are considering idea of promoting Bob Steele from the Three Mesquiteer series. Decision is expected to be reached shortly after arrival of Herbert Yates from the east next week.

Republic execs have thoroughly scoured possibilities of candidate for second cowboy star on its program, endeavoring to select one well down in draft classifications to avoid loss after starting production on a year's series. Steele, who has been in the Mesquiteer series for the past three years, was previously a strong western draw in series for FBO and Monogram over a long stretch, and undoubtedly could be brought to similar rating with proper productions.

A few facts became evident over the weekend which throw a significant light upon the war picture:

Stalingrad's holding in the face of incredible odds, the successful defense of strategic mountain passes in the Caucasus range, the steadily increasing destruction of Hitler's vital war centers by the Allied air forces—all that seems to indicate that Hitler is beginning to show signs of weakness.

President Roosevelt's statement that plans to 'defeat Hitler on the soil of Germany' are progressing favorably, is a promise that may soon become a reality.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

WHILE number of books and biographies about the late General Billy Mitchell are being rushed toward print or are already on the stands, and at least one announcement has been made that 'Billy Mitchell' will be made as a motion picture, the inside is that no one will get the necessary permission to film Mitchell's life and his controversy over airplanes with U. S. military rankers. Word to that effect is understood to be definite out of Washington. Ruth Mitchell, sister, who served as a Chetnik, is said to be asking $100,000 for motion picture rights to the general's life story. Metro is understood to have at one time offered her $60,000. A few days ago the book by Emile Gauvreau and Lester Cohen, 'Billy Mitchell, Founder of Our Air Force and Prophet Without Honor,' was put on sale by E. P. Dutton & Co. Authors are asking $175,000 for rights to their story. Both were friends of General Mitchell, who gave them many exclusive papers and accounts of his conflicts with the government and about his court martial. Book, of course, is also aimed at the films. Sam Bronston, producer, has announced that he will make 'Billy Mitchel' for Columbia, from a story by Joe Levine.

Film Previews

The Moon and Sixpence

(Drama)

United Artists release of David L. Loew-Albert Lewin production. Stars George Sanders and Herbert Marshall. Supporting cast: Steve Geray, Doris Dudley, Eric Blore, Albert Basserman, Molly Lamont, Elena Verdugo, Florence Bates, Heather Thatcher, Robert Grieg, Kenneth Hunter, Irene Tedrow. Adapted and directed by Albert Lewin. From Somerset Maugham's 'The Moon and Sixpence'. Producer, David L. Loew. Associate producer, Stanley Kramer. Production design, Gordon Wiles. Musical score, Dimitri Tiomkin. Photography, John F. Seitz. Art director, F. Paul Sylos. Editorial supervisor, George Hively. Film editor, Richard L. Van Enger. Paintings by Dolya Goutman. Dances and technical advice by Devi Dja and her Bali-Java Dancers. Previewed at Los Angeles, Sept. 7, 1942. Running time: 89 MINS.

This is a character study of a painter-genius told in terms of a gripping detective story. The probing analysis of the celebrated French artist in Somerset Maugham's long read and widely read book has its fascinating and faithful equivalent in the David L. Loew-Albert Lewin film. Inasmuch as 'The Moon and Sixpence' previously failed to reach the screen, after trial scripts from numerous adapters at various studios, chiefly because of the censorship angles, the Loew-Lewin offering must be accounted an achievement, especially since none of the savor of the novel has been lost. It is important and has distinction. For those who like the stimulation of a thoughtfully made picture off the beaten tracks, this will entertain. Boxoffice returns will be largely where they are found, probably very satisfactory without being sensational.

Showmanship will address its exploitation largely to feminine audiences. The picture will challenge, often irritate women. The film follows the book in its ironical treatment of female preoccupation with love and sex. It isn't smug, and it doesn't pursue the usual romantic formula. The overpowering rivalry of wife and of infatuee here is aesthetic passion in a man who discarded one after another in pursuit of something more vital to his searching genius.

Four women principals share the story and character-study focus with the painter, George Sanders, and the author, Herbert Marshall, who tells the tale in a first-person narrative of Albert Lewin's brilliant screenplay.

Molly Lamont enacts the outraged wife, coldly deserted by the painter so that he may pursue his art studies in Paris—hating the man with utter loathing because he left her, not for another woman, which she might have forgiven, but for an idea, a purpose. Doris Dudley is another Englishwoman, reserved, picked up from the flotsam of Paris by a Dutch painter who adores her and loses her to the genius he befriends and pampers in his studio home during the latter's illness. This one, the Blanche Stroeve of the novel, is irresistibly fascinated by the abysmal selfishness and boorishness of the guest. She ends her life when he casually tosses her aside in his psychotic concentration on art. Eleana Verdugo is charming and creates deeply moving pathos in her affection as the South Sea native maiden the painter marries in the final phase of his efforts to cast out the devils of the tormenting genius. With her he finds composure of spirit and perfection of his art in a happy paganism. This third woman demands nothing, bears him a child, worships him, is inconsolable when he dies a leper, burns his treasure of paintings as he had made her vow. The fourth woman is the very antithesis of the harassed, brooding man—with a gargantuan love of life, many times married, an insatiable devotion to pagan gaiety—the duenna who arranges the marriage of her niece to the painter because she, of all the women to touch his life, best understands his needs. This one is admirably played by Florence Bates.

Each fenine role is sharply etched by thorough comprehension of the

This is a moderate budget meller that develops dramatics on the night train between Lashio and Rangoon in Burma. It's a standard program entry that will slip through the regular subsequent datings as dual support to provide nominal amount of entertainment.

Original screenplay by Stuart Palmer sticks close to formula and regulation situations, and fails to display any originality. It's a 'Grand Hotel' setup aboard the train, with varied collection of characters introduced individually for weaving together into melodramatic melange that includes a murder, German spies and defense plans, romance and other familiar factors.

Nazi Spies George Zucco and Lionel Royce hop the train as it's pulling out of Lashio, trailing Charles Wagenheim, who's escaping with the map of defenses and munitions caches. Kent Taylor is an American engineer finishing two-year stretch on building the Burma road; Irene Hervey is en route to marry a rich Oriental; J. Edward Bromberg is the Burma inspector of police; Henry Stephenson is a British colonel; Oscar Shea is a missionary doctor returning from China, and Charlotte Wynters a writer-aviatrix with Nazi leanings.

Characters are well shuffled, aiming for suspenseful unfolding, but latter result is not too effectively accomplished. Plans are switched around like hot potatoes, and when Wagenheim is murdered, the plot switches to a rather dull whodunit. Romance is developed between Taylor and Miss Hervey, who apparently were sweethearts in Shanghai several years previously.

John Rawlins does the best he can on the directing end with a static script, but both episodes and characters are too loosely drawn for him to overcome the existing handicaps.

his group, with the idea of trying to agree on one.

Several arbiters are known to be under consideration, including Judge Irving Stahlmaster, George Cheney, Carey McWilliams and Louis Drukker. It also was reported there was a possibility the Guilders might offer to accept Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, who persuaded striking exchange workers to return to their job after negotiations had been bungled by eastern company representatives.

When the companies failed to make a deal for the exchange Collarites after switching the negotiations to New York, Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Union, warned the executives that concessions made by the SOEG were off and that the Guilders would revert to their original demands. The SOEG is demanding minimum wage scales ranging from $28.80 for typists to $72.80 for bookers.

SOEG officials expressed belief arbiter would be selected quickly, with possibility arbitration would be completed by end of week.

'Sixpence' Has Preem In Atlantic Village

Edgartown, Mass., Sept. 7.—With Somerset Maugham, author of the original novel, as guest of honor, and literary and show biz celebrities of Martha's Vineyard prominent in the audience, the world premiere of 'The Moon and Sixpence' was held here tonight in the town's only cinema.

Bunch of 26 New York and Boston scribes made the trip to this isolated Atlantic coast town for the launching. Maugham, who spoke before the picture was screened, expressed satisfaction with the way the screen version followed his original, lauding what he terms 'the screen's new technique', presumably referring to the several different narrators who handle the story transitions.

David L. Loew, producer; Albert Lewin, scripter and director, and United Artists hosted Maugham and other celebrities at a cocktail party and buffet supper in the yacht club after the preem. The author makes his home here during the summer and the press junket was arranged to take place before the summer trains were taken off schedule.

300 So. Cal. Theatres Now Are Official Issuers of Bonds

Some 300 film theatres of southern California officially became issuing agents for the U. S. Treasury Department over the weekend, distributing War Bonds and Stamps in the same manner as postoffices and banks. Heretofore, theatres could only take orders for Bonds, but could make immediately delivery of the Stamps. Move will aid theatre men to reach the $1,000,000 mark set for the industry's September drive. Effect will be felt for the duration, permitting purchases by people whose time does not permit visits to banks or other issuing agents. Theatres will sell day and night, including weekends and holidays.

It also was announced by Treasury representatives that already 5,000 theatres of the nation's 15,000 theatres have become issuing agents.

Si Fabian, of the War Activities Committee, announced by wire from New York that 11 recognized distributors have agreed to furnish all theatres with new films for special Bond drive premieres throughout September. Exhibs will be furnished prints as availability arises, any and all theatres getting the opportunity to do their part in the drive.

E. C. Hamilton and R. L. MacDonald, of the projectionists ' union; Carl Cooper, of the stagehands, and J. K. 'Spike' Wallace of the musicians union were added to Bob Poole's 10% payroll plan committee. They will help organize all unions, organizations and business houses in the plan during the month of September and for the duration.

COL. ZANUCK SAYS AU REVOIR AT 20TH'S REGIONAL SESSION

the work that would go on during his absence for the duration of the war.

Meeting was opened at 10 a.m. by Tom Connors, sales v.-p. of 20th-Fox, who asked for a minute of silence in respect of the memory of Sidney R. Kent, late president of 20th-Fox, who died last spring. Connors then proceeded to introduce the other company officials to the 60-odd assembled delegates and observers.

Thanking the assembled salesmen for their part in giving 20th-Fox one of its most profitable and productive years, W. C. Gehring, manager of the western division, asked that the peak now attained be held, expressing the hope all would get in and pitch regardless of working-hour limits formerly observed.

'This is no eight-hour, five-day business,' he said. 'In the struggle to keep our business at this peak, and at the same time aid our Government in every way possible, we must regard time and effort limits as things of the past.' Gehring also stressed the need for all salesmen to push with all their might the sale of War Bonds and the use of Government reels in theatres they visit. He added that they as film salesmen could feel fortunate in suffering no technilogical setback such as automobile salesmen and men in other fields that have felt the war hit their livelihoods.

Morning was taken up with shorts and newsreels, execs stating that increased rentals must be sought on this product, too. New sales policy of selling each group of shorts under separate orders as against wholesale peddling of all in a group, was announced. Terrytoons, Magis Carpets and 'Nancy' shorts will be sold in their separate groups henceforth, and at increased prices wherever possible. Men also were asked to increase sales of the Movietone newsreels. Exhibitors who have been taking one a week will be pepped up to taking the two weekly issues.

Following lunch the meeting opened again at 2:30 p.m., with afternoon devoted to sales policies on forthcoming product. Announcing the new season's lineup as the 'most impressive the company has ever been able to offer', Prexy Spyros Skouras said this demanded increased rentals, also, so that none of the 48 to 52 pictures planned for release would suffer through cutting the budget on some to increase it on others. Already 14 features are ready for marketing, said Skouras, and 15 others are in various stages of completion.

Hal Horne, eastern advertising and publicity director, told the salesman they would have the aid of the biggest advertising budget in the history of the company.

Meeting was adjourned until 9 a.m. today when they will go over the studio's entire feature output for the new season. Following discussion of product, sales angles on pictures will be worked out before men begin returning to their respective posts. Eastern execs are not expected to leave until tomorrow.

Leading delegates to the convention included Aubrey Schenck, executive aide to Spyros Skouras; W. J. Kupper, assistant to Tom Connors; W. C. Gehring, western division manager; John Wood, of March of Time; Ed Eschman and Harvey Day, of Terrytoons; Herman Wobber, Pacific Coast division manager; J. N. Dillon, L. A. branch manager; Harry Edmond, Seattle manager; G. M. Ballantine, Frisco manager; R. J. Morrison, Denver Manager; C. F. Powers, Portland manager, and Charles Walker, Salt Lake manager.

DOS May Plunk 500G For 'Life With Father'

New York, Sept. 7.—David O. Selznick is quoted as saying he's interested in obtaining the picture rights to 'Life With Father' and is willing to pay the $500,000 named by Oscar Serlin as the lowest down payment, plus percentage of the gross.

It is possible that other bids may raise the price of the film rights for the stage hit, which will pass the three-year run mark at the Empire here early in November. Among the stipulations for the sale is that the release of the film will be late in 1944.

FORD'S BATTLE OF MIDWAY THRILL-LADEN HAIR-RAISER

on the assault and the devastating counter-blows. These cameras, hidden in the sands of Midway beside the gun emplacements, were 16mm. with Technicolor film, now blown up to standard size for the nation's screens. You see them shake and shudder with the rocking concussions of nearby bomb explosions, the fire of the defending batteries, the pompoms aboard the steaming cruisers and carriers. Audiences will know they are feeling the imprint of close and deadly action from the standpoint of the men who fought it, in plane, on deck, in the gunpits, on the runways of the island.

The swift kaleidoscope of attack and defense, of hurtling planes and swinging guns, of blazing buildings and fuel tanks, of assaulted ships, of men concentrated on their deadly chores, of exploding inkspots in the sky searching for the charging pilots—these scenes made without time for setups and filmed at crazy angles by Lieut. Col. John Ford and his cameramen of the Navy have been assembled in orderly sequence, with explanatory narration where needed. The reel has sound and music; the swaggering corps song of the Marines, the roar of fierce and complicated action—sound, but the only special effects are those of the Marines and the Navy pilots and fighting men dishing it out.

Scene opens on Midway, the low, lonely coral reef with its Marine base, serene before the Jap attack, sparkling in a vivid sea as viewed from a plane. Marines march along the pier behind a color guard. Then comes the alarm — from patrol planes. The big U. S. bombers are trundled out along the runways. The fighting men go almost leisurely to their stations, in the gun pits, in the bombardier wells of the ships. They roar away . . . and the hair lifts on your scalp if you're a civilian looking at the film . . . a tension at the pit of the stomach.

Suddenly a swarm of fighters take off. Amidst the noisy clatter you hear the narrator's voice shouting, 'There go the Marines!' Another shout, 'Here come the Japs.' A squadron of planes, peeling off, heading down, slanting into the defending gunfire. A great hangar gets it with a bomb, starts to blaze. An oil tank is hit, raising a black plume. The Yanks are beginning to exact that terrific toll of enemy planes which rose to 300 officially credited by the Navy before the battle of Midway ended.

In this bedlam of sound and fury the camera swings often to watch for a few seconds the fighting style of two young Marines in a gunpit close by. They look up at the careening planes with grim intentness, swinging their gun swiftly, making it talk fast. They are tense, but not afraid. One thing will strike the beholder: on all the faces of the young Americans he will see in the picture, not one wears the look of fear. Several even grin at the cameras, in the thick of action — good American youngsters' grins. Yes, even the wounded coming in finally from rescue at sea. The Stars and Stripes runs up an empty flagmast on Midway in the smoke of battle. It whips in the wind against that black pall from the burning oil tank. Whatever civilians may need a lift in morale will get it from these tense scenes, these lads, many of whose names the narrator announces, and about whom a woman's voice behind the reel speaks of as sons of neighbors in American towns. We see how they can dish it out—in this impressive naval victory against big odds. There are quiet scenes of the flag-draped heroes going down to the sea for the last time—not many—and the national anthem for requiem. And a shot of Midway again, lowlying, palm-thatched, placid again in the Pacific defense barrier . . . the big greenish bombers of the Marines coming in again along the runways that were not damaged. And, finally, the Navy's official enumeration of what the engagement cost the Japs: four Jap carriers sunk, 28 Jap cruisers and destroyers sunk; 300 Jap aircraft destroyed.

War Activities Committee is distributing the film, 500 prints in Technicolor having already been ordered. More than 100 will be made up in 16mm. spools for schools, associations, institutions, and for the men in all services who will want to see how their comrades behaved and what they accomplished in the Battle of Midway.

WHITE space . . . that's our medium. Our job is to fill it with something that counts. Advancing the interests of clients, through the press, is our primary responsibility.

BEFORE going into action on a campaign, a staff meeting with the client determines the approach, plan and objective. Once approved by the client, the campaign moves into performance. Stick to the plan, relating and connecting all stories to the main strategy.

THIS office has a healthy respect for truth. Make it the basis of all campaigns. We're a profession . . . not a racket. We take pride in our craft, and in our industry.

A ONE paragraph story, which makes our point, is worth a column which doesn't. Stunts which create interest in our client . . . fine. Stunts which focus attention upon the stunt or upon this office . . . forget.

MAKE all contacts with press, public, and client human and understanding. Socializing with a client is no substitute for stories in print.

ORGANIZING policies: (1) This office is geared to handle any type of client, personal, production, or institutional. (2) All business relationships between client and office are in strict confidence unless otherwise requested. (3) Members of the staff take no credit for publicity breaks other than those created and planted by this organization. Seven Musicals Take Down Beat At Col On New Season

Columbia is at high pitch on musicals, taking the lead among the majors in number of comi-cleffings for the 1942-43 program, with three additional ones going into the hoppers within the next two months. Total of seven are slated for release for the season. One is completed, another winding up.

Trio being prepped are 'Two Senoritas From Chicago', 'Tune of Today' and 'Redhead From Rio'. Heading the musicomedy program is the Fred Astaire-Rita Hayworth starrer, 'You Were Never Lovelier', having a Jerome Kern score and lyrics by Johnny Mercer. Still before the cameras is 'Something To Shout About', with Cole Porter music and cast headed by Don Ameche, Janet Blair, Jack Oakie and William Gaxton. Next to start will be 'The Cover Girl,' in Technicolor.

'Reveille For Beverly', starting next month, has number of musical specialties already recorded, with a half-dozen name bands to be featured.

Obituary

J. WALTER RUBEN

Private funeral services for J. Walter Ruben, 43, film producer, were held yesterday at Forest Lawn, with the Rev. John Bryant, Episcopal chaplain of the Army Air Force at Santa Ana, officiating. Cremation followed. Ruben died Friday, Sept. 4, of pneumonia at Good Samaritan hospital, following a three-week illness. Ruben entered the hospital last Aug. 16. At his bedside was his wife, Virginia Bruce, whom he first met when he directed her in a Metro picture in 1937.

Graduate of Columbia University, where he studied psychology and drama, Ruben started his professional career as a stage actor, later moving into fiction writing, publicity and film scripting. As a screen writer, starting in 1924, he turned in a long list of plays, among which were 'Under the Tonto Rim', 'Dead Game', 'Check and Double Check', 'No Other Woman'.

As a director he piloted 'Java Head', 'Riff Raff', 'Trouble For Two', 'Old Hutch', 'The Old Soak', 'Thoroughbreds Don't Cry' and 'Bad Man of Brimstone', among others. Upped to a producership in 1939, he became identified with the Wallace Beery films and the 'Maisie' series. Among his productions were 'Thunder Afloat', 'Congo Maisie', 'Flight Command', '20-Mule Team', 'Gold Rush Maisie' and 'Maisie Was a Lady'. His last picture, still to be shown, was a biography of Andrew Johnson, successor to Abraham Lincoln as President, titled 'Tennessee Johnson'.

Surviving, in addition to Miss Bruce, is a year-old son, Christopher Briggs Ruben; a stepdaughter, Susan Ann Gilbert; a sister, Mrs. Morton Freund; a brother, Arthur Ruben, and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Max Ruben.

BERNARD B. HYMAN

Bernard B. Hyman, 47, Metro production executive, died last night at his Mandeville Canyon home as the result of a heart attack. Stricken several weeks ago, Hyman's illness was not thought to have been serious. Hyman entered the film business in 1919 after serving in World War I as a captain in the Army tank corps. He started as a film salesman for Triangle, becoming company's branch manager in New Orleans and then Omaha.

He turned to production end of pictures, joining Universal's script department. After his original, 'Confidence', produced in 1921, was a success, he was made editorial assistant to Irving Thalberg, and when latter moved to Metro in 1924 Hyman went along as a producer. Among his credits were 'The Cossacks', 'Stanboul Quest', 'Red Dust', 'Rasputin and the Empress', 'Trader Horn', 'San Francisco', 'Conquest' and 'The Great Waltz'.

He is survived by his widow, Lula; his mother, Ann Hyman, and a brother, Arthur.

HARRISON GREY FISKE

Harrison Grey Fiske, 81, first theatrical producer to introduce the plays of Hendrik Ibsen to the American stage, was found dead in his one-room apartment in New York Sept. 3, surrounded by portraits of his actress wife, Minnie Madern Fiske, who had preceded him to the grave by nearly a score of years. Fiske was a leader in the so-called highbrow era of American stage production and started a cycle of 'problem plays', dealing with psychology rather than action.

character, both in the playing and the direction.

George Sanders, shrewdly selected, leaves memorable impression of the tormented painter who had 'no time for love', whose obsession with the art and substance of painting made him often inhuman and whose callous treatment of his women and his friends will earn him much scorching hatred from audiences, until toward the last his monstrous selfishness is clarified, if not entirely condoned by the writer, and the character mellows under Ata's wifely devotion. A brilliant, completely honest achievement by Sanders.

Herbert Marshall gives equal validity to the role of the author, speaking as Maugham, in his puzzled, often bitter efforts to comprehend the painter—searching for the key to his character as a detective might probe a mystery. As a writer, the author character is legitimately permitted to follow the painter from haunt to haunt; as an acquaintance, to pry into his actions and his motives, which maintains an intact continuity of time, place and mood.

Flawless is the performance of Steve Geray as the mild and generous Dutch painter, a plodder, abominally treated by Sanders, who steals his wife. But Geray understands that Saunders is not to be measured by ordinary standards—a gem of fine acting. Albert Basserman is excellent as the island doctor who relates part of the painter's story. Heather Thatcher, Eric Blore, Robert Grieg, Kenneth Hunter and Irene Tedrow ably handle other top support assignments.

Credit for the quality and appeal of the picture goes largely to Albert Lewin. The script is a shrewdly calculated device for preserving the elements which are presumed to have given Maugham's book its long life. 'The Moon and Sixpence' is Lewin's first directorial effort. It gives him immediate prestige, with a demonstrated fitness in skill, resourcefulness, taste and showmanship to stand among the top directors. Every entertainment element of the material is comprehended and he states each with clarity and distinction.

Production is smart and elegant, has pictorial grace from the cameras of John F. Seitz; excellent musical complement from the score by Dimitri Tiomkin; interesting production design by Gordon Wiles; tasteful art direction by F. Paul Sylos, and the arresting dances by DeviDja and her Bali-Java Dancers in the sensuously beautiful scenes of the island wedding celebration. For the discriminating, certainly, the picture will be wholly a delight.

F-WC Managers Brush Up On Defense Regulations

Regular Thursday meeting of Theatre Defense Bureau will not be held this week due to board members being tied up on industry's $1,000,000,000 September War Bond drive. However, Rodney Pantages and Tom Bailey, board members, will meet with Fox West Coast city and district managers on Tuesday for a 'freshening-up' session to further instruct men on TDB regulations in an effort to have the Bureau's 225 participating theatres in shipshape before the month is out.

Issuing of certificates of excellence to theatres conforming 100% with Bureau's aims also is being sluffed due to the drive. Men on investigating flying squads also are busy on the drive and unable to complete inspections.

Bureau this week settled with bowling alley owners for latter to form their own Defense Bureau, relieving TDB of responsibility for anything but theatres. Cabaret owners formed their own body this week, too. Max Sinker heads alleyites.

Sanders Again Braving Wrath To Nix Villainy

George Sanders has told friends that he probably will go on suspension again at 20th-Fox for intended refusal to play in 'The Immortal Sergeant.' Actor wants to break the long identification with roles of villainy. He took a previous suspension on refusal to accept the title part in 'The Undying Monster.' Only straight role he has had, prior to 'Moon and Sixpence' on loanout to David L. Loew-Albert Lewin, was in 'Rage In Heaven.'

Roy Rogers, Republic western star, has been signed by Madison Square Garden Corp. for featured appearances at the 17th annual world's championship rodeo, which goes into the New York Garden for 19 days starting Oct. 7. Rodeo later goes to Boston for two weeks and Buffalo for nine days.

Republic will tie in publicity blasts of the Rogers rodeo appearances with simultaneous release of his first special, 'Heart of the Golden West', which goes before the cameras shortly. Smiley Burnette draws featured spot in the picture.

Play Review

SWING SHIFT REVELS

Harry Abbott, Jr., took over the Hollywood Music Box, renamed it Abbott's Music Box theatre, and reopened it Saturday night with what he calls 'A musical comedy revue highly scrambled,' under the title of 'Swing Shift Revels'.

We heartily agreed with his programming the endeavor in one respect—'scrambled'. It was all of that, and two well scrambled.

Abbott, a brother of Bud Abbott of Abbott and Costello, from what one saw Saturday night, put a lot of coin into this one, as well as a lot of overhead. It's to do two shows nightly, one at 8:30 and the other a swing shift performance at 1:30 a.m. The top is $2.20. For that coin Abbott has nothing to offer. And as far as trade for the swing show is concerned, that's dubious thinking. There are none of the defense plant workers going to plank down $2.20 for a flesh show after doing an eight-hour chore.

However, for his ambitious try, Abbott should not get a debit in the credit line, though likely he will get it in the bankroll. His nut is heavy and in this 900-seater it's a practical impossibility even if he had something outside of the 'scrambled' effort to make both ends meet.

With what he had on the stage Saturday night, and the matter of its cost, the general operating nut would be around $8,000 a week. That's a lot of coin to get into this house.

Opening night the show ran two hours and 40 minutes. It had been rehearsed for a long period. On short notice prior to opening seven principals were eliminated from the cast, blackouts and numbers cut, and specialty acts added. But, nevertheless, it was a wearisome evening for the audience. The show just didn't make spontaneous contact, though a few of the specialties got over in good shape. But the blackouts and chorus numbers just were on the negative side, and became tedious at times.

Show boasts a good comic in the person of Joe De Rita, who has the mannerisms and somewhat the style of Victor Moore, and who at times is a subdued Lou Costello. He carries the comedy brunt, with sketches and scenes that were not sufficiently polished to get the audience response. But the talent is there. A straight man, Ray Trent, is a good foil for him, and bolsters Herbie Barris, eccentric comic, who just flounders around and cannot get over the tags of his situations. The femme contingent of principals, as far as performance is concerned, were just present.

Feature of the show is Carmen D'Antonio, who does an African dance, which seemed to excite no one but herself, though the purport is seductiveness.

Specialty turns were of standard entertainment calibre and highlights of the show were contributed by Step Brothers, colored rhythm and swing dancers; Three Caprino Sisters, chanters; Darby and Ardell, perch gymnasts; Marvis Nimms, tap terpsichorist, and Fid Gordon, comedy fiddler.

The chorus and ensemble numbers were beautifully mounted and costumed. This element cost coin. But the execution of the dance, chant and drill routines of the 24 gals and six chorus boys were sad. The kids either were over-rehearsed and fatigued, they might have forgotten their routines, or they might have been rehearsed in a negligible way, as appeared most obvious from the performance. It was too bad for coin to be expended as lavishly as it was on an ensemble to get such poor results.

All in all, 'Swing Shift Revels' is not $2.20 entertainment. It's just altruism on the part of a producer putting people on the payroll to reduce the size of the bankroll. Shows are to change here every two weeks, and whether they will also depends on the bankroll.

10 MORE SCREEN CELEBS TAKE OFF TODAY; 29 SPARK DRIVE

Marking the largest exodus of stars from Hollywood since opening of the nationwide 'Stars Over America' tours more than a week ago, 10 additional screen celebrity-Bond sellers will entrain today for the middle west and east. With Bond sales over the Labor Day weekend topping advance estimates in every situation where rallies were scheduled, the new contingent will increase to 29 the number of players who have gone into the field to spark the industry-led 'Salute To Our Heroes' month campaign. And a dozen more stars are to be assigned routes within the next few days.

Players leaving today are: Bette Davis, accompanied by Cameron Shipp as tour manager, leaves to conduct rallies in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Sedalia, Joplin and Springfield, Mo.; Tulsa, Muskogee and Oklahoma City, Okla.

Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey and Hugh Herbert, accompanied by Fred Stanley as tour manager, open a tour in Toledo and Cleveland and work through Ohio, with a closing rally in Covington, Ky.

Gene Tierney and Chester Morris, who with Bob Sunderland as tour manager, go to Madison, Wis., and continue on tour through parts of Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky.

Richard Arlen, Laurel and Hardy and Peggy Diggins, accompanied by Len Boyd, go to Helena, Butte and Billings, Mont., and cities in North Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa.

Three other stars, Dorothy Lamour, Jane Wyman and John Payne, left Hollywood over the weekend. Miss Lamour, accompanied by Murphy McHenry as tour manager, will open in Fall River, Mass. Miss Wyman and Payne, accompanied by Gabe York as tour manager, will be met at Newport News, Va., by Jinx Falkenburg, from which city the trio will launch a tour through Virginia and the Carolinas.

Janet Gaynor, Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce were lined up last night by the Hollywood Victory Committee to follow Bette Davis on Route 2, opening Sept. 16 at Amarillo, Tex.

Joan Blondell and Dick Powell will appear at a rally tomorrow night at a nearby beach city.

Reports received during the weekend by Charles Einfeld, field director of the 'Stars Over America' tours, disclosed that the film Bond emissaries are being received enthusiastically everywhere and are being given strong support in their efforts to help the Treasury Department pile up a billion dollars in Bond sales during September.

In Memphis, where only 30% of the employes had signed up under the payroll savings plan, Edward Arnold and Frances Dee addressed a luncheon meeting of 1,000 employers and personnel directors at the Peabody hotel. Joseph Gibson, state administrator for the Treasury Department, expressed himself as elated over the overwhelming response of employers to the stars' appeal for cooperation.

At Mt. Vernon, Ill., Miss Dee auctioned her evening wrap for $6,000 in bonds, and Arnold's suspenders brought $1,000.

Similar reports were received from all the other cities visited, with James Cagney, Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford, Virginia Gilmore, Walter Pidgeon, Adolphe Menjou, Joan Leslie, Hedy Lamarr, Ronald Colman and others piling up huge sales totals.

Rathvon and Koerner Setting Up Prod for 15 RKO Biggies

Properties and personalities for 15 top-budget pictures, with allocations to range from $750,000 to $1,000,000 each, are being set up as backbone of the new season's program for RKO at executive conferences between Peter Rathvon, prexy, and Charles D. Koerner, vice-prez in charge of studio.

Rathvon will be here for another week. With Koerner he has looked at 'Once Upon a Honeymoon', 'The Navy Comes Through', 'Seven Days' Leave', 'The Falcon's Brother', 'Cat People' and 'Seven Miles From Alcatraz'.

S. F. First Runs Do Big Weekend Business

San Francisco, Sept. 7.—Hypoed by Labor Day crowds and the large number of socko pix on display, first run theatre biz is hitting the jackpot here currently.

Terrific grosses estimated include $23,000 for 'Holiday Inn' at Paramount, $19,500 for 'Pardon My Sarong' at the Orpheum, $23,000 for 'The Pied Piper' riding the Fox asbestos, $22,000 for second week of the Warfield's 'Tales of Manhattan' and $18,000 on fourth and final stanza of 'The Pride of the Yankees' with stage show at Golden Gate.

Paramount, Warfield and Golden Gate upped prices for current shows.

Sam Bronston 'Mitchell' For Columbia, Not UA

Samuel Bronston says he will produce 'Billy Mitchell' for Columbia, not for United Artists as carried in some trade reports. Contracts were reported signed over the week-end.

'Life of Jack London' will be made for UA by Bronston after he completes 'City Without Men' with B. P. Schulberg at Columbia. 'Billy Mitchell' is from the official biography by Isaac Don Levine, approved by family of the U. S. Army prophet of air potency in war.

Wm. Perlberg Sigs New Termer at 20th-Fox

William Perlberg has been signed to a new term contract at 20th-Fox. Producer joined studio in December, 1940, handling the initial Jack Benny feature, 'Charlie's Aunt,' and is now completing a second Benny starrer, 'The Meanest Man in the World.' His new production lineup includes 'The Song of Bernadette,' 'In Old Coney Island,' 'Army Wife,' 'Police Gazette' and 'Jean Valjean.'

For Me and My Gal

(Musical)

Metro release of Arthur Freed production. Stars Judy Garland. Features George Murphy, Gene Kelly, Marta Eggerth, Ben Blue, Horace McNally. Balance of cast: Richard Quine, Lucille Norman, Keenan Wynn. Directed by Busby Berkeley. Screenplay by Richard Sherman, Fred Finklehoffe and Sid Silvers. Original story by Howard Emmett Rogers. Song, 'For Me and My Gal', George W. Meyer, Edgar Leslie, E. Ray Goetz. Musical adaptation, Roger Edens. Musical direction, Georgie Stoll. Dance direction, Bobby Connolly. Vocals and orchestrations, Conrad Salinger, George Bassman and Leo Arnaud. Photography, William Daniels. Musical presentation, Merrill Pye. Film editor, Ben Lewis. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 8, 1942. Running time: 100 MINS.

In the array of forthcoming musicals, not directly concerned with the war but sounding a patriotic note—a producer's 'must'—this lavish tunefilm offers a big ration of pleasant entertainment. In common with most musicals, it doesn't reach great importance, is designed to go in one ear and out the other for momentary relief from grim and worrisome matters. It will have moderate success in the generality of playdates.

Judy Garland continues to gain impressiveness as a persuasive and skillful actress, capable of getting audience heart-tugs as well as admiration for her singing and dancing. Her love scenes with Gene Kelly are beautifully played in a variety of moods as the two work out their ambition to make the vaudeville bigtime in a story about stage ambition. Kelly's share in these moving incidents of a troubled romance is equally creditable and gives him important status for future assignments of note. He can act excellently as well as hoof. George Murphy adds a solid third angle as the trouper who gives Kelly—selfish, arrogant and utterly opportunist—the breaks in the love affair. Ben Blue's characteristic comedy provides an enjoyable note of clowning. Marta Eggerth, Horace McNally, Richard Quine, Lucille Norman, Keenan Wynn handle their assignments capably.

The warm and human story scripted by Richard Sherman, Fred Finklehoffe and Sid Silvers from Howard Emmett Rogers' original, has Kelly's overweening ambition to get billing at the Palace theatre, at any cost, lead him into a situation where he deliberately injures his hand to get deferment in the first World War draft. Branded a coward, his life almost wrecked, he redeems himself finally in France with an heroic act. A volume of music is woven in and through romantic narrative, legitimately spotted. There are 21 credited song numbers. Themer is 'For Me and My Gal', by George W. Meyers, Edgar Leslie and E. Ray Goetz. Miss Garland delivers her share of the songs with spirit and feeling. Marta Eggerth and Lucille Norman also carry their numbers effectively.

Busby Berkeley directs with more emphasis on the emotional and dramatic elements and less on the purely pictorial features than formerly, a switch much to his credit. Arthur Freed gives the production lavish portion of all the entertainment material, perhaps an overdose of songs toward the end when the story has run down and calls for a windup considerably before the collection of World War I songs had been sung.

Eyes In the Night

(Melodrama)

Metro production. Features Edward Arnold, Ann Harding, Donna Reed, Horace McNally, Katherine Emery, Allen Jenkins, Stanley C. Ridges, Reginald Denny, John Emery, Rosemary de Camp, Erik Rolf, Barry Nelson, Reginald Sheffield, Steve Geray, Mantan Moreland, Friday (canine). Director, Fred Zinnemann. Producer, Jack Chertok. Screenplay, Guy Trosper, Howard Emmett Rogers. Based on a book by Baynard Kendrick. Photography, Robert Planck, Charles Lawton. Musical score, Lennie Hayton. Recording director, Douglas Shearer. Art director, Cedric Gibbons; associate, Stan Rogers. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis; associate, Edward J. Boyle. Gowns, Kalloch. Film editor, Ralph Winters. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 8, 1942. Running time: 80 MINS.

'Eyes In the Night' is a capable whodunit, having novelty of a blind detective and his educated seeing eye dog to hold the interest. It also marks the screen return of Ann Harding after a long absence. Picture's 80 minutes' running time is away overlength, but the performances and general interest generated aim it handily for supporting spots in the de luxe theatres, with its best chances being in the smaller houses.

Plot pits the detective and his dog against an espionage gang which is trying to steal a new military discovery perfected by Reginald Denny, husband of Miss Harding. Edward Arnold as the gumshoe is drawn in by Miss Harding to help break up the winter-summer romance between John Emery and Donna Reed, her step-daughter. It doesn't take him long to find the plot is deeper than any romantic trifling might indicate, and Friday, the canine, and Arnold prove too much for the spy skullduggery, although the going does look tough for the side of right for a time.

Arnold makes a grand job of his assignment, properly valuing it at all times. Miss Harding's screen return doesn't give her too strong a role, but it is competently performed. Donna Reed continues to improve, showing well as the step-daughter. Katherine Emery, chief spy, and Horace McNally, Stanley C. Ridges, John Emery, Rosemary de Camp, Erik Rolf, Barry Nelson and other members of her crew do their assignments ably. Allen Jenkins, Arnold's handyman, and Mantan Moreland, his butler, work in brief chuckles. Standout, of course, is the work of Friday, playing himself as Arnold's eyes.

Fred Zinnemann instilled plenty of mysterious suspense with his direction of the Guy Trosper-Howard Emmett Rogers script, based on a book by Baynard Kendrick. Jack Chertok's production mounting is capably handled. The co-camera work of Robert Planck and Charles Lawton, the musical score by Lennie Hayton and other contributions are first-rate.

Technical contributions all are creditable.

Indies Claim Extended First Run Showings Milking Field

Contending that extended run of 'Mrs. Miniver' in Fox-West Coast first run houses virtually constitutes an exclusive run, indie exhibs are beefing about further continuance of film at Carthay Circle. Picture is now near its 8th week and no information is forthcoming from Metro on when it may be expected to break to the 40c houses, and is upsetting normal clearance. Stay at Carthay followed five-theatre initial week and day-and-dating at three others for second week before marathon at Carthay.

Indies see film being milked in L. A. before subsequent runs get a crack at it. Not so much concerned with that actuality though, they fear the precedent it sets being followed by others. 20th Century-Fox, it's reported, sought a seven-house preem for 'Tales of Manhattan,' wanting to include Beverly Hills and Westwood, in addition to the five first runs here.

Normal clearance is 21 days after the first five weeks, with approximately two weeks elapsing on every five cent reduction from there on. With film not breaking as it should, indies also fear August rentals. They estimate that the 600,000 adult population of L. A. could be seated during the first six weeks of playing the Chinese, State, Carthay, UA and Wilshire, plus a week at the 18 circuit 40c break houses next in line. Houses could seat 325,000 playing one capacity show a day during the period it has been playing. With two shows a day figure doubles and could mean that film had played to all available patrons.

With rubber problems and dim-out keeping some patrons in neighborhoods, indies feel that the public is annoyed, too, with the delay and eventual tossing of the bone.

Independent Theatre owners of Southern California states it is opposed to the five-theatre plan and extension on grounds of it being a moveover that establishes dangerous precedent to indies. I.T.O. feels idea is shortsighted that keeps a film confined when the public in anxious for it. Needed rapid turnover and return of investment in these changing times should cause distributors to do otherwise, they feel.

Industry Sept. Bond Drive Keeps Pace With U. S. Quota

New York, Sept. 8.—Daily War Bond sales are running about $7,000,000 under average necessary to hit the industry's billion dollar goal, but hitting the Treasury's official September quota of $775,000,000. The Treasury figures, however, are made up only after cash is deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank and are five days behind actual sales.

Bond sales reported to the Treasury to Sept. 5 are: First day, $19,162,000; second, $24,558,000; third, $27,702,000; fourth, $28,482,000; fifth, $29,880,000. On this basis, sales hit average of $26,000,000 daily for estimated monthly total of $780,000,000, instead of daily average of $33,000,000 required to hit the billion dollar mark.

With late reports on the campaign continuing in encouraging vein, and some circuits reporting sales topping expectations, field workers have been advised to ignore the Treasury's lower goal and shoot for the billion. In the meantime, one notable effect resulting from the impetus provided by the film industry drive has been increased Bond buying in factories and war production plants which have stepped into line on the 10% payroll savings plan.

Treasury officials state that, even if the billion dollar mark is not reached, the film drive will be considered a success if the industry efforts raise the August pay-deduction average of 5.3% up closer to the 10% goal.

Loew's reported $1,150,169 Bond sales in its New York theatres, plus $750,000 additional for the out-of-town units of the circuit, in the first seven days ending Monday.

Abbott's 'Swing' Gets Three Way Slicing

Harry Abbott's 'Swing Shift Revels,' ushered into the Hollywood Music Box last Saturday night gets a three way slicing. Producer found the Hollywood nighthawks decidedly scarce with no customers for his 1:30 flesh show, so latter is out immediately, except on Friday and Saturday. The $2.20 price scale gets clipping to $1.65 and $1.10 through the week nights, but holds for Saturday shows.

Carmen D'Antonio's dance in which chorines stand for whip cracking—is also out. Strange tale coming from back stage concerns one chorus boy who suffered a head accident Sunday night. Abbott states the cast member slipped during a dance routine, but the boy returned for later scenes. Other backstage reports, however, mentioned tantrums by one performer—a too aggressive stage slap in which the chorus boy's eye was apparently cut by a ring and medical treatment was necessary. Further, the show started with six chorus men and finished with five.

OWI SURVEY WARNS H'WOOD ON WAR FILM EXCESS

these last several months under supervision of Nelson H. Poynter, in charge of the Hollywood office, and his assistant, Warren H. Pierce. Twain are old-time brothers-in-arms drafted from the executive forces of Scripps-Howard and the Chicago Times.

Despite this overemphasis on the more exciting war themes, the industry generally 'is moving steadily in the direction of giving the American public a better understanding of the nation's war problems,' the Bureau finds, and more especially is this true in the last few months.

Backing up its advice pertaining to fighting films, survey points out as follows:

'Despite the improvement in the overall balance of the motion picture war program, there still exist many gaps which are in serious need of being filled in from the standpoint of war information. The emphasis in the entire industry is still too much on the exciting blood-and-thunder aspects of the war and too little on the equally important problems arising in civilian life and dealing with the basic issues of the war and the peace to come.

'The Office of War Information is hopeful that such gaps will be closed not only by the production of new pictures dealing with these subjects, but also by persuading producers and distributors of the necessity of juggling releasing dates so as to present a better balanced program for the theatre-going public.'

Basis of the Motion Picture Bureau's survey was the six general categories set forth in the Government Information Manual, namely, (1) Issues of the war—what we are fighting for; (2) The Enemy, his ideology, objectives, and tactics; (3) The United Nations; (4) The Production Front; (5) The Home Front, and (6) The Fighting Forces.

As of this date (8), 68 Fighting Front features are in preparation, about half of them actual fighting pictures. Sixteen have been released and six await release, half of the 22 being actual combat films. Compare this showing with features in the other five general categories:

WAR ISSUES — Two released, 'This Above All' and 'Somewhere I'll Find You'; two in preparation, 'The Last Best Hope' (20th-Fox); 'Mary Smith, U.S.A.' (Metro).

THE ENEMY—34 released as of the end of August, so many that, to quote an individual who aided in the survey, 'the American people are finding a spy under every bed' and the public has been given an exaggerated idea of the spy menace. It may be said also that Hollywood has done itself little credit for the most part in too many of these spy mellers, films showing little originality or distinction of any kind.

UNITED NATIONS—Covered by only three films released and three awaiting release, but 'this all-important subject has been tackled with great vigor by the industry and 46 pictures of this nature are now in preparation'. 'Mrs. Miniver' (Metro) is the outstanding to date example of this category, with 'The Wife Takes a Flier' (Columbia) also coming in for praise. U's 'Destination Unknown' is coming up, while in preparation are such features as 'The Commandos Come At Dawn' (Col), 'Flying Tigers' (Rep), 'Four From Coventry' (Par), 'I Escaped From Hong Kong' (20th-Fox), 'Journey For Margaret' (Metro), 'Lady From Chungking' (Stern), 'Night Plane to Chungking' (Par), and many others, including subjects dealing with Russia and other nations which remain the confidential information of the various studios. Under the subheading of Conquered Nations, 20th-Fox's 'The Pied Piper' also falls into this category.

PRODUCTION FRONT—This category has four features showing, two shorts, with one feature and two shorts awaiting release, and a half-dozen features in preparation.

However, coming up are some important productions, such as 'Pittsburgh' (U), 'Swing Shift' (PRC), 'Liberty Ships' (Metro) and King Vidor's forthcoming film dealing with production in and around Detroit. 'Wings For the Eagle' (WB) is an example of this category now in general release.

HOME FRONT—Category has had three features released, five awaiting release, while 16 are in preparation, with seven shorts showing and 28 in preparation or awaiting release. Important titles are 'The War Against Mrs. Hadley' (Metro), 'He Hired the Boss' (20th-Fox) and 'You Can't Escape Forever' (WB).

THE FIGHTING FORCES — OWI survey has a number of sub-classifications including Recruiting, Induction and Training, Medical Corps, Women's Army, Merchant Marine, and Actual Combat. Important pix soon to be released are 'For Me and My Gal' (Metro), 'Iceland' (20th-Fox) and 'Wake Island' (Par), lately out in the first runs. Others already seen include 'To the Shores of Tripoli' (20th-Fox), 'The Fleet's In' (Par) and 'True To the Army' (Par). Coming up are many others, so many, in fact, that on this subject the OWI deposes in the following warning:

'There are at present 68 features of this nature in preparation, about half of which are combat pictures. The OWI has expressed concern over the great number of such features in production or contemplated. Experience in England has shown that the public shortly becomes surfeited with too many combat pictures and demands an opportunity to go to the theatre without having to witness bloodshed and fighting during its relaxation period. This has resulted in England in a very sharp trend against all war pictures.

'Strictly from the viewpoint of contributing the most toward the war effort, the OWI expressed the belief that more pictures dealing with the Issues, the Home Front, and the Production Front, admittedly much more difficult to dramatize, would be useful. The public does not yet have a clear idea of what the war is all about nor of the amount of individual sacrifice and cooperation which will be required for every citizen in order to achieve victory.

'A survey of all Federal agencies in any way connected with the war effort clearly points to an increasing impact of the war upon the average citizen. In the next six to 12 months virtually every able-bodied male, including many with dependents, will be in the armed forces.'

Pointing up Hollywood's obligation and Hollywood's opportunity, the survey asserts 'the demands for sacrifice which will be made on every American family in the next year is bound to create strange new tensions within American life. Frictions will arise within groups and between groups. At that time the greatest strain will be thrown upon American morale. The OWI believes an understanding of the necessity for such sacrifices as will have to be made can be greatly aided by the motion picture industry, and that such aid would be an invaluable contribution toward winning the war.'

Survey finds the film industry has failed in presenting pictures showing adequately the vigor and power with which our people have met and are meeting their crisis, and at the same time preserving their idealistic attitude toward World War issues. There is a further serious indictment of the screen biz in the emphasis placed upon its failure to portray for the benefit of foreign peoples 'the virtues of American life in such a way as to give our Allies a genuine understanding of the American people.'

Concluding, the OWI survey envisages a Hollywood future with 'fewer and better war pictures' and 'with a better overall balance of important topics to be covered.' It would be a very good thing, the survey states, 'if many features which now drag in the war were to abandon the war theme entirely and become purely escape pictures.'

Govt. $200 Ceiling May Doom Wildcat Theatre Projects

New building ceiling of $200 announced by the government will probably stymie the building of improvised theatres from abandoned markets, garages, etc., and has those who were engaged in such building programs now looking for new methods of cashing in on boom areas.

Trend of late had been for exhibs to alter the easily convertible barn-like structures so long as they were permitted to spend up to $5,000. Now that repairs only may exceed the $200 figure, additions and other structural changes not included, four-wall, open air shows, and similar quickie theatre operations appear doomed.

20th Police Discuss Six-day Week

Policemen at 20th-Fox are debating a proposal to request a six-day week, payoff for sixth day to be made in War Bonds. Question was argued for two hours yesterday at a membership meeting of the 20th Century-Fox Police Guild, but officers said no definite decision was reached and that it would have to be discussed further before being taken up with studio executives.

Officers are now on a five-day week. It was first suggested straight request for six-day week be made in order that members could make more money to meet rising living costs. It later was proposed that workers offer to take pay for additional day in War Bonds, apparently in belief such a proposal would be more likely to meet approval of company.

Birdwell Gang Emcees 'Outlaw' Roadshow

Road showing of Howard Hughes' 'The Outlaw' will be handled by Russell Birdwell and associates who are to make all arrangements, leasing theatres, setting up campaigns, planning and conducting openings.

Jane Russell and Jack Beutel, principals, will make appearance at each opening. First roadshowing will be late in October, with details still to be set.

Walter Wanger yesterday contributed 300 classical volumes to the library of the Motion Picture Relief Fund's Country House in Woodland Hills. Book donations have almost reached the 1,000 mark and are expected to far exceed that figure by Sept. 27 when the Country House will be officially dedicated.

FILM STARS INVADE STIX WITH WAR BOND APPEALS

Hollywood's 'Stars Over America' headliners today will largely desert major cities on their schedules to launch a series of rallies in agricultural districts and manufacturing centers, in an effort to loosen the purse strings of communities as yet untouched by organized drives in support of the national War Bond effort. Reports to date from tour managers disclosed surprising Bond buying strength in territories off the beaten trail, according to Charles Einfeld, field director of the tours. He said particular attention will be paid to such districts during the remainder of the campaign.

Areas listed on the screen star-Bond sellers' itineraries during the next two or three days include such centers as Worcester, Mass., and Woonsocket, Providence and Pawtucket, R. I. These districts will be visited by Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford and Virginia Gilmore. Other sections are Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton, Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, Pa., on the schedule of Irene Dunne and Walter Abel; Harrisonburg, Port Royal, Winchester, Fredericksburg and Arlington, Va., to be visited by Greer Garson; Jackson and Battle Creek, Mich., for James Cagney, and Dubuque, Clinton and Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island and Moline, Ill., for Edward Arnold and Frances Dee.

Last-minute changes in train reservations delayed the departure from Hollywood of Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey and Hugh Herbert until today. They train out at noon for Toledo. It also was stated that departure of Laurel and Hardy would be delayed a few days because of a severe cold contracted by Oliver Hardy. Walter Pidgeon, Joan Leslie and Adolphe Menjou, who close their tour at Spokane today, will substitute for them, moving into Butte, Billings, Mont., and Bismarck, N. D. It was believed Laurel and Hardy would be able to take over by that time.

Typical of results being achieved by 'Stars Over America' personalities in industrial centers were reports wired to Einfeld yesterday by tour managers.

Visit of Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford and Virginia Gilmore to plants in Waterbury, Conn., boosted membership in the 10% payroll savings group from an average of 69% to 100%. A rally in New Britain's city park, with returns incomplete, went above $1,15,000 in Bond sales.

From the Tacoma shipyards, where Walter Pidgeon, Adolphe Menjou and Joan Leslie attended the launching of the Kern, Bond sale pledges totaling $461,330 were reported. A rally at Tacoma's Liberty Center produced $21,365, with an additional $26,400 in Bond sales being credited to the auctioning of a soldier's uniform by Menjou.

James Cagney, before a crowd of 10,000 CIO and AFofL workers meeting together for the first time at Mason, Mich., told of the dramatic rescue of General MacArthur from the Philippines and secured Bond pledges of $325,000. In an auction to workers, his first autograph brought a $1,000 Bond subscription.

With Edward Arnold and Frances Dee as honor guests, Hannibal, Mo., smashed its month's quota of $153,000 by hanging up $175,000 in Bond sales, with three weeks left to go. A Bond rally headed by the same pair in Burlington's civic auditorium scaled at $150,000, was a sellout.

Greer Garson was honor guest at a brilliant dinner at the Farmington Club in Charlottesville, Va., where cash Bond sales totaled $345,000. Similar reports were received from all cities visited.

tories financing the latter's pictures to strike off prints for state right exchanges to enable those financially interested to recoup production investments.

Ruling on the pre-freezing film does not affect WPB order that raw film distribs cannot sell stock to any but the 11 named producer-distrib groups and companies since Aug. 20.

New York, Sept. 8.—Aside from Army, Navy and other Government department requirements, more raw film stock has been used during the past year, due to greater waste by manufacturers, producers and laboratories.

Losses were due to manpower skipping to the armed forces and defense and war industries. Normal waste allowance over period of years was 1½%, but as result of last year's tabulations must now figure to run about 5%.

Court Gives Hirliman Access To Records

New York, Sept. 8.—Court motion that will provide George A. Hirliman, independent producer, with the corporate minutes, sales books and other records of General Analine and Film, AGFA-ANSCO, and AGFA Raw Film Company was granted today by Justice Kenneth O'Brien in Supreme Court.

Hirliman is seeking $300,000 against the defendant companies, charging fraudulent representations in the sale of defective film which he used in production. O'Brien denied request that laboratory analysis be made by experts of 1000 feet of back stock belonging to the defendants, as the jurist deemed this procedure unnecessary.

Industry Employes Buy 500G Bonds In Week

Total of $500,000 in War Bonds were purchased by motion picture employes in the Hollywood district from Friday, Aug. 28, through Sept. 4, according to Henry Ginsberg, chairman of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff, which is in charge of the studio campaign.

Fans Demand Theatre Slash Admish From Upped Figure

Minneapolis, Sept. 8.—The City Council of Grand Rapids, Minn., has adopted a resolution calling upon Sam Heller to reduce the admission at his Rialto theatre, 'A' house in the town of 2,500, from 39c, to which it recently was raised, to 28c, the former scale. Aldermen took action after receipt of a citizens' petition urging that their influence be used to bring about such price lowering.

Petitioners claim that 'movies are a necessity to sustain wartime morale' and that the present 'high admission prices' impose a financial hardship on them and prevent many from attending. It's also alleged that admissions in nearby towns are lower.

It's the first time in these parts that any government officials or state or local lawmaking bodies have interested themselves in any movement for lower theatre admissions.

Radio Singer Awarded Decision In Suit

Arbitration decision in the contract dispute between Kenny Baker and the William Morris agency was awarded to the radio singer yesterday. Neutral arbiter, Maurice Saeta, cast his vote with Raphael Dechter, arbitrator for Baker. Edwin Loeb was in the Morris corner. Case was ordered to arbitration when Baker discharged the Morris office as his agent as of Dec. 31, 1941, the contention being that the rules of Screen Actors Guild and not those of American Federation of Radio Artists were applicable in this instance.

Morris office based its defense on the four-year AFRA ruling and sought to have Baker's contract continued in force until Nov. 1, 1943. Simon and Garbus were counsel for Baker and Harry Sokolov appeared for the Morris office.

Pearl Resumes Airshow On Mutual-Don Lee

Jack Pearl will be back on the air with his stooge, Cliff Hall, and their old routine, 'Was You There, Charlie,' in a new three-quarter hour show from New York over the Mutual-Don Lee network. Music will be directed by Morton Gould and other cast principals are being assembled for Sept. 30 takeoff for Cresta Blanca wine. Time is being cleared so as not to conflict with current Don Lee commercials. Louis Shurr agency set Pearl and Hall on the show.

Title Changes

Metro's 'For Men Only', a Carey Wilson Miniature, now titled 'Listen, Boys.'

'Lone Wolf Goes To a Party', Columbia, to 'One Dangerous Night'.

I am happy to say that I have worked in five pictures in the past two months, having sent my earnings to the Red Cross, and I am still hopefully waiting for more work. SIDI BARADA

Step Up Program of Spot Shows for Army, Navy

Stepping up its program of spot shows at nearby service camps, the Hollywood Victory Committee last night sent out talent units to entertain both Army and Navy men.

Tom Dugan, Ricardo Cortez, Sam Hearn, Margaret Whiting and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Godfrey performed for the Army, while sailors were entertained by Fifi D'Orsay, Pat Lane, Vivian Faye, Cliff Edwards, Bill Roberts, Al Herman, Lynn Boyer and Daisy Lee Person.

Others who headlined spot shows were Linda Darnell, Dale Evans, Marilyn Hare, Bonnie Kildare, Harry Holman, Carol Adams, Rena Case, Dolores Moran, Karen Knight and Chick Chandler, who appeared near Santa Monica. Ricardo Cortez, Tom Dugan, Fay McKenzie, Vivian Faye, Mary O'Brien, Marie McDonald, Sam Hearn and Max Terhune also gave a show for the Army at Playa del Rey.

Red Skelton will augment his list of Victory Committee appearances by leading the Community Chest rally at Shrine Auditorium tomorrow.

Latest addition to the Army camp tour schedule is Muriel Goodspeed, who entrained last night for Charleston where she will join Harpo Marx at the head of a USO-Camp Show unit slated for performances in South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, and Alabama until Sept. 26. Dinah Shore, who entertained desert troops on two trips last month, is continuing her camp tour series this week around San Diego and early next week will go to Phoenix.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Gilbert, Fay McKenzie and Ed Lowry are on a camp tour currently in the desert areas.

Starting next Monday the Victory Committee, in conjunction with the Treasury Department's War savings staff, will furnish one outstanding screen personality as a guest star each week at Victory House, Pershing Square, in place of the personal appearances scheduled previously.

STEELMAN MAY NAME SOEG, MAJORS IMPARTIAL JUDGE

Each side is scheduled to submit a list of prospective arbiters today, but there was considerable doubt on both sides as to the possibility of agreeing on a man. A majority of company representatives are said to favor Judge Irving Stahlmaster, with the SOEG reportedly suggesting Carey McWilliams, Louis Drukker, George Cheney and G. H. Gooday. It was considered possible, however, the exchanges might happen to suggest an arbiter acceptable to the Guild.

Each side is expected to spend some time investigating the recommendations before giving a yes or no on the lists. While Pat Scollard of Paramount has been designated as arbiter for the exchanges, other companies had representatives on the ground yesterday, and all of them spent some time in conference with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact.

In the event of a stymie on selection of an arbiter, it was considered likely the companies might make another effort to reach an agreement on wages and avoid the necessity of arbitration. The SOEG is expected to urge the matter be speeded up, pointing out that a quick decision was promised when the exchange strikes were called off.

Business Representative Glenn Pratt has been named arbiter for the SOEG.

U Western Managers Meet Set for Sat.

Meeting of western exchange managers of Universal is skeded for Saturday at the Utah hotel in Salt Lake City. Al O'Keefe, western district manager, and Charles Feldman, L. A. branch manager, leave for Salt Lake Friday to join Bill Henieman, assistant sales head of U, and managers from Portland, Seattle, Denver, Frisco and Salt Lake. O'Keefe returned from a two-week trip yesterday through the mountain territory and Denver.

Ceiling Income Seen As Industry Aid

New York, Sept. 8.—Far from viewing with alarm President Roosevelt's proposed legislation limiting net incomes to $25,000 annually, various film company execs here expressed the idea today that such a government move might lead to a widespread and healthier readjustment in Hollywood production methods; a saner approach to cost ceilings in production, combined with more normal salaries for talent in all phases of the industry for the duration.

Such adjustments, it was observed, were likely to remain after the war's completion, and prove highly beneficial for the industry in the years to come.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Dudley Early, reviewer for past several years for Family Circle magazine, has joined the Navy and currently is at San Diego training base. Early was a tar in the last war. Fred Othman adds the Family Circle reviewer chores to his United Press duties.

Frank Krupitzky, operator of Universal studio's barber shop for several years, has reported at Fort MacArthur where he will be assigned as interpreter, being familiar with five languages.

Joe Wrenn, business manager, leaves today for Princeton University to take a month's training in quartermaster detail before assuming his rank as lieutenant in the Army.

John Alton, presently lensing Republic's 'Johnny Doughboy', reports as captain of Signal Corps at Fort MacArthur on Sept. 19.

Joe Valentine, Universal lenser, has volunteered for the Army and is awaiting word regarding commission in Signal Corps from Washington.

Ben Brown, associate of Jack Melvin in publicity, was inducted in the Army and left for Fort MacArthur over the weekend.

William Tracy today is enlisting in Army Air Force as private. Actor had four picture roles in prospect.

SELF-ENTERTAINMENT SHOW PLANNED FOR ARMY, NAVY

out, it involves specially made recordings, with film, radio and legit names using original material specially written.

The recordings would be interpolated into soldiers' own shows at camps, with idea of retaining spontaneity and vigor of live entertainment, with added zest of professional performances by star actors, singers and comedians.

Working with Frank on plan are Beatrice (Mrs. George S. Kaufman), and Sergeant Ezra Stone, with James Sauter, of United Theatrical War Activities Committee, and Rex Stout, of Writers War Board, cooperating. W. S. Paley, CBS president, has approved the idea and is lending production and recording facilities.

Heller Reported Missing

Des Moines, Sept. 8.—Irving Heller, 33, former manager of theatre at Fort Dodge, Iowa, and nephew of A. H. Blank, Tri-State circuit prez, is reported by the Canadian Government as missing in the Allied Commando raid on Dieppe.

Heller enlisted in the Canadian army in 1940. His wife and three children live in Columbus, Nebraska.

Local 683 Officers Reelected for Second Term

All officers of Film Technicians Local 683 will start serving a second term Sunday, having been reelected without opposition. The group not only were given another term, but carried their entire slate, executive board, etc., into office with them. The vote was unusually light, apparently because the only opposition was for minor offices.

The action of the membership in declining to nominate candidates against the officers was a vote of confidence for the current leaders, who during their first term negotiated two wage increases and improved working conditions for the workers.

Officers who will be inducted Sunday for a second term are Russell L. McKnight, president; Melvin G. Young, vice-prexy; Paul Jaffe, recording secretary; Norval D. Crutcher, secretary-treasurer; John R. Martin, business agent, and Charles Greenberg, sergeant-at-arms.

Warren Adams, Linn Cooper and Judd Scott were elected trustees, and Norval D. Crutcher and Russell L. McKnight were selected as delegates to the Conference of Studio Unions.

Members elected to the Executive Board are Dorothy Alexander, Ralph Blanchard, Arthur Leuenhagen, Elmer Nies, Frank Regal, Wm. George Shaw, and Jack Weiner.

Kennedy Sues Skelton For Breach of Pact

Thomas J. Kennedy, New York agent who has represented Red Skelton for past ten years, yesterday filed suit for $120,000 against the actor in Federal court here, alleging breach of contract as general manager. Skelton was to have been served with papers last night.

Skelton has two contracts, according to Kennedy's attorneys who filed the suit. One is with the William Morris office as his agent, and another antecedent pact with Kennedy to handle all his business matters and providing for his approval and supervision of all contracts for picture and radio engagements which the Morris office may set. There is no conflict between these two asserted contracts, Kennedy says. They represent a revamped agreement to which Skelton assented.

The $120,000 demanded in the Federal suit represents, the plaintiff declares, the amount Skelton will earn under his present Metro contract, in pictures and radio. This Metro contract was made while Kennedy was his acknowledged business representative and general manager, the plaintiff asserts. That contract expires in 1947. Kennedy's managership pact expires, he claims, on Aug. 18, 1944.

Paul Harrison Upped To NY; Johnson In NEA Spot Here

Paul Harrison, for past seven years Hollywood representative for NEA, draws promotion to head the New York office of the news association. He leaves for the east via plane Saturday to assume new duties Monday, with family following later.

Erskine Johnson succeeds Harrison as NEA Hollywood rep, and will retain his radio contract for Thrifty Drug locally, in addition to holding local outlet of his NEA column through Daily News. Johnson has been writing his daily column for the News, which swings over to NEA with him, to give news syndicate first local break since foldo of the Record a number of years ago. Dee Lowrance continues with NEA to handle the Sunday magazine feature and fashions.

RKO Stays Away from War Topic in Pix

RKO is veering away from too much war material in its program for 1942-43, and studio spokesman states that 24 of the 45 pictures slated for the season have neither war background nor subject matter.

Three features under the production wing of David Hempstead are non-war: 'The Gibson Girl;' 'Portrait of a Lady;' and 'The Company She Keeps.' Producer Val Lewton will turn out series of four chiller-thrillers; Bert Gilroy will make four without war reference, in addition to six Tim Holt westerns already completed.

Exhibs Request Gable Reissue Bookings

New York, Sept. 8.—Metro has received numerous requests from exhibs for reissue bookings on Clark Gable pictures since he enlisted in the army several weeks ago.

It is understood that Metro is interested in such reissues of Gable starrers, but with company policy to prevent booking conflict with current release, 'Somewhere I'll Find You,' in which Gable is co-starred with Lana Turner. Film freeze may prevent reissues, although a number of old prints may be resurrected from the film vaults for some additional datings.

RKO Studio Group To Encore 'Goodbye'

RKO stock talent will start rehearsals under dramatic coach Helena Sorell for second presentation of 'Goodbye Again.' Play was staged by the group several months ago, but suspended after 34 performances when three cast members joined the armed forces.

'Live' For Lum 'n' Abner

'Two Weeks to Live' will be the first of the new Lum and Abner starrers on the 1942-43 program for RKO to be produced by the Jack William Votion Company. It is a comedy scripted by Michael L. Simmons and Roswell Rogers, and is slated to hit chutes Sept. 21 at the Pathe lot.

'Wonderful World,' which was to have been first, has been set back and may be indefinitely delayed. Mal St. Clair will direct 'Two Weeks.'

ALL RADIO TALENT TO BE POINTED FOR WAR EFFORT

New York, Sept. 8.—Radio entertainment and broadcasting favorites will take new standing in the war effort shortly under the guidance of the Office of War Information's chief

New York, Sept. 8.—Radio entertainment and broadcasting favorites will take new standing in the war effort shortly under the guidance of Office of War Information's chief of radio, W. B. Lewis, ex-CBS veepee. There will be a greater effort to sell war to the home front, labor front and boys going to the front. Method calls for extension of the allocation plan whereby radio, using its own facilities, will endeavor to achieve maximum results on behalf of the Government's war effort. Sequence calls for hypoing war production, incentive rallies via radio and includes marshalling of the home front on current problems.

One prime objective is labor rallies aimed at continued tilts in war production material. Another is to sell the American public on salient problems like the high cost of living, possible meat rationing, fuel and gas conservation and other national problems like Bonds, civilian defense and salvage drives. In line with this, Lewis hits New York Sept. 18-19; Chicago, Sept. 21, and Hollywood, Sept. 24-25, for confabs with ad agencies, networks and talent. Latter is the newest wrinkle, with OWI suddenly realizing name talent can do acting on the job for Uncle Sam due to mass appeal. In line with this, Kay Kyser has been requested to chairman the talent angle, setting up a commando-type 'Committee of 25'.

Invitations have been extended and accepted from Jack Benny, Edgar Bergen, Burns and Allen, Bob Burns, Nelson Eddy, Jean Hersholt, Frank Morgan and Hal Peary (Great Gildersleeve). Invites also have been proffered to Abbott and Costello, Goodman Ace, Fred Allen, Major Bowes, Amos 'n' Andy, Eddie Cantor, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Edward G. Robinson, Kate Smith and others. Idea is to collaborate with 1,300 labor-management committees now active in the U. S. industrial scene. They will give shows and deliver war messages at factories, war plants, defense works, etc. Artist-members of this committee of 25 will increase war plugs on their programs, contact other theatrical talent of the radio, screen and stage to further point up the war plugs.

Ceiling Rentals Latest Exhibs, Majors Issue

New York, Sept. 8.—Widely discussed in exhibitor circles including the effort made to inject provision in the UMPI plan, proposition of ceiling in film rentals under government regulation is now reported as dangerously threatening on scattered fronts with fears expressed in informed distributors quarters on the danger of any exhib drive seeking such legislation with the country at war.

However, the major distribs stand ready to fight any such move on the part of exhibs, singly or in groups —warning, among other things, that exhibs are courting trouble in seeking Federal regulations, since a ceiling on rentals would lead to other governmental measures affecting the industry.

Theatres, in addition to the action taken during the past week by Greater Cincinnati Exhibitor's Association, are unqualifiedly threatening to go to the government seeking a film rental ceiling. Independent Exhibitors, Inc., of New England, headed by Nathan Yamins is reported ready to join any concerted exhib fight for ceiling film prices. This group was among the three exhib organizations that rejected the UMPI plan in its entirety.

A distribs spokesman, who refers to Thurman Arnold's action in killing the UMPI sales plan as a fine example of industry control sought by Washington, says he has talked to many exhibitors of late in travels around the country and several have threatened to complain to Washington about rentals in the hopes that limitations will be set. He warned that if Washington tries to impose a rental ceiling based on reasonable profit to the exhibitor, the distribs are also going to insist on reasonable profit to themselves. Also, where one exhib may now be paying $75 rental, another in comparable operation paying $100 or more, distribs could expect that the $75 account be pulled up to a point where he would be on a par with the other houses. He further pointed out that distribs are willing to make adjustments where justified, but cases are cited where exhibs seek to take advantage of this policy.

Musicians to Announce New Scales Sept. 15

Following reclassification of all niteries, hotels, ballrooms, cafes, etc., by the musicians' union, new price scales on musician employment will be announced Sept. 15, calling for increases of from 5% to 25%. Upping will be blanket order except for those places which have had their scales raised during the past six months.

New scales call for an absolute minimum of $30 weekly in any spot, and reach a maximum of approximately $90 for better hotels and cabarets in the 'A' bracket. File of some 450 spots is being gone over with a fine comb. All concession arrangements with places crying the blues are out, union states, and minimum of $1 an hour will prevail.

Move is believed occasioned by musician paucity caused by draft and enlistments, musicians getting choice on latter. More than 1,000 have been taken from Local 47, it's claimed. Announcement has already had adverse effect on one booking, with Paul Whiteman and Florentine Gardens at stalemate over who will pay a difference of $9.32 weekly per man. Verbal agreement had been reached between them when they learned of the increase and neither wanted to absorb it.

Irving Mills Near Ink Stage With 20th On Musical Film Deal

Irving Mills, music publisher, is on verge of closing deal with 20th-Fox, whereby he will act as associate producer on a musical which will contain elements of the shows Mills has put on for the Cotton Club in New York over period of years. Tentative title is 'Shuffle Along,' which was the handle of one of the Cotton Club offerings. Filmusical will probably be assigned for production to William LeBaron.

Part of the deal, it is understood, will be use of music controlled by Mills in the 'Shuffle Along' cavalcade, for which studio is paying approximately $50,000.

Deal doesn't interfere with Mills controlling interest in the Mills Music Publishing Company.

Bank Building Denies It Will Be Taken Over

Report circulated that the California Bank Building in Beverly Hills would be taken over by the Government to house various of its agencies, is denied by the management of the building. They said no information had been given them by Government agencies that the building would be required by it.

Understood that, should vacant space be available to house the Signal Corps unit, now in the Taft Building, latter would make the change to B. H. which is more convenient geographically to operate from.

Priscilla Lane Leaves 'Girl' Due To Illness

Priscilla Lane, slated to hold down femme lead opposite George Murphy in 'The Powers Girl' for Charles R. Rogers, failed to start work yesterday due to serious influenza attack and uncertainty of recovery forced withdrawal from picture. Player was on loanout from Warners for the assignment, with Rogers expecting to select substitute today.

Casting Delays Filming Of Metro 'Showboat'

New York, Sept. 8.—The Metro stage production, 'Showboat,' scheduled for filming following its New York engagement, is being delayed indefinitely because of difficulty in finding suitable player for certain Andy role created by Charles Winninger in the original Ziegfeld presentation. Casting of single leads is no problem.

Wall Street Sees Rosy Future For Films

New York, Sept. 8.—Film business and film company charges are attracting additional attention in recent weeks among various Wall Street Traders. Fact that several conservative investment houses have wired optimistic reports of future of film business prospects has partly generated this enthusiasm.

BOX OFFICE FIRE UPS SPENDING

Skouras Tells Regional Meet 20th to Drop B Pix After Jan. 1

'No "B" pictures from 20th-Fox after Jan. 1,' was the declaration of Spyros Skouras, president of 20th-Fox, yesterday at the second and final day of the company's regional convention at the Ambassador hotel. Skouras made this statement to the 60-odd assembled western division delegates, following announcement by Tom Connors, sales veepee, that this year's budget would exceed last year's $17,000,000 by $5,000,000 and would be spent on 45 planned feature releases and shorts for the 1942-43 season.

Second day's session was opened by Connors at 10 a.m., reviewing the company's forthcoming product lineup in detail. Entire morning was spent outlining expected and completed films, with 15 producers and other studio heads sitting in on the meeting for the first time. Studio group was headed by William Goetz, new studio chieftain and successor to Darryl Zanuck, and listened to Skouras and Connors express confidence in the new studio head.

In thanking the eastern heads for their faith in himself and others he would supervise, Goetz said he would expend every effort to maintain the standards of quality set by Zanuck, and 'I hope, with the fine machinery he has left behind for me to work with, I shall be able to carry on as he would.'

Most of the afternoon was taken up with pep talks to men from Connors, W. J. Kupper, his assistant, and W. C. Gehring, western division manager. Men from the Denver, Salt Lake, Seattle, Portland, Frisco and Los Angeles districts were promised substantial bonus awards for improved sales in the coming season. Meet broke about 7 p.m., majority attending entraining for their respective posts.

Eastern execs, including Connors, Kupper and Hal Horne, ad and publicity head, remain here until tomorrow or Friday before returning. Skouras and Aubrey Schenck, his exec aide, will go to Atlanta, Ga., for a week before returning to New York.

Billie Burke Repeater

Billie Burke makes a repeat call on Sealtest airer Sept. 17. Ben Alexander is the program's new announcer, succeeding Tom Hudson, who is in the service.

Obituary

B. H. HYMAN RITES

Funeral rites for Bernard H. Hyman, 47, production executive at Metro, will be held at 3:30 p.m. today in the Church of the Recessional, Forest Lawn, with Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin officiating. Hyman died Monday night at his Mandeville Canyon home following heart attack two weeks ago.

MAJORS ORDER 25% TILT IN ADVERTISING BUDGET

New York, Sept. 8.—Capitalizing on current 'hot' market for pictures, major producer-distributors have increased their advertising and exploitation budgets approximately 25% this years and broadened the base of key exploitation to include about 200 situations, approximately double the number of last year. Some majors, such as Paramount, now are entering towns of 15,000 to 20,000 populations with bigtown exploitation.

Theatre advertising department heads believe exploitation is now more profitable than ever before in preconditioning the public for new releases because ticket buyers are better able to pay for entertainment. The response to exploitation this year is reported best since 1935.

Question of changing Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America advertising code is expected to be considered at the quarterly meeting of the Hays office directors tomorrow. Indications are that no change in code will be made despite apparent feeling of some advertising-publicity men that it should be liberalized in keeping with wartime conditions.

Branch Managers Arrive To Line Up FWC Deals

Henry Herbel, Warners western district manager, yesterday returned from a week in the Denver-Salt Lake territory, and will start working this week on Fox West Coast and National Theatres deals for Warners product. Date has not been set for discussions due to circuit execs being busy with 20th-Fox convention and deals being worked out with various distributors. Herbel plans calling in branch managers from Frisco, Portland, Seattle, Denver, etc., to assist him in setting up prices for their respective territories. They will be called in individually as their areas come up for consideration.

Maury Saffle, Metro branch manager in Seattle, also arrived yesterday to work with George Hickey, western district manager for Metro, on NT and F-WC deals. He was preceded by L. C. Wingham, Frisco manager for Metro, who left for home over the weekend after working out deals for his territory. Lou Amacher, Portland manager, will come in next week for his part in the Metro-NT deals.

Frozen British Coin To Remain Iced

New York, Sept. 8.—Clearing of the British frozen money situation is unlikely in the immediate future, it was authoritatively stated here this week. This contradicts optimistic report emanating from sources close to R. C. G. Somervell, undersecretary of the British Board of Trade, currently in Washington from London. One industry official expressed the view that 'chances for early settlement may look good from the British viewpoint, but that doesn't necessarily mean good for American distributors or that any solution will be reached.'

Dunn At WB Studio

Harold Dunn, Far East supervisor for Warners, who was an internee at Shanghai and who returned on the exchange ship Gripsholm, arrived at the studio yesterday for conferences with Jack L. Warner and other company executives, telling experiences confidentially. Be here a week.

Novel Film Projector Mulled by Majors

New York, Sept. 8.—Major industry toppers are giving serious attention to a new type film projector recommended by E. I. Sponable following preliminary demonstration at Fox Movietone studios last week. It was shown that once the changes are made, projector can be shifted back and forth for either three or four-hole frames.

Sponable also explained that the three-hole method provides for the same projection speed, 24 frames per second, as now used. Cost of $400 per camera, plus $100 to $125 per projector for changeover, indicates huge overall expenditure for 17,000 theatres as well as studios. Mechanical labor difficulties also would be involved. Changeover to new plan could not be attempted unless every producer-distributor agrees.

Story Agents, Brokers Tough, Say Editors

New York, Sept. 8.—Story editors now report that literary brokers and agents have become so tough that it's difficult to buy film rights to any important book for less than $75,000 to $100,000. Asking prices are steadily increasing, they say, culminating in a new high when Oscar Serlin set a tag of $500,000 plus percentage on 'Life With Father,' evidenced ever since David Selznick paid $50,000 for 'Gone With the Wind.' More recently Paramount paid $22,500 for 'Reap the Wild Wind,' Satevepost yarn.

Spitalny and Femmes Train In Thursday For Pix and Radio

Phil Spitalny and his all-femme band of 29 Super-Chief in Thursday for picture work and five broadcasts from the Coast of 'Hour of Charm' for General Electric. It marks Spitalny's first visit here, during which he will restrict his activities to radio and films. While Spitalny and the band are working in a featured spot in 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home' at Universal, they will do two broadcasts from here, at NBC Sept. 13 and the Shrine Auditorium Sept. 27. Other programs originate at March Field, Sept. 20; Naval Base at San Diego, Oct. 4, and Frisco, Oct. 11.

Jim Bourke arrived yesterday to set up facilities for the local emanations, and Dave White gets in with the band as producer for Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn agency.

Abbott, Costello Set To Start 'Hold' (21)

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello are due in tomorrow from their bond selling trek on which they chalked up a $75,000,000 sale for the Treasury. Comics will start their 'Hold Your Horses' at Universal about Sept. 21. And on Oct. 8 pair makes first broadcast on the Camel ciggy show.

Patsy O'Connor, 12, of the O'Connor vaude family, has been signed to featured singing-dancing role in 'Hold Your Horses.' At least 10 specialty acts will be featured also in the picture, to be selected from list of 500 acts brought back from New York by Edward Sherman, personal manager of A and C.

Skouras Leaving On Inspection Junket

Charles P. Skouras, president of National Theatres and Fox-West Coast, Andy Krappman, exec aide, and Tom Paige, statistician, leave for Portland tomorrow on first leg of a tour of National Theatres that will carry them to Oct. 1. Trio will distribute prizes among theatre and district managers of NT for their work in recently closed Spyros Skouras Showmanship drive and combine trip with theatre inspecting in Denver, Kansas City and Milwaukee.

America Looks Abroad
with ROBERT ARDEN

High-ranking British aviation quarters 'officially warned the people of Britain to expect heavy, retaliatory air blitz by the Luftwaffe, come winter'.

Nazi officials, we know, took great precautions to prevent news of U. S. Fortress raids from reaching the German people. They live in deadly fear of Allied air power.

This British warning, therefore, looks like a very clever 'invitation' to the Luftwaffe to come over and fight it out in order to determine aerial supremacy over Europe. That may become turning point of entire war—with odds heavily favoring the Allies.

THERE is likelihood as a result of shortage of various studio craft workers having left the industry for either defense work or service enlistment that in the making of Government films enlisted personnel will be used to do the chores performed by craftsmen. Many of the men in the service at present have had experience and come from various of the crafts employed in the studios and should there be a shortage of studio workers from the branches of the industry that they had been previously in, these men would be assigned to making of training films at the Western Avenue base of the Army training film studios. Move would not conflict with union jurisdictions, as enlisted men selected would be union members who volunteered or were drafted.

It may not be hot enough for the current generation of rug cutters, but the elderly boys will get a nostalgic kick out of 'Gentlemen, Be Seated,' the impending film chronology of burnt cork minstrelsy. It will fetch them back to the unhurried days when the barber shop was the center of civic musical culture.

He was always John the Barber although he had been christened Antonio or Oscar, and his assistant who trimmed sideburns and goatees in Chair No. 2, always doubled as a mandolinist or quitarist, and sometimes desisted in the midst of a Saturday night shampoo to carry the high note in 'Juanita.' Or sometimes the shampooee would step out of the chair with a towel wrapped around his neck and sing bass in 'Old Black Joe.'

Somebody was always rehearsing for the next amateur minstrel show for the beiefit of the G.A.R. or the victims of the latest forest fire or the grasshopper pest out in Adams County. There were no movies in those days and the only air communication was the backyard fence over which the tidings of Old Man McGonigle's Saturday night snootful traveled faster than a short wave message from Australia. Circus came once a year, after which the kids clustered around the big shavings box behind the planing mill and practiced somersaults and other acrobatic feats, intent on running away with the tent show when it rumbled into town next year. The adults attended the circus in a patronizing sort of way, merely for the childrens' sake, they said, but the glowing spot on the calendar was the day the minstrels marched down Grand Avenue with their high hats gleaming in the sun and silver cornets and slipphorns tooting.

For weeks you could hear what the Interlocutor said to Mr. Bones and what Mr. Bones answered the Interlocutor. There were amateur minstrel shows all over town with local wits, disguised in blackface, mingled shafts of humor from Joe Miller's reliquary with poisoned arrows of satire aimed at citizens against whom they bore neighborhood grudges. The professional actor in those days was a vagabond and a scalawag, but the amateur minstrel divested himself of his inhibitions once a year and unleashed his soul in song and jest, and sometimes recited 'Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight' in blackface. It was an annual revel of burnt cork and burnt ham.

Secrets of a Co-Ed

(Drama)

Producers Releasing Corporation release of an Alfred Stern and Arthur Alexander production. Stars Otto Kruger and Tina Thayer. Supporting cast: Rick Vallin, Russell Hoyt, Marcia Mae Jones, Geraldine Spreckles, Diana Del Rio, Herburt Vigran, Patricia Knox, Claire Rochelle, Addison Richards, Isabelle La Mal. Leon Fromkess in charge of production. Directed by Joseph Lewis. Story and screenplay by George W. Sayre. Photography, Robert Cline. Editor, Charles Henkel, Jr. Musical direction, Lee Zahler. Song, 'Brazilly Willy' (English lyrics) by J. Jay Levison and Ray Evans. Brazilian march by Harold Lobo, Milton De Oliveira. Previewed at Los Angeles, Sept. 9, 1942. Running time: 67 MINS.

So good is this modestly made but impressive piece of audience entertainment that it is apt to take the honors in almost any combination billing above its normal playing zones. It should return handsomely on its investment, as well as increase professional respect for the smartness of the P.R.C. head man, Leon Fromkess, in charge of production, and Alfred Stern and Arthur Alexander, the active producers. Care and intelligence and showmanship are evidenced throughout, in the precise casting of the qualified players, the treatment of the substantial story, the excellent direction, the technical support of top calibre.

George W. Sayre pegged down a solid, expertly told and very moving story of a big-shot defense attorney, consistently liberating, by his eloquence, criminals no guiltier than himself, and of his only daughter, a co-ed, who becomes involved in her headstrong way with his chief gunman. The dramatic scene toward which the tale builds with consistent honesty and suspenseful incident is the courtroom defense of his daughter's life when she is charged with murder of the man who has infatuated her, as one of several women on his string. The speech to the jury, delivered by Otto Kruger as the devastated father, making confession of his failure as a parent and as a disgrace to his profession, is one of the strongest ever heard and seen in pictures. In these few minutes, in which he admits he killed the girl's scheming and secret lover, the daughter's redemption is accomplished.

Tina Thayer, not so long ago a promising juvenile, mature now, gives an exciting and alluring performance as the spoiled daughter and demonstrates that she has the unerring sense of drama and the skill to carry her far. The little tricks of behavior are cannily calculated to suggest the unbridled nature which sweeps her into trouble when the suave Rick Vallin turns on his voltage.

Vallin has polish, manner, style and is a very competent actor. Looks a little like a lean version of Victor Mature. He'll be an important leading man.

Russell Hoyt is the blond counterpart, manly and assured, who plays the suitor the girl discards for the sophisticated heel. Diana Del Rio cuts a vivid and violent swath through the picture as Vallin's gal. Her fire, her dancing skill, her ability as an actress also has promise of prominence, given the breaks. Others who stand out in the younger bracket are Marcia Mae Jones, Geraldine Spreckles, Patricia Knox and Claire Rochelle. Addison Richards creates a good role as the prosecuting attorney. Isabelle La Mal is dean of the co-ed school.

Joseph Lewis, now in the armed services, does a splendid job of direction, muffing no dramatic punch, carrying the story along smoothly and with rising emotional power to a forceful peak. Players respond inspirationally to his guidance. Robert Cline uses his cameras effectively; Lee Zahler does the appropriate musical direction. Production has good physical values to bolster its creative quality and entertainment calibre.

Film Reviews

Atlantic Convoy

(Melodrama)

Columbia production. Features Bruce Bennett, Virginia Field, John Beal. Supporting cast: Clifford Severn, Larry Parks, Stanley Brown, Lloyd Bridges, Victor Kilian, Robert Stevens, Hans Schumm, Chuck Hamilton, Erik Rolf, Ed Laughton, Frank Alten, Richard Lyon, Ernest Severn, Yvonne Severn, Shirlee Collier, Bobbie Cooper. Director, Lew Landers. Producer, Colbert Clark. Screenplay, Robert Lee Johnson. Photography, Henry Freulich. Music, M. W. Stoloff. Film editor, James Sweeney. Art director, Lionel Banks; associate, Jerome Pycha, Jr. Assistant director, Seymour Friedman. Reviewed at the Hollywood Pantages, Sept. 9, 1942. Running time: 66 MINS.

'Atlantic Convoy' doesn't lose any time telling its story, keeping the action rolling and the interest well sustained to fit itself for the smaller supporting spots. The players do sterling work under Lew Landers' direction, and Colbert Clark's production values are ample for release intentions.

The plot deals with a Marine outpost at Iceland and its patrolling planes that seek out undersea raiders and perform rescue acts for victims of submarine attack. John Beal is a mysterious private weather forecaster, suspected of being the informer tipping off convoy locations to the subs. As victim after victim falls to the Nazis, Beal finally makes a break to prove his innocence and trap the real informers. Some good newsreel footage is worked in for sea battle stuff, but miniatures are bad. Romantic touch is nicely cared for by Beal and Virginia Field, nurse rescued after a boat in which she and a group of English kids are crossing the Atlantic is torpedoed.

Leads are given capable portrayals by Beal, Miss Field and Bruce Bennett, Marine commanding officer. Young Clifford Severn does a sharp job of the British cabin boy who turns out to be the real Nazi agent. Victor Kilian, German captain; Larry Parks, Lloyd Bridges, Stanley Brown, Robert Stevens and the balance of the cast lend good support.

Henry Freulich photographed, and other technical accruements handily carry out their functions. Robert Lee Johnson wrote the tight script.

Elsa Maxwell 'Canteen'

Sol Lesser has spotted Elsa Maxwell in his 'Stage Door Canteen' screening for United Artists. Deal was made just before she left for New York where first footage of 'Canteen' will be filmed, around Nov. 1.

Hello Annapolis

(Melodrama)

Columbia production. Features Tom Brown, Jean Parker, Larry Parks and Phil Brown, with Joseph Crehan, Thurston Hall, Ferris Taylor, Herbert Rawlinson, Mae Busch, Robert Stevens, Stanley Brown, William Blees and Georgia Caine. Director, Charles Barton. Producer, Wallace MacDonald. Screenplay, Donald Davis and Tom Reed. Story, Tom Reed. Photography, Philip Tannura. Art director, Lionel Banks; associate, Jerome Pycha. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Assistant director, Milton Carter. Sound, Ed Bernds. Editor, Arthur Seid. Reviewed at Orpheum theatre, Los Angeles, Sept. 9, 1942. Running time: 62 MINS.

'Hello Annapolis' sounds like it might be another war picture, or one that takes the war to that cinematically familiar scene. But it is not. Instead, it is the age-old story of the rebel who goes through the school hating it, but continues to show everybody he 'can take it'. Minus any strong name draw or hefty production facets it remains a lower rung entry on the twin bills.

Tom Brown as the detestable but loved young hero of Jean Parker gives as fine an account of himself as has been seen. Though in a snip role he apparently has grown up and renders adult proportions in his acting. Miss Parker as the eye-fluttering belle who loves him through all seems unhappy in her role, her efforts seeming forced when not thoroughly light.

Almost from the opening the story is telegraphed. Theme has been done often, and better, whether on the West Point beam or just the little red schoolhouse. Brown's every effort at disrupting the routine of the Academy and otherwise seeking 'out' never quite go over with punch because they are seen coming.

There's the usual underdog roommate who tries to keep him on the straight and narrow for the girl both love. There's the usual hazing by upper classmen. There's the customary amount of smart cracks. But there is also the after-taste that comes of having seen the same thing too many times.

Opening with Brown as a spoiled rich boy who hates the Navy like his shipbuilder father does (old man was a Navy toss-out, too), story runs the hackneyed trail of boy finally being virtually shanghaied into the service as an enlisted man. He works his way into the Academy as one of the yearly chosen few, but only to be able to resign. When the boys make it tough, he makes it tougher. Quality shows for the fade when Brown rescues the boys who have been giving him the silent treatment. The rebel is brought to a normal level and made to see things the right way, which leads to the altar.

BEST DRESSED GAL OF THE WEEK—

Margaret Lindsay lunching at Luceys wearing a brilliant tropical flower print frock. The exotic print was cleverly fashioned to form a deep V neckline, long tight sleeves and an intricately draped skirt. Topping the costume was a black velvet toque boasting a souffle and black lace veil gathered to frame the face charmingly. Black accessories and a tropical flower pin on Margaret's large black purse completed the high fashion costume.

expressions as, 'I just naturally think they are a bunch of Americans out there, producing entertainment for the people, selling bonds and entertaining in army camps;' 'The stars are supporting the morale end of this war by going to camps and entertaining. Some of them have enlisted or given their money. Even the stars who are too old for active service are pitching in.'

Analysis of the comments recorded by Research Institute interviewers discloses that such activities as making pictures to help the national morale, selling and buying bonds, entertaining in army camps and contributing time, and money were most frequently mentioned. Individuals praised for their patriotism were few, with the late Carole Lombard and Walt Disney given most prominence by those interviewed.

STUDIOS LAUNCH CRACKDOWN ON EXTRAS DOUBLING IN BRASS

plants and other war factories.

Casting departments and assistant directors also are eliminating such extras when players are given a call back for the next day. Officials take the position it is not fair to the other extras to release some of them before the day's work is completed, that it might interfere with shooting if a crowd scene was needed after they had departed, and that players should not try to hold jobs in two separate industries at the same time, especially where one conflicts with the other.

Most of the extras involved work on night shifts in defense plants and find it difficult to report on time if they are required to put in a full day at a studio after accepting a late call.

Situation was first disclosed several weeks ago when extras complained that hundreds of players drawing heavy pay in defense plants were still accepting studio calls. They protested this took work away from regular extras who depend upon the film industry for a livelihood, and insisted these casual workers should be given studio calls only when regular extras were not available.

The Screen Actors Guild some time ago offered to transfer qualified extras who were not making a living in the industry to defense projects, but at that time only a small percentage displayed any interest. It is reported, however, that since that time many of the male extras have secured defense jobs, but are still calling in for studio jobs.

Code Body Hears Plea On 'Blonde Captive,' Capitol Release

New York, Sept. 9.—Besides discussing the film industry's September War Bond drive, the Hays office directorate today listened to appeal of Capitol Films on Production Code Administration's censor cuts ordered on 'Blonde Captive,' which Capitol is handling as a reissue. PCA asked certain trims, particularly of alleged miscegenation theme, before being willing to grant the Code seal.

Capitol appealed to the directors rather than butcher film, with officials of independent distributors stressing that a major company released it originally in 1932, and insisting that there was no statute against miscegenation in New York state.

Directors took no action until after viewing picture, which they promised to do.

The advertising code of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America was not considered, but may be later on, since the directorate adjourned to an indefinite date.

Submit Eight Arbiters Available to Judge SOEG-Majors Tiff

Conciliation Service.

Proposed arbiters submitted by representatives of the exchanges yesterday are Milow W. Bekins, president of Bekins Van & Storage Co.; David T. Babcock, president of Blyth & Co.; Edwin F. Hahn, former Superior court judge, and H. Eugene Breitenbach, an attorney. Bekins and Breitenbach are members of the panel of the American Arbitration Association. List was handed to Business Representative Glenn Pratt of the SOEG by Pat Scollard, Paramount, arbiter for the exchanges.

Pratt, who has been designated by the Guild to act as its arbiter, then handed Scollard his list of prospective arbiters, carrying the names of Louis Drukker, George Cheney, Carey McWilliams and G. H. Gooday.

While name of Judge Irving Stahlmaster was not included in the list submitted by Scollard, it is understood several company representatives favor his selection. SOEG, however, would be certain to turn thumbs down on his selection because of reports that he recently received an offer of $12,000 to act as labor contact for a major studio.

Pratt and Scollard will go into a huddle today to discuss each other's selections, with Pratt reported ready to demand selection be submitted to Steelman immediately if they cannot reach an accord on the third man.

Registers 'Exchange'

Jack Schwarz has registered the title 'International Exchange.' Story is based on Laurenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, neutral port, where belligerents are exchanged by warring nations. Henry Olson Smith, former government representative at this city will act as technical advisor on film.

Location Dept. Grows

Expanding location work due to the governmental edict limiting new materials to $5,000 per feature is forcing 20th-Fox to increase personnel of location department. Matt Rogers, formerly of accounting, is latest addition to work under Ray Moore.

Montez In 'Savage'

Maria Montez returns to Universal lot around first week of October after month's vacation for her role in 'White Savage,' with Jon Hall. She finished her assignment in Walter Wanger's 'Arabian Nights,' over weekend at Universal before taking leave.

Shirley Subs For Lane

STARS' BOND SALES TERRIFIC; INTENSIFY SO. CAL. CAMPAIGN

With the film industry's 'Stars Over America' tours accelerating War Bond purchases throughout the country embraced by the seven routes now in operation, campaign leaders yesterday moved to intensify the drive in southern California. Organization of an eighth route, covering southern California's 11 counties, neared completion in the hands of Charles Einfeld, field director of the tours, and the Hollywood Victory Committee began plotting assignments for nearly a score of important personalities who have volunteered their services, but whose studio commitments have made trips farther afield impossible.

Cities and communities thus far set for Bond rallies on Route 8, for each of which screen stars will be provided by the Victory Committee, are Burbank, North Hollywood, San Fernando Valley area, Pomona, Santa Monica, Long Beach, Santa Ana, Orange, Inglewood, Alhambra, Highland Park, Bakersfield, Redlands, Redondo, Glendale, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Riverside, Huntington Park, San Diego, San Pedro and Pasadena.

Reports from other parts of the nation continued yesterday to show solid results as the 'Stars Over America' personalities worked through their schedules.

One of Irene Dunne's first appearances was at a rally on the court house steps in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., where 30,000 persons bought $300,000 in Bonds and were still going strong when rain drove them to cover. Rain also plagued the efforts of Edward Arnold and Frances Dee at Cedar Rapids, Ia., yet thousands of citizens lined the streets to welcome them and the Bond sales at a single rally topped the quota despite the rain.

Sales of admittance Bonds more than doubled the quota at a school auditorium rally at Staunton, Va., where a record crowd assembled to hear Greer Garson. An additional $16,000 in Bonds were sold from the stage.

A total of 452 persons bought $1,000 Bonds as admittance to a Springfield, Mass., dinner where Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford and Virginia Gilmore were guests of honor. At a noonday rally there employes of the Van Norman Tool & Machinery Co. matched a $250,000 War Bond subscription put up by the firm.

Announcement that James Cagney would headline a variety show in a Grand Rapids, Mich., auditorium, resulted in a sellout of more than $800,000 in Bonds. The house was scaled from $5 to $10,000, and loudspeakers carried the actor's appeal to thousands outside.

A rally and barbecue at the Hutchinson, Kan., fair grounds attended by Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari, produced better than $200,000 in Bond sales. Along with other appearances, Walter Pidgeon, Adolphe Menjou and Joan Leslie addressed 35,000 shipworkers in Tacoma and Seattle. Labor unions and workers in the territory bought $713,509 worth of Bonds.

Dorothy Lamour, scheduled to open her tour in Fall River, Mass., actually started the ball rolling with a telephone interview with five Boston newspapers the moment she reached New York. She also made three-minute speeches in many small towns while traveling between cities.

Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey and Hugh Herbert trained out yesterday for Toledo to join film personalities already on Bond tours.

Spyros Skouras Wings Out with Hal Horne

Following windup of the 20th-Fox western division sales meet, and installation of William Goetz as studio head during absence of Col. Darryl F. Zanuck in army service, 20th-Fox prez Spyros Skouras planed out last night for New York via TWA. He was accompanied by Hal Horne, eastern head of advertising, and executive assistant Aubrey Schenck.

Sales chief Tom Connors pulls out on the super-Chief for New York tomorrow, while western division manager William Gehring hops to San Francisco to open tour of offices under his direction. Bill Kupper, Connors' executive assistant, and eastern division manager Andy Smith, expect to plane east tonight.

Major Briskin Due

Major Sam Briskin returns Monday from Washington and will be assigned to the Western Ave. Fox lot as production officer under Lieut. Col. Frank Capra in the making of Army training films.

War Swats Ascap Radio Coin; Others Oke, Costs Are Cut

stein II, vice-prez, and George Hoffman, comptroller.

General theme of the meeting was war's effect on Ascap, its earning capacity and the changes that must be made in rate structures to take care of population shifts. Members were told by Paine that while this year's gross income from radio would be considerably less than in 1940, income from the other sources will show an increase of $750,000. Operating expenses, however, have been trimmed by $50,000 a month, which will allow for a net distributable revenue approximately equal to 1940, which was peak year for collections in Ascap history, Paine reported. Rate structures will have to be adjusted to meet changing conditions, due to the shift of rural populations to urban centers to take advantage of higher wages paid in defense plants. He said this and other conditions brought about by the war would be met as expeditiously as possible and with as little dislocation to the processes of the Society as is necessary.

The radio situation, he declared, has been thoroughly cleaned up, and that of 875 stations in the country, 784 are Ascap licensees. Only a few small and non-commercial transmitters represent the differential. The Ascap program-building service, through which stations can avail themselves of a weekly script cueing the proper music, is now being mailed to 535 stations. Supplementing this service will be a daily 10-minute complete script with music cues to fill out five-minute newscasts with complete quarter-hour periods.

Suggestions from members were sought by Paine and Hammerstein for incorporation into resolutions to be submitted at next month's meeting in New York. Most of the discussions touched on the war effort and the meeting was peaceful, without any controversial issues.

Paine returns to New York Saturday, Hammerstein the previous day and Hoffman makes brief stops at Frisco, Portland, Minneapolis and Chicago en route back home.

Del Frazier's 'Sports'

'Victory Sports,' featuring American sports used to condition service men, will be directed by Del Frazier at Warners. Two-reeler will be made in Technicolor.

SMALL TOWN EXHIBS CHEERED BY LARGER THEATRE CROWDS

The farm belt boxoffice is on the upbeat, according to itinerant film salesmen, after months of virtual starvation. Agricultural districts that were milked of younger element, male and female, via the draft and defense work, and with serious consequences for theatres, have perked up during the past month and exhibs are breathing easier after seeing the spectre of darkened houses. And it's all in the crop, a bumper one this year, and everybody working at it, including the idlers who never worked before.

Improvement is not sensational, it is reported, but substantial enough to cheer the exhibs. Too, it may drop off again just as rapidly as it came up, they figure, so they aren't talking too loudly or long even though high farm prices are saving their skins. Recent Government indication that ceiling on prices would hit the growers and raisers as well as others has the exhibs keeping their fingers crossed. But meanwhile they are taking it in and momentarily happy.

Condition exists throughout northern California, Utah, Idaho, Colorado, etc. There's work for everybody who wants to get out and do it, theatre managers themselves pitching in, too, when they do not have matinees. Salesmen and exploiteers report having to go into the fields to find operators. Kids, too, who never worked before, or for pittances, are finding themselves well shekeled and are spending it. Extra spending money is finding its way to pockets of folks who never worked before because they didn't have to. Appeals to help save crops now finds them doing farm labor with patriotic zest that echoes to theatres and other luxuries formerly curtailed through saving and population drains.

Three Readying at U For Location Treks

Universal is pointing three companies for location outside the Hollywood area. Walter Wanger's 'We're Never Been Licked' will entrain for college Station, Tex., for the Texas A. & M. College saga; Bruce Manning production, 'Forever Yours,' is slated for San Francisco shipyards stance, and Robert Fellows will dispatch players and camera crew to Pennsylvania city for 'Pittsburgh' scenes.

'Corvettes In Action' crew is still at sea, from an unnamed Canadian port, on the Howard Hawks production.

Lung's Round-the-World

Charley Lung, the 'hundred-voices' man of radio, will have role of round-the-world flyer in RKO's 'Stand By to Die,' David Hempstead production.

Kohlmar Readies Yarn

Fred Kohlmar is readying the Rachel Field story, 'And Now Tomorrow,' as his next associate producer assignment at Paramount.

Hope and Troupe Wing To Alaska, Aleutians

Bob Hope with a troupe of entertainers was en route by air last night to Alaska and the Aleutian Islands areas to give a series of performances at Army camps and Naval establishments. Accompanying Hope on the tour, which was set up by the Hollywood Victory Committee and USO Camp Shows, Inc., are Jerry Colonna, Frances Langford and Anthony Romano, accordion accompanist.

Planning to be away from Hollywood slightly more than a month, Hope has scheduled his first airshow of the new season from Fort Lewis, Wash., Sept. 22. The second will emanate from the Bremerton Navy Yard, and the third from Fort Ord.

Columbia Shorts Dept. Shutters Two Weeks

Columbia's short subject department will shutter during first half of October, by which time it will be several months ahead of schedule. Of the 28-two-reelers on the program for 1942-43, 10 have been completed. By Oct. 1, two more 'Glove-Slingers' will be in the can, also another Stooge comedy, making five ready for release.

Wanger Wings To Texas

Walter Wanger planes for Dallas, Texas, today and will make a brief stopover at College Station, Texas, site of A. & M. college which will provide background of his next Universal production, 'We've Never Been Licked.' He arrives in New York Sunday for a stay until Sept. 21.

America Looks Abroad
with ROBERT ARDEN

The impending fall of Novorossijsk and Stalingrad seems to have brought the peril of a Japanese 'sneak attack' on Siberia closer to becoming a reality.

The Japanese push toward Port Moresby seems to be a move aimed at neutralizing the U. S. conquest of the Solomon Islands preparatory to a move in the north.

About 750,000 Nazi soldiers, 1,500 planes and 2,000 tanks are hammering at the gates of Stalingrad in an attempt to take the city before the fall rains stop Hitler's mechanized power.

Its fall may be the signal for Japan's attack.

GAS RATIONING WILL HIT THOUSANDS IN FILM BIZ

Thousands of studio executives, technicians and artists were alarmed last night over the gas rationing program that would limit auto driving to 5,000 miles per year. It was pointed out that hundreds of them live from 10 to 50 miles from their studio, and that their average yearly driving, exclusive of pleasure trips, would run between 10,000 and 12,000 miles.

Many of them were already talking of organizing 'share your car' clubs similar to those in the aviation industry, while many actors were discussing plans to reside in Hollywood

JOHN PEERE MILES trying to protect his priority rights to the title 'An Apple For Eve' has filed a protest with Collier's and Kathleen Norris over serial of that tag now running in the weekly. Miles wrote a play of that title which was produced at the Hollywood Writers Club in October, 1936, and thereafter by the 20th-Fox Drama Club and a dozen or so little theatre groups. Records of Authors League show play has been pirated eight times. Current interest of Miles arises from the fact that some time ago Arnold Pressburger, for whom he functions as head flack, made tender of a grand for use of the title in a future UA picture provided Miles is able to establish his priority.

PRODUCER representatives were busy yesterday analyzing what effect, if any, President Roosevelt's action in banning double time for Sunday and holiday work would have on the film industry. There is little shooting on Sunday, but many technicians and others are employed preparing sets, etc., for shooting the next day. It was generally believed, however, that the order would not nullify existing contracts with unions. It also was believed the order would apply only to industries that have been officially designated as war enterprises.

LEGIT OPENING

the Shubert theatre tonight to inaugurate the Hub theatre season, and caught a good, if not exactly sock, reaction from the audience. Derived from the amateur show picked up from Washington's Catholic university some months ago, it was in better shape than most musicals opening in this city. But as it stands now it still needs a little more horsepower to boost it over the Broadway wall. Judging by its reception here, though, practically anything will go with the show-hungry customers at this point. If that holds true in New York, 'Count Me In' will make a strong bid for attention.

A book show if ever there was one, it launches a clever war situation when everybody in Butterworth's family signs up for war work but the old man, whose mat-making business is shot by the war. His wife is a sergeant in a femme outfit, his daughter is a nurse, one son is in the army and the other is a warden. This leaves him out in the cold until he finds a map of Shangri-La which he contrives to get to the Japs, who fall for the gag. Story builds nicely to a twist payoff, but payoff is limp as a haddock. In meantime it serves as a springboard for the music while the old man trots around to see what his relatives are doing. The idea is distinctly okay.

Butterworth and Gear make their situation gags tell, and have enough jokes thrown in to give the show all the humor it needs, while Goller and Jeanne, Hal LeRoy, Alice Dudley and Bob Alton's dancing girls supply a tasty set of dance routines. Moreover the specialties of the Ross sisters, the Rhythmairs and Melissa Mason are well spotted and catch on. The score and lyrics are weak. Although there are plenty of songs they haven't the appeal to carry the dual romance. Only 'We're Still On the Map' and 'Tickety Boo' come close, while the novelty song, 'General Staff', has stuff.

Some cuts are expected and will certainly improve the show, especially if the excision centers around those numbers which ring in the flag raising, such as 'Woman of the Year'. For the show's theme of kidding the various home-front activities is swell; when they get to shouting about naval victories and doing symbolic production numbers it backfires. Irene Sharaff's costumes vary from the very smart to slightly garish, and Howard Bay's sets and backdrops are fine. Carefully groomed before it leaves town, the show should make the grade. There were standees at the opening.

Brooklyn Strand Ups Admish on 'Dandy'

New York, Sept. 10.—'Yankee Doodle Dandy' is set to open at the Brooklyn Strand about October 1 at advanced scale of $1.10 nights and 75c matinees.

Picture opens about the same time in Warner houses in Newark, Jersey City, Patterson, and Passaic at same upped admish. 'Dandy' is in its 15th week on Broadway at $2.20 top, and will likely continue till Thanksgiving.

Foreign Agent

(Melodrama)

Monogram release. Features John Shelton, Gale Storm, with Ivan Lebedeff, George Travell, Patsy Moran, Lyle Latell, Hans Schumm. Supporting players: William Halligan, Herbert Rawlinson, Boyd Irwin, Kenneth Harlan, David Clarke, Fay Wall, Edward Peil, Paul Bryer, Jack Mulhall, Anna Hope, Jimmy Starr, Jack Raymond, Vinee Barnett, Rita Douglas, Jean King. Director, William Beaudine. Producers, Martin Mooney and Max King. Screenplay, Martin Mooney, John Krafft. Original, Martin Mooney. Photography, Mack Stengler. Musical director, Edward Kay. Film editor, Fred Bain. Sound engineer, Glen Glenn. Production manager, George Moskov. Assistant director, Gerd Oswald. Previewed at Monogram studio, Sept. 10, 1942. Running time: 62 MINS.

'Foreign Agent', initial Martin Mooney-Max King production for Monogram, will register in its release situations as satisfactory action fare. Dealing with spy activities on the Pacific coast, with its locale centered in Los Angeles and Hollywood studios, picture runs through its 62 minutes briskly. The romantic leads are capably handled by John Shelton and Gale Storm, both portraying film players who practically single-handed expose the spy ring to the FBI.

Plot involves a secret searchlight filter, invented by Miss Storm's father, which conceals its source while lighting approaching planes. There are also such details as plans to destroy water and power centers on the Coast in case of a Jap raid. Behind the skullduggery is Nazi money and tracking the agents down involves considerable script ingenuity on the part of Martin Mooney and John Krafft, working from Mooney's origi-

My Sister Eileen

(Comedy)

Columbia release. Stars Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne, Janet Blair. Features George Tobias, Allyn Joslyn, Elizabeth Patterson, Pat Mitchell, Richard Quine, June Havoc, Donald MacBride, Gordon Jones, Jeff Donnell, Clyde Fillmore, Minna Phillips, Frank Sully, Charles La Torre. Director, Alexander Hall. Producer, Max Gordon. Screenplay, Joseph Fields, Jerome Chodorov. Based on the play by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov; adapted from the stories by Ruth McKenney and produced on the stage by Max Gordon. Photography, Joseph Walker. Film editor, Viola Lawrence. Art direction, Lionel Banks; associate, Cary Odell. Interior decorator, Fay Babcock. Assistant director, William Mull. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Sound engineer, George Cooper. Previewed at the Hollywood Paniages, Sept. 10, 1942. Running time: 95 MINS.

The success of 'My Sister Eileen' on the stage will be nothing compared to the hit it will make at the box office of film theatres. Aimed straight at the funnybone, and tickling it every minute, this picturization of the Joseph Fields-Jerome Chodorov play adds another solid-money comedy to the Columbia string. For marquee bait, there is the Rosalind Russell name, coupled with Brian Aherne's and the growing prominence of Janet Blair's. The word-of-mouth advertising that will plug this film effort assures continued runs. Max Gordon, who brought the hit to the stage, duplicates with his film production to win a double credit for box office success. Played with hilarious skill by a cast of top fun-makers 'My Sister Eileen' is everything in the way of a comedy that any ticket buyer could want. Fields and Chodorov did the script of their legit piece,

Bandit Ranger

(Western)

RKO production. Features Tim Holt. With Cliff Edwards, Joan Barclay, Kenneth Harlan, Leroy Mason, Glenn Strange, Frank Ellis and Bob Kortman. Director, Lesley Selander. Producer, Bert Gilroy. Original story and screenplay, Bennett R. Cohen. Photography, Nicholas Musuraca. Art director, Albert D'Agostino; associate, Walter Keller. Recording, John C. Grubb. Assistant director, Sam Nelson. Editor, Les Millbrook. Reviewed at Hitching Post, Hollywood, Sept. 10, 1942. Running time: 65 MINS.

Settling the hash of rustlers is Tim Holt's latest assignment. He and his honest cowhands uncover a deep and dirty plot whereby a murdered marshal's identity is assumed by a henchman of the crooked cattlemen's association and evil rides the range undetected and unmolested. That is, until Holt takes over. Likeable and growing in draw, Holt will please the cactus eaters with the aid of Cliff Edwards' comedy and song, a fair story with action and suspense, acting (for a change), plus creditable direction and photography.

Holt is unfortunate in having the cards turned on him by the fast-moving bandetti. He has to take it on the lam in order to get evidence to clear himself and indict the real culprits. After a lot of convincing he gets the help of the community and the goods on the rustlers who would even stoop to murdering the dead man's newly-arrived sister to escape uncovering.

Picture fortunately doesn't suffer from budgetitis. Dough was spent in getting some heavily-manned chases, gunplay and assorted action that will excite the fans. Camera work on the chases is particularly good.

Kenneth Harlan as the dishonest association head gives that role some weight. Joan Barcley, the sufferer in calico, also convinces. Cliff Edwards is still Cliff Edwards and still accounting for amusing and melodic asides to dress and pace.

Stardust On the Sage

(Western)

Republic production. Stars Gene Autry. With Smiley Burnette, Louise Currie, Edith Fellows, Bill Henry, George Ernest and Emmett Vogan. Director, William Morgan. Associate producer, Harry Grey. Assistant director, George Blair. Photography, Bud Thackery. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, Sept. 10, 1942. Running time: 58 MINS.

At the drop of a mike switch, Gene Autry goes into song in his latest entry and never stops, there being more tunes than toughies this time. Combined with Smiley Burnette's broad comedy it comes out a swell Autry entry for his fans.

Melody has taken the place of murder, it seems. There's plenty of gun-pulling but no shooting as Gene and his pals rope and punch their way out of situations. Other times they're putting on shows to raise funds to keep the old mine going until the payroll can be met and justice meted out to the hombres who would take over.

The very busy Autry looks a little tired. Army work, rodeos and film commitments seem to have taken some of the zip out of his usually smooth work. However, film doesn't suffer. Only Gene looks to be suffering a little under the strain.

He's a cattle buyer in this mod-

Deep in the Heart of Texas

(Western)

Universal production. Stars Johnny Mack Brown and Tex Ritter. Supporting cast: Fuzzy Knight, Jennifer Holt, William Farnum, Harry Woods, Kenneth Harlan, Pat O'Malley, Roy Brent, Edmund Cobb and the Jimmy Wakely Trio. Directed by Elmer Clifton. Associate producer, Oliver Drake. Original screenplay by Oliver Drake. Adaptation by Grace Norton. Photography by Harry Newman. Film editor, Maurice Wright. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Harold MacArthur. Musical director, H. J. Salter. Reviewed at Los Angeles, Sept. 10, 1942. Running time: 61 MINS.

Utilizing the title of the recently pop song, Universal weaves this action western around the post-Civil War history of the Lone Star state, when an attempt was made to set up the southeastern section as the Republic of the Rio Grande. With plenty of adventure, riding and gunplay interspersed, picture evolves as a strong concoction of action entertainment of its kind, with production values above the normal for this type of offering.

Neither script, direction nor actors tarry for sideline detours away from the major objective of whirlwind action. Picture is fast-paced all the way, although in some dialog passages direction goes overboard with players hamming their lines in 1900 style. But audiences for which picture is aimed will not object to this deficiency.

William Farnum sets himself up as tyrannical dictator of the Rio Grande republic, after holders of large land grants refuse to divest themselves of the huge estates to get back into the Union. He's surrounded by a cabinet of avaricious aides, including Kenneth Harlan, as head of the little army. Burdensome taxes imposed gets the opposition of the ranchers and Publisher Pat O'Malley. This sets stage for entry of Johnny Mack Brown, son of Farnum, supposedly killed in the late war, and Tex Ritter, special agent for the governor of Texas. Brown enters his father's inner council in order to establish square deal for the ranchers, while Ritter upsets the plans of Harlan to take over complete control of the little republic. From there on it's the regulation western action, heroics, gunfights and hill-and-dale riding to the finish, when the section rejoins the state of Texas.

Brown and Ritter competently play the two leads, with comedy assistance of elemental nature from Fuzzy Knight. Oldtimers Farnum, Harlan, O'Malley, Harry Wood and Edmund Cobb are prominently spotted in support. Jennifer Holt has little to do as the girl.

Writing by Oliver Drake and Grace Norton is compact, with Elmer Clifton's direction hitting speedy gait. Photography and production background are satisfactory for a western of moderate budget proportions.

SHOWDOWN ON SOEG TODAY

U. S. Labor Department's Conciliation Service.

Two groups spent some time yesterday going over the eight names submitted, with the Guild nixing the four company recommendations. Representatives of the exchanges displayed considerable interest in the name of G. H. Gooday, submitted by the Collarites, and requested more information on him.

While the name of Judge Irving Stahlmaster was not submitted by the exchanges, Collarites said there was a behind-the-curtain move on to have them accept him. It was understood, however, that he was not acceptable to the Guild executive board.

If an accord is not reached today, Pratt said wire would be dispatched to Steelman asking him to select an arbiter over the weekend, so that the actual arbitration could get under way the first of the week. Both sides have stipulated that if an agreement on a third man could not be reached, Steelman would be asked to select him.

RADIO'S COMMITTEE OF 27 NOW READY TO MASS MANPOWER

Radio's 'Committee of 27', comprising the top talent on the airlanes and organized to present a united front to the Government in offering their services to the war effort, has been completed with acceptances received from the entire group by Kay Kyser, chairman. Coast radio will be represented by 20 air performers.

Composing the committee are Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Goodman Ace, Fred Allen, Charles Correll, Freeman Gosden, Edgar Bergen, Major Bowes, Bob Burns, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Eddie Cantor, Bing Crosby, Nelson Eddy, Clifton Fadiman, Jack Benny, Jean Hersholt, Bob Hope, Andre Kostelanetz, Jim Jordan, Frank Morgan, Hal Peary, Edward G. Robinson, Lanny Ross, Kate Smith, Red Skelton, Fred Waring and Kyser, chairman.

Kyser flies east after his broadcast Wednesday to represent the committee at the first of three meetings between W. B. Lewis, radio director of Office of War Information, and Advertising Council, scheduled for Sept. 18 in New York. Next session is in Chicago Sept. 21, followed by the two-day meet here Sept. 24-25. Attending all meetings with Lewis will be Douglas Meservey and Nat Wolff, chief deputies to Lewis, and Seymour Morris, chief of OWI's allocation division. Only Coast members of 'Committee of 27' will attend the sessions here, with the eastern wing to be present at the New York and Chicago meetings.

Wolff leaves for Washington Sunday accompanied by Collier Young, story head for Sam Goldwyn, for conferences with Elmer Davis, chief of OWI; Milton Eisenhower, his aide, and Lewis. They will submit a plan for an all-out radio policy to aid the Government to cement relationships with all branches of the broadcasting industry.

Three meetings have been set for the two-day visit here of Lewis. First day will be devoted to a session with Hollywood Radio Section of Advertising Council at NBC. Two parleys will be held the following day, the first at CBS with radio writers and producers, to be followed by a night session at the Beverly Wilshire with the 'Committee of 27'.

similar to those of 'Junior Miss', but hasn't nearly as many laughs.

The locale is a small city where Janie is a senior high school girl who throws party for several soldiers from nearby camp while the elders are at the country club. A whole gang of boys in uniform arrive and nearly wreck the house. Irate father gets pinched and it looks like plenty of trouble for Janie.

Gwen Anderson, late of the Pasadena Playhouse, trots off with the honors in the name part. Frank Amy as the boy is excellent. Herbert Evers, as the enlisted Yale man, is likely to get attention from picture scouts. Among adults in cast are Linda Atkins and Howard St. John, who is noteworthy as her suitor.

Maurice Manson is capable as the father, little Clare Foley is a clever kid actress, while others who count are Blaine Fillmore, Nancy Cushman and Paul Wilson.

Play is a production by Brock Pemberton, backed by Columbia Pictures.

Three-act comedy was by Josephine Bentham and Herschel V. Williams and adapted from the former's novel. Antoinette Perry directed; settings were by John Root, and Margaret Pemberton supervised the costumes.

Britons Here Dedicate Fund Bungalow for Winston Churchill

Winston Churchill yesterday had a bungalow at the Motion Picture Country House in Woodland Hills dedicated in his name. The cottage will be officially opened Sept. 27, when the Motion Picture Relief Fund will hold dedication ceremonies for the new home.

The guest cottage was donated by the British actors, directors and writers of Hollywood who asked that the edifice be named after Great Britain's Prime Minister. The bungalow is one of 40 planned to house film industry artists and workers in need of rehabilitation. Of the total, 26 cottages donated by Hollywood personalities and organization, have already been completed.

The Motion Picture Relief Fund announced that there would be industry-wide participation in the dedication ceremonies which will be broadcast nationally.

Obituary

FRANK C. ZEHRUNG

Frank Connell Zehrung, 83, veteran legit showman, died Tuesday night at his home in Van Nuys. He had been in failing health since suffering a fall two years ago.

Zehrung came here from his home in Lincoln, Neb., two months ago. He was principal owner and operator of the Crawford & Zehrung circuit of legit houses which operated theatres in Lincoln, Des Moines, Sioux City, St. Joseph, El Paso and other middle western and southwestern cities from 1894 to 1917, when he retired. He also was proprietor of poster plants in several cities where he owned theatres.

A real oldtimer of show business, Zehrung was a friend of George M. Cohan, Lew Dockstader, Ed Wynn, Raymond Hitchcock and other top figures of their generation. He served three terms as mayor of Lincoln and also was president of the Western League three years. The widow survives.

Body will be taken to Lincoln for burial tonight.

JACOB HYMAN

Dr. Jacob Hyman, Beverly Hills physician who quit show business many years ago to study medicine, died on Wednesday (9). He entered show business with the late Harry Houdini and was the first partner Houdini had. Later appeared with his brother, Joe, as Hayman & Hayman. Later did an act with his wife, Alida, as Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hayman. He took the medical course at Ohio State university and settled in Beverly Hills upon graduation. Pomerance Represents Unions On Victory Executive Board

A total of 20 trade unions, including six in the motion picture industry, are represented on the executive committee of United Citizens for Victory by William Pomerance, business representative of the Screen Cartoonists Guild. Group is headed by William Morris, Jr., and Judge Pierson M. Hall as temporary co-chairman.

Conference of Studio Unions voted $100 to further the new win-the-war organization this week, after Pomerance had explained purpose of organization. Cartoonists and other studio groups are expected to vote financial aid when project is brought before them next week.

First move of UCV will be a 'Town Meeting' Monday night in Philharmonic Auditorium, where spokesmen from all walks of life will tell how greater civilian effort can be put behind the war program. George Stevens will speak for the Screen Directors Guild. KFWB and possible other stations will air the meeting from 9 to 10 p. m.

WPB SAYS INDIES REMAIN ON RAW FILM STOCK LIST

Mayers, heads of the indie faction, said after a huddle with Harold Hopper, chief of the War Production Board film section, that constant vigilance is necessary to make sure the conservation program is not turned against the small studios.

Explaining they speak for 'all branches of the industry not represented by the 11 favored companies,' Hurliman and Mayers announced Hopper had promised the indies will be treated on 'the same basis' as the majors, and will receive, under present policies, the amount of film consumed last season.

Sharp cuts in the amount of stock available for the entire industry are likely, however, the indie leaders warned. They added the little fellows must be alert to protect their interests against an arbitrary slash in production. Mayers emphasized the indies are anxious to help win the war, but don't propose to be euchred out of business by the major companies.

Meeting to set up a permanent national association of motion picture independents, embracing unions, laboratories, exhibitors, distributors and producers, will be held tomorrow in New York.

My Sister Eileen

adapted from the stories by Ruth McKenney, and remained faithful in dialog and situation to their first writing. There were no embellishments needed, beyond the actual playing of scenes only spoken of in the play.

Its plot concerns two small-town girls who go to New York, one to be a writer and the other an actress. Their adventures are nothing to write home about but a delight to audiences. Both reach their goals and how they reach them while encamped in a Greenwich basement flat is told in sharp spicy lines and action by the Fields-Chodorov team.

Miss Russell always manages, somehow, to top previous comedy performances that have always seemed perfection. Here she revels in the assignment of the older-writer sister. Miss Blair, the former band singer, who has come along fast, milks the title role—the slightly addleo but charmingly formed wouldbe actress—of every comedy implication. Brian Aherne makes the role of Robert Baker, friendly editor, an equal standout in the top casting.

George Tobias and Allyn Joslyn divide the top comedy honors in the featured bracket. The first is the ridiculous Appopolous, the sister's landlord and would-be artist. Joslyn is the wolfish Chic Clark, theatrical critic who wants to give Sister Eileen her first break. Grant Mitchell and Elizabeth Patterson are father and grandmother Sherwood, respectively, both fine. Gordon Jones wins a big credit with his funning as 'The Wreck' and Jeff Donnell (Miss) as his ever loving bride, Helen Loomis, matches the credit. Individually talented parts are done by Richard Quine as Frank Lippincott; June Havoc as Effie Shelton changed from a street walker to a medium for Hays sake; Donald MacBride the harassed policeman; Clyde Fillmore as publisher Ralph Craven; Minna Phillips, Mrs. Wade; Frank Scully, Jensen, Charles LaTorre, Capt. Amadato, as the unbilled appearance of the Three Stooges for a finale tag.

Alexander Hall had to exercise no skill to make 'My Sister Eileen' a fast moving comedy. The faithful screen translation by the stage writers handed him a perfect setup for filming, leaving nothing to do but follow script.

Max Gordon's production function is skillfully realized in the casting and technical assignments; distinguished by the photography of Joseph Walker; the film editing by Viola Lawrence, the art direction, interior decoration, M. W. Stoloff's musical direction and the other highly expert contributions.

Foreign Agent

nal. Tapped telephone wires, a couple of murders and a few slugfests add to the interest and do their bit toward the eventual expose and arrest of the spies.

Heading the spies is Hans Schumm, who of late has been seen as practically all types of Nazis. His henchmen include Ivan Lebedeff, George Travell, Boyd Irwin, Edward Peil (the latter two easily recognizable as two Pacific coast characters recently sent up for sedition), David Clarke and Fay Wall. Each satisfactorily goes about the dirty work. William Halligan shows well as a militant news broadcaster gunning for the Nazis, and Jack Raymond sells a small spot as a Russian who heckles the seditioners for a standout bit. Jimmy Starr, film columnist, makes a brief, blinking appearance. Others are capable.

Mooney and King take advantage of the Monogram studio to provide backgrounds for the story's studio sequences and otherwise ably provide supervision. William Beaudine directed with an eye on the action. Photography was by Mack Stengler, with Edward Kay furnishing the musical direction and Fred Bain the film editing.

Goetz Banquets 20th Gang In Honor of Col. D. F. Zanuck

William Goetz, who takes over active charge of 20th-Fox studios for the duration, gave a banquet last night at the Cafe de Paris honoring Col. Darryl F. Zanuck, who retired from the company last week to devote full time to the Army. Executives, producers, directors, writers, and players numbering around 150 in employ of 20th gathered informally to say so-long to Col. Zanuck.

Goetz, accompanied by Fred Metzler, studio treasurer and manager, leaves today on the Superchief for New York to attend meeting of 20th's board of director. This will be Goetz's first session with the board since his election to membership some months ago.

added statement that the entire proceeds of the opening night performances at both theatres will go to the U. S. Marine Corps Fund, which is administered by Lieut. General Thomas Holcomb, Commandant.

High ranking officers in the armed forces will attend, in addition to the usual galaxy of stars, making this the Pacific Coast's first military premiere of the war. Seats at the Hollywood house have been scaled at $2.20, including tax, for this event, while Los Angeles opening will be at popular prices. Latter will prevail thereafter at both houses.

Stardust On the Sage

ern-day story that embraces radio, automobiles and 20th century skullduggery. Local girl radio commentator takes Autry for a ride by faking his voice on the air in telling cattlemen to buy mine stock. Angered, Gene aligns himself against the gal, but through circumstances always manages to be doing something for her. Disclosure that her foreman is the plot instigator puts Autry on her side and he sings all over God's country, the air waves and what have you, to raise more funds, frustrate the hoodlums and keep the mine a-going.

Magic show Burnette puts on is a diller for the kids. So, too, is his typical clowning of fight scenes and other roughhouse and pratfalls. When he and Autry finally invite audiences to sing along with them with screen-flashed lyrics, it's a howl for the juve trade.

STARS OPEN SECOND 10 DAYS OF DRIVE AT MANY POINTS

'Stars Over America' reinforcements go into action at various points across the country today and tomorrow, as the industry-led billion-dollar September War Bond drive goes into its second 10-day period. Final replacements for the stars who launched the nationwide series of Bond rallies on Sept. 1, and have exceeded quotas in one situation after another, were dispatched from Hollywood last night.

First of the new group of star volunteers to get under way will be Bette Davis, who opens today at Kansas City; Dorothy Lamour, at Fall River, Mass., and John Payne and Jane Wyman, at Newport News, Va. Irene Dunne will continue for another five days, starting today in Binghamton, N. Y.

Richard Arlen and Peggy Diggins, with Paul Price as tour manager, planed out yesterday for Bismarck, N. D., where they will open a tour tomorrow. Also opening tomorrow at Toledo will be Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey and Hugh Herbert. Gene Tierney and Chester Morris will start their tour Monday in Madison, Wis.

Paulette Goddard will train out at 6 p.m. today for New York, where she will spend several days before starting her 'Stars Over America' junket at Frederick, Md., Sept. 21, with Mervin Houser as tour manager. Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari will be the first of the volunteer Bond emissaries to return to Hollywood, being due tomorrow from Kansas City.

Wire reports received yesterday by Charles Einfeld, field director of the tours, continued to reflect solid Bond selling achievements in every city visited by the stars.

In Wichita, Kan., the appearance of Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari at a luncheon resulted in an overflow of 1,000 Bond buyers, with a hotel room being commandeered to accommodate an extra 300 guests. At a Winchester, Va., rally, where Congressman A. Willis Roberson shared the platform with Greer Garson, the quota was more than tripled. From Worcester, Mass., recordbreaking sales were reported at a luncheon attended by Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford and Virginia Gilmore. Two events on the itinerary of Irene Dunne also showed unexpected Bond sales strength, a luncheon at Bethlehem, Pa., and a dinner at Easton.

Similar reports were received from other cities, where Adolphe Menjou, Joan Leslie, James Cagney, Edward Arnold and Frances Dee were leading the Bond-selling parade.

U. S. Tags Bill Speyers

Willoughby (Bill) Speyers of RKO publicity department has passed his physicals and expects to be called to active service in the next several weeks. Veteran of the last war, Speyers subsequently was a radioman in the Merchant Marine. He has qualified as a top radio technician and also as an expert cryptographer, or code decipherer.

Heifetz To Tour Camps

Jascha Heifetz, utilizing a period between concert engagements, will make a special tour of California Army camps beginning in mid-October, it was announced yesterday by USO Camp Shows, Inc.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Perc Westmore, head of Warners makeup department for the past 19 years, reports for active duty Monday as a first class seaman in the Coast Guard. During his absence, Gordon Bau will assume charge of Makeup, with Margaret Donovan chief of hairdressers. Westmore tosses farewell party tonight for the 35 members of his department.

Mike Mazurki, actor-wrestler, leaves in couple of weeks to attend Army Intelligence Service school in Washington, D. C. On graduation will be eligible for commission. Mazurki, born in Russia, was brought to the United States as an infant and formerly was bodyguard to Mae West.

James Lane, assistant to Lou Shapiro, RKO location manager, and studio employe for past 10 years, has enlisted in the motion picture division of the Army Air Forces. He reports to Fort MacArthur tomorrow for duty. Milton Hoffman transfers from the shorts department to take Lane's location spot.

Milton Serotte, set doorman at Monogram, reports tomorrow at Fort MacArthur for army induction. Same day Roy Loggins, Jr., of Monogram studio commissary, will take his army oath at the induction center. Dwight Breeze, Monogram laborer, has enlisted in the Navy, reporting at San Diego Tuesday.

Sam Zagon, of the Hollywood law firm of Zagon and Aaron, has been inducted as a private in the air force and reports at Santa Ana Sept. 24.

Ted Weisbarth, still cameraman at Metro, leaves Monday for Miami where he will receive commission as Lieutenant in Army Air Force.

Douglas M. Smith, son of Pete Smith, who enlisted in the Navy yesterday as a machinists mate second class.

September Bond Drive Lags; Total for Nine Days $217,101,000

New York, Sept. 10.—Treasury War Bond sales figures for Sept. 9 showed a drop in daily averages at $19,367,000—bringing the first nine days of the film industry drive to $217,101,000, instead of the $225,000,000 figure necessary to hit the billion dollar figure for the month.

War Activities Committee of the industry stated its apparent magnificent sales reported throughout the counry are not yet showing up in official Treasury figures, and urged campaign workers to trace back all pledges and shoot the cash to Washington immediately—or millions in sales will be lost in crediting to the September drive.

Unofficial reports indicate $200,000,000 worth of War Bonds have been sold at rallies, luncheons, auction sales, etc., of which only a small portion is showing in the Treasury totals. New York state campaign has so far raised $36,000,000, but additional returns will raise that figure materially.

hotels while working in pictures in order to save the 5,000 mileage on their cars.

Studios also were faced with the problem of getting hundreds of employes to work who live outside or beyond street car and bus transportation. Belief was expressed that it would work a special hardship on extras and thousands of other casual workers, who almost daily go from one studio to another to work. It was stated that unless the players are pooled, with groups being assigned to various studios, an extra and other worker on daily call, would be able to accept work only at a studio close to his home or one he could reach by street car or bus.

Studios are expected to order surveys to determine whether allowances could be secured where a car was used to pick up large numbers of workers and transport them to the lot. It was stated, however, that no definite steps can be taken to meet the problem until it is learned just how the order will be drafted and whether there will be any exemptions for necessary employment. It was pointed out that hundreds in the film industry are actually employed in making War Training Films and other pictures for the Government although the industry has not been officially designated as an essential war industry.

Mayer Easting

Louis B. Mayer, accompanied by Howard Strickling, leaves for New York tomorrow to continue his talks on production and releases with Nicholas M. Schenck. He will be gone about a week.

CHARGES DOMINATION OF SOCIETY BY PUBLISHERS

Charging that American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers is 'dominated, controlled and run by a combine of eight large corporations', Robert MacGimpsey, songwriter-member of the Society, tossed a bombshell into the semi-annual meeting of the Coast membership of Ascap at the Beverly Wilshire hotel Wednesday night. In leveling his charges at the directing heads of the music organization, he warned that songwriter incomes from Ascap are in danger of being reduced or cut off entirely.

'If this meeting and dinner is supposed to be a social event, then what I have to say is out of place here,' MacGimpsey led off. Launching into his tirade, he added:

'If instead of being a love feast, this assembling of the membership once or twice a year is supposed to have a constructive purpose, then I think that the heavy expense of such meetings, which is paid for with the money of the membership, may be justified, and I think that a few constructive thoughts may be in order.

'I notice that those in charge of the running of Ascap do not hesitate to tell us, by pamphlet, and at these dinners, what a fine job they think they are doing. They tell us how wonderfully everything is going in the Society. But in so doing, they open for discussion the question of just how well the affairs of Ascap are actually being handled.

'Now what I have to say is the result of considerable study and discussion with members of this Society, and consultation with able legal counsel. I say to you that your incomes from Ascap are in great danger of being reduced or even cut off entirely. Now just keep that thought in mind while I point out why your incomes are in danger.

'Ascap is now dominated, controlled and run by a combine of eight large corporations. You know who they are. They are the only publishers referred to in these remarks. These eight large corporations, according to the best information we are able to obtain, possess, under the "weighted" voting system, more than 65% of all the publisher votes within Ascap. In other words, the eight directors who represent these corporations on the board of directors can remove any publisher director on the board who does not do their bidding, just as they did in the case of their removal of A. Walter Kramer who had voted favorably to writers on several matters.

SEZ BY-LAWS WIDE OPEN

'Thirteen members present constitute a quorum of the board of directors, and with a two-thirds vote of that quorum they can do anything within the Society that is not prohibited by the by-laws of Ascap, and let me tell you the by-laws are wide open in several important particulars. Now, if these 12 publisher-directors by subsidy or employment, by indebtedness, or fear, or even by winsome smiles, can manage to persuade four or five writer-members of the board to team up with the 12 publisher-directors, well, they can elect whomsoever they want for president, for vice-president, secretary, and so on. They can select the three members who constitute the powerful executive committee which has full powers to run the Society between meetings of the board.

'This combine now in power can turn down and refuse to submit to the membership for balloting any resolution that member may offer—as they have so often done. They can raise the classification on appeal of any writers who please them. They can change and do now propose to change the whole system of classifying writers without consent of, yea, without even notifying the members of this Society whose money they are handling.

'But that is not all, my friends. Once upon a time, two-thirds of the moneys distributed by the Society went to the writers, and one-third went to the publishers. That was the plan of Nathan Burkan and the other great founding fathers of Ascap. But that plan was changed by publisher pressure so that now one-half goes to the writers and one-half to the publishers.

CHARGES LUST FOR CONTROL

'This seizure of power by the publisher combine is the result of several years of scheming and planning. Gene Buck and a few others knew it was coming. They fought it. They were overcome. Is there anyone present who does not know that all of this scheming and effort to get control of the Society is for a purpose? Don't we know they are going to use this power, now that they have finally succeeded in getting it? Don't we know that five minutes after they kicked Gene Buck out of the presidency, Max Dreyfus made a motion that John J. O'Connor, a publisher, be made the PERMANENT chairman of the powerful executive committee of Ascap? Whereupon such a protest was made by a few writer-directors that the vote was postponed until some future day.

'Don't we remember that at the next meeting of the board of directors this publisher combine, for reasons which they do not care to reveal to us, removed E. Claud Mills from Ascap. In a lovely blue pamphlet they informed us that the Society had lost the valuable services of Claud Mills, but they failed to tell us that they gave him a year's salary of $35,000 in advance not to work for Ascap! Mr. Mills now has another job.

CITES HIS REFORMS

'A considerable number of writers have consulted on this whole matter and here are in the merest outline a few of the reforms we believe should speedily be made within Ascap:

'1. That the "weighted" voting system be changed to one providing for a numerical voting system, with one vote for each member with a proper equalization of the publisher vote with the writer vote, in all elections and on all amendments to the articles of association and the by-laws.

'2. That there be a change in the method of selecting nominating committee for nomination of directors so that the writer-directors shall select the writer-nominating committee, and the publisher-directors shall select the publisher nominating committee.

'3. That a method of recall of directors be established so that a director elected for three years may be replaced if his electors feel that he does not properly represent them.

'4. That all officers of the Society be elected by the vote of membership and not by the board of directors.

'5. That as soon as the numerical voting system is established, the Society proceed to hold a general election at which all 24 members of the board of directors and all officers of the Society shall be chosen by a genuinely secret ballot.

'6. That the articles of association providing for control by an executive committee be changed to guarantee reasonable representation thereon of writer-members, somewhat along the lines now being operated under a board resolution.

'7. That the two-thirds voting rule within the board of directors be changed from two-thirds of a quorum of 13, to two-thirds of the members of the entire board.'

Eddie Grainger Reports Sept. 17; Republic Realigns Schedule

Edmund Grainger, Republic associate producer, reports for Army duties Sept. 18 with rank of first lieutenant to Camp Maxey, Tex.

Departure of Grainger for military service necessitates reassignment of four pictures being prepared under his supervision, to other producers on the lot by M. J. Siegel. Quartet include 'Hit Parade of 1943', 'Saga of the Texas Rangers', 'Chisholm Trail' and 'House of Stars'. Grainger recently completed 'Flying Tigers'.

There has never been a period containing more suggestions of things to come than the present.

Although there was no important change in the actual battle front, events behind Hitler's lines bespeak great difficulties. The Allies are getting ready for a body blow on Nazi Germany.

Everybody and everything seems to depend upon the fall of Stalingrad.

As long as the Russians hold it and continue to exact a terrific price from Hitler for every foot he advances, the Axis remains paralyzed.

New York, Sept. 13.—Jules Lapidus, eastern district manager for Universal for three years, headquartering at the New York exchange, joins Warner Bros. Sept. 21, as metropolitan N. Y. district head, succeeding Sam Lefkowitz, who recently resigned. Lapidus was formerly U branch manager at Pittsburgh where he started as salesman for Metro and was with that company 10 years.

SAM HAYES, NBC GRID SEER, TABS 'EM FOR DAILY VARIETY

Sam Hayes, NBC football oracle, whose bland, mellow tones on the air are exceeded in popularity only by his extraordinary flair for forecasting college football winners for his millions of listeners, is going to call the games for Daily Variety. Each Wednesday, starting this week, he will name his winners and losers in the college and service games to be played during the following weekend, in a way that seems to be innately Sam's own.

Heard throughout the fall over 80 NBC stations, he has passed along

ANTICIPATED high percentage of pictures with various angles of Nazi spy methods, sabotage, and outright war drama, results in Republic decision to test out two westerns already made on audience reception of inclusion of war-spying themes in cowboy actioners. Studio has two gallopers —Roy Rogers' 'Sons of the Pioneers,' and Three Mesquiteers in 'Valley of Hunted Men' that will be released for public reaction before any further war or spy roundup interludes are injected into future westerns. During interim in awaiting results of theatre bookings of the two pictures, all other westerns to be made on the lot will be without any war reference.

FREELANCE writer and a producer were swacking it up in a nitery and finally reached the point of consumption where genius takes hold. Writer sold the producer on a story idea and latter was so impressed he wrote a check immediately for $1,000 on account. Pair continued imbibing to point of having to be carried home. Came dawn and writer found a check in his pocket and couldn't remember what it was for. Called the producer to learn that he, too, couldn't remember the deal or story, with result check was returned and the epic was lost in a hangover.

CURRENT government drive to conserve both gasoline and tires for the war effort has had impress on studios. Various production departments have issued orders that gasoline is no longer to be used for adding to fire fury in any picture in which conflagrations of any kind are to be depicted. Idea is that the audiences will not take kindly to waste of gas for film fires when the commodity is being restricted for auto use. Republic was one of first studios to switch over, collecting oil-soaked rags which would otherwise be thrown away as medium for accentuating the fire spectacle on a picture.

SERIES of six Tim Holt westerns turned out by RKO for the 1942-43 season were made in total of eight weeks time—necessitated by limited period available to finish the group prior to Holt's reporting for active service. All six scripts had been lined up in advance, and production department concentrated on compact schedules to come in under the wire. In addition to beating the time element, pictures were brought in $25,000 under total budget.

Idea was set by Frank Peterson, special consultant on the industry's September war bond drive, and attempt will be made to continue if stunt is productive.

TOP UA PRODUCERS TO ATTEND CHI SALES HUDDLES SEPT. 28

through for the company's release schedule. President Ed Raftery and Grad Sears, distribution head, also will address the sales group.

According to present lineup, it is expected the owner-partners and contributing producers will present a total of between 15 and 20 pictures for the 1942 program. First group includes 'The Moon and Sixpence', 'Jacare', 'One of Our Aircraft Is Missing', and Noel Coward's 'In Which We Serve'.

It is expected Sears and Raftery will be able to make definite announcement at the sales meet of pictures which will be turned over to UA by Paramount. Properties from latter currently being figured in deal include 'The Crystal Ball', with Paulette Goddard and Ray Milland; 'I Married a Witch', with Fredric March and Veronica Lake; 'Young and Willing', made by E. H. Griffith from the Broadway stage play, 'Out of the Frying Pan', with William Holden, Susan Hayward and Eddie Bracken.

In addition, negotiations provide for UA to take over five Harry Sherman specials, including 'American Empire', with Richard Dix and Frances Gifford; 'Silver Queen', with Priscilla Lane, George Brent and Bruce Cabot; 'Buckskin Frontier', with Dix, Jane Wyatt and Albert Dekker. First two are finished, and 'Frontier' currently is in production. Remaining two are 'Peace Marshal' and 'Gunmaster', both starring Dix. Windup of the list provides for Paramount to turn over all Hopalong pictures planned for the current season. List includes six, of which three, 'Border Patrol', 'Leather Burners' and 'Hoppy Serves a Writ', have been completed. Fourth, 'Three Men From Bar 20', starts in about two weeks.

According to negotiations under way, it looks like around $5,000,000 will be involved in the deal. Under plans being discussed, Paramount would turn over the group of pictures to United Artists at actual negative cost—with no further participation of Paramount in grosses or profits rolled up by UA.

Out of Variety Alley rides a kid on a nickel-plated bike, old and battered (the bike—not the kid) but still glittering in the California sunlight. That glitter meant something back in the Chain and Sprocket Era when your social prestige was determined by the bike you rode. If it was an 1897 model in the year 1898 you were immediately classed as a hindrance to the path of progress and your best friends turned their heads in shame as you pedalled by, even though you were a paid-up member of the League of American Wheelman, which was almost as powerful in those days as the G. A. R. Some of the more daring lads broke out with bikes fashioned with bamboo frames, but they were looked upon as diletantes, mere dabblers in the serious art of bicycling, then considered the last word in personal locomotion. The nickel-plated bike was the apotheosis of all bikes. Its rider's snoot was up in the air, socially, although he leaned over his handlebars, which were constructed on the order of Jerry Colonna's excrescences, while his sacrum towered high in the rear. Undignified, but still snooty.

Bells of Capistrano

Republic release. Stars Gene Autry, with Smiley Burnette and Virginia Grey, Lucien Littlefield, Morgan Conway, Claire DuBrey, Joe Strauch, Jr., Marla Shelton, Tristram Coffin. Director, William Morgan. Associate producer, Harry Grey. Original screenplay, Lawrence Kimble. Photography, Reggie Lanning. Film editor, Edward Mann. Art director, Ralph Oberg. Interior decorator, Otto Siegel. Musical supervisor, Morton Scott. Musical settings, Dave Gould. Songs: Jimmie Morgan and Thomas Hoier; Milton Ager and Jack Yellen; Walter Donaldson; Fred Stryker and Jerry Charleston; Sol Meyer. Previewed at Republic studio, Sept. 11, 1942. Running time: 73 MINS.

Last of the Gene Autry specials for the duration, 'Bells of Capistrano' will have no trouble holding up his boxoffice average during his absence as a sergeant in the Army Air Forces. There is rousing action spotted among the musical numbers, highlighted by an excitingly staged fire, for the red-meat fans, and the tunes are delivered in Autry's popular style to win favor. An unusually good cast lends the best of support and generally makes this a smart offering in the Autry special series.

Picture has one disappointment in that it will lead audiences to expect a big rodeo production number for the finale, but instead there is a flash patriotic close with Autry singing the World War I song, 'Don't Bite the Hand That's Feeding You', by Jimmie Morgan and Thomas Hoier, and giving an 'Uncle Sam Patter' by Sol Meyer. Harry Grey's associate producer function is creditably conceived in the casting and embellishments given the story, and William Morgan's direction capably handles the action and injects several excellent dramatic moments that give an adult touch.

Story concerns the saving of a failing rodeo show when it takes on Gene Autry as a cowboy crooner. There is a plot by a rival outfit to take over the smaller show, but when Autry and his friends turn loose not even the handicaps of love, fires and accidents can slow them down. Lawrence Kimble did the original screenplay.

Autry works well in some fast company, his supporting players all being competent performers who give a lift to the proceedings. In addition to the Autry regulars of Smiley Burnette and his miniature, Joe Strauch, Jr., picture has a fine performance from Virginia Grey as the femme lead, the sterling work of Lucien Littlefield and Claire DuBrey as a couple of rodeo oldtimers, Morgan Conway, a heavy who isn't overplayed; Charles Cane, a robust, fight-loving Texan; Marla Shelton and Tristram Coffin, both members of the villain's team.

Reggie Lanning does an expert job of the photography, and the musical supervision by Morton Scott and musical settings by Dave Gould are both good. In addition to the World War I tune, there are two other oldies in the score, 'Forgive Me' and 'At Sundown', plus an uncredited cowboy number. Other production functions are capable.

SOEG REJECTS ARBITERS, ASKS STEELMAN AS PAY FIGHT REP

Steelman, head of the U. S. Labor Department's Conciliation Service.

There is a possibility, though, the two groups may agree on A. H. Gooday, well known arbiter, who was suggested by the Guild. Exchange representatives requested additional information on Gooday and indicated they might talk with him personally before giving a definite yes or no.

Business Representative Glenn Pratt of the SOEG agreed to defer the Steelman ultimatum until today when the company heads asked more time to consider Gooday. At the same time they asked that the Guild submit four additional names, but Pratt indicated this would not be done, stating such action merely would delay the actual arbitration.

New names submitted by the exchanges are Fred Ortman, a business man and member of the national panel of the American Arbitration Association, and three lawyers, Warren E. Libby, Hugh Gordon and John C. McFarland. Other recommendations of the exchanges are Milow W. Bekins, head of Bekins Van & Storage Co.; David T. Babcock, president of Blyth & Co.; Edwin F. Hahn, former Superior court judge, and H. Eugene Breitenbach, an attorney.

Names submitted by the Guild in addition to A. H. Gooday are Carey McWilliams, Louis Drukker and George Cheney.

An effort still was being made to have the two groups compromise on Judge Irving Stahlmaster. SOEG officials said Stahlmaster was a capable arbiter who satisfactorily handled many big waterfront cases in addition to other arbitrations, but stated the SOEG board was opposed to selection of an attorney for the third arbiter.

SPITALNY CHARMS H'WOOD WITH FILM-SONG SALUTE

To signalize his entry into Hollywood for the first time in his long musical career, Phil Spitalny dedicated last night's 'Hour of Charm' broadcast over NBC to song hits that stemmed to immediate popularity from pictures for which they were originally written. General Electric program was in the nature of a salute to the industry, of which he will become a part for the next few weeks. He and his band of 29 girls are working in their first picture, 'Johnny Comes Marching Home' at Universal. Other studio deals are in the making, which if consummated would keep Spitalny here longer than his original schedule calls for. And, like other band leaders before him, he eventually may become a permanent among us.

Picture songs that were given that extra special Spitalny touch for the gala occasion were 'Temptation' from 'Going Hollywood', 'Over the Rainbow', from Wizard of Oz; 'The Carioca', from 'Flying Down To Rio'; 'Alone', from 'Night At the Opera'; 'Intermezzo', from the picture of that name; 'Love In Bloom', ditto, and 'When You Wish Upon a Star', from 'Pinocchio'. Soloists were Vivian and Evelyn and her magic violin.

First of the camp broadcasts will be from Haan Sunday, with the Naval base at San Diego scheduled for two weeks later. In between will be the Shrine Auditorium airing, with an audience of 6,000, largest ever to attend an indoor broadcast in Coast history. Last Coast date is Frisco, Oct, 11, unless other picture commitments require extension of their absence from New York.

'Hour of Charm' is produced by Dave White of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn agency. Jim Bourke is handling the advance and setting up facilities for remote pickups.

First Three Luxers Set By Agency

First three Lux shows of the new season have been set by J. Walter Thompson agency. In the seasonal takeoff tonight is 'This Above All,' followed by 'How Green Is My Valley' and 'The Magnificent Dope.' Leads for 'Valley' are Walter Pidgeon, Donald Crisp, Maureen O'Hara and Sara Allgood. Cast toppers in 'Dope' are Don Ameche, Henry Fonda and Lynn Bari.

Joe Stauffer In Town

Joe Stauffer, radio director of Kenyon & Eckhardt agency, is here from New York for discussions with Carlton Morse, writer-producer of 'One Man's Family.' Dramatic serial changes sponsorship from Tenderleaf tea to Fleischmann yeast, which necessitated a switch of agencies from J. Walter Thompson to K & E. Stauffer will be around for 10 days.

H'wood's War Aid Effort Aired

Discussion of 'How Pictures Can Best Aid the War Effort' by a panel of industry figures was broadcast nationally last night over the Don Lee-Mutual network as the weekly feature of Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air. Three-quarter-hour program was remoted from the Beverly Hills hotel, with the participating principals being Erskine Caldwell, Arthur Ungar, Arthur Hornblow, Jr., Walt Disney, Rosalind Russell, Sidney Buchman and George Stevens.

All phases of Hollywood's contribution to the war effort were aired, with some emphasis on the status of male stars as pertains to their first responsibility. The case of Clark Gable was pointed up, with Miss Russell contending that he could do a greater service to the country in films, camp entertainment and Bond selling than in his present military capacity. Ungar cited figures to prove there has been no shirking of duty by the picture business, with 2,000 of the available 18,000 males in films having already enlisted. Buchman argued that actors have not yet been proved indispensable to the war effort as actors. Agreement was voiced that Ungar's suggestion that pictures such as 'Eagle Squadron', 'Mrs. Miniver' and 'This Above All' may well serve as a pattern for the industry to follow in the production of pictures touching on the global war.

Caldwell stirred up a controversy when he spoke up for Hollywood to get 'tougher' in pictures adding that picture goers want to take their war and entertainment straight. He said that German pictures depict Americans as weaklings and cowards and we should show the Boche in his true colors.

At Miss Russell's suggestion that propaganda pictures should be confined to shorts and that entertainment should be reserved for features, Disney quipped, 'You know I make shorts and why should I be made to carry the whole load?'

Granik, who acted as moderator, returns tomorrow to Washington, the home ground of his Forum.

Smith To Par Huddles

George Smith, Paramount western division sales manager, arrives today from the east for huddles with western district manager Del Goodman and branch manager M. R. 'Duke' Clark. Smith is also slated to confer with studio execs on coming releases and production plans.

KMPC Really All-Out Sat. (18 Hours) For War Bond Sales

On the occasion of flashing its first 10,000-watt signal Saturday, KMPC in Beverly Hills will devote the full day and night time schedule to the sale of War Bonds and Stamps. All commercials for the period will be canceled and the full 18 hours given over to accelerating the sale of Bonds and Stamps.

Sam Hayes Tabs 'Em For Daily Variety

some 30,000 Touchdown Tips in the last 10 years, witih a record of accuracy that defies imitation. He has been right more than 80% of the time, this performance being topped only by Sam Hayes himself in two other endeavors.

His record of Bowl winners, even to the acute reckoning of the points scored by the principals, runs as high as 85%, whereas his Football Forecast Sheet, sponsored last season by General Petroleum, showed a season average of .824.

In his weekly picks for Daily Variety, Hayes will forecast results of the leading college games on a national basis, at the same time taking in all West Coast contests that have sectional significance. It will include special handicapping choices, not available to the run-of-the-mill football forecasters, for Hayes has worked out a unique system of selection, in company with Major Lyle B. Chapman, former Colgate footballer and a mathematical shark.

So tune in, visually, on Sam Hayes in these pages every Wednesday morning, if you want to know what's going to happen each weekend of football. But if you're a betting man, and looking for a sure thing, why not War Bonds? After all, Uncle Sam hasn't been wrong yet.

Two More Airers In Contention as Pabst Network Entry

Two more Hollywood shows have been auditioned for consideration by Pabst beer as a fall network entry, swelling the total of speculative packages to nine. Newest candidates, both under Lennen & Mitchell aegis, were produced by Tom McAvity, associate of Jimmy Saphier, and Jim Andrews of the agency.

In the McAvity lineup are Warner Baxter, Jack Carson, Hedda Hopper, Leith Stevens, music director, and Martha Tilton, vocalist. Program also has a spot for dramatic excerpts from pictures. Alfred Hitchcock presides as narrator of the heavy dramatics under Andrews' direction. Pabst will make a decision this week.

Three More Hit Tape This Week at RKO

Production momentum at RKO increases during the week, with three pictures hitting the starting line. Dudley Nichols' initial producer effort, 'This Land Is Mine,' is lined up to start within the next few days. First of two Harold Peary features, 'The Great Gildersleeve' has Herman Schlom as producer and Gordon Douglas directing.

Edward Golden expects to launch 'Hitler's Children' next Monday, with Irving Reis directing. In addition to the three newcomers on the stages, 'Stand By To Die' continues.

Young Tops 'China'

Paramount will make 'China' as a top production, with Loretta Young, Alan Ladd and William Bendix in top spots and John Farrow directing. Richard Blumenthal will produce.

Obituary

FRANCES KNOWLES

Frances Knowles, 50, writer with the Hedda Hopper organization, died at Hollywood hospital Sept. 11 following an operation. A native of St. Louis, Miss Knowles had been a Hollywood resident more than 20 years, and formerly was the wife of Freeman Wood, actor. She was for several years a member of the Cecil B. DeMille writing staff and also contributed to many magazines and newspapers.

Body will be cremated and ashes sent to St. Louis for interment. Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Colonel Goode, and a sister, Mrs. George Priest, both of St. Louis.

Mother of Joe Perry, West Coast manager for Decca Records, passed away Friday in Skowhegan, Michigan, according to brief word received at Perry's local office. She had been in ill health for some time, and Decca Joe was en route east on hurried call.

Yates Here for Talks With Siegel On Rep Studio Matters

Herbert J. Yates checks in at Republic today to start huddles with M. J. Siegel on future production schedule of the company and to settle other important matters hanging fire. He arrived from New York Saturday and will be around for three weeks.

Yates and Siegel will line up starting dates on a number of features ready to go before the cameras, as well as giving final okay to stories slated for production during company's next quarter. It is expected Yates will go thoroughly into question of forthcoming Roy Rogers vehicles, selecting stronger stories for film cowpoke's special westerns so Republic will have something to sell exhibitors as replacement for the Gene Autry westerns.

Indies Form Org to Seek Raw Film Protection

New York, Sept. 13.—While satisfied with Harold Hopper's deprieve from the 'death sentence' with which they were threatened recently, independent producer-distributors today were setting up permanent organization with the object of getting recognition in the future when any rationing of raw film stock or other materials comes up for consideration by the War Production Board.

Organization, to be known as the National Association of Motion Picture Independents, will seek participation as a 12th producing organization, so as not to be excluded from any deliberations affecting the 11 favored producing-distributing companies.

Koerner Operation of RKO Given Okay By Rathvon

Prior to pulling out for New York Friday night after two weeks at RKO studios, Peter N. Rathvon, company prexy, expressed complete satisfaction with the studio organization and set-up under Charles Koerner.

Statement of confidence was made by Rathvon at Friday morning's meeting of the studio cabinet composed of lot executives. He said that in addition to having utmost confidence in the production set-up and the manner in which the plant was operating, product that he had seen in rough cut was of higher standard than for several years. Rathvon looked over six pictures of high budget rating during his final week's stay.

No decision was reached regarding company's attitude on Pare Lorentz's 'Name, Age and Occupation' and Orson Welles' 'It's All True' while Rathvon was here. Report is that both producer-directors can make deals for the pictures with other studios if RKO is reimbursed for expenditures to date.

NEW STARS RUSH TO REINFORCE BOND DRIVE FRONT FROM HWD.

To intensify the 'Stars Over America' Bond-selling effort during the latter half of the month, the Hollywood Victory Committee plans to schedule route assignments today for at least 12 more screen personalities. In order to assure maximum results from their appearances across the country, the newly assigned volunteers will be provided with first-hand reports from stars now beginning to return from tours. Where possible, a series of conferences between the returning players and those still slated to go out into the field will be set up during the next two or three days.

First pair of stars to check in from a 'Stars Over America' tour are Ronald Colman and Lynn Bari, who trained in Saturday. Opening Sept. 1 in Fresno, they headed rallies in Stockton, Sacramento and in Nevada, Utah, Wyoming and Kansas, closing in Topeka and Kansas City.

Hedy Lamarr, who participated in the Washington premiere and covered the first five days on Route 7, opening in Philadelphia and including Camden, Trenton, Newark, New Brunswick, Elizabeth, N. J., and York, Pa., will arrive here today. Greer Garson, physically exhausted and hospitalized in Washington, following a 10-day trip through the southern states, was reported greatly improved. She is expected to head for the Coast after another day or two of rest.

Joan Leslie, who toured the Pacific northwest with Walter Pidgeon and Adolphe Menjou, undertook an additional two days of rallies in Helena, Butte and Billings, Mont., but was forced out by exhaustion en route to the latter city. After a rest in Butte, she boarded a train that will bring her to the Coast this morning.

Ralph Bellamy, in New York, was pressed into service to replace Laurel and Hardy, whose participation in the campaign had to be postponed because of Hardy's illness. Bellamy will join Richard Arlen and Peggy Diggins today in Duluth.

Janet Gaynor, Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce and Robert Stack will train out tomorrow noon to open a tour in Amarillo, Texas, with Wichita Falls, Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston, Beaumont and Port Arthur to be covered during the following four days. Stack, who has enlisted in the Navy, volunteered to join the five-day Bond selling junket while awaiting his call to active service. Len Boyd will be tour manager.

The Victory Committee also reported that James Cagney, who closed a highly successful 11-day tour Friday in Monroe, Mich., has undertaken an additional four-day route. Cagney and Lynne Overman, a new addition to the 'Stars Over America' roster, open Wednesday at Erie, Pa., and devote the remainder of the week to Ashtabula, Youngstown, Johnstown and Altoona, Pa., and Clarksburg, Fairmont and Morgantown, W. Va.

Evidencing the Treasury Department's appreciation of Hollywood's contribution to the September Bond drive and the importance attached to the campaign's final stage, Carlton Duffus, director of motion picture and special events of the Treasury's War Savings Staff, will go out on the road as tour manager with Cagney and Overman.

More than 25,000 assembled at Fall River, Mass., to greet Dorothy Lamour upon the opening of her 'Stars Over America' tour. Bette Davis' opening in Kansas City was reported exceeding all expectations. Edward Arnold and Frances Dee joined Gene Tierney and Chester Morris in St. Paul and were greeted by a Coast Guard band that had driven 650 miles from St. Louis. Arnold volunteered to remain over in the Twin Cities to appear Wednesday at a Bond rally in Minneapolis in place of Laurel and Hardy.

Payroll savings subscriptions were boosted substantially by Irene Dunne's appearance at two factory rallies in Binghamton, N. Y. James Cagney's appearance at a luncheon in Detroit produced Bond sales at the record-breaking rate of $150,000 per minute. Highlight of Fred Astaire-Ilona Massay-Hugh Herbert tour opening at Toledo was a gigantic rally at the Naval Training Station. Jane Wyman and John Payne covered three Virginia cities, Newport News, Portsmouth and Norfolk.

Billion-Dollar Drive Bogs; Push Hunt for Rainy Day Coin

New York, Sept. 13.—Film industry sponsored war bond drive is bogging down, from all accounts, with picture campaign workers now making redoubled efforts to make up for lost ground. First 10 days bonds sales totaled $239,810,000, according to official figures.

Orders from campaign headquarters in New York are for all local workers to check back all reported pledges and sales and to close every sale.

One move resulting from challenge facing the industry was the decision last week to have the treasurers of all the major film companies go on a 'treasure hunt' to unearth trust funds, estate accounts and other holdings with the object of persuading the holders to convert to War Bonds. Treasurers have been assigned to various banks and institutions. In addition to the 'treasure hunt' in New York City, every state chairman and all local committee workers are being urged to contact local banks, city, county and state governments, colleges and other institutions with idle funds.

Meantime, Monday, Sept. 22, has been set aside as a 'free movie' day for all those purchasing bonds. Thousands of theatres, independent and chain-operated, are cooperating.

Secretary Morgenthau issued a statement that he has been wrongly quoted as calling the voluntary savings plan a failure. The Treasury head declared he stated that 'The voluntary war bond program cannot alone close the gap between the amount of money available for consumer spending and the supply of goods available for civilian use.'

'The mounting requirtments of the war demand that our sale of war bonds be continued and intensified. It is my belief that the voluntary war bond program has produced and will continue to produce a great contribution to the nation's war efforts.'

TICKET-HOLDERS to last Sunday's broadcast in studio B at NBC must have rubbed their eyes in wonderment at what they beheld once parked in the plush pews. On stage were 29 ladies attired in formal gowns, aristically set off by potted plants and soft, shaded lights. What they were viewing was Phil Spitalny's 'Hour of Charm' group of all-femme musicians. Also decked out in formal scenic effects were the maestro and Producer Dave White. It must have come as a revelation to the audnence once the contrast to other studio shows had been conjured up. It marked one of the few times that a broadcast on the dress side had come out of a Hollywood studio. The usual habiliments run emphatically to polo shirts, golfing togs or just plain garden getups. It's just another facet to the Spitalny touch of surrounding his distaffers with showmanly glamor and soft lights to match the musical moods and give 'The Hour of Charm' its proper investiture.

HIRING of girls for backroom work on Film Row is working out well, accord- ing to reports. While it was feared that femmes replacing war-called boys would not fit the poster clerk work, etc., indications are that they are in some cases better by dint of having more patience with detail work. With proper supervision and instruction, it's figured that gals will fill the bill. National Screen Service recently took on considerable female force and reports work of the young women as very satisfactory, and heartening to branch managers who have been worried about manpower losses.

The Omaha Trail

(Western)

Metro production. Features James Craig, Pamela Blake, Dean Jagger, Edward Ellis, Chill Wills, Donald Meek, Howard da Silva, Henry Morgan, Morris Ankrum. Director, Edward Buzzell. Producer, Jack Chertok. Screenplay, Jesse Lasky, Jr., Hugo Butler. Based on an original by Jesse Lasky, Jr. Photography, Sidney Wagner. Musical score, David Snell. Songs, Eddie Buzzell, Earl Brent. Recording director, Douglas Shearer. Art director, Cedric Gibbons; associate, Harry McAfee. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis; associate, Hugh Hunt. Makeup created by Jack Dawn. Film editor, Conrad A. Nervig. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 14, 1942. Running time: 62 MINS.

'The Omaha Trail' tells a robust story of the pioneer battle between the iron horse and powerful wagon train combines. While not escaping the western label and not of epic quality, picture has plenty of entertainment for action fans and provides good contrasting support material. The players all know their jobs and deliver top-notch performances under the strong direction of Edward Buzzell. Production by Jack Chertok measures the feature for classification as better than average action fare. Particularly outstanding is the photography by Sidney Wagner.

Plot involves a young Irishman in an attempt to safely transport the west's first steam engine to Omaha in spite of the opposition of the owner of a large wagon train. Latter, seeing his business facing bankruptcy if trainmen are able to establish a track across the west, pulls every type of dirty trick to prevent engine's safe arrival in Omaha, but the new civilization wins out in the neatly framed script by Jesse Lasky, Jr., and Hugo Butler, based on an original by Lasky. Buzzell has staged his movement briskly and romps the high moments home in fine action style.

As the young Irishman daredevil, James Craig gives an entirely satisfying portrayal, handling himself well in the plentiful fight sequences and holding his own in the romantic clinches with Pamela Blake. Latter is a personable young lady who gives a first-rate account of herself as the femme lead who finally accepts the romantic uncertainty of love with the Irishman instead of the material love of Dean Jagger, wagon train biggie. Jagger displays his too-seldom-used talent in a well-valued performance as the villain.

Edward Ellis, pioneer railroader, does his usual competent job. Chill Wills, Craig's sidekick, takes care of the comedy in typical western manner. Donald Meek also gets his laughs as a crochety Scotsman and caretaker of the engine. Howard da Silva has a good spot as brother of Miss Blake. Henry Morgan is Jagger's two-gun killer, and Morris Ankrum completes the able, credited cast.

Musical score, under David Snell's direction, has two western songs, 'Bang, Bang, Bang', by Eddie Buzzell, and 'Taters and Corn', by Earl Brent. Both are well spotted. The art direction, set decorations and other functions have the usual Metro excellence.

White Cargo

Metro production. Stars Hedy Lamarr and Walter Pidgeon. Features Frank Morgan, Richard Carlson, Reginald Owen, Henry O'Neill. Supporting cast: Bramwell Fletcher, Clyde Cook, Leigh Whipper, Oscar Polk, Darby Jones, Richard Ainley. Director, Richard Thorpe. Producer, Victor Saville. Screenplay, Leon Gordon; based on the stage play by Leon Gordon, from the novel, 'Hell's Playground', by Ida Vera Simonton. Photography, Harry Stradling. Musical score, Bronislau Kaper. Dance direction, Ernst Matray. Recording director, Douglas Shearer. Art director, Cedric Gibbons; associate, Daniel B. Cathcart. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis; associate, Keogh Gleason. Native costumes by Kalloch. Makeup created by Jack Dawn. Film editor, Fredrick Y. Smith. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 14, 1942. Running time: 90 MINS.

Those very substantial audiences that will go for 'White Cargo', knowing it by play repute or for the implications of the title, will want to see exactly what that title pretends to sell. And they will not be cheated. Here is 'White Cargo' precisely as Leon Gordon put it into his stage play, from the melodramatic novel, 'Hell's Playground', by Ida Vera Simonton. It is archaic. It will not draw critical applause. Much of its story thunder has been stolen through the years for other lurid tales of white men done in by liquor and half-caste sirens of dark lands. But its simple serio-comic tale will please many a not-overtrained picture audience, especially adolescent, and bring in a very respectable profit for showmen who know their patrons.

The draw name in connection with the title will be Hedy Lamarr. She plays her antic seductress role with abandon, speaking her pidgin English, essaying a hip dance and generally conducting herself toward Walter Pidgeon and Richard Carlson, the new foreman in the tropical rubber plantation where the heat is supposed to rot men of temperate climes, with the manner of the 'vamps' of the silent pictures. It will not be said that this is Miss Lamarr's best role, or that it is even of profit or prestige for her. It will even get laughs at the wrong spots, maybe hilarious whistles by the participating audiences. But it'll be fun to watch those antics in the sarong and to hear the prattle of Tondelayo.

Pidgeon isn't too much at ease in his role as the veteran resident of the rubber plantation who must break in a succession of susceptible young men fresh from England. Richard Carlson handles his part well in the sway of conflicting impulses as he approaches the point where he is ready to marry the enticing Tondelayo—a prospect which, because of its miscegenation, horrifies the older Englishmen, including Frank Morgan, who plays the doctor, and Henry O'Neill, the padre. Reginald Owen has a good part as skipper of a river boat. Bramwell Fletcher, Clyde Cook, Richard Ainley are able in support.

Richard Thorpe directs exactly as this screening of the play had to be directed to keep the story and the characters intact—with vigor, with enough comedy to leaven, with an eye to the picturesque quality and for what the customers will expect from the names.

Leon Gordon wrote the screenplay from his own stage piece, maintaining the same values. Victor Saville has the producer credit.

Excellent photography by Harry Stradling heads the generally first-class technical support. Bronislau Kaper supplies an eerie and appropriate musical score.

Par Sales Execs Mull Upped Coast Rentals As Theatres Boom

George Smith, Paramount's western division sales manager, leaves for Frisco tomorrow for sales confabs with exchange personnel there, following couple of days here with Del Goodman, western district manager, and N. R. 'Duke' Clark, branch manager. Following upstate visit, he will proceed to Portland and Seattle for additional sales talks with exchanges in the Pacific northwest.

Smith's visit is in line with investigating the boom conditions on the Pacific slope and possibility of upping rentals on product. It follows closely on recent trip to San Diego by Goodman and Clark.

Play Review

WATCH ON THE RHINE

A rapt audience was touched to the quick last night by a great play at the opening of Lilian Hellman's 'Watch On the Rhine' at the Biltmore theatre. Professionals and casual theatre goers alike were moved to emotional heights and girded anew for battle against abysmal, warring evil through the sincere playing of the veteran Broadway company now on its extended road tour. Cast, direction staking do full justice to the playwright's thrust at the Nazi gargoyle which was the New York Drama Critics Circle's unanimous choice as best American play for 1940-41.

This is probably the best offering of straight drama seen here in years. Characters, situation, theme have been skillfully welded into effective theatre and a compelling message which has irresistible human appeal and moral vigor, without overt propaganda. The scene of Paul Lucas as the political agent who must go back to Nazi Germany to complete his work against the overloads of barbarism, saying goodbye to his children in the home of his American wife and their mother, is one of the most stirring pieces of drama of any modern theatrical piece. The story of the battle of the man and his wife, Lucas and Mady Christians, to carry out their self-appointed assignments against the enemy is straightforward, told with some of Miss Hellman's best dialog. Performances of these two, together with Lucille Watson, Frederick Tozere, Scott Colton, Eleanor Wilson, Eda Heinemann, Frank Wilson, Edward Ryan, Jr., Eric Roberts, Anne Blythe (the last three, the children) are all flawless, often brilliant.

Herman Shumlin's direction is masterful, his production of finest calibre. Show will get the kind of exciting talk which would create a sell-out for the Biltmore, even if the repute of the play had not labeled it a great hit for the past two years.

just how far the IB intends to go in backing up the cameramen, who already have voted to merge the American Society of Cinematographers with the IBEW.

Bieretz is expected to confer today with Gene Gaillac, Coast IB international representative; George 'Curly' Davis, business manager of the IBEW studio drive; Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, and other film labor leaders, as well as producer representatives. It is understood Bieretz has already contacted Fred Jackman, prexy of the ASC, and Pat Casey, Producer labor contact.

At the same time, both IBEW and IATSE tops indicated they were expecting action in the camera situation when Dewey Wrigley, top lenser, returns from a 20th-Fox location in Utah. It was reported Wrigley was scheduled back today. Fireworks between two groups was expected to start if Wrigley was permitted to continue his camera work at the studio. The ASC suspended Wrigley, claiming he had accepted the local assignment without permission of the board of governors after IA Local 659 had forced an ASC director of photography off the job. Wrigley has filed suit in Superior court, demanding his reinstatement.

Reports were current last night that Prexy Richard Walsh of the IA might be heading for the Coast to discuss the camera situation, but he had not contacted any local officials. Walsh is under instructions from the IA general convention to assist International Photographers Local 659 in taking control over all cameramen, including directors of photography.

Par-UA Taking Week More to Work Out Big Product Buy

Final details of United Artists deal to take over Paramount product will be worked out within the next week, at which time Ed Raftery, UA prexy, will either return to New York to sign papers with Par home office heads or execute the transaction here. There are 11 pictures ready to be turned over to UA that have been completed which include 'Young and Willin,' 'I Married a Witch,' and 'Crystal Ball' in the 'A' bracket that stand Paramount close to $2,000,000 to make; 'Silver Queen,' 'American Empire' and 'Buckskin Frontier,' Harry Sherman specials that run around $1,200,000 to turn out, and five Hopalong Cassidy films costing around $375,000. In addition to this group Sherman is to turn over three more specials and six Hopalongs that he will produce next year.

Sherman is to remain with the setup at Paramount though he has product which will be released through United Artists. Paramount will finance all of the future Sherman product that he makes for the UA release.

It is expected that the negatives of the films to be sold to UA will be turned over to that company by Paramount in time to enable the purchasing company to show them to its sales organization at the Chicago meeting which takes place on Sept. 28.

Gradwell Sears heads east tonight on the Super Chief to make arrangements and plan details for the Chicago meeting.

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Richard Hogan left the Metro cartoon department for active service; Assistant Animator Peter Alvarado has enlisted in the Marine Corps, and Background Artist William Tracey, Navy radio operator in the last war, has been called for active duty in Washington.

Jack Jungmeyer, Jr., screen writer for past three years at 20th-Fox, has enlisted as a private in the First Motion Picture Unit of the Army Air Force and is being inducted today at Fort MacArthur for assignment.

Buddy Rich, drummer with Tommy Dorsey band, will be sworn in today as a Marine, but gets a brief deferment to finish with the band in 'DuBarry Was a Lady' at Metro.

Robert Schiffer, Columbia makeup man, will be sworn in Thursday as a chief boatswain's mate in the U. S. Coast Guard. Schiffer is a cousin of General Sir Archibald Wavell.

David Lewis, associate producer at Paramount for past five months, reports at Fort MacArthur this morning for induction in the Army as a private.

Julian Harmon, Metro writer, has been recalled to active service in the Army Signal Corps, and pulls out immediately for Fort Monmouth.

Earl Waltman reports to Fort MacArthur as a private in the Army, for assignment. He was in mail room at Republic.

Bert Teitlebaum, head art director at Warners, joins Army Air Corps in Miami soon with rank of lieutenant.

SOEG DEMANDS U. S. SELECT THIRD ARBITER IN PAY DISPUTE

request that a Supreme court judge be permitted to name an impartial arbiter.

The Guild refused to accept any of the eight arbiters suggested by the exchanges, and the company representatives vetoed the four suggested by the SOEG. Guild tops said a previous agreement called for the Conciliation Service to name the arbiter in event the two groups could not reach an accord, but Scollard asked the matter be deferred until today to give him time to contact representatives of other exchanges.

It was reported yesterday that many exchange employes were quitting to accept work at better pay in other industries, while many others indicated they were remaining only temporarily in the hopes of getting a chunk of retroactive pay. The same report said exchanges were having to pay more to replace those leaving and were attempting to persuade the regulars to stay so as not to have to train new workers.

Business Representative Glenn Pratt has been designated as arbiter for the Collarites.

McDowell, KFOX, New Prez of Broadcasters

Lawrence McDowell, manager of KFOX, Long Beach, is the new president of Southern California Broadcasters Association following annual election of officers yesterday. He succeeds Harry Witt of KNX, who had served two terms. Duke Hancock, KGFJ manager, was voted viceprez; Harry Maizlish, KFWB manager, secretary-treasurer, and Ethel Bell, aide to Richard Connor, coordinator for Broadcasters Association, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Witt was given a vote of confidence and appreciation of his services by 22 of the 29 station managers voting at yesterday's election. McDowell will name his executive committee later this week.

Rep Hands 'Commandos' To Armand Schaefer

Class Nitespots Feel Labor Famine Pinch

Nitespots and class eateries are feeling effects of war on the help situation. Although initial effects smacked the drive-ins, lower-scaled hopstool stands and restaurants several months ago, class spots now are scouring around for permanent help that is willing to stay.

Despite efforts to cull applicants and to raid employes of other establishments with advantages of higher wage scales and better tipping, bright spots find other competitors grabbing off their best help, including waiters, kitchen workers and bartenders.

The Merchant Marine, railroads and steamship lines have made inroads on manpower.

Headwaiter leaving a prominent local spot is understood to be lining up a dozen or more waiters, chefs and kitchen help for a new ship. Wages are said to run considerably higher than ashore.

Government edict requiring enemy aliens to be at home between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. also has seriously reduced the supply of nitespot manpower. One nitery that has opened and closed spasmodically during the past two years had its highly publicized chef grounded at home for the duration, and all efforts of the promoting operator to put on the fix with government agents failed.

Scribbling

Sam Hoffenstein joins Warners writing staff to adapt Andrew Rosenthal's comedy drama, 'Broken Journey', first on Benjamin Glazer's producer schedule, preceding 'Mississippi Belle' and 'Deep Valley'.

Frank Butler has started work on the script of 'Hostages', the Stefan Heym novel, at Paramount, after winding up screenplay of 'China'.

Richard Flournoy returned to Columbia yesterday after a three-week vacation to write additional scenes for 'Merry-Go-Round'.

Benny Remaining Here For 1st Broadcasts Of New Season

Jack Benny has changed his plans about going to New York for the first two broadcasts of the new season, being held here for retakes on 'Meanest Man In the World' at 20th-Fox. Unless further detained on his current picture, Benny and his troupe will head east after the second airing from here Oct. 11, remaining in New York for 10 weeks.

Switch in locale for opener also may cause a substitution of Phil Harris for Harry James, who was set for the first two programs with an option for as many more. Latter is held east by commitments, but probably will go on the program when it goes east.

Victory Committee Lists 66 Stars for 78 Bond Tours

Additional talent assignments made by the Hollywood Victory Committee in conjunction with USO-Camp Shows, Inc., brought the group's Army camp tour program to a peak, with 66 personalities listed for 78 tours to both Army and Navy establishments.

The Ritz Brothers, going out on a tour a second time, were announced to open Oct. 6 in Biloxi, Miss., and work through Louisiana until Oct. 17, doing 11 shows.

The Committee also made reports on Roy Atwill, who completed 26 shows on a tour through Arizona, Nevada, California, South Dakota and Nebraska; Dave Rubinoff, who made nine appearances in North and South Carolina and Florida, and Jinx Falkenburg, who did nine shows in Virginia and North Carolina.

Bonita Granville and Phyllis Brooks were set to meet Jackie Cooper in Cleveland and undertake an itinerary calling for an opening Sept. 29 in Aberdeen, Md., followed by 14 shows in Virginia. The tour will close Oct. 14.

Victory Committee volunteers were on the move over the weekend on a number of war aid activities. Fifi O'Orsay, Bill Roberts, Shirley Dinsdale, Margaret Whiting, Harry Barris, Patsy Lee Parsons, Al Herman, Loyce Whiteman and Rod Rogers entertained at the Veterans hospital near Sawtelle. Chick Chandler Rena Case and June Carlson appeared before the engineers and infantrymen at Ojai. Also in the company were June Carlson, Dennis O'Keefe, Margaret Young, Harry Holman, Bonnie Kildare and Lynn Boyer.

CITY'S INADEQUATE TRANSPORT SYSTEM BLOW TO THEATRES

The spectre of war, at last hitting the box office through the announced national rationing of gas, has all exhibs deeply pondering the outcome. Many would like to feel that like the dim-out it won't be felt after the first flurry, but majority, other than neighborhood exhibs, see sprawling and transportation-poor Los Angeles, an octopus that may strangle, or, at least, choke their take some.

Unlike most other key towns, Los Angeles has no rapid transit subways or 'els', and has the added disadvantage of complicated trolley and bus systems that require auto driving unparalleled in other cities. When that is curtailed, exhibs see a sharp drop in theatre attendance, particularly first-runs and other more distant houses, plus possible switch to other divertissments requiring little or no travel.

Theatres that have enjoyed strong transient trade will be the most hurt, it is felt. There will be little scouting or cruising when folks are inclined to drive at all, and theatres with strong ads and b.o. appeal pictures will benefit, getting their trade direct from home—and not too frequently, either, it's thought. Suburbanite trade, particularly, will be lost, say first and second-run exhibs.

Majority of first-runs dropped off a little this week. Though Jewish holiday and return of kids to school on Thursday is wishfully thought to be the answer to that, some exhibs see the government's announcement on the fuel and tire situation backgrounding. As an instance of appeal angle, Columbia's widely ballyed and star-heavy 'Talk of the Town' was single top grosser this week.

Whether or not neighborhood theatres will benefit from the gas rationing is moot, indies say. Some see the public gradually going apathetic if they have to wait too long to see pictures and developing new avenues of amusement. Therefore, any drop in first and second-run theatres may not necessarily mean an increase in the lesser stands.

While car-sharing has somewhat solved problem for younger folks, it is thought that elders will not go for the less comfortable idea except for business or other necessary reasons. Kids may be expected to load up family secondary cars when the purse holder gives the nod, but that may be lessened, too, when parents see shortage becoming really acute and exclude all but necessary driving, if authorities haven't already stepped in on that.

Meanwhile, exhibs are holding their breaths, waiting for clarification of the order to see to just what extent it may slap them. Few are optimistic, many downright dejected. All are anxious for the test so they can start machinery to combat any ill effect, little or none of which resulted from first announcements of tire rationing and subsequent dim-out.

Herbert Stothart will handle musical score for Metro's 'The Human Comedy.'

Reversing the Order

Unique premiere whereby films execs and stars will occupy the bleacher seats at $100 per pair has been arranged for opening of Hollywood Canteen Oct. 3. Usual procedure will be reversed, with the Hollywood biggies cheering the servicemen as they pass into their furlough retreat. Dedication will be attended by brasshats from all walks of life. Canteen will remain open every night from 6 to midnight except Sundays when hours will be from two to eight.

Buckley Heads for NY; Joining F-WC Party

Charles Buckley, v.-p. and legal head of Fox West Coast, returns today from a trip to the north, and prepares to leave tomorrow for New York on company business. There he will be joined by Charles P. Skouras, president of F-WC; Andy Krappman, Skouras' exec aide, and Tom Paige, statistician, who are touring National Theatres affiliates distributing prizes among managers and executives for their participation in the recently closed Skouras Showmanship drive and checking theatre operations.

Irving Epstein, head of NT's insurance department, left yesterday for Milwaukee to join the Skouras party, and will proceed to New York with them.

Oscar Oldknow Returns

Oscar Oldknow, v-p and local head of National Theatre Supply, has returned from a three-week trip through the midwest and east. Visited NS branches and hopped to Atlanta, Ga., to check into personal theatre interests there.

Burns & Allen, Wilson Join So. Calif. Bond Rally at Pomona

Speeding up activity on southern California's 'Stars Over America' schedule, Burns and Allen and Don Wilson were assigned by the Victory Committee to headline festivities today at Pomona. The three will attend a Bond luncheon, a mid-afternoon rally in Pomona's Victory Square and a Bond premiere at the Fox theatre. A Bond auction will feature the latter.

The Committee also set rally dates for a number of other southern California cities, as follows: Bakersfield, Sept. 21; Paso Robles, 22; San Luis Obispo, 23; Santa Barbara, 24; Santa Monica, 25; Redlands, 22; San Bernardino, 23; Riverside, 24; Huntington Park, 25; Long Beach, 23, and San Pedro, 26. 'Stars Over America' plans for Santa Ana, San Fernando valley, Inglewood and Redondo will be completed within a day or so, and stars assigned to each community.

Frances Dee, who completed a tour with Edward Arnold Saturday at Eau Claire, Wis., will return to Hollywood today.

Tour managers were named yesterday to go out with the final group of 'Stars Over America' headliners, for whom assignments are being worked out as rapidly as possible. They are Walter Ruf, Columbia; Eddie Rubin, RKO; Tommy McLeod, Universal; James O'Toole, Columbia; Miss Lyle Rooks, Paramount, and Mervin Houser, Paramount. The group will hold a preliminary meeting today at the office of Charles Einfeld, tour director.

Leaving earlier than scheduled because of uncertain transportation schedules, Janet Gaynor, Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce and Robert Stack entrained last night to open a 'Stars Over America' tour Wednesday at Amarillo, Texas.

Reports continued to pour in to local campaign headquarters of results being attained by the touring Bond emissaries in various parts of the country. Dorothy Cordray flew from St. Paul to Fargo, N. D., to join Ralph Bellamy, Richard Arlen and Peggy Diggins, as a replacement for Joan Leslie, who was forced to withdraw because of illness.

Hedy Lamarr, Walter Pidgeon, Adolphe Menjou and Joan Leslie returned to Hollywood yesterday after headlining Bond rallies in the east.

The sensational defense of Stalingrad indicates that this epic battle may be Russia's Verdun, beyond which no Nazi shall pass alive, or Hitler's Waterloo, the one battle the modern conqueror of Europe could not afford to lose.

Hitler's plight was fully illuminated by Laval's plan to transfer thousands of French laborers to Naziland. His manpower must be very depleted, and another winter in Russia may be disastrous.

In addition, Japan is stymied, too. Russia's bombers are the 'handwriting in the sky', a warning to Tokyo not to attack Siberia unless a blitz success is certain. Japan is too close to Vladivostok to allow for much time, and Vladivostok is too strong to be overrun.

HOT SSD-PRODUCER MEET OFFED FOR STUDIO TOUR

Following a heated session yesterday between Producer representatives and a committee from the Screen Set Designers over wage demands of studio illustrators, it finally was agreed that a joint committee from the two groups will survey each studio to determine the importance of work done by the illustrators. Studio tours will start today, with Victor H. Clarke representing the Producers, and Business Representatives Ed Mussa and Les Thomas appearing for the SSD and illustrators.

'WHO'S reaching now?' was radio's first reaction to scareheads in downtown sheets blaring the news that a Jap bomb had been found in Oregon almost a week after the actual discovery. Newspapers, quick to criticize radio for sensational handling of war news, found themselves squarely on the spot following such streamers as OREGON BOMBED which appeared in the usually conservative L. A. Times. It boomed street sales but the reading of the story was as harmless as the dud that was dropped by the nips. This time radio couldn't be accused of going off the deep end as most stations handled the story with restraint. For instance, KNX gave out with its first bulletin thusly: 'Western Defense Command just announced that a fire bomb with Jap markings was dropped near Emily, Ore., Sept. 9. Bomb was apparently dropped by a submarine-based seaplane. Army officials emphasize no damage was done.' Apparently only ones bombed were the extra buyers.

PHIL SPITALNY has a $1,000 wager awaiting a taker that the femme members of his 'Hour of Charm' band can memorize faster and play better than any of the male band crews around town any new composition whether it be sweet or hot. He is so confident his distaffers will win that he has already earmarked the other fellow's thousand for USO. So far the only band leader interested in Spitalny's proposal is Abe Lyman, currently at the Palladium, who'll put it up to his tootlers. Spitalny has handled bands for better than 20 years and insists that the femmes are quicker on the pickup than their male contemporaries. Contest would be judged on the basis of a specified time for memorizing the composition, with the racks to be cleaned when the battle of bands begins. Other details are being worked out.

HOLLYWOOD Canteen got a fast radio nibble the other day and just as fast a brushoff, temporarily only, however, when one of the top men of a group participating in operation of the servicemens retreat objected on the grounds that another charity show is still seeking an air sporsor and it was only fair that it should be sold first. Understood the prospective sponsor was interested on the same basis as Corn Products, which underwrites New York's Stage Door Canteen for radio. Those identified with operation of the local Canteen believe that a radio deal is imperative for the reason that funds will be needed to carry on the work and so far no subscriptions have been sought. Proponents of the radio plan believe that a sale of the program would net the Canteen around $3,500 a week.

War Effort to Gauge Pic Prod; Army, Navy to Rule

dustry will be gauged purely in relation to its tangible value to the war effort.

A majority of exhibitors and producers regard demise of dualing as a foregone conclusion.

All Government regulation of the film industry, heretofore by suggestion, points to a desire for the curtailment of industry activities in order to channel studio manpower, like other industries, into the various branches of service. Though the industry is officially declared 'essential', requirements of the Army and Navy obviously modify such a broad classification.

Apart from the raw stock rationing, question now is to what extent the industry is to be maintained, compatible with wartime exigencies. In some quarters drastic regulations such as shuttering theatres by decree because of fuel, electricity or manpower shortage is sharply discounted, yet the same results are anticipated via a combination of direct moves attaining the same result.

In the meantime, independent producer-distributors were told by their leaders to go in for pictures useful to the war effort if they are expecting to remain in business for any length of time.

It has been intimated that raw film and other material rationing for the majors as well as the indies could be expected at any time, and that only those whose activities are considered useful in the war effort had much chance of survival.

10 MORE STARS SET FOR WAR BOND SALES TOURS

Intensifying the industry's activity in closing stages of September's billion-dollar War Bond drive, 10 additional screen star volunteers were provided by the Victory Committee last night with definite tour assignments covering the last 10 days of the month. This increases to 40 the number of film favorites mobilized to headline Bond rallies throughout the country.

Claire Trevor and Walter Abel were assigned to a tour opening Monday in Des Moines, and continuing through Nebraska, Iowa, Wyoming, Colorado and Idaho.

Ginger Rogers will open in Corpus Christi, Tex., cover cities in that state, New Mexico and Arizona, and close in San Diego.

Laraine Day, Vera Zorina and Andy Devine, the latter planing out in advance last night to attend a Memphis horse show, will start their tour in Nashville and work through Alabama, Mississippi and Florida to New Orleans and Baton Rouge, La.

Rita Hayworth was assigned to open in Parkersburg, W. Va., and cover cities in Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Veronica Lake opens in Charleston and will travel through Georgia and Florida.

Paulette Goddard, who left in advance to make a stopover in New York, will be joined by William Gargan on a tour opening in Cumberland, Md., and continuing through Hagerstown, Frederick and Baltimore to cities in Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey.

A majority of the players, upon completing their tours, will be routed into New York city to participate in an elaborate ceremony being arranged for Sept. 30, to officially close the 'Salute To Our Heroes' month Bond drive.

Ruth Hussey was a last-minute addition to the 'Stars Over America' unit comprising Burns and Allen and Don Wilson, which headlined Bond activities yesterday at Pomona. Rise Stevens was set to sing the National Anthem at a War Bond rally at the Ambassador hotel at noon today.

Treasury figures on War Bond sales for September 14 jumped to $48,890,000, with a cumulative total of $329,434,000 for the month to date, according to a wire received yesterday from Oscar Doob, public relations chief of the industry-led 'Salute To Our Heroes' month campaign in New York. The new figures, it was pointed out, indicate that the campaign is little more than one day's anticipated sales off the Treasury Department's quota. The information prompted a statement from the War Activities Committee that the month's $775,000,000 quota will be hit, because many millions of dollars in sales have not yet been officially tabulated.

Bond sales resulting from the 'Stars Over America' tours of Hollywood personalities total more than $87,000,000 for 14 days, according to Doob's wire.

Glowing reports continue to pour in from all parts of the country where stars are headlining rallies, including Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey, Hugh Herbert, Dorothy Lamour, Chester Morris, Gene Tierney, Irene Dunne, Ralph Bellamy, Richard Arlen, Peggy Diggins, Dorothy Cordray, Jane Wyman and John Payne.

Herb Yates Exultant Over Rep Playdates

Herbert J. Yates yesterday reported enthusiastically to Republic studio executives and to sales personnel in this area that advance playdates on Republic are setting a record for the company. 'The Flying Tigers', Yates believed, would parallel the advance booking on pictures from any studio released this year.

Republic head man also reported a remarkable advance in bookings for the Jane Withers starrer, 'Johnny Doughboy' and 'Moscow Strikes Back'.

Million In Bond Sales From L. A. Indies

In statement issued yesterday, Bob Poole, executive secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners, said Los Angeles indie houses would be responsible for at least $1,000,000 as their contribution to the industry's $1,000,000,000 September War Bond Drive, according to figures being received from exhibs.

terated comedy, reminding of the kind of thing Lunt and Fontanne used to do some years back. It is light and frothy and full of laughter, but S. N. Behrman, who used to get his wrists slapped by the critics regularly for devoting too much time in his plays to politics and world problems, is on the reverse beat this time. He has nothing to say. Nothing but laughs. He dishes out these abundantly, however, so chances are the critics will scream and the public will line up at the box office for many months.

Story deals with a pirate who retired a couple of hundred years ago. He is acted smartly by Jack Smart in his first important legit role. He is married to Miss Fontanne who does not know of his past. Lunt comes along as a strolling player, makes a pitch for the wife and uses his recognition of Smart to gain his ends. It easily could be cleaned up for pictures, although the costume angle may be against it.

Ask Industry to Help Save Nation's Crops; Get Bond Report

Aid of the film industry's Public Relations Committee in the War Manpower Commission's drive to save the nation's crops was enlisted at yesterday's regular meeting following discussion of a message from William K. Hopkins, regional director of the Commission. Hopkins outlined the seriousness of the situation and the important public relations part the industry can play in arousing the public's interest and participation.

In Hopkins' absence on a sudden plane trip north, the message was delivered by Robert Taplinger, special publicity counsel of the commission. All studio publicity departments will immediately swing into the campaign to impress upon the public the gravity of the problem and the necessity for all citizens not otherwise engaged to volunteer their services to save the crops.

The progress report on the September bond drive was read to the Committee, which is in charge of preparing publicity campaign on the stars tours. Receipt of editorials from all over the country praising the stars and the industry for their patriotic efforts showed the public relations benefit to the industry as an indirect result of this war-time undertaking.

A request that studios assist in getting over to the public the necessity of early shipping of Christmas gifts to men overseas brought a vote to cooperate by furnishing players for necessary news art and otherwise taking an active part in the campaign.

The committee voted to devote a full week to publicizing dedication of the Motion Picture Relief Fund's Country House Sept. 27.

yesterday, with Producers requesting that illustrators be divided into three classifications. SSD probably would not oppose this, provided wage minimums for each group averaged up to what it now is seeking. Illustrators again nixed offer which had been made unofficially to them several months ago.

It is probable another meeting will be arranged for Friday if group has completed its tour of major studios by that time. Several lot managers sat in on the session yesterday, which waxed so warm at one point there was some talk of adjourning the negotiations to an alley for settlement.

IB Discusses Status of Lenser Wrigley

Society of Cinematographers vote to merge that organization with the IB. Bieretz, special assistant to Brown, talked with various labor leaders yesterday and was reported to have appeared at the executive board meeting of the directors of photography last night.

Bieretz also discussed with Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, the status of Dewey Wrigley, ASC director of photography now on a 20th-Fox location in Utah. Wrigley was suspended for accepting the assignment after the IATSE forced another ASC man off the job because he was not a member of International Photographers Local 659.

Wrigley is expected to return to the studio the last of this week, and is certain to be given the assignment of completing the picture despite his suspension. Producer representatives claim their contract with the ASC provides that even if a member is suspended he has the right to complete the picture on which he is working. Bieretz was said to be trying to get a line on what the attitude of other film unions would be if the IBEW attempted to keep Wrigley from working in the studios pending disposition of his suspension by the ASC.

In the meantime, the ASC was preparing for a general membership meeting at which time official action was expected on the proposed IB merger and the union situation generally.

20th Board Meets On Joe Schenck Status

New York, Sept. 15.—Meeting of the board of directors of 20th-Fox here Thursday is understood to have as its primary purpose the establishment of an executive status for Joe Schenck. He is reported to be the largest individual stockholder in the company, owning about 11 per cent and possibly controlling more.

It is indicated that he will resume as an important factor in guiding the company affairs through the war time period, whether or not he is given an official title. He had resigned as board chairman.

Darryl Zanuck's entry into the Army on a full-time basis coincides with Schenk's return.

O'Keefe and Heineman Prowling Northwest

Al O'Keefe, western district sales manager of Universal, and Bill Heineman, assistant general sales manager, remained in Salt Lake City following closing of western branch managers' meeting there Sunday. Pair will scout the territory on circuit deals for U product, taking in Denver and then proceeding to northwestern Pacific area and San Francisco. Charlie Feldman, L. A. branch head, returned to his post following conclave.

Trio Gets Commissions

George W. Weeks, producer of the Range Busters series for Monogram, has been given a captain's commission in the California State Militia for organization of the San Fernando Valley's first cavalry troop. Lynton Brent, actor formerly in the U. S. Cavalry, is second in command of the unit with Oliver Drake, Universal producer, a third officer.

Scribbling

Dorothy Bennett has finished script polish on Universal's 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home', and has been reassigned to work on script of Abbott and Costello's 'Hold Your Horses'.

Paul Osborn will work on the script of 'Forever' for Sidney Franklin at Metro as his first under a new contract. Studio also has signed Emerson Crocker to a junior writing ticket.

M. Coates Webster is doing polish job on script of 'The Sundown Kid' at Republic.

Russell Rouse is writing treatment for untitled Three Mesquiteers to be produced by Lou Gray.

Dorrell and Stuart McGowan are scripting an unnamed Weaver Brothers and Elviry vehicle at Republic.

New York, Sept. 15.—'Good Night, Ladies,' modern version of 'Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath,' is a current smash at the Blackstone in Chicago, while 'Star and Garter' is a hit at the Music Box here, with 'Wine, Women and Song,' glorified burlesque, due on Broadway in a couple of weeks followed by Barney Gerard's 'Follies of the Day.'

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Alan Hale, Jr., son of Warners featured character actor, reported to Coast Guard yesterday as an apprentice seaman.

Earl 'Tex' Oliver, former UCLA gridder, who had role in Paramount's 'Wake Island', has joined the Army Air Force as a private, reporting to Santa Ana base. He is slated to be shifted to officers' training school in Florida.

Ralph A. Wolfe, Disney artist, will report next week at Washington, D. C., for induction in the Navy as specialist in educational cartoons and drawings. He is a veteran of World War I.

Grant Withers has joined the Coast Guard.

Fred Hershon, Long Beach theatre and bowling alley operator, states he will join the Navy next week.

Robert Boyle, Universal art director, has enlisted in the Army Signal Corps, with induction some two weeks away.

Ring Lardner, Jr., Metro writer, has enlisted in the Army Air Force film unit as a private, and is slated to be inducted today.

Sherry Shourds, assistant director at Warners, went into U. S. Army, reporting at Monterey.

Eugene Busch, Warners script clerk, has been called for induction in the Army.

Jerry Sackheim is being inducted at Fort MacArthur today as captain in Army Air Force. His collaborative writing chore with George W. Yates at Republic is being taken by Guy Endore on 'The Intruder'.

Bill Tuttle, in Metro's makeup department for nearly 10 years, reports Monday for induction in the Army.

Fanchon Signs as Terp Co-ordinator In New Musicals at 20th

Fanchon has been signed to an exclusive contract at 20th-Fox as co-ordinator of all dance spectacles in forthcoming musicals on the lot. She will work directly with producers of these pictures, in addition to supervising staging of the numbers. Her first two pictures in the new capacity will be 'Coney Island', which has reverted to its original title from 'In Old Coney Island', and 'Hello, Frisco, Hello'.

Fanchon and Marco originally had been slated to produce an untitled picture built around Al Pearce and His Gang at Republic, but it is understood story difficulties and other matters put the idea on the shelf for the time being, at least, as the F&M contract was canceled at the valley lot. There may be a possibility that Marco will do the Pearce picture for Republic at a later date without Fanchon if interest in film becomes hot again.

Threatens Perjury Action—

United States Judge Ben Harrison yesterday threatened action for perjury in taking evidence during the court action between Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer, and his former wife, Helen Mitchell Lawson, writer, over assignment of royalty rights in 'The Brat', stage play. Morosco testified he had not assigned rights to former wife, although a document had been introduced to that effect purporting to bear his signature. Miss Lawson previously had settled out of court her suit against 20th-Fox, demanding accounting from recent film in which the story material was used.

File Claims To Ruben Estate—

Mrs. Mildred Ruben, known as June Stephenson, first wife of J. Walter Ruben, Metro producer who died recently, yesterday filed legal claim to his entire estate in Superior court, producing a will reportedly signed by him. This action came only a few days after Virginia Bruce, film star and the producer's second wife, petitioned court to appoint her administratrix of the estate on the grounds that deceased had left no will.

Rooney Sued For Divorce—

Ava Gardner Rooney, film actress bride of Mickey Rooney, filed suit for divorce against the star yesterday, charging mental cruelty. Action was filed in Superior court on Mrs. Rooney's behalf by her sister, Beatrice Gardner, acting as her guardian. Couple was married Jan. 10 and separated Sept. 4.

A Heart To Heart Talk with a PROSPECT

LET'S analyze your problem in the light of today.

IF YOU'VE got something somebody needs, ought to know about . . . tell it . . . sell it with publicity.

OF COURSE, how it's told, how it's sold and how resourcefully your problem is attacked, depends on the brain power behind the campaign. To bring a personality or an institution into public favor . . . to assure public acceptance, requires a "know how," gained by training and experience.

CONSIDER the sweet old lady who stood behind Whistler while he was applying the finishing strokes to a sunset. Looking from the sunset to the painting, she tapped the artist on the shoulder, ventured to remark . . . "Pardon me. I don't see it that way."

"Sorry," replied Whistler . . . "don't you wish you could?"

IN PAINTING, publicity or any other creative expression, the overall effect is dependent on knowledge, ability and technique.

TO LAUNCH a campaign and carry it on to a climax, careful planning especially in this period, is required. Analysis . . . approach . . . slant . . . exciting ideas . . . compelling language . . . all coordinated . . . will attain the objective.

GREAT talent, great works often remain in obscurity if denied the spotlight of publicity. By such neglect both principal and public are done a great injustice.

THE MANY new personalities launched, artists publicized, productions exploited, and institutions counselled . . . distinguish the twenty year record of this organization's man power. Today this tested judgment is at your service. If you have a problem . . . we have a plan.

FILM ROW JOB CRISIS NEARS

20th Hands Sperling's Pix to Perlberg and Trotti as Prods.

William Perlberg has been assigned to take over production of 'Hello, Frisco, Hello', Technicolor musical, and 'Battle Stations'. Both pictures were on the production slate of Milton Sperling before he left the lot last week for active service in the U. S. Marine Corps.

Lamar Trotti draws three former Sperling productions: 'Goodbye Dolly Gray', story of modern American history; 'A Gentleman From Carolina', a Trotti original, and 'Down To the Sea In Ships'.

'Blindman's House', 'The Texas Volunteers' and 'Signal Corps' go to Robert Bassler for production.

'Crash Dive', Technicolor feature starring Tyrone Power and Anne Baxter, which Sperling was producing when he left for service, will be completed under supervision of William Goetz. Sperling will retain producer credit on the film, having practically finished its production.

LEGIT OPENING

THE MORNING STAR

for this side. It is the best writing the author has shown over here, but overtime and often too wordy. Williams is often obstruse, but he does portray courage of the British under dire conditions without smearing it on. Introduction of a trollop who ranges through the drawing room is not easy to understand.

Story is about a rising young surgeon who admits an affair to his wife. He has written a novel and proposes going to Hollywood until an old preceptor picks his tome to pieces. He suddenly switches and settles down to finish his studies on a method to cure cardiac bomb shock. Injured air raid warden provides a sudden opportunity to perform an operation in a half-wrecked room. Patient comes out of a coma but suddenly expires, even though the chances were 1,000 to 1 that he would recover. Doctor realizes love for his wife and they plan carrying on the work of healing.

New play brings back Gladys Cooper, mother of the doctor and of another son who is lost in air battle. She gives a fine performance, but more important is Gregory Peck as the doctor. Wendy Barrie makes her Broadway debut as the loose, attractive woman. Cecil Humphreys, Rhys Williams, Jill Esmond, Nicholas Joy and Brenda Forbes also perform to good account.

STYMIED ON ARBITER AS WAR PLANTS TAKE HELP

With Screen Office Employes and major film exchanges stymied on selection of a third man to arbitrate wage demands of Collarites, the employment problem generally on Film Row is fast reaching serious proportions. Though some exchanges, particularly National Screen Service, has taken to training femmes for backroom work, the job of getting young people to take a job becomes increasingly difficult.

Office managers of branches look with fond eyes on anyone passing the door, being unable to keep minor help. Boys shoo prospects to each other if failing to find job-seeker suitable for their needs, idea being that he or she may fit into another exchange setup. No one is overlooked.

Example of crying need was found at Universal this week, where four spots opened up almost at once, exchange losing a stenographer, a poster clerk, a film inspectress and a shipper to defense work and the armed forces.

Pat Scollard of Paramount, arbiter for the major exchanges, has wired New York company heads on demand of SOEG that selection of a third arbiter be left to the Conciliation Service of the U. S. Labor Department. It is understood SOEG intends to set tonight as deadline for exchanges to agree, taking the position representatives had previously agreed that if an accord could not be reached it would be submitted to the Conciliation Service.

Broadway Looks Ahead To Bright Season

New York, Sept. 15.—Broadway is figured due for a distinct change during the early fall. If favorable out of town reports on current tryouts are accurate it may be a successful season. Usually early crop of shows have been on the drab side or in-betweeners. Indications are that this season may be a welcome exception. Promising entries include 'Vickie,' 'The Pirate,' 'Strip For Action,' 'Count Me In,' 'Beat the Band' and 'Janie,' which opened last week and looks hopeful of sticking.

Harry Wurtzel Loses Plea For Demurrer

Harry Wurtzel was given 10 days in which to file an answer to the $25,000 damage suit brought by George Goodall, free lance publicist, yesterday when Superior Judge Frank Swain overruled agent's demurrer to action. Goodall is seeking an accounting and damages for assertedly bringing Gene Autry into the Wurtzel agency as a client.

Ill in Pix

JANE WYMAN was treated for collapse yesterday in Newport News, Va., while on a Bond selling tour. After hospital treatment she rejoined the 'Stars Over America' troupe at Raleigh, N. C.

MRS. LOU COSTELLO, wife of Universal comedy star, is at Good Samaritan hospital for observation.

And No Foolin'

Film Row is gagging itself on the trade term 'bicycling' regarding the sharing of film prints between theatres. With gas rationing announced, boys say now the word will take on true significance with film jockeys wheeling their way between houses.

Geo. Smith Heads North To Ogle Boom Areas

George Smith, western division sales manager for Paramount, leaves today for northern California, accompanied by Del Goodman, western district manager, for a looksee at the boom town areas.

Pair will be gone for about 10 days, taking in Portland and Seattle in trip to gauge the possibility of getting more coin out of the areas where defense workers and military have created population increases and swelled business conditions.

Boston Preem of 'Wake' Sells $10,000,000 Bonds

Boston, Sept. 15.—War Bond premiere of 'Wake Island' at the Metropolitan theatre — with seats scaled up to $25,000 purchases of bonds, is reported to have rolled up total sales in excess of $10,000,000. Impetus was provided by personal appearance solicitations by Dorothy Lamour.

Charity Football Game Arrangements Oked

Army and Police have approved crowd clearance arrangements for the football game between the Comedians and Leading Men of Hollywood at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Sunday, Oct. 18, according to Dr. A. H. Giannini, general chairman. Game will be played as a double benefit this year, including the U. S. O. as well as the Mount Sinai Hospital.

Nazarro's 'Baby'

Double-talk comedian Cliff Nazarro has been signed for role in Monogram's 'Bye-Bye Baby.' Comedian is also set to appear on Mischa Auer's 'Mischa the Magnificent' program every Wednesday night over CBS.

Two More Coast Area Bond Tours; Dinah Shore to Phoenix

Two more entertainment tours for Army camps and Naval bases in coastal and Arizona areas were announced last night by the Hollywood Victory Committee.

Dinah Shore will open Monday at Phoenix, to cover nearby airbases in the fourth of a series of three-day trips that have taken her previously to desert camps and the San Diego territory. Billy and Mrs. Gilbert, with Fay McKenzie and Ed Lowry, will return Monday to the desert area to cover camps not included in their tour last week.

The Committee also announced William Gargan as guest star Saturday at Victory House in Pershing Square.

City College Revamps To Meet War Effort

New York, Sept. 15.—City College has revamped its film technique course to jibe with current war-time conditions. The new term, starting Sept. 24, will stress the war angle in four of its five courses, one of the instructors being Richard Ford. He is film officer of the British Press Service.

Morrison Hotel Rejects Carroll; He Mulls Suit

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Earl Carroll is consulting attorneys as his show at the Morrison hotel has been cancelled. James B. McCahey, chairman of the board of the hotel, repudiated a contract with Carroll signed by Leonard Hicks, managing director, as not authoritative.

Ralph Morgan To Tell Of MP County Home

Ralph Morgan, guest columnist on the 'Toast to Victory' air program over KFWB tonight, will give a detailed explanation of the aims and progress of Motion Picture Relief Fund's Country House, now practically completed and due for its official opening on Sept. 27.

Fiddlin' With Phil

A sour fiddle note can no more escape Phil Spitalny than a brass clinker, so yesterday when his fine musicianly ear caught an off-keyer while recording for 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home' at Universal, he started to investigate. Tracing the blue note to its lair, he moved in for the kill. No sooner had he tossed the hair from his eyes than a familiar figure greeted him. She was Marlene Dietrich, who had sneaked in and taken over Evelyn's violin to rib the maestro. He seemed to enjoy the by-play more than anyone else and it was 10 minutes before he regained his composure.

REPUBLIC definitely is slanting its future serials at the femme trade, figuring the woman's influence in theatre patronage for this type picture will be dominant as result of war's drainage of men audiences. Studio will try to make the cliffhangers primarily interesting to mothers and older sisters in hope they will take the kids to the thrillers. In line with that theory, Republic is incorporating more romantic interludes. Studio is currently looking for new romantic type leading man for its next chapter play, 'Daredevils of the West,' which goes into work when 'G-Men vs. The Black Dragon' is completed. Writers on these two pictures—Ronald Davidson, William Lively, Joseph O'Donnell and Joseph Poland—have received instructions to emphasize the woman interest.

SHORTAGE of male help, in addition to necessity of tire conservation, is bringing a switchover from automatic candy machines to counters in dispensing the nickle confections in theatres of northern California. West Coast Candy Co., which handles the candy biz for practically all of the circuits in this area, has been replacing the machines with counters attended by girls. Counters have greater stock capacity than the machines, requiring less service calls for replacement—and girls are easier to find than delivery men and tires.

In the stress of wartime, many of the elder customs return after a period of dormance, brought on by the hurry of modern invention. The bicycle and the horse and the surrey are no longer objects of youthful snickers in a film drama of 1893. Many a kid in the recent era had never seen a horse-and-buggy. They thought it was one of those terms expressing a lack of dynamite in the art of rug cutting. It was in the same class with vaudeville, something the youngsters had often heard their elders talking about but didn't pay any attention to it. The old folks always talk about things that are dead and gone and forgotten. Now you can see a lot of the younger generation flocking into vaudeville shows and laughing with their elders. They are laughing at the same old quips their elders laughed at in 1893, but what's the difference? They laugh at the same routines, slightly revamped, in pictures. The old stuff must have been good, to have lived so long.

Film Reviews

The Spirit of Stanford

(Drama)

Columbia production. Features Frankie Albert, Marguerite Chapman, Matt Willis, Shirley Patterson, Kay Harris, Robert Stevens and the Vagabonds. Supporting cast: Lloyd Bridges, Forrest Tucker, Billy Lechner, Harold Landon, Volta Boyer and Ernie Nevers. Director, Charles Barton. Producer, Sam White. Screenplay, Howard J. Green, William Brent and Nick Lukats. Story, William Brent and Nick Lukats. Photography, Franz F. Planer and John Stumar. Art director, Lionel Banks; associate, Paul Murphy. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Assistant director, Gene Anderson. Film editor, James Sweeney. Reviewed at the Hollywood Pantages, Sept. 16, 1942. Running time: 74 MINS.

'The Spirit of Stanford', strictly football and campus capers, provides the screen debut of Frankie Albert, Stanford's All-American quarterback, and comes up pretty fair program entertainment in spite of the fact it has no great shakes of a story. Script was done by Howard J. Green, William Brent and Nick Lukats, a former Notre Dame captain, and between them they make Albert play himself in a way that, happily, no one will recognize. He's an insufferably brash, bumptious young lout who leaves Glendale High (no doubt to the latter's relief), and heads for the famous Farm at Palo Alto. There he runs off at the mouth, blabs all over the place about himself, openly flouts the coach's authority and even sets out to desert the team on the eve of its big game in the expectation of cashing in on his reputation by playing professional football.

His roommate, admirably played by Matt Willis, disregards illness to rush out in the rain in his nightshirt to deter Frankie from this false step. And, in appreciation, Frankie lets him have it flush on the aspect and, with barely a backward glance, leaves him supine in the mud, to the ravages of pneumonia.

This, in essence, is the role of the sterling sportsman that Frankie is asked to tote around on his back through most of the picture and, considering everything, he contrives to do this right manfully.

He's an interesting screen personality, both as a raconteur (to a couple of gaping freshmen), and in the flash-back scenes, showing the progress of the Stanford juggernaut through its spectacular 1940 season. In fact, the hero-heel duality is not especially bothersome to the audience largely because of two factors that make the offering entertainment.

One is The Vagabonds, a string, mouth and accordion quartet, that has half the audience ramping and champing along with its broken rhythm and corkscrew antics from first to last. Other is the wise use of long shots of real action football, making it possible for Albert to really play himself.

There's the Jackie Robinson interception of Albert's pass, spelling the difference between a good and bad season in 1939. It was a strategically silly pass, and Albert actually made it; probably providing the excuse for making Frankie the conceited oaf that the script called for. Shots of the Rose Bowl game with Nebraska are thrilling entertainment, with Ken Carpenter doing a nice bit as a broadcaster.

All told, Charles Barton's direction seemed consistently competent. Marguerite Chapman is adequate in the feminine lead and sings pleasantly, which is the theme of the production, namely: When in doubt, burst into song. Nonetheless, it still comes up good entertainment.

Not a Ladies' Man

(Melodramatic Comedy)

Columbia production. Features Paul Kelly, Fay Wray and Douglas Croft. With Ruth Lee, Lawrence Dixon, Marietta Canty, Don Beddoe, Eileen O'Hearn, Jean Inness. Director, Lew Landers. Producer, Leon Barsha. Adaptation and screenplay by Rian James, from story by Robert Hyde. Photography, John Stumar. Assistant director, Seymour Friedman. Art director, Lionel Banks; associate, Perry Smith. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Sound, Jack Haines. Editor, Mel Thorsen. Reviewed at Orpheum theatre, Los Angeles, Sept. 16, 1942. Running time: 60 MINS.

Sprinkled with chuckles resulting from the cute kid angle, 'Not a Ladies Man', story of a boy and his father who suffer without the comfort of a mother and wife following divorce, will entertain the family trade, besides being watchable filler for dual situations. There's not enough of any single element to give it more than family appeal, but it does have that in the sympathy side when adolescent cuteisms are not flying thick and fast, and which will go big with kids.

Story is not new, being just a slight twist on the old theme of the boy who tries to mate his pappy with every likely femme. His efforts at marrying off the old man create amusing and embarrassing situations between host of supporting femme players. His work goes for naught when the sire falls for kid's teacher (and nemesis), but it works out well when Fay Wray unravels Paul Kelly's dilemma of having to expose his ex-wife as the current frau of a hoodlum that Kelly, as d.a., is indicting.

Kid's antics are the backbone of the picture, other features being little more than dressing for story motivation. Douglas Croft, as the juve, gives the role plenty of stuff. Kid reads lines well and, except for expected overplaying occasionally, makes himself believable.

Kelly and Miss Wray render no classic thesping in their parts, but stand back and let the kid have full sway, which is not a bad idea as it comes out. Director should be commended for realizing stock he had to work with and making the most of it by subduing all but the youngster. When in the swim, which is briefly, fairly competent supporters carry their respective ends, particularly Don Beddoe as a hobo.

Film contains little notable melodrama or suspense. It presents a series of episodes of Croft charmingly upsetting every one. End is obvious, and leading up to it not especially well handled by any but the boy. However, it concludes without leaving any regrets, lighter side giving it bounce enough to scale the wall of indifference.

Mull Rationing Central Calls; May Phone Players Direct

tras flocked into the Screen Actors Guild and paged Central for jobs.

It was said if the move is made by the Government, the Producers might be asked to eliminate all incoming work calls for extras and for Central to call the extras direct as they are needed. Such a request would result in the 5,500 available extras having to be classified in order to eliminate confusion when a studio call was filled.

Howard R. Philbrick, Central general manager, said he had not been advised of such a proposal, but stated it would be difficult for Central to make the calls direct, especially when a rush call was received from a studio. He said the increase in calls undoubtedly was attributable to the decrease in work for extras. He said as job placements decrease the number of calls always increases, extras presumably calling more often in an effort to get work for the next day.

Philbrick disclosed that Central has already installed lease teletypes to most of the major studios to handle their calls which formerly were brought in by special messenger. Transportation curtailment knocked out the messengers and the teletypes were installed to eliminate the necessity of tieing up additional telephones.

Central also is reassigning call numbers to extra groups in order to prevent choking certain trunks and to control peak loads. It is felt situation will be greatly relieved when equal distribution of call numbers is completed.

CBS Washes Out Two, 'Hwd. Showcase' and 'I Was There'

Two half-hour Coast commercials canceled out on CBS this week. 'Hollywood Showcase', under Hudnut sponsorship, ends year and a half of airing Monday night, and 'I Was There', bankrolled by General Petroleum, plays out its string in mid-October. Columbia will keep 'Showcase' on the air as a sustainer for just such a purpose.

'I Was There' is being dropped by the oiler on account of having to stand its share of the Raymond Gram Swing commentary series, which was bought by the parent company, Socony-Vacuum. 'Showcase' is a priority victim, the basic talc used in Hudnut powder being under severe restriction.

ONLY 736 ATMOSPHERE JOBS PASSED OUT DURING AUGUST

In analyzing figures for the month Central Casting stated:

'The total expenditure for the month of August was down $168,000 from the preceding month, and was down slightly more than $100,000 from the month of August, 1941. August was the lowest month in the last 13, and lower than any month in the preceding year, with the exceptions of February and May.

'The severest drop was in the $5.50 bracket, where August placements total 736 as compared with 3,033 in the preceding month. The $10.50 placements were off approximately 10,500 man days, while the $16.50 placements were off approximately 1,000 man days.

'The average extra player's expectancy for work from Central Casting Corp. for the month of August, in view of the unprecedented low volume, was one and a half days.'

These figures, as well as those of other recent months, will be used by the Screen Actors Guild in urging that Producers readjust pay scales for extras, day players, freelance and contract actors. Producers advised the SAG this week they would be ready to resume negotiations as soon as Howard Philbrick, Central Casting general manager, completed preparation of figures deadline with extras. They said this probably will require an additional week.

for the company and will be directly responsible to General Manager E. J. Mannix. Walsh was first approached by Mannix several months ago with an offer of $10,000, but turned it down. It was said Walsh thought his services were worth more coin, that he wanted a contract and assurance he would not be interfered with by other studio executives.

Mannix, who has been handling the studio's labor negotiations for several years, is said to have been anxious to turn that work over to a competent man because of his heavy duties as production head of the company.

Walsh is personally acquainted with most of the film labor leaders and has a wealth of knowledge of the picture business through handling the Screen Directors, Writers and other cases before the NLRB. He joined the NLRB as regional attorney in Chicago on Oct. 16, 1935. He came here as special attorney, and after handling scores of picture cases as well as other big industry matters, was appointed regional director to succeed Walter Spreckels. It is understood Robert Davies, chief field examiner, will serve as acting regional director pending a permanent appointment.

Indies to Get Break In New WPB Ruling On Film Savings

New York, Sept. 16.—A new film conservation order to be issued Thursday will call for minor revisions of the percentage of film to be used by the major companies. The order, despite appeal made by Alexander Films, Jam Handy and others who made commercial and advertising films that they be permitted to continue, will not change the ruling banning their use of film.

The only auxiliary films to be permitted will be trailers for pictures of the 11 recognized major companies. Several of these make their own, while others are made by National Screen Service, which will be permitted to continue to supply trailers considered essential to the war effort.

Appeal by the independents that they be not compelled through conservation to be made subject to the whims of the major releasing companies brought forth the concession that any producer who released pictures last season will be given film if they choose to make pictures and release them independently.

Samuel Goldwyn, one of the indies who protested, will be informed that he can use, if he releases independently, 90% of the amount of raw film stock he consumed last year. If he releases through any of the major distributing companies, however, as he is now doing through RKO, the 90% will not apply. In the latter event he would be rationed in accordance with the amount alloted the companies on the WPB freeze order. This film would be debited to the releasing company, from which Goldwyn would have to obtain it, and not to him.

Greene-Revel Dissolves, Songwriting Team Also Breaking Up

Greene-Revel, Inc., music publishers, is in process of being dissolved, with all employes here, in New York and Chicago on two weeks' notice. Broadcast Music, Inc., which holds controlling interest in the firm, has withdrawn its support. Harry Revel and Mort Greene, who with Abe Frankl as general manager have operated the publishing business, also are breaking up as a songwriting team. Disposition of the firm's copyrights, some 20 in number, has not yet been determined.

Greene and Revel made their deal with BMI during the Ascap-broadcaster fight, and licensed their numbers direct to the stations as privileged under provisions of the consent decree. They recently returned performance rights of their music to Ascap.

Obituary

ELLIOTT TOBIAS

Elliott Tobias, 20, song writer, died yesterday at Santa Monica hospital after a lingering illness. An honor student at Fairfax high and U. C. L. A., he collaborated with his father, Harry Tobias, veteran song writer, until illness prevented further work more than a year ago. Surviving, in addition to the latter, are the deceased's mother, Sophie, and his sister, Lucille. Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday at the Hollywood Cemetery chapel.

GEORGE BALLASARIO

Funeral services for George Ballasario, 39, who died Monday, will follow requiem mass at 9 a.m. today at St. Charles' church, North Hollywood. Rosary services were held for the Paramount assistant cameraman yesterday at McNamara mortuary.

H'WD PUT ON BOND PRESSURE; TOUR HEADS GET AMMUNITION

With an acceleration in Bond sales during the past few days bringing the industry-led 'Salute To Our Heroes' drive closer to its daily quota average, campaign leaders in Hollywood and New York yesterday moved to bring all possible pressure to bear on potential investors during the remainder of September.

In Hollywood, tour managers who will depart by the weekend with a dozen celebrities assigned by the Victory Committee to various 'Stars Over America' routes during the drive's closing 10-day period, were provided with complete ammunition at a meeting with Charles Einfeld, tour director. In New York, campaign heads concentrated on exhibitor participation and warned War Activities Committee chairmen throughout the country that only through the most intensive effort and complete cooperation of all concerned will it be possible to put the drive over the top.

Tour managers' assignments were set up yesterday as follows:

Miss Lyle Rooks of Paramount, with Veronica Lake, who trains out at noon today for Charleston, S. C.

Eddie Rubin of RKO, who will leave with Ginger Rogers tomorrow night for Corpus Christi, Texas.

Larry Barbier of Metro, who boards a train at noon tomorrow with Laraine Day, to be joined at Nashville, Tenn., by Vera Zorina, who will plane out of Hollywood Sunday night, and by Andy Devine, who departed Tuesday to make a stopover in Memphis.

Walter Ruf of Columbia, who will handle a tour opening at Des Moines, Ia., with Walter Abel and other personalities yet to be assigned.

Mervin Houser, already in the east, who will join Paulette Goddard and William Gargan at Cumberland, Md. Miss Goddard is now in New York and Gargan will depart Saturday afternoon by air.

Los Angeles' participation in the Bond selling effort today will be highlighted by a parade in which Edward Everett Horton and Evelyn Ankers will ride an Army field piece from City Hall to Victory House in Pershing Square.

Oklahoma City greeted Bette Davis yesterday to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars. A prize Hereford calf presented to the star was auctioned to the Mid-Continent Life Insurance Co. for $100,000 in Bonds. Frank Phillips, wealthy oil man, bid another $100,000 for a can of engine oil. And $50,000 was the top bid for an autographed Bette Davis portrait.

In her New England tour, Dorothy Lamour topped the quotas set for five rallies at which she made brief appearances. The estimate for Lawrence, Mass., was exceeded by better than 35%, and at Lynn the overage amounted to 50%. Sales of Bonds at Lowell's rally went into six figures, and Haverhill and Everett likewise proved surprises.

Jane Wyman and John Payne also went into six figures with Bond sales at Burlington, Greensboro and Winston-Salem in the Carolinas.

The Fred Astaire-Ilona Massey-Hugh Herbert unit opened the day with a street rally in Akron, O., and closed it with a rally in the stadium at Marion, O., with a luncheon at Mansfield and several factory visits in between.

Ralph Bellamy, Richard Arlen, Peggy Diggins and Dorothy Cordray staged rallies at Eveleth, Virginia and Hibbing, Minn. Irene Dunne, at a luncheon sponsored by the Buffalo Ad Club, shuffled better than $200,000 into the Treasury. She auctioned her earring for $30,000.

Ben Thau Is Army Bound; LeMaire Rejoins Metro

Thau, in association with Le Maire.

The latter is an outstanding executive, previously having been with Metro as talent scout and casting head for seven years, bringing into the organization important talent and personalities as well as production ideas.

Thau came into the Metro setup about 17 years ago from New York, where he had worked in the home office in association with J. Robert Rubin. He immediately was given important executive duties in association with L. B. Mayer and E. J. Mannix and handled all talent and executive deals and contracts as well as being coordinator of company transactions and relations with other studios.

Thau expects within the next few weeks to go into the Army, and in the meantime is acquainting both Sidney and Le Maire with the task they are taking over from him. Sidney will do the Thau work in addition to other executive duties he performs as assistant to Mayer.

250 Film Folk Listen To Wallace, Namm At Luncheon Sesh

Marriage of salesmanship and showmanship was consummated yesterday with luncheon meeting of retailers and industry reps at the Ambassador hotel. About 250 assembled to hear an address by Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, who spoke over a direct wire from another function at the Biltmore hotel, and to hear Major Benjamin Namm, chairman of the Retailers Advisory Committee to the Treasury Department; Y. Frank Freeman, of the Motion Picture Producers Association, and Howard Mills, of the Treasury's War Savings Staff.

Talk by Namm was generally regarded as one of the most forceful and persuasive given in the interest of War Bond sales, Namm pointing out it was natural that the two businesses that have the closest touch with the public should unite in the campaign to sell more War Bonds. Though the cementing of the two groups for cooperation in the industry's $1,000,000,000 War Bond drive was said to have come along late, Namm pointed out the effect of the cooperation promised would carry on through the war and its benefits felt for the duration.

Rise Stevens opened the meeting around noon with the singing of the National Anthem. Following that, Marco Wolf, chairman of the exhibitors committee on the drive, introduced the speakers and other industry leaders to the assembled exhibitors, circuit executives, business men and committeemen.

Saffron Heading North Working Col Deals

Jerry Saffron, western district manager for Columbia, leaves for San Francisco over the weekend to work on northern circuit deals for Col product, and to attend Frisco preem of 'Talk of the Town' at the Orpheum theatre on Sept. 22. Mike Newman, western exploiteer for Col, now in Frisco, extends his trip to take in Portland and Seattle for next 10 days following advance work on 'Talk' in the Bay City area.

SURVEY DISCLOSES MAJORS SPLIT OVER CONTINUANCE

New York, Sept. 16.—William F. Rodgers has offered his resignation as chairman of UMPI to all members of the committee of the whole, in latest event in the turbulent history of the organization, which was set up late last fall to bring unity in the industry because of necessity under wartime conditions.

Rodgers, sales chief of Metro, made the move after canvassing the major distributors concerned—especially the five operating under terms of the consent decree—to get an expression of advisability of continuing UMPI in view of the turndown by Thurman Arnold of the UMPI sales plan to replace the consent decree blocks-of-five method. Rodgers found that Loew's, 20th-Fox and RKO were willing to go along with UMPI, but Paramount and Warners expressed the attitude that the organization was not able to accomplish its purpose.

This wide split within the ranks of the distribs decided Rodgers to place the entire problem before the committee of the whole for a complete survey for continuance, which would necessarily include future financing and operation of the organization.

The chairman, in his communication to all members of the committee, pointed out that if decision was reached to continue he was willing to give loyal and wholehearted cooperation to any successor selected.

In addition to the major distribs, Rodgers' letter was addressed to exhibitor members which included representatives of MPTOA, Allied, Pacific Coast Conference and various independent theatre owner groups throughout the country. Communication was mailed Monday, and as yet many of the committee members around the country have not received it to present to exhibitor body directorates.

Herbel Heads For SF Touring Pacific Area

Henry Herbel, Warners western district sales head, trains out Sunday for San Francisco, first stop on an extended tour of the Pacific territory. He remains in the north about 10 days, taking in Seattle and Portland branches before returning here to start working on Warner product deal with Fox-West Coast.

Tuttle's Termer At Par

SOEG to Pick Judge As Pay Arbiter

The exchanges yesterday notified the SOEG they would be willing to accept either Judge Desmond or any one of the presiding appeal jurists. The SOEG agreed to the suggestion, and will decide today or tomorrow which of the jurists will be asked to serve.

Business Representative Glenn Pratt will represent the Collarites on the arbitration board, while Pat Scollard of Paramount will appear for the exchanges. The SOEG had asked that selection of a third man be submitted to the Conciliation Service of the U. S. Labor Department, but the exchange representatives apparently preferred to have a Coast arbiter if a deal could be made with the Guilders.

Selection of the third man is expected to be made in time for the actual arbitration to get under way by the first of next week, provided the jurist agreed upon is able and willing to take the assignment.

KYA Signs For New Commercial Airer

San Francisco, Sept. 16.—A second commercial labor program devoted to war effort was signed today by KYA, only local station airing a sponsored union program. New contract with Drydock Marine Waysmen and Shipfitters and Helpers Unions calls for six months of five 15-minute programs weekly, starting Monday, titled 'Jobs For Victory'. Newcomer will tell how to get jobs in shipyards and is committed to policy of avoid spieling of union propaganda. Station's other commercial labor program, 'Road To Victory', brings labor and capital together at luncheon for confabs on war problems under sponsorship of Building Service Employes Union.

Players Added To RKO 'Forever and a Day'

Herbert Marshall, Victor McLaglen, Ruth Warwick, Kent Smith, Melville Cooper and Billy Bevan have been added to all-star cast of 'Forever and a Day,' which RKO is distributing, with proceeds all going to American and British war effort funds. Players are contributing their services. Frank Lloyd is directing the final sequence, starting today.

Par Rolls 'True To Life'

Cameras rolled yesterday on 'True to Life' at Paramount. Mary Martin, Franchot Tone, Dick Powell and Victor Moore top the cast. George Marshall directs and Charles Lang is lensing.

Oiler Grid Broadcasts To Be Aired Over Three Networks

San Francisco, Sept. 16.—Gas rationing to the contrary, Associated Oil Co. today signed for resumption of its annual football broadcasts over three networks instead of the usual two. Columbia net is newcomer this year, getting 13 games against 16 ticketed for Mutual-Don Lee net and nine for Blue Network. Broadcasts are for Pacific Coast and regional hookups but because of there being fewer games this semester, games will be aired from border to border.

Kickoff comes Sept. 26 with Columbia airing University of California-St. Mary's melee at Berkeley. Blue Net will broadcast Stanford-Washington game at Palo Alto same day.

Charles Morin, San Francisco sales manager of CBS, was responsible for cutting into the grid melon this year for his outfit. William Pabst, KFRC manager, and Merwyn McCabe handled for Mutual.

Abbott's New 'Laffin' ' Show Opens Sat.

Harry Abbott winds up his 'Swing Shift Revels' tomorrow night, opening with new show and policy Saturday at pop price scale of 55 cents to $1.10; and two shows nightly at 7:30 and 9:30.

New venture will carry title of 'Laffin' Through', with Fifi D'Orsay sharing headline billing with Joe DeRita and comedy team of Kaplan and Dana. DaRita carries over from 'Revels' and was tabbed as best comic of the latter.

Producer figures the 7:30 evening show will catch plenty of trade from war plant workers going on duty at midnight, while second performance will attract regular customers.

Alling Takes Over As Orpheum Manager

Denver, Sept. 16.—Mark N. Alling, nine years at the RKO Golden Gate theatre, San Francisco, planed here to manage the RKO Orpheum. Alling succeeds Mickey Gross, who enlisted in the Marines. District manager Nat Holt came here from Los Angeles to make the manager switch.

The importance of this engagement to the future course of the war is best underlined by Hitler's fanatical determination to take the Volga metropolis at all costs.

If the valiant Russian defenders can hold out for a little while longer, it may have enormous consequences, such as rendering Hitler helpless against an invasion of the European continent.

HARRY BROWNING of Boston who is handling the Billion Dollar Drive for Treasury Bond Sales in New England has one of most magnificent and practical table of operations that has ever been conceived for a project of the magnitude of the September efforts of the Motion Picture Industry. Not alone does Browning lay out his program for his own information but he broadcasts it to press in his area and throughout the country. He even had in advance the entire itinerary of Dorothy Lamour who is doing a most successful bond selling tour in that area, covering each move made from start to finish of the tour by the star. That has been sent all over country and the Lamour jaunt, of the many that are being made, is reported getting most extensive coverage in the press of the country.

METRO is reportedly the most backward studio in cooperating with other lots in the interchange of supplies, materials, sets, etc., in line with the general industry movement to conserve to the limit under war requirements. The attitude has been expressed generally around town, with one observing that the Metro crowd—although wanting to secure every consideration for themselves when occasion warrants—is reluctant to let loose of any equipment or other materials that might be inter-changed for general economies. Although Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox, Columbia, Universal—and to certain extent Warners—are doing their utmost to get in the groove for support of the national effort, Metro is a lone wolf according to production workers at the other plants.

INDEPENDENT theatre operators, with groups of several small neighborhood houses, are becoming major victims of the help shortage. Despite the fact that practically all of the houses are only open nights and Sunday matinees, exhibs are being squeezed on supply of ushers and managers necessary to keep open. High school kids, who formerly flocked into the nabe houses for extra work as ushers and ticket takers, are finding other avenues to pick up change. House managers provide the major problem, as larger indie circuits able to pay higher wages are checking over possibilities of each individual and coming through with higher offers to those they want.

BOND DRIVE SHOWS UPSURGE; SEPT. TOTAL NOW 379 MILLION

Bringing the industry-led September Bond drive still closer to the Treasury Department's quota and further indicating that delayed compilations of sales may put the campaign out in front, Treasury figures yesterday showed another upward surge in War Bond sales. Bond sales for Tuesday, according to a report forwarded to the Hollywood Victory Committee by Oscar A. Doob, public relations chief of the drive, totaled $34,631,000 and brought the cumulative total for the month to date up to $379,697,000.

Dorothy Lamour, who has been rewarded with tremendous receptions and quota-smashing results on her 10-day tour of New England which closes tomorrow, volunteered to contribute an additional four days of effort in a territory regarded as important by campaign leaders. Her added stint will open Sept. 23 in Louisville, Ky., and will also embrace Indianapolis, Kokomo and Lafayette, Ind., and Aurora, Ill.

Charles Laughton and Ann Rutherford, who last week comleted a 10-day tour in the east with Virginia Gilmore, also volunteered additional time to the industry effort. The two will open Monday in Syracuse, N. Y. and fill dates in New York State and Vermont through next Friday.

Constance Bennett, a new addition to the 'Stars Over America' roster, will join Laughton Sept. 26 in Fitchburg, Mass., for a five-day tour through western Connecticut, Poughkeepsie and the Hudson River country, White Plains, Yonkers and Westchester County. Miss Bennett also was booked by the Victory Committee for a one-day appearance with Walter Abel at Des Moines, Ia., on Monday.

Jane Wyman was booked for an extra day in Parkersburg, W. Va., next Monday and Fred Astaire is expected to add a day to his schedule by appearing Tuesday in Lexington, Ky.

Departure of 'Stars Over America' volunteers today will include Ginger Rogers, Laraine Day, Walter Abel. During the week end Constance Bennett, Vera Zorina and William Gargan will leave for tour cities by plane.

New York, Sept. 17.—Low figure for Sept. 15 in the Motion Picture Industry's Billion Dollar War Bond drive cancelled much of the previous day's $49,000,000 sales and left the total $44,394,000 short of the mark of $390,000,000 set for the first half of September.

Company treasurers met last night to map a huge Bond rally to close the month's campaign at midnight, Sept. 30, in Madison Square Garden.

Warblers Cavort In NY

Sons of Pioneers musical group, appearing with Roy Rogers in Republic western series, has been signed to appear with cowboy star at Madison Square rodeo starting Oct. 7.

Why worry if the war grows tough across the distant foam
When you can read of super-deeds in comic sheets at home?
Red Ryder rides the prairies and the canyons day and night
And in his militant career has never lost a fight.
Dick Tracy roams the city streets with keen and searching eyes
And always slips the handcuffs on the most felonious guys.
Amid the jungles Tarzan creeps
when lights are dim and low
And with his apes and elephants
he quells the warlike foe.
With Secret Agent Number Nine and Mandrake on the trail
The wickedest of foreign spies are always doomed to fail.
And if an alien spy escapes the network for a while Our Little Annie Rooney will en-trap him with a smile.
And if, at times, there is a threat of bombers from Japan,
No mortal force can stand against our mighty Superman.
So read your daily comic strips with calm, unruffled brow.

'Bette Davis auctioned me off in Kansas City last night and got $2,500 for me—which even Art U. will tell you is a fair price for ham, eh?'

Tomorrow We Live

Producers Releasing Corp. release of Atlantis production. Stars Ricardo Cortez and Jean Parker. With Emmett Lynn, William Marshall, Roseanne Stevens, Ray Miller, Frank S. Hagney, Rex Lease, Jack Ingram, Barbara Slater and Jane Hale. Director, Edgar G. Ulmer. Producer, Leon Fromkess. Photography, Jack Greenhalgh. Assistant director, Mel De Lay. Settings, Fred Preble. Musical score, Leo Erdody. Sound, Hans Weeren. Editor, Dan Milner. Previewed at RCA, Hollywood, Sept. 17, 1942. Running time: 64 MINS.

Because of the times and conditions alone this unbelievable tale of gangsterism and Freudism on the plains will suffer from audience apathy. Morbid theme is not what is wanted these days, particularly when it is carried to the extreme. And in this entry it goes even beyond that, being an altogether dreary and depressing tale of folks who are sick at heart and mind, who never let you forget it, and who will finally get audiences down with it, too. That's not entertainment for any but psychos. Strictly double-bill fodder if not just a flopper.

Term gangsterism may denote familiar things. That is not the case, for Ricardo Cortez is no ordinary gangster, but ruler of some imaginary desert domain of super-nitery and shady dealings in tires. Apparently everyone's imagination ran away, from the author down, story being confusing to average minds because of Cortez's warped mental functions and subsequent mutterings and general stupid reaction of all concerned.

Sound engineer, Lyle Willey. Musical direction, Frank Sanucci. Film editor, Roy Claire. Previewed at Monogram studio, Sept. 17, 1942. Running time: 56 MINS.

'Texas To Bataan' gives George W. Weeks a start on his Range Busters westerns for Monogram's 1942-43 season that will take some matching in the balance of the series. The usual cowboy action is tied in with a topical subject to give the story an interesting twist. Its weakness is juvenile dialog, but since the characters are mostly strong, silent men, this solo fault can be overlooked.

Series also introduces a new member, David 'Davey' Sharpe, replacing Ray Corrigan. Sharpe is a mite of a man with horsemanship and gun work that will please the fans. A handy user of his dukes, and athletic, he makes a good addition. John King, of the original Range Busters, sells three songs in rich voice and capably takes care of the key character in the trio. Max 'Alibi' Terhune and his dummy spot the western comedy handily.

Story is laid in Texas shortly before Pearl Harbor with the Range Busters readying a shipment of

Sunset Serenade

Republic production. Stars Roy Rogers. Features George 'Gabby' Hayes, Bob Nolan and Sons of the Pioneers. With Pat Brady, Helen Parrish, Joan Woodbury, Onslow Stevens, Roy Barcroft, Frank M. Thomas and Jack Kirk. Director and associate producer, Joseph Kane. Assistant director, Kenny Holmes. Photography, Bud Thackery. Art director, Russell Kimball. Musical director, Martan Scott. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, Sept. 17, 1942. Running time: 60 MINS.

Stealing candy from a baby is a cinch. But trying to steal a baby's ranch via the usual route of drying up the 'crick' and hornswoggling the cattle to force a cheap sale ain't no cinch when Roy Rogers and his riders are on the side of the infant. That's the story of this regular Rogers release, and nobody will get stuck with it—as westerns go.

Good boy Roy is up to his customary snuff in furnishing plenty of musical asides to his many-sided goodness, and continues to be one of the better pony-propped performers. Honest smiles probably win him many of his fans and herein he even smiles at his opposition while undoing their wrongs.

He's backed by modicum of comedy in George Hayes, oldtimer sidekick, whose fetish this time is eating, frequently eating himself sick. Additional backing comes from singing associates, and Comic Bob Nolan, who again pleases with his novelty songs. Especially entertaining are two numbers, 'A Cowboy Rockefeller' and 'No Good Son of a Gun', both novelties.

Presence of Helen Parrish gives considerable to the oomph side, probably making film more palatable for fans who take their westerns because they are part of the program. Her looks, plus slightly better acting ability than majority of sage story femmes, ups scales.

Entire production is little off the well-beaten path that most follow. Opens with a girl overseer trying to snag the inheritance of a baby whom she thinks is a grown person. When she and her lover find out the owner is a kid with a young girl guardian they figure it for even quicker action. But the action really comes from Rogers when he steps into the picture after finding her trying to milk a steer on the road for the kid's grub.

Rogers takes over running of the ranch, unearths stolen cattle, finds the hidden dam that has dried up the property and gets into a couple of good saloon brawls in the process of uncovering the ostensibly honest neighbor who seeks the ranch.

Some of the film's unusual twists are two girls battling over possession of a shooting iron, event usually reserved for the men. (War now, and girls are doing everything, boys), trucks to haul off stolen cattle, preventing hard riding on pavement in pursuit, and other newer approaches.

Ample amounts of action in chases and running gunfights in the hills will fill the eyes of seat-edge sitters.

DRAFT CALL FOR STUDIO STRIKE; NOON DEADLINE

SOEG exchange members meeting tonight to take a strike vote.

Blowup came yesterday when SOEG tops claim the exchanges tried to recant on an earlier agreement to accept any member of the District court of appeal as an impartial arbiter, and, after finally agreeing on that point, insisted the entire contract go to arbitration, including provisions already okayed by the executives. Exchange representatives notified the SOEG they would be willing to accept any member of the District court of appeal, but when the Guilders yesterday submitted the name of Judge B. Rey Schauer, Pat Scollard of Paramount, arbiter for the exchanges, requested the names of all judges be placed in a hat and one drawn. The Guild refused, stating the proposal of the exchanges did not call for any such action. Scollard finally agreed to Judge Schauer, and Business Representative Glenn Pratt of the SOEG then asked when they would start arguing the wage dispute.

Scollard insisted the entire contract go to arbitration, despite the fact that accord had already been reached on a union shop, severance pay, vacations, sick leave, etc., leaving nothing in dispute but the minimum wage scales for the various classifications, which also had been approved by company executives. Pratt and Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions immediately accused the exchanges of bad faith, and said he would recommend a strike vote in both the exchanges and studios.

Following blowup, Business Representative Pratt stated:

'I thought I had seen everything. The Guild bent over backwards in an effort to reach an agreement with the exchanges. It looks to us as though the New York group is trying to take advantage of the war to beat down wage requests of workers who are now receiving less than dishwashers are paid. But they are going to find that the public reaction is going to be anything but favorable when it learns the salaries received by the people involved. And the War Labor Board or any other Government agency would frown on the situation, President Roosevelt himself having stated such substandard wages must be adjusted.'

Union leaders said Pat Casey, Producer labor contact, joined in when the exchange representatives attempted to repudiate previous agreements, said he would have nothing more to do with it, and ordered them out of his office. Casey declined to discuss the matter, but labor leaders said he probably was incensed because of the reputation he has built up with labor throughout the country for keeping an agreement once it is made. They said he is a man to bargain with, but that his word is good as a bond once he okays a deal.

If SOEG decides to walk out, Collarites are certain to receive 100% support from the Studio Painters, Cartoonists and other groups affiliated with the Conference of Studio Unions, with a possibility of many other unions and independent crafts joining them because of the aid they have received from Sorrell in negotiating wage deals for their own members.

It was believed, however, that E. J. Mannix, general manager of Metro, and other studio executives would step into the picture if the exchange representatives continued their stand today. F. T. Murray of Universal moved in yesterday, asking that action be deferred until today. It was stated representatives here were merely acting on word from New York that the entire matter was to go to arbitration.

Gracie Fields, English comedienne-singer, has been signed by Pall Mall for a series of five-minute programs five nights a week over CBS beginning Oct. 12. The briefies will comprise a song and story each night. Following her engagement at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, actress comes here to prepare for her Metro picture, 'Down Under,' in which she will be co-starred with Charles Laughton.

Her second picture will be for United Artists, which Monty Banks produces. Jimmy Campbell, former English music publisher-songwriter, is now here working on the screenplay with Fred Thompson.

Industry Pledges Aid To Scrap Drive

New York, Sept. 17.—Though still working on the industry's bond drive, the Public Relations Committee, Eastern Division, today began shaping up plans for film business participation in the national scrap drive in October. Earl Wingart, assistant secretary of the PRC, who'd been loaned to the bond drive committee will be continued on loan to the War Activities Committee to help in the salvage campaign.

Experiments in various key cities theatres in recent months, it was pointed out, obtained 100% results when theatres offered free ducats for specified amounts of scrap. Even spots where salvage collections had been slow, the free admission arrangements provided highly effectual breaking of the log jam. Hence, it is understood the industry's scrap drive committee will urge the use of some gratis ducat arrangements to start things rolling though leaving it to the individual exhibitors in local situation to decide whether a pair of passes go for every 10, 15 or 100 pounds of scrap.

Haven MacQuarrie Sues Metro for 500G, Says Privacy Was Invaded

Haven MacQuarrie, NBC broadcaster, yesterday filed suit for $500,000 against Metro for 'invasion of rights of privacy and property.' Damages are asked in the amount of $100,000 for humiliation and embarrassment, $250,000 for loss of income, and $100,000 exemplary.

Action charges that MacQuarrie's recent 'Marriage Club' program was ridiculed in the Metro picture, 'Married Bachelor,' resulting in NBC cancelling a contract with him. Indicative of MacQuarrie's earning capacity in radio, complaint states that he received $1,650 weekly from Wonder Bakeries for 'Marriage Club,' which was discontinued last season. NBC has been sustaining him on a program called 'Noah Webster Says.'

Preem of 'Wake Island' Sells $442,850 In Bonds, Par Reports

Seattle, Sept. 17.—Final count on Tuesday night's victory premiere of 'Wake Island' at the Paramount theatre, disclosed sale of $442,850 in War Bonds, according to Joe Rosenfield, chairman. General admission was purchase of a $25 bond, with loges at $1,000 denomination. At this scale, the 3,100 seater would have tabbed $143,000, but many exceeded the necessary purchase for seats—with one loge chair bringing $18,000.

Show, starting at 11:30 p. m., had 10 acts of vaude and three bands in addition to the picture. AGVA and AFM cooperated in furnishing the stage and orchestra talent.

Heading the vaude show was Phil Regan, with other acts including Jules Buffano, Marge Whaley, Red Blanchard, Ivy Hartman and Scarborough, Sherry Lou Swett, Beverly Morrell Trio, Dorothea LeRoy, Borden and Brent, Jim Penman and Nedra. Bands were: Warrant officer Joseph Berst and his army band; Lloyd Solberg and concert ork of 25; and Al Uhles and augmented Palomar group.

WPB SETS RAW STOCK QUOTAS; STUDIOS CUT DOWN FROM 1941

000 or more feet, 76% of 1941 consumption. Metro was only company in this classification, using 169,962,228 for feature prints, exclusive of newsreel and foreign market.

For companies using from 125,000,000 to 150,000,000 feet in 1941, 77½%. Paramount falls in this classification, having consumed 131,690,561 for features released domestically.

For companies using 100,000,000 to 125,000,000, quota is fixed at 80%, with 20th-Fox and Warners falling in this classification. A total of 103,774,008 was required by 20th-Fox for feature films in the domestic field, while Warners, which has no newsreel, used 112,282,260 feet of raw stock for its domestic prints.

The quota for companies which used 75,000,000 to 100,000,000 feet last year is fixed at 82½%, with RKO, Universal and Columbia falling in this division. RKO used a total of 88,601,674 feet, Universal 85,334,499, and Columbia 98,834,712. None of these figures include newsreel or foreign prints.

The quota for companies which used 75,000,000 feet or less is fixed at 90%, which applies to United Artists, which used 46,095,682, and Monogram, with 16,899,241. Film consumption of other companies was not available.

Today's order explained that no cut in aggregate quantity or length of features is required. A clarifying statement from Harold Hopper, chief of the film section of the WPB, included expression of hope that voluntary conservation measures will 'make possible the same production volume as we have been accustomed to' and contained new assurances there will be no restrictions on amounts of raw stock for newsreels and pictures requested or approved by Federal authorities. Bonus allotment will be given producers whose films are taken for exhibition in camps.

The Hopper statement indicated the WPB expects studio to curtail their demands sufficiently to release the footage required for Government pictures. No over-all figure was prescribed, however, on the amount which must be made available to satisfy the armed forces.

The heaviest percentage reductions hit the studios with the biggest 1941 consumption figures. The formula scales down to protect the smaller producers. Films already in actual production can be completed, providing shooting is over, but releases will be curtailed. Special provision is made for review and reconsideration of 'hardship cases'. Studios will not be able to get around the conservation scheme by digging old features out of the vaults in large numbers. Every producer is limited to the number of re-releases he issued in 1941, and no company will be permitted to dust off passe product unless he engaged in the disinterring practice last year.

Under the category formula announced several weeks ago, there will be no limits on the amount of film needed to satisfy requirements of the armed forces for pictures made at request and with approval of the Office of War Information, Bureau of Motion Pictures, for 'essential scientific purposes and research, and for newsreels.

Regarding Hopper's ruling today on raw film stock rationing, it's for the time being, pending further study of a system for saving an additional 25%. The film industry now looks to the engineers to save the day as in 1927 when sound came in.

Disney and Financiers Sued for $70,000

New York, Sept. 17.—Suit against Walt Disney Productions and Kidder, Peabody & Co., financing house, was disclosed here today. Michael Myerberg, plaintiff, seeks $70,000 compensation allegedly due him for services rendered in negotiating a business agreement between the two defendants. Action, filed in Supreme Court, asks examination before trial of Roy O. Disney and Frederick L. Moore, defendant execs.

Myerberg claims he brought the two organizations together during 1939 and 1940, and that there had been an agreement for compensation. Complaint cites a transaction in 1940 when the financial house handled the sale of 150,000 shares of Disney preferred stock valued at $3,750,000. Answers filed by the defendants deny the agreement and claim that Myerberg acted individually and without authorization.

BARTLETT CORMACK

Bartlett Cormack, a cub reporter who parlayed an idea into a richly rewarded career as playwright and scenarist, died Wednesday night at Phoenix, Ariz., after a lingering illness. He was 44 years old.

As a youngster Cormack came out of the University of Chicago to the staff of the Evening American in the wild days when Al Capone, Bugs Moran, Big Jim Colosimo and other well-known characters were beginning to make Chicago streets a No Man's Land. Cormack's typewriter clicked in tune with the 'typewriters' of the mobsters and out of it came the first underworld smash hit, 'The Racket', success of which established its youthful author as an arrived dramatist.

Subsequently Cormack scripted other stage hits, including 'Tampico', based on the Joseph Hergesheimer novel; 'The Painted Veil', from Somerset Maugham's book, and 'Hey Diddle Diddle'. He wrote the screenplays in Hollywood for a number of S. S. Van Dine whodunits made by Paramount, also 'This Day and Age', 'The Front Page', 'Fury', 'The Beachcomber' and 'Unholy Partners'.

Surviving his are the widow, a son, Thomas Bledsoe Cormack; a daughter, Adelaide Kilbee Cormack of Beverly Hills; his mother, Mrs. Edward Cormack, and two sisters, Bessie Kilbee Cormack of San Diego, and Mrs. Virgil T. Bledsoe of Phoenix.

ISRAEL GORE

Israel Gore, 54, partner in operation of the Golden Gate theatre here, and veteran indie chain exhibitor, died yesterday at the Veterans' hospital in Sawtelle. Gore came to California 35 years ago and was associated with his brothers, Abe and Mike, in indie theatre operation. He is survived by his widow, Marie; three daughters, a son, and four brothers. Services are being held today at Groman's mortuary with interment at Home of Peace.

The Man In the Trunk

little whodunit that has the shade of the murdered party running about aiding two amateur detectives solve the 10-year-old crime. It all comes about when a dancer buys a Saratoga trunk at an auction to use for her wardrobe. A number of interested parties, including a young attorney who has lost his first case, want possession. All but the legalite want the body reposing in the trunk to remain unseen, while Mr. Attorney figures it's his only chance to save a client from the hot seat.

The plot is routine some of the way, but John Larkin handles the writing of the returned shade in new style and otherwise keeps his script on the move to bracket it for good reception in supporting spots. The cast offers no marquee strength, but is spotted with familiar names that will help, and they are put through their paces capably by Malcolm St. Clair's direction. Latter achieves a number of suspenseful moments and injects chuckles with the playful shade character.

Lynne Roberts, the dancer who gets mixed up in murder plot, and George Holmes, youthful attorney, supply the romantic touch in Larkin's yarn, both doing okay. Holmes is a personable young man who only needs further experience. Raymond Walburn, the playful shade who displays a ghoulish humor in discovering who it was who did him in 10 years ago, is the cast standout. Instead of the usual photographic tricks used to depict a ghost, Walburn walks around in person, but unseen, among others in the cast. J. Carrol Naish, the real villain; Dorothy Peterson, Eily Malyon, Arthur Loft, Milton Parsons, Theodore von Eltz, Joan Marsh and Douglas Fowley are among the suspects.

Walter Morosco gives the picture expert mounting. Glen MacWilliams' photography, the sets, art direction and other factors are good.

Manila Calling

ates an heroic episode from the slow defeat of Yank units in the Philippines when a band of American and native guerrillas turn a bush broadcasting set as well as guns against the invading Japs, 'Manila Calling' will deal out exciting entertainment to the better program audiences and take care of itself very well at the box office.

Solid yarn by John Larkin provides swift and blazing action in the jungles and on the rocky outpost where the retreating planters and an assortment of American refugees, armed and tough, stand off attack and work out their problems of character, courage, romance and impending death. Machine guns chatter, bombers try constantly for the little band of civilian soldiers, inventiveness patches up a crippled Jap plane for escape of wounded, and over all is the well developed theme that the embattled refugees can best serve their country and counteract Jap demoralizing propaganda by sticking with the shortwave transmitter to the death, rather than seek a possible escape.

Impressive dignity is built up through behavior of the characters, the devotion of the doomed persons, the final reading of a defiant and encouraging broadcast by Lloyd Nolan at the last when the bombs are blasting all around him, and an exdance hall girl, Carole Landis, who steps from the escaping plane to stick with him.

Nolan delivers his role with strength and conviction, and Miss Landis complements with well handled assignment. Cornel Wilde makes a good showing as the young captain commandant. James Gleason puts over a fighting Irish trooper characterization with veteran skill. Martin Kosleck, Ralph Byrd, Charles Tannen, Ted North, Elisha Cook, Jr., Harold Huber, Lester Matthews, Louis Jean Heydt and Sen Yung all play their parts ably in making up the group which battles the Japs.

Director Herbert I. Leeds pulls no punches in the wild melees of the fighting and gets emotional reactions from his characters, despite the swift movement of the narrative and the stress of action. It's an excellent job, to which Lucien Andriot adds a fine measure with his photography. Excitement is kept at top pitch to the last.

Sol M. Wurtzel gives it the underpinning of his production experience and showmanship.

Girl Trouble

gets a once-over-lightly comedy treatment in 'Girl Trouble' and should tickle the American sense of humor. Picture handily pokes fun at such serious subjects as tire and gasoline restrictions to draw audience laughter and rate itself for an ample return on the production investment. Don Ameche and Joan Bennett are an expert team in handling the quips and situations, and Harold Schuster's direction gives spirited guidance, timing the gags for the best response.

Plot tells of the efforts of a South American to interest American capital in his father's rubber plantations and the trouble he encounters when he leases a society bud's apartment. From that premise Scripters Ladislas Fodor and Robert Riley Crutcher have fashioned a picture plot with many an hilarious situation, dressed them up with smart dialog, and generally injected new twists into formula material. Script touches on such things as amateur first-aid meetings and other topical civilian matters for a number of its gags. Fodor, Vicki Baum and Guy Trosper did the original story.

Ameche and Miss Bennett, as South American and society girl masquerading as maid, respectively, toss off the fun in high manner for most satisfactory performances. Ameche's deft work is in his usual competent style, and Miss Bennett gets the best from her assignment with comedy skill.

Billie Burke does another of her fluttery society women for laughs. Frank Craven, American tire manufacturer with a love for old guns, makes the crochety gent a success. Alan Dinehart does okay as Miss Bennett's lawyer and Helene Reynolds capably handles the femme menace as pursuer of Ameche with matrimonial intent. Fortunio Bonanova shows well as Ameche's New York representative, and others of the lengthy cast, including scene-stealing Scottie pup, Mac, take care of their comedy chores ably.

Robert Bassler's production guidance has given the picture well valued mounting. Alfred Newman's music provides a good background for the laughs. Edward Cronjager's photography, the art direction, the tight film editing, sets, costumes and other technical jobs are first-rate.

The Hidden Hand

tional pattern whodunit, loaded with a little extra insanity, which will do for the confirmed addicts in the duals but isn't calculated to make any new fans for this species of entertainment. It is long on homicide, chalking up five murders. But nobody seems to care very much. In fact, it probably is the best example to date of a picture cast's indifferent and unreal behavior in the presence of violent death and generously strewn bodies. This casual attitude, in which the players seem to forget utterly what has transpired in the scenes preceding, is of course maintained deliberately by the troupe and the director to conform with the now wholly standardized formula of the serio-comic film murder puzzler.

Audiences are observed to grow increasingly aware of this all too common fault of the average program whodunits. When the characters in the play don't seem to care what happens in the path of known danger and death, why should the audience care? Yet this offering pretends to take its story seriously, rather than going wholly out for farce. Thus it fails to maintain the primary element of suspense on which all chiller-puzzlers are based. The comedy, too, is pretty hollow.

The enthusiastic and colorful performances of Elizabeth Fraser and Milton Parsons, as the most abnormal of the 'mad Channings', save a certain entertainment basis for the more critically inclined customers. Both have an undisguised relish for murder and cackle about it fiendishly. Indeed, the whole Channing family, including Frank Wilcox, Cecil Cunningham, Roland Drew, Marian Hall and Tom Stevenson, all are presented as if ready and capable of committing any crime to filch the fortune of the elderly Elizabeth Fraser. She fakes death to test out her grasping relatives, is buried in a vault with other defunct relatives in a mortuary chamber of the house, is revived and sees to it that her secretary, Ruth Ford, and latter's sweetheart, Craig Stevens, are beneficiaries of her favor. Meantime there are plenty of grasping hands, stalking figures, skulking shadows and all the usual props of the formalized killer-diller. Julie Bishop, Wade Boteler, George Guhl and Stuart Holmes fit in with competent performances, and Willie Best does his wide-eyed terror routines.

Ben Stoloff directed according to the Hoyle of whodunits, from screenplay by Anthony Coldewey and Raymond Schrock.

George Washington Slept Here

ulance gets a workout in this amusing farce of a soft-living, city-bred man tricked into the country and a remodeled ramshackle house by an antique-mad wife. Nature of the comedy is becoming to the Benny style, and gives Ann Sheridan and Charles Coburn plenty of latitude for the hilarious development. The production, expertly managed by Jerry Wald and smartly directed by William Keighley, presents an absorbing satire on the mania to restore and revere ancient things of historical character on the assumption they bestow some special distinction upon their present possessors. Audiences which can still be diverted from the grimly serious matters of war and war pictures will find it welcome entertainment.

Stage play by Moss Hart and Geo. S. Kaufman has been molded to the screen by Everett Freeman with gusto. Its one fault is an overstress in the early reels on the smash-and-fall type of slapstick which threatens to become monotonous, and is certainly repetitious to saturation, before the action slides into swifter channels and more ludicrous complications for the transplanted city couple.

Ann Sheridan, able and fetching in the wifely role, buys an old wreck off the beaten paths because a realtor told her that George Washington had slept there. It turns out that the erstwhile sleeper was Benedict Arnold. But meanwhile so much has happened to Benny and his wife, as well as to Uncle Charles Coburn and the cook, Hattie McDaniel, that no one cares who slept where or when. Circumstances in the city, involving Franklin Pangborn as the irate manager of the Benny's apartment, have compelled the move to the country. Dry rot, lack of water, disputes with a neighbor, no transportation, a well-digging hired hand who induces quick nervous breakdowns, storms and the discovery that Uncle Coburn, presumably rich, is a penniless sponger, together with threatened foreclosure—these are some of the incidents and situations which skyrocket Benny's blood pressure and test all of Ann Sheridan's resources to swing into peaceful and contented finalities.

Benny's suffering under his indignities shape his characteristic performance into one of his better roles. He and Miss Sheridan work well together. Coburn is at his best in the scenes where he discloses to the astounded relatives that his pretended wealth is merely a ruse to live richly on the snobbish expectant heirs. Franklin Pangborn's fury at the destructive little dog of his tenants and his intrusions upon the Benny's pri-

MG Now Sending Out Groups of 12; Exhibs May Cancel 'Em All

Setting a precedent, Metro is adding four additional features to the group of eight pictures with which company led off its season's program with all 12 pictures being open to the cancellation privilege of exhibitors. Announcement to this effect was made from New York yesterday by William F. Rodgers, Metro distribution head.

Increased block is in line with Thurman Arnold's decision, after failure of the UMPI booking plan, that picture companies may sell to exhibitors as many films in group form as they wish, provided only that all be individually trade-shown and have specified cancellation provisions. Four productions added to the original eight are 'For Me and My Gal,' 'Eyes In the Night,' 'The Omaha Trail' and 'White Cargo.'

Exhibitors who have already bought the first eight have been advised by Rodgers that four new ones need only be added to the contracts, permitting cancellation option to spread over entire group.

Cancellation privilege extends to one or two pictures, depending on the average film rental for the 1940-41 season. Exhibs who paid average rental up to $100 may reject two; those who paid from $100 to $250 may cancel but one.

Swarts to Washington On Copyright Matter

Louis E. Swarts of the legal firm of Swarts & Tannenbaum, leaves for Washington today at the request of the Alien Property Custodian to advise with him concerning department's control of foreign copyrights, especially those of enemy aliens.

Swarts, for many years copyright attorney for Paramount Players-Lasky Corp., and Paramount Publix Corp., is a nationally recognized authority on copyright law and was one time chairman of the copyright committee of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.

Swarts is donating his services to the government on the Washington mission and returns here after formation of a bureau to handle copyright problems in the Alien Property Custodian's Office.

fiscal year ended June 27, 1942, and the fiscal year ending June 26, 1943. First bonus will accrue on company books and will be paid in United States War Bonds in three or four monthly instalments.

Not included in the bonus plan are the president, executive director and all vice-presidents of the company. Participating employes have been broken down into three groups, including department heads, secretaries, assistants to department heads, traveling auditors, artists and writers, and all other eligible employes. Ratio of each total group payroll to entire payroll has been figured to get participating percentages. Payoff will be 100% for those employed for one year as of June 27, 1942, with all employed since that date participating to the extent of one-twelfth of 100% for each month working. Second bonus will be based on two years' employment.

Other matters to be ratified by the stockholders include election of a new board of directors. The present nine members, W. Ray Johnston, Trem Carr, Samuel Broidy, Howard Stubbins; Charles Trampe, Herman Rifkin, John Mangham, William Burlbut and Alton Brody, have been renominated.

Stockholders will have amendments to the contracts of W. Ray Johnston, prexy; Trem Carr, executive director, and Samuel 'Steve' Broidy, sales head, for ratification. Amendments call for pay raises on all three pacts.

Both bonuses and pay raises for the three executives follow successful company operations and increased markets for its product.

bullet, Cortez struggles mightily with his role of terrorizing everyone in the picture but convincing few on the paying side of the screen. Dialog given him is even more stupid than the character he tries to portray. It's a wonder he didn't really go a little nuts himself playing such a role.

Entire atmosphere of the film, much of which features night photography, is one of depression. Music matches, too, with result of whole thing weighing down instead of entertaining even from the side of sympathy, or pathos or just anything but what it is.

Romantic interludes are single thing that break up the monotony of watching and listening to fearful people, all with pasts or something to hide but who would have been better off hiding out from such assignments.

From production standpoint film does not evidence cheapness. Cast assembled could not get above the vehicle. Photography, art direction, etc., are similarly lost in the maze of morbidity. Saver comes in the end, following a lot of mediocre acting, when Cortez is battered around in a good fight scene and climax is reached with some on-the-hoof action.

Jean Parker quits college to find her father is in cahoots with primrose path partners. While trying to straighten out the old man she becomes fascinated by the magnetic madman, Cortez, but later sees the folly and wants to run off with Johnny Doughboy (Emmett Lynn), an old college chum who just happens to be whipping around the desert in a jeep. But Cortez has the goods on the father, forces his attentions on the girl, all the while going through some brain quirks that keep everybody on edge. That is, everybody in the film. Worst side of everyone comes out, killings are perpetrated, but death of the father and Cortez clinches the fade clinch of the young lovers.

Army parade of guns, trucks, etc., is tossed in for a fade, with voice warning that evil and war makers will come to their logical end. It's all for no apparent reason except to contradict Cortez's declaration that Hitler is a penny-ante chiseler compared to what he was going to visit on the world from his sage stronghold. That line was as believable as any.

horses for cavalry use in the Philippines. Some mysterious characters, out of place in the western atmosphere, spell trouble for the boys and they round up a group of foreign agents storing guns and dynamite without landing the ringleader. Boys take their trip to the Philippines, continue their penchant for getting into trouble by capturing another group of Jap spies in the islands, and get a clue to the head of the sabotage gang back in Texas. Returning home, trio acts on the clue and finishes the job. Film ends with that fateful Dec. 7 broadcast of the Jap raid on Pearl Harbor.

Marjorie Manners holds down the femme spot, with as little to do as usual with sagebrush heroines. Steve Clark, Budd Buster, Kenneth Duncan, Escolastico Baucin, who portrays a Jap masquerading as a Filipino; Frank Ellis and others complete the standard western casting.

Robert Tansey's direction moves along, although he spots a little too much footage in the chases. George Weeks' production, aided by associate Dick Ross, holds up the average for the series well. Robert Cline's photography, Arthur Hoerl's script, the musical direction and other credits figure okay for the market. John King sings his own composition, 'Me and My Pony', and the standard western ballads, 'Goodbye Old Paint' and 'Home On the Range', aided in the latter by a native string trio.

Half Country House Guest Bungalows Contributed

With the official dedication of the Motion Picture Relief Fund's Country House arranged for Sept. 27, Jean Hersholt, prexy of the Fund, announced yesterday that more than half of the planned quota of 40 guest bungalows have already been donated by film industry personalities and organizations. These cottages have been erected and will be on view for motion picture artists and workers on the dedication date.

Individual bungalow units have been contributed to the Country House through the Relief Fund by Robert Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck, William and Marian Seiter, Ralph Morgan and Billy Burke, Jean Hersholt, Osa Massen, Jack Benny, Friends of J. Walter Ruben, Otto Kruger and daughter, Ottilie, Y. Frank Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arnold, Charles K. Feldman, Mary Pickford, Artists Managers Guild, British Actors, Writers and Directors, Louise Crosser Hale.

W. S. Van Dyke donated $10,000 for the building of a four-unit bungalow. The Screen Directors Guild contributed a double unit cottage and Mark Sandrich donated a double unit.

vacies give him one of his most amusing parts in many a picture. Percy Kilbride is good as the unsociable neighbor, and Harvey Stevens sympathetic as the helpful one. Lee Patrick and John Emery are performers at a summer theatre nearby. Joyce Reynolds is Miss Sheridan's young sister who is always falling desperately in love with older men—an interesting performance. William Tracy is the lovelorn lad who is devastated by Miss Reynolds' amative ventures. Percy Kilbride builds his part as the well-digger to top comedy importance with his dry, deliberate delivery. Douglas Croft is a pestiferous lad who also serves to move the comedy along.

Jerry Wald holds the reins on the production with marked understanding of the entertainment values and skillful executive competence to give the film showmanly importance.

Keighley's direction exploits all of the comedy elements expertly and guides the performances for top deliveries. Ernie Haller's cameras, Max Parker's art direction and Casey Roberts' sets, music by Adolph Deutsch and musical direction by Leo F. Forbstein lend solid technical support to a quality production.

Senor Aleman Guested At Par Luncheon, Praises H'wd

Stressing the important place and responsibility of the motion picture in today's crisis, Sr. Lic. Miguel Aleman, secretary of the interior and chief of cabinet of Mexico, addressed 60 leaders and stars of the film industry yesterday at a luncheon given in his honor by the Producers Association at Paramount Studio. He said:

'The motion picture industry has an enoromus responsibility in the actual struggle itself and also is bettering the understanding and relations of all the allied nations. The Republic of Mexico is grateful for the cooperation you have given in the development of its own motion picture industry. In giving that help you have helped the cause of the allied nations.'

In introducing the honor guest, Y. Frank Freeman, prexy of the Producers Association, spoke of 'his statesmanship and great contribution to inter-American relations in the world crisis today.'

Film Editors Invest $7,500 In Bonds

The Society of Motion Picture Film Editors purchased $7,500 in War Bonds yesterday as the organization's participation in the intensified campaign being conducted by the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, Treasury Department Savings Staff. The investment was announced by Business Representative John Lehners, following authorization by the executive board.

The Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood has passed the million dollar mark for purchases by film employes through the payroll savings plan and cash sales since Sept. 1. This brings the committee's total for the past 22 weeks to more than $6,000,000.

DAVIS TELLS SENATE MOVE HITS ARMY ENTERTAINMENT

Washington, Sept. 17.—Jimmy Petrillo's ban on recordings is a threat against the country's national communications, and something should be done about it, Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, told a Congressional subcommittee today. Davis, who was the first witness before the Senate Interstate subcommittee hearing, however, made it clear he was not advocating approving or urging any course of legislation which anybody may be contemplating.

The hearing was called by Chairman D. Worth Clark (Idaho), to determine effect on public morale of Petrillo's order forbidding American Federation of Musicians to make recordings of any kind for radio broadcastings, broadcaster, or juke boxes. It was stated about 150 stations might be injured seriously from an economic standpoint and audiences in such localities served by these stations would be abnormally reduced by Petrillo's limitations, thus affecting wartime communications, because such stations are dependent mostly for their listening circulation upon recordings and transcriptions.

'A policy which threatens the continued existence of many of the country's stations is injurious to the national system of communications, and may seriously hamper the work for which the Office of War Information was established,' Davis said. He pointed out Petrillo's ban affected one of the principal sources of relaxation and entertainment of the U. S. armed forces everywhere.

Tomorrow James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, will testify, also Thurman Arnold, special assistant U. S. attorney general, has been invited to testify.

The Department of Justice has a civil suit pending against Petrillo's AFM in connection with the music czar's ban on recordings. The present hearing is a preliminary brief affair to a possibly more detailed investigation of Petrillo's acts, it is said, and to provide a basis to possible Congressional action to prevent such acts in the future.

J. K. 'Spike' Wallace, president of local 47 of the musicians union, trained out of Chicago last night following a week of conferences there with James C. Petrillo, international head of the union. Wallace reportedly visited Chicago for talks on union's 'Music For Victory' campaign to obtain a government subsidy for musicians, and not on the pending Federal injunction suit against the recent banning of recordings and transcriptions by the union.

Revel-Webster Combo

Harry Revel, who recently broke with his songwriting partner, Mort Greene, will team with Paul Webster to dream up the tunes for the Abbott and Costello picture at Universal, 'It Ain't Hay.' New combo is for the one picture with some decision on its permanency to be determined after the Universal job. Webster will write the Lyrics to Revel's melodies.

Flacks Close Deal For RKO Members

New York, Sept. 17.—The Screen Publicists Guild of New York has closed a contract with RKO Service Corp., RKO Theatre operating subsidiary, covering publicity and advertising workers of RKO homeoffice, calling for 10% increases, retroactive to May 30 last, maintenance of membership, 70% Guild shop, severance pay ranging up to 12 weeks pay after 10 years.

Members of the RKO theatre department SPG unit have pledged to spend half of their retroactive pay for purchase of War bonds during the industry's September drive. The SPG also was certified recently as bargaining agent for Loew's. SPG negotiations continue with that company.

Joe Schenck To Resume 20th Exec Duties

New York, Sept. 17.—Joseph Schenck will return to the Coast shortly to resume his spot in studio operations and generally supervise company affairs, at present appears that he'll guide 20th-Century Fox as previously though he has been given no specific appointment. Meeting of directors was held today to determine his exact status. Though Schenck did not attend, board agreed he was logical executive whose vast experience in the industry was needed now more than ever. Whether or not he'll eventually assume board chairmanship is moot question.

Robert Arden, Scrib, Peddles Idea To Col

Robert Arden, who started as a newscaster on KFWB and then branched out as a 'war correspondent' for Daily Variety, has stretched his versatility to encompass screen writing. Yesterday he sauntered into Irving Briskin's office at Columbia, spread before him an idea for a picture and before he left the studio was assigned to develop the story into screenplay form. It is titled 'The Boy from Stalingrad' and has for its principal characters five boys and a girl with adults playing only incidental parts.

This week summer gives way to autumn—a hopeful sign for the Allies and a grim omen for the Axis.

The Nazi armies are still battling for Stalingrad and the cost of that battle grows each hour; the rich oilfields of the Caucasus are possibly within sight, but certainly beyond the reach of Hitler; the Mediterranean pincer-move is hopelessly blocked in the Egyptian desert; the German people, faced with the stark reality of a dozen of their greatest cities in ruins, blasted by the United Nations air forces, will be less inclined to believe new Hitler promises.

Brilliant and heroic defense wrecked, once again, Hitler's timetable. An equally successful offense can wreck his power for good.

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lonely herd winds slowly o'er the plain.
The cowboy is a soldier, miles away—
The cattle wait to hear his croon in vain.

They miss the tenor notes that rang afar
And soothed their hearts at dusk in peaceful times.
They knew their cowboy singer was the star
To shield them from their rustler's lowly crimes.

And now the cowgirl takes the cowboy's job
And sings soprano solos on the prairie.
'Ah, what a fate,' the trembling cattle sob—
'To be protected by a blonde canary.'

Cow drama has no place for the gentle influence of love. The kids who support the westerns are still idolators of rugged adventure and prefer the pop of a six-gun to the smack of a kiss. When their hard-hiding hero shows the slighest tendency to fall for the blandishments of the glamorous gal, there is an audible groan and an unuttered prayer that he won't turn out to be a big softie. There are cheers in the last reel when he gallops away into the sunset alone. Cowpoke producers are in for a tough time if they attempt to supplant cowboys with cowgirls in the drama of the great outdoors. They will have to find a new audience.

Springtime In the Rockies

(Filmusical)

20th-Fox production. Stars Betty Grable, John Payne, Carmen Miranda, Cesar Romero, Charlotte Greenwood, Edward Everett Horton and Harry James and his Music Makers. Balance of cast: Frank Orth, Jackie Gleason, Harry Hayden. Director, Irving Cummings. Produced by William LeBaron. Screenplay, Walter Bullock and Ken Englund. Adaptation, Jacques Thery. Based on story by Philip Wylie. Lyrics and music, Mack Gordon and Harry Warren. Dances staged by Hermes Pan. Photographed in Technicolor. Photography, Ernest Palmer. Technicolor director, Natalie Kalmus; associate, Henri Jaffa. Musical direction by Alfred Newman. Art direction, Richard Day and Joseph C. Wright. Set decorations, Thomas Little and Paul S. Fox. Film editor, Robert Simpson. Costumes, Earl Luick. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 20, 1942. Running time: 90 MINS.

This attractively titled filmusical combines the elements for prosperous trade—the marquee moniker of Harry James and his Music Makers, the screen names of Betty Grable, Carmen Miranda, Cesar Romero; good music and an assortment of easily assimilated diversion, all trigged out in sparkling Technicolor against the majestic backdrop of the Canadian Rockies.

The amorous comedy is unfolded zestfully along a simple story line, garnished with bright quips, picturesque dances by Betty Grable and Cesar Romero and Carmen Miranda; the hot trumpetings of Harry James, the antics of Charlotte Greenwood, a cluster of choice songs by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren.

John Payne, who wants to marry Betty Grable, dancing entertainer, is inclined to dally a little with other attractive femmes. Jealousy splits a rift between them. During a drunken evening, Payne hires a valet, Edward Everett Horton, a Harvard man who has been tending bar; a secretary, Carmen Miranda and her several brothers. Next morning he recollects none of these generous employments. But when he perceives Grable's jealousy of the gorgeous Brazilian, Miranda, he retains the latter, pretending he's in love with her. Miranda expands the idea for all its worth, particularly for herself, by falling for Horton, who, incidentally, also is wealthy. Romero has moved in to get himself engaged to marry Grable, and works with her as a dance team at a Lake Louise resort. That's the equation which has to be solved.

Miss Grable and Romero team with spirit as a dance combination, both advantaged by the vivid Technicolor cameras wielded by Ernest Palmer.

John Payne plays his role of discomfited but resourceful suitor with amusing vigor and excellent sense of the line between glooming sincerity and provocative comedy.

Carmen Miranda dominates whenever the cameras rest upon her. She has become one of the foremost figures in the entertainment world—colorful, arresting, exerting her forthright, primitive charm through her staccato chanting, her energetic dancing, the way she displays her bizarre costumes, and, above all, her volatile sense of comedy from which all her other manifestations spring.

The Young Mr. Pitt

(Drama)

20th-Fox release of a Gaumont-British production. Stars Robert Donat. Features Robert Morley, Phyllis Calvert and John Mills. Supporting cast: Geoffrey Atkins, Jean Cadell, Raymond Lovell, Agnes Loughlan, Felix Aylmer, Ian McLean, Max Adrian, Bromley Davenport, John Salew, Herbert Lom, Albert Lieven, Stephen Haggard, Stuart Lindsell, Henry Hewitt, Frederick Culley, Frank Pettingell, Leslie Bradley, Roy Emerton, Hugh McDermott, Alfred Sangster. Maurice Ostrer in charge of production. Director, Carol Reed. Produced by Edward Black. Dramatic narrative and additional dialog, Viscount Castlerosse. Screenplay, Sidney Gilliat and Frank Launder. Photography, Frederick Young. Musical director, Louis Levy. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 20, 1942. Running time: 102 MINS.

This compelling dramatic and closely historical tale of statecraft in the time of the Napoleonic wars, when England had fallen into a state of appeasing vulnerability, is premised upon a masterly piece of screen writing. The narrative of Viscount Castelrosse and the film play by Sidney Gilliat and Frank Launder, embracing the authentic speeches of the Earl of Chatham and William Pitt in Parliament, match dignity and passion with high, sustained excitement to hold any but the dullest audiences. 'The Young Mr. Pitt' is undoubtedly the best of the British-made pictures dealing with world politics to reach American release. It also will have stimulating morale value in that it shows, with finest artistry and intelligent consideration, what happened to a great but vacillating nation under circumstances paralleling the present and how resolute leadership and the will of an

Flying Fortress

Virtue of 'Flying Fortress' as entertainment is its dramatic elucidation of the American bomber ferry service to Britain and its interesting scenes of raid flying and bombing, with the technical phases presented with fascinating detail. The narrative is the now stereotyped situation wherein a headstrong but competent and courageous flier loses his pilot's license but regains status by some marked effort of devotion in a crisis or selfless consideration of his fellows. But because of the informative and inspirational nature of the picture the story may and will be discounted without robbing the film of its value as a program supplement in the general run of theatres.

Richard Greene is a wealthy American whose private plane pilot, Donald Steward, has his license revoked after a disastrous crash for which the blame really belongs to Greene, drunk at the time. Both men meet again when Steward is an instructor in bomber ferry service. Greene is finally accepted as a flier in that contingent. In England Greene falls in love with Steward's sister, Carla

The Hard Way

(Drama)

Warners release of First National picture. Stars Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan and Joan Leslie. Supporting cast: Jack Carson, Gladys George, Faye Emerson, Paul Cavanagh, Leona Maricle, Roman Bohnen, Ray Montgomery, Julie Bishop, Nestor Paiva, Joan Woodbury, Ann Doran, Thurston Hall, Charles Judels, Lou Lubin, Jody Gilbert. Produced by Jerry Wald. Directed by Vincent Sherman. Screenplay by Daniel Fuchs and Peter Viertel. Photography, James Wong Howe. Film editor, Thomas Pratt. Art director, Max Parker. Special effects, Willard Van Enger. Montages, Don Siegel. Dance numbers staged by and directed by LeRoy Prinz. Set decorations, Walter F. Tilford. Music, H. Roemheld. Songs, M. K. Jerome and Jack Scholl. Orchestral arrangements, Ray Heindorf. Music direction, Leo F. Forbstein. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 20, 1942. Running time: 111 MINS.

This is another interesting exhibit in Ida Lupino's portrait gallery of hard, warped woman with a psychopathic edge. It is upon the fascination the actress exerts through these characters, feverish, cunning, sexy, that her reputation rests and her importance at the box office depends. One of her best is this depiction of a morbid wife in a dirty house in a dirty town who sets out, at whatever cost, to secure stage fame for a younger sister and vicarious success for herself through a series of maneuvers which end tragically for herself and line the path of her ambition with sombre events.

Contrasting the glitter and the brazen power of the Lupino character is the fresh ingenious charm of the younger sister as enacted by Joan Leslie, who permits herself to be dominated by the almost hypnotic

Directed by Joe Graham. Screenplay, Fred Niblo, Jr., and Hector Chevigny. From story by Roy Chanslor. Photography, James Van Trees and Tony Gaudio. Film editor, David Weisbart. Art director, Stanley Fleischer. Set decorations, Walter L. Tilford. Music, Adolph Deutsch. Music direction, Leo F. Forbstein. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 20, 1942. Running time: 77 MINS.

This is 'Hi, Nellie' in a new makeup. The predecessor wasn't exceptional. Neither is this elaborated and altered version of the newspaper man who conducts a lonely hearts advice column in pretense that it is written by a woman. Attempt to blend comedy with the grisly matters of murder is not expertly managed, with the result that the two elements frequently destroy each other's effectiveness.

Bootlegging of rubber provides the plot framework. Pitted against the overlord of hot tires and his political allies is the fighting editor of a crusading metropolitan sheet. Only fault with the editor, from the newspaper publisher's standpoint, is that he is inclined to work on hunches instead of substantiable facts. Thus he gets himself into a mess of trouble, professional and romantic. In punishment he is assigned to conduct the skirt column for lonely hearts and

Jolson Returns from Troop Shows In Erin, England

New York, Sept. 20.—Al Jolson, after four weeks entertaining troops of the American Expeditionary Forces in England and Ireland, Clippered in here Saturday. The other members of his entertainment caravan, Merle Oberon, Patricia Morison, Frank McHugh and Allen Jenkins, are due in late tonight or tomorrow.

Polson had quite a get-together with old friends in Ireland and England. Adele Astaire, now Lady Cavendish, was busy in Ireland looking after troop welfare, while in London he met Bill Paley, John Royal, Ward Morehouse and Hannen Swafer.

Jolson, being used to solo work as he did in Alaska and in the Caribbean, denied any clash with Miss Oberon other than his desire to work more often and alone. He said he did 50 shows in four weeks that pleased soldiers and factory workers. Miss Oberon was the exponent of the 'sweater girl' made famous in Hollywood, wearing one while working throughout the tour.

JAMES CAGNEY CHOSEN AS PREXY OF SCREEN ACTORS

the meeting will be George Murphy, first vice-prexy; Paul Harvey, second vice-prexy; Walter Abel, third vice-prexy; Lucile Gleason, recording secretary; Porter Hall, treasurer. Newly elected members of the Guild board of directors to serve for three years will be Walter Abel, James Cagney, Emma Dunn, Cary Grant, George Murphy, Lloyd Nolan, Walter Pidgeon, Elisabeth Risdon, Franchot Tone, Charles Trowbridge, Jane Wyman.

Most important issue on the agenda for Sunday's session is the question of repeated requests for actors to appear for free performances in motion pictures and radio programs of a commercial origin.

A full summary of the problem will be presented by Franchot Tone and other actors. The problem has become increasingly active in recent months because the generosity of actors is being exploited through appeals to them to appear without pay in pictures from which part of the proceeds, in some instances, are contributed to patriotic and charitable causes, according to the SAG. Because screen performances are the actors' only means of livelihood, and because every minute of free talent performance on the screen displaces a paid performance, the SAG said actors see in such a trend a threat to their entire economic structure. To protect themselves against such a threat, definite action will be taken at the Guild's annual meeting.

The Guild already has taken a stand on the problem of free performances in motion pictures by passing a rule forbidding any member to appear in a motion picture without compensation or for compensation substantially below the member's usual motion picture salary.

A similar rule, passed several years ago, forbids members to appear on commercial radio programs without pay. However, the radio issue has recurred because radio stations are asking actors to appear without compensation on sustaining programs of a patriotic nature, despite the fact the programs are being offered for commercial sponsorship.

A second development in the radio field, which has accelerated the request for Guild action, is the fact that numerous war service organizations are attempting to raise funds by sponsoring radio programs. These programs, for which the actors receive no pay, are offered for sale at cut-rate prices, in competition with regular commercial shows, thus jeopardizing normal income of actors who depend on radio for all or part of their income.

A big turnout is expected for Sunday's meeting because of the personal popularity of James Cagney, who is well liked both by actors and extras. He always has championed the cause of the underdog and is reported to have been one of the top stars who refused to okay elimination of the extras SAG Council without it being submitted to a vote of the extras themselves.

Steve Trilling Set As Warners Studio Top

made that Trilling will step into the studio top spot during the emergency.

Trilling has been with the Warners organization for more than 15 years. In New York he was in charge of vaude bookings and also handled studio talent affairs. He was brought here number of years ago as studio casting director, and when Warner several months ago devoted considerable of his time to Air Force chores, was made his assistant.

Trilling has had a pretty thorough show biz background, and in the new spot will work closely with Harry M. Warner, who will, as in the past, make his base at the studio, handling financial and vital policy matters.

It is understood Trilling will be aided in his operations by Tenney Wright, Charles Einfeld, Carol Sax and other top studio executives as a sort of advisory group.

Under the plan all producers will clear through Trilling as they did through Col. Warner and Hal Wallis previously, and will as well have a general free rein in production as was allowed them by Warner when he took charge of operations.

Colonel Warner, who is attached to the public relations division of the Army Air Force, it is understood will likely be given general active duty and possibly will see service at various air posts both in the United States and with the expeditionary forces.

Preview War Shorts Set by Academy

Third in a series of press previews of outstanding short subjects, under auspices of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, will be held at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Filmarte Theatre. Included on the program will be 11 shorts, divided between purely entertainment offerings and subjects dealing with the War effort. These were selected by the Academy's Short Subjects Branch from the releases of Columbia, Metro, Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox, Universal and Warners.

Among those dealing with the War effort will be the much discussed 'Food Will Win the War,' produced by Walt Disney for the Department of Agriculture, and a Research Council training film. Several entertainment shorts on vital and timely subjects of interest to all Americans, made by various studios with the cooperation of the Office of War Information, also will be screened.

Spitalny Hour of Charm Broadcast Scores at Camp Haan Airing

Out on the rim of the desert, in an atmosphere that seemed several shades hotter than the inside of a baked Idaho potato, Phil Spitalny spectacularly blended the artistry and charm of his all-girl orchestra yesterday with the talented all-male personnel of Camp Haan to put on the most unique entertainment yet vouched at a military post. Twice during the combination personal appearance show and broadcast, the 1,700 soldiers cramming the recreation hall from the footlights to front door, joined their voices with the Spitalny choir to send their harmony soaring literally over the world and its four corners.

For, because of his General Electric sponsorship, the Spitalny program not only went out over the full NBC hookup of 125 stations, but was shortwaved everywhere an American boy is today fighting his war for independence.

It almost seemed that the Camp Haan personnel, under the maestro's urging baton, realized that brothers-in-arms were intently listening everywhere to the song of stalwart hope that went up from every Camp Haan throat yesterday, for never have soldiers sung with greater gusto, rendering first 'This Is the Army, Mr. Jones', and later 'When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder'.

And the end of each was merely the beginning of an ovation that almost stopped the program.

It never quite reached that point, largely because the soldiers themselves helped run the program, as announcers and spot introduction men. They, consequently, contrived at lengthy last to keep Camp enthusiasm within the required limits of broadcast time, most of those serving being professionals well known in Hollywood. One was Private Bob Lee, a former hot trumpet player; Private Phil Kramer, a radio comic who had worked with Fibber and Molly McGee and the late Joe Penner; Private Bill Sabransky, for six years staff organist at NBC; Private Dave Marshall, Corporal Ernest Farmer and Private Joe Stafford, former professional musicians.

It was all done in less than a half hours rehearsal with the Camp Ensemble, though Spitalny and his girls labored for hours in advance, smoothing the nuances of their extraordinary arrangements. The result was later perfect show for its world audience of radio listeners. It opened with an Army medley, topped off by Vivien's singing of 'My Buddy,' with instrumental and vocal accompaniments. Evelyn did 'Tangerine' on the violin and had the place in an uproar at the end. Other sparkling specialties were sponsored by Maxine, contralto, and Rosa Linda at the piano.

When it was finished the boys stood up and clamored for more, which Spitalny regretfully was unable to give them. The reason was that they had to clear the hall so that Spitalny could do the show all over again for 1,700 more—waiting outside to get in.

17 New Tinters Coming Up as Color Proves Itself at B. O.

Color continues to play an important part in production programs being lined up for 1942-43 by major companies. New announcements of features to be made in Technicolor are forthcoming regularly with a total of 17 color pictures currently being prepared. There are another eight in production, six awaiting release and seven already being released. In addition, color is playing an important part in the shorts field, there being 27 Technicolor shorts now in distribution.

Of those in various stages of preparation both Paramount and 20th-Fox have five each. Par group consists of 'Canadian Capers', 'Dixie', 'The Story of Dr. Wassell', 'Frenchman's Creek' and 'Lady In the Dark'. 20th-Fox has 'Bird of Paradise', 'Coney Island', 'Greenwich Village', 'Hello, Frisco, Hello' and 'Police Gazette Girl'. Metro has three, 'America', 'Kim' and 'Salute To the Marines'. RKO will do 'Gibson Girl' and 'Grand Canyon' in color. Columbia in prepping 'Cover Girl' and Warners has 'This Is the Army'.

20th Flackery Loses Half Its P. A.'s To Country's Call

20th-Fox's studio publicity department, headed by Harry Brand, will have lost better than 50% of its pre-Pearl Harbor personnel with the departure this week of three members.

Joining the service this week are James Simmons, head of the trailer department, who goes into the Signal Corps; Ray Dannenbaum and John Campbell, both unit men, who join the Army Air Forces. In addition, two members who came in as replacements for departed flacks since first of the year, Jean Bosquet and Jack Cripps, leave shortly. Bosquet takes a defense spot and Cripps joins the Coast Guard.

Others who have left include George Weiss, Army; Walter Ramsey, Jim Mitchell, Jerry Solomon, Navy; Dick Pittinger, Don Morgan, Will Fowler, Bill Meacham, Coast Guard, and Gordon Gordon, FBI.

Her deliberate, ludicrous mangling of the English language is an added bait for laughter.

James and his bandsters go to town with their distinguished musical prowess — an element which will bring pre-sold audience to the wickets. Good measure of the James melodics is sifted into the other entertainment elements. The Mack Gordon-Harry Warren cleff contributions comprise 'I Had the Craziest Dream', sung by the soloist with the James band; 'Run, Little Raindrop, Run', 'A Poem Set To Music' and a lavish production number, 'Pan-American Jubilee', drenched in beautiful colors upon the performers.

Charlotte Greenwood obliges with her antic long-legged dance, but scores as well with an amusing role as Miss Grable's companion—a good trouper whose every performance is bright and refreshing. Horton's characterization blends excellently; Frank Orth and Henry Hayden share well handled theatrical angels combination, and Jackie Gleason brightens a spot as theatrical commissioner.

Irving Cummings brings his veteran's skill and sense of values to the job of direction, maintaining his excellent standard in carrying out and amplifying the sprightly screenplay by Walter Bullock and Ken Englund. Jacques Thery made the adaptation from story basis by Philip Wylie.

Quality of the production and showmanly collation of the sure-fire entertainment values, together with elegant presentation, put William LeBaron's label on the piece, to his own and his company's credit.

Hermes Pan staged the dances, one of the outstanding contributions. Earl Luick did the impressive costuming, Richard Day and Joseph C. Wright the pictorial art direction, and Thomas Little and Paul S. Fox the set decorations. Alfred Newman presided in the musical direction.

The Young Mr. Pitt

aroused people conquered their peril.

Selling, the picture will need. What stands behind the title, meaningless for the American masses, will require exploitation in order for 'Mr. Pitt' to garner what it deserves, and may well get if properly merchandised. Favorable talk it will get from press and from the folk who see it. Discriminating audiences it will stir and delight for its many merits of craftsmanship and dramatic power.

Robert Donat gives a magnificent performance as William Pitt, English peer and government leader at the time when Britain was undergoing profound changes in internal affairs and world relationships. The role comprehends with warmth, humor, pathos and statesmanly bearing Pitt's life in his household, in the council chambers, in his brief and incomplete—and delicately told—romance with an ambassador's daughter, his traffic with the common people as well as the lords of his day, and his political battles with Lord North and the brilliant Charles James Fox in Parliament and with the British admiralty when he named Nelson to stalk Napoleon's fleet to its death off the mouth of the Nile.

Impressive also are the performances of Robert Morley as Fox, majority leader; of John Mills, Pitt's staunch ally; of Herbert Lom, delivering the first characterization for the screen of Napoleon as a dynamic man instead of the usual cardboard figment; of Raymond Lovell, depicting George the Third as a recognizable human Briton, not the usual regal automaton; of Albert Lieven as the shrewd Tallyrand; of Jean Cadell, Pitt's old 'Nanny' who treats him like her own boyish son, with warming emotion; of Phyllis Calvert, the aristocratic but entirely unaffected object of Pitt's love; of John Salew as the devoted secretary, and, in lesser degree, a dozen others in the carefully selected cast of foremost English players. Fine also is the short scene contributed by Geoffrey Atkins in the guise of Pitt as a youth, admonished on possible responsibility in times to come, by his admiring father, the elder Pitt.

Carol Reed handles the direction with the stress, the timing, the relationship between character and event which marks the sure craftsman and the potent dramatist. He displays a deep sense of historical awareness, and tells his tale now directly, now by suggestion and montage, now with the eloquence of Pitt's speeches —as exciting as battle fire—to sustain immense suspense and the sense of fatefulness which measures all great drama.

Maurice Ostrer and Edward Black had the production responsibility. The technical merits are all of the best. The production is lavish and in keeping with the taste and restraint which characterizes the performances, the direction, the whole fabric of the offering.

Flying Fortress

Lehmann, a nurse in emergency service, and Steward is smitten with Betty Stockfield, as Lady Deborah of a great manor. Latter's brother, Lord Ottershaw, played by Sydney King, turns up as the flight commander for the fighter unit in which the two Yanks have now enlisted. From there on the romances are absorbed into the fighting scenes and left incomplete. Antagonism of the men also is melted in the fire of action.

Air raids are realistically shown in London. The fighters of the RAF take off for the French coast and for Berlin itself. These scenes in flight, with instructions on the technique of operation and warnings as to what will happen and must be done when the flight reaches its objective are intensely interesting and are punctuated with thrills. One hair-raiser is the repair in flight, in the spaces of high altitude, of the crippled wing of a bomber by one of the men who climbs out on the wing to quench a fire. Scenes are shown taken from a plane in rapid flight as it sweeps over the European lowlands en route to Berlin which are like the old scenes taken from the front end of a locomotive or a roller coaster. All this footage was made, the picture credits tell us, in cooperation with the British Air Ministry and the RAF.

The performances by Greene, Miss Lehmann, Steward, Betty Stockfield, Sydney King and the English lads who had the pilot and fighter plane roles are all commendable. This will be the first time Richard Greene will be seen by many customers here since the actor went to England into active service early in the war.

Walter Forde directed, doing an extraordinary job of making the material both dramatic and pictorial. Picture was produced at Warners Teddington studios near London, from the screenplay by Brock Williams, Gordon Wellesley and Edward Dryhurst. Photography is exceptionally fine, especially the aerial stuff, and the sound job one of the best.

The Hard Way

sway of the older woman. Her stage career is built up, at a cost, but her buoyant, warm nature is beaten down and her impulsive but promising marriage to a young vaudevillian wrecked with suicide of the husband, in the elder sister's implacable drive to bring her stardom. The two performances, Miss Lupino's and Miss Leslie's, will hold women, at least, spellbound with their intensity.

Jack Carson packs his solid role as the young sister's partner and husband with moving sincerity and the legitimate deportment of the theatrical performer.

Dennis Morgan is the slick sophisticate and cynic, dance routine partner of Carson, who carries on a toying affair with Miss Lupino, recognizing her smart and calculating nature, and also her one slight weakness of vanity, until he is swept away by a genuine affection for the younger sister after Carson kills himself. Morgan gives his role an excellent treatment.

Gladys George has a fine scene as a has-been trouper who muffs her chance to come back in a rehearsal, pathetically played. Faye Emerson makes an impression as a breezy waitress who succumbs to Morgan's glib comeon. Leona Maricle is vivid in the role of a playwright whom Miss Lupino seeks to use. Nestor Paiva socks a short role as a tough theatrical agent. Paul Cavanagh contributes an intelligently presented producer. Standout among minor characters is Lou Lubin, a stagehand. Roman Bohnen is Lupino's discarded husband.

Vincent Sherman's direction conserves and points up with expert dramatic sense and craftsmanship the tragic fascination in the Lupino character's play of ambition upon people within her reach. The narrative is carefully held together with an economy of footage and well-timed pace, and the required mood never broken.

Considerable effective use of music is made in the natural stage atmosphere, words and songs being appropriately cleffed by M. K. Jerome and Jack Scholl to help keynote the dramatic cycle.

Screenplay, creditable from every angle, is by Daniel Fuchs and Peter Viertel. Dance numbers were staged and directed by LeRoy Prinz. Camera work by James Wong Howe is of the best.

Standing up to excellent calibre of the production set and maintained by Jerry Wald are the technical contributions by Max Parker, art director; special effects by William Van Enger, set decorations by Walter F. Tilford, music by H. Roemheld, musical direction by Leo F. Forbstein.

You Can't Escape Forever

emotional misfits, under derision of his fellows of the news room who have all smarted under like indignity when assigned to this task. As his editorial status ebbs and rises so his romantic progress with the lone girl reporter on the sheet is reflected. One of his lovelorn clients finally provides him with a clue to the identity of the murderers of several persons who knew too much about the gang's operations. The black market racket is smashed and love breaks through the script writer's delaying antagonism devices to triumphant ending.

George Brent is most successful in making both the comedy and the melodramatic phases of his role jibe as the editor. Brenda Marshall is the gal who gets herself on the spot by an 'eye witness' report of an 'execution' from which the condemned man is reprieved at the last moment. She and Brent do the usual professional snarling which is one of the most ancient of screen clinches when newspaper folk are presented.

Edward Ciannelli is the boss racketeer, giving the part his customary deadly intensity. Gene Lockhart is Cianelli's right bower, managing the Lonely Hearts Club behind which the black market is operated. Paul Harvey enacts the publisher. Edith Barrett is a seeress. Roscoe Karns is the press photographer whose assignment it is to provide comedy of the 'relief' brand. George Meeker is the gangster mouthpiece. Joseph Downing is the condemned killer. These all carry off their parts ably.

Screen play by Fred Niblo, Jr., and Hector Chevigny, from a story basis by Roy Chanslor, is considerably involved and overcrowded. Several times when the script faces difficulties of extrication for endangered characters, mass battles are tossed in to provide confusion. Anyway, its intent is to emphasize the comedy, rather than provide logic for the melodrama. Chase novelty carries the action through a mausoleum.

Jo Graham let the proceedings slip into overlength, but otherwise directed skillfully to get the maximum of entertainment from the permission of the screen play. Technical contributions are all satisfactory.

SHOWDOWN ON SOEG WAGE DISPUTE GOES TO TOPS

McLeod, Scollard advised the Guilders he had received a communication from New York and that 'in order to expedite the matter,' he would agree to arbitrate those three points. Business Representative Glenn Pratt and Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, promptly walked out on the meeting. It is understood the union shop was previously okayed by E. J. Mannix, head of the Producers labor relations committee, and that the exchange representatives themselves approved the classifications, leaving only the question of minimum wages to be arbitrated.

Because of the holidays, it was thought possible the entire matter might not be settled until tomorrow, with indications that the matter would be concluded then and date set for actual start of the arbitration. Judge B. Ray Schauer of the District Court of Appeals has been selected as the third arbiter, with Pat Scollard of Paramount representing the exchanges, and Business Representative Glenn Pratt acting as arbiter for the SOEG.

It is understood SOEG moved deadline back in order to contact company heads in the east.

'Sextricity' Not Haysian So Colony Ads Fade

Colony theatre on Hollywood blvd. has withdrawn its newspaper ads plugging run of Monogram's 'Lure of the Islands' following protests by the Hays office at sex implications in the copy. Hays office lodged squawk Friday when theatre's ads started breaking, acclaiming Margie Hart, burlesque queen who stars in the film, as the 'Yankee Nude'll Dandy' and the 'Strip Pippin'.

Hays office went to Monogram with its protest, but studio was clear on matter since none of the catchlines or other copy material appeared in its press books, ad campaign being handled entirely by the Colony. Theatre stated Saturday its campaign was based on a similar one used by the Marion theatre in Pittsburgh for the run of the picture and which reportedly paid off well at the box office. Picture closes at the house tomorrow, and was reported building Saturday after opening slow last Thursday.

In addition to ad campaign, centered in the Hollywood Citizen-News with copy on both the theatrical page and the sports page, theatre distributed handbills in parked autos acclaiming Miss Hart as 'sexsational, charged with sextricity' in her 'first screen sizzler'.

represents a reduction of six films from the original estimate of 52 domestic pictures 20th had planned and is considered sufficient to absorb the cut in raw stock under the War Production Board order issued in Washington last week. Also with this amount of product it will not be necessary to cut down on the number of prints per picture to be released.

Goetz further pointed out it would not be necessary to cut running time on film arbitrarily since the elimination of six pictures from the production schedule would leave sufficient footage to allow normal running time based on individual production needs.

Rep Meets Draft Ingress By Naming Women to Vacated Posts

Republic will make a practice of filling departmental positions vacated by men drafted or enlisting in the armed services, with women. Studio expects to avoid need of further replacements that might be necessary if new men were brought in to handle work and later faced service call themselves.

Indicative of feminine slant studio is placing on positions, although an exception to departmental policy, is the appointment of Hortense Stahl, femme attorney, to head the studio's legal department, replacing Marshall Ross, who resigned four weeks ago.

In line with policy is setting of Ada Klock as an assistant in the production department, replacing Joe Hiatt, who has joined the Coast Guard, and Peggy McCauley to replace Earl Waltman in the mailroom. Waltman has gone into the Army.

Canteen Will Handle 3,000 Nightly

With enlisted men constantly dropping in to look the place over, preparations for opening night, Oct. 3, at the Hollywood Canteen, Sunset and Cahuenga, went forward apace over the weekend, with arrangements being made to accommodate 3,000 service men nightly. The spacious dance floor will provide ample room for 1,000 couples, with many of Hollywood's glamour girls present to serve as partners.

The snack bar and soft drink lounge can accommodate 400 guests at a time and, with the addition of top bands and the best floor shows available the Canteen expects to be playing to capacity from the start.

List of officers was made public yesterday and include:

Bette Davis, president; Carroll Hollister, John Garfield and J. K. Wallace, vice-presidents; Al Ybarra, treasurer; Jean Lewis, secretary.

Satevepost Seeking Welles For Airshow

SHOWDOWN TODAY TO CRACK AFM BAN ON CANNED MUSIC

Washington, Sept. 20.—Final discussion whether legislation is necessary to crack the James C. Petrillo boycott on recordings occurs Monday when Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold relates to the Senate sub-committee of the Justice Department efforts and plans to induce or force American Federation of Musicians to revoke the ban against canned music. Arnold testifies before the group, headed by Senator D. Worth Clark, which already has been urged by Federal Communications Commission chairman, James L. Fly, to take action, and has heard Elmer Davis, director of Office of War Information, declare that the continued curse on platters threatens to undermine troop morale and hamper war propaganda.

Admission that FCC lacks authority to overcome refusal to make discs for broadcasters was given the Senate probers last Friday by Fly, who ominously reported the cessation of platter-cutting threatens to dry up the source of 40% of the radio industry's program material.

'We would have to exercise considerable ingenuity to get in here and alleviate the situation, and I don't see how we can deal with this very effectively,' Fly told the solons after giving reams of figures showing 76% of all broadcast time involves music, and club-waving by AFM is nothing new. Fly was skeptical about the possibility that the Justice Department injunction drive will avert a threatened shut-off of vital program material and agreed with Chairman Clark that legislative action offers the only hope of breaking the deadlock. He observed 'the mills of the gods gring slowly' when asked to comment on invocation of the anti-trust statutes.

Commenting on the statistical picture of the industry's reliance on platters, Fly told the senators 'if the ban on recordings is continued it will not be very long before the radio industry is very seriously affected. You can't shut off the program source on over 40% of all radio time without striking at the heart of the broadcasting industry.' He added, 'the great bulk of non-network stations face the drying up of the source of most of their program material' and advised that 'many people in this country face the very real prospect of losing the only satisfactory night time service which they now have and of being altogether deprived of daytime service.'

'If it were not for music, radio broadcasting as we know it could not exist,' Fly gloomed. 'Without music it is doubtful whether this country could support more than a handful of stations. This presents a really serious problem which not only must be solved but must be solved quickly.'

Returns from 796 American stations describing operations for a sample week last April revealed that 68,296 out of 89,954 hours included music to varying degrees. Recordings and transcriptions were used for 52,498 hours of the music time.

Detailed analyses, Fly said, show the individual who will suffer most from the Petrillo policy is 'the fellow who isn't on a national network, whose power is 500 watts or less, who is located in a city which has a population of less than 50,000, whose total annual time sales are less than $75,000, and who after he pays his expenses has either lost money or has a net income for the year of less than $5,000 and still has to pay his taxes.'

It was further disclosed that the industry devotes 48.2% of operating time to programs which are entirely music, and rest of the total hours are programs on which music is an 'integral' element. Of the total 42.6% of time is devoted to recorded music while 55.9% of all musical time involved is devoted to canned tunes.

The tables showed 14% of time allotted to recordings is for commercial programs which are entirely music, and 28.6% is for similar sustainings. In addition, 32,470 spots with music were aired during the sample week involving $209,514 in revenue or $263 per station. Most comprehensive study ever made of the industry's dependence on music disclosed that transcriptions are 62.4% of all recorded tunes. Live talent was used on 26,024 hours during the sample week while high fidelity discs were used for 38,119 hours and phonograph records 14,380 hours.

To show how much more painful the burden will be for small stations, Fly gave the following figures: All but five out of 298 non-network plants use recordings more than 20% of the time they aired music. Canned tunes represented the program material for more than 50% of the time devoted to music by 230 non-web transmitters.

California has five stations using recorded music 80 to 100% on all musical time, and netting less than $5,000 annually there are 167 such plants in the nation, with Texas leading.

Stars Launch New War Bond Tours In California

With the idea of giving impetus to the industry-led September War bond effort, two groups of personalities are being lined up by the Hollywood Victory Committee to launch 'Stars Over America' tours today and tomorrow in Southern California.

The first contingent, comprising Binnie Barnes, John Carradine, Margaret Lindsay, Ann Miller, Dennis O'Keefe, Marjorie Reynolds, Jean Rogers and Don Wilson, will open today at Bakersfield and will headline rallies on successive days at Paso Robles, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Redondo.

The second group, headed by Eddie Cantor and Mary Astor and Dale Evans will open tomorrow in Redlands and on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will visit San Bernardino, Riverside and Huntington Park.

Three 'Stars Over America' principals planed out during the week end: Constance Bennett to join Walter Abel today at Des Moines, Ia., and then join Charles Laughton for a five-day tour opening Saturday in Massachusetts; Vera Zorina, to join Laraine Day and Andy Devine today at Nashville, Tenn., for a 10-day tour, and William Gargan to join Paulette Goddard at Cumberland, Me., for a 10-day tour.

Arrivals during the week end were Bette Davis and Irene Dunne, both of whom returned by train, the former from Oklahoma City and the latter from Pittsburgh.

Dorothy Lamour, according to wires to the Victory Committee, doubled the advance bond sales in Bangor, Me., more than tripled it at Augusta, doubled the expectancy at Concord, N. H. During a stopover between Augusta and Bangor, she sold $76,000 in bonds from the train's rear platform.

Fred Astaire, on a tour with Ilona Massey and Hugh Herbert, rated a $10,000 bond for each dance around at Columbus, O., ballroom. The trio headlined a rally at the State House, and at Dayton 400 citizens bought a minimum of $1,000 in bonds as the admission price to a luncheon.

Gene Tierney and Chester Morris accounted for more than $200,000 in bonds at a rally in Indiana University's auditorium. They also headlined record breaking rallies at Danville, Ill., and Terre Haute, Ind.

Janet Gaynor, Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce and Robert Stack drew $123,720 in bonds at a quickly arranged street rally in Wichita Falls, Texas, in addition to a regularly scheduled rally at the city auditorium which went over a million.

The peace feeler stretched out by Finland's minister to Washington, Mr. Prokope, is a very interesting move on the diplomatic field which can easily be interpreted as foreshadowing impending moves on the battlefronts.

Hitler obviously is in great pain over his inability to overcome the defense of Stalingrad. He is ogling for some easy success to pacify his own people. Sweden may be the object he has in mind, and the Finnish move is to be a smoke screen.

If Stalingrad can hold out until winter sets in, Russia might score the greatest victory in history—the beginning of Hitler's end.

GEORGE SANDERS winged out for New York yesterday prepartory to carrying on his current war with 20th-Fox from the eastern front for roles more to his liking than those he has been drawing. Sanders waited until the critical returns were in on his performance in 'The Moon and Sixpence' before putting teeth in his ultimatum to his contract employers. Now, accompanied by his agent he plans to carry his case to the filmgoers via the newspapers hoping to accomplish the results he seeks. Sanders has a year and a half to go on his current ticket at 20th and is now under suspension. Figures that if he can win his point and snag a few roles as solo star as in 'Sixpence' he will be able to enhance his value to place himself in the really top bracket by the time his present tie expires, and, as he puts it, 'if I'm gambling my career I couldn't do it at a better time when stars are scarce.'

He answered to effect that he had asked the captain for leave to attend the showing, but ensuing discourse landed him in the brig for five days, and ended by requesting not to send any further preview invitations as it appeared the officer might be slighted again.

C. also is getting the first whack at San Diego first run house, opening 'Prisoner of Japan' at Lou Metzger's Tower theatre Oct. 7.

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

On yonder screen the leading man is famed for saving life.
Brunettes and blondes he saves alike in fierce dramatic strife.
The farmer boys are working now in factories and mills
And so the actor goes to work
amid the fruitful hills.
In overalls he does his stuff in un-dramatic scenes
And rescues the imperiled crops of cabbages and beans.
It isn't very thrilling when he saves
an onion's life,
And still it is a noble deed amid the worldwide strife.

In the days of rugged cliffhangers, the hero or heroine was left hanging on a High Sierra or looking an angry tiger in the eye until the next chapter. Now the producers are tinkering with a noble experiment—introducing more tender romance into their film serials to charm the femmes who are growing more numerous, proportionately, in the audiences these warlike days. In keeping with the new idea comes a suggestion from an anonymous correspondent who writes: 'How about leaving Boy and Girl hanging together in a rapturous clinch until the next Saturday? In time the Cliffhanger would be known as the Clinchhanger.'

20th Retires Morrison After 15 Yrs. Service With Full Pay

Denver, Sept. 21.—R. J. Morrison, for 15 years manager of the 20th-Fox exchange here, has been retired on full pay as a result of Spyros Skouras' policy of rewarding faithful long-time employes. He is succeeded by Clare Hake, formerly Fox representative in New Zealand, Australia and Japan. Herman Wobber, western district manager, of San Francisco, was here to make the change.

While manager of the 20th-Fox exchange Morrison has collected over $15,000 in bonuses, which he has shared with his office personnel. As chairman of the War Activities Committee of the Rocky Mountain region Morrison will devote much of his time to war work, and will remain in Denver.

With Bing Back, Kraft Puts Accent On Songs

There will be more music and less gab on Kraft Music Hall when Bing Crosby returns to the program Oct. 1 after his midyear sabbatical. New formula will allow for eight or 10 songs on every broadcast, with dialog severely reduced. Charioteers, Negro quartet, have been signed as regulars on the cheese show.

LEGIT OPENING

he has and Kaufman's direction is tops.

Play has three authors, Ruth Goetz, her husband, August O. Goetz, and Arthur Sheekman, who try to give it the gun from the opening curtain but miss fire until the third act. Here plot and actors combine for the first time to produce real entertainment. However, the preceding act is noticeably weak; it is good in atmosphere but dialog and story fail to maintain audience attention.

The play, incidentally, is based on an autobiography written by the late Philip Goodman, who was Mrs. Goetz's father.

Reynolds Evans, in a role that was first intended for Groucho Marx, then Ed Wynn and Sam Jaffe, is fine as the windbag actor who conducts a ham Gay Nineties dramatic school, fools everyone, including his patient wife, and finally saves the school by threatening blackmail. Dorothy Peterson makes a good impression in the leading feminine role but has little to do.

Florence Sundstrom is impressive as a fast 'number' who helps Evans save the school. There's a flock of juveniles in the cast, but they seem as embarrassed as the audience. Yet the play has possibilities, although needing, perforce, plenty of fixing before New York debut. Parenthetically, the sets by Howard Bay and the Paul du Pont costumes are colorful.

Others in the cast are William J. Kelly, Ethel Wilson, Henry Antrim, King Calder, Frank Otto, Tommy Lewis, Peggy Conway and Joe Verdi. (This is the show that was originally written for Groucho Marx, but who rejected it after reading the script.)

ANTI-INFLATION BILL MAY VOID HWD. TERM-TICKET PAY TILTS

ficial version of the administration scheme for keeping prices down was unveiled. No concerted move has been started so far, with the local Hays office waiting for advice and instructions from Hollywood and New York.

A few wirepullers for individual companies have started, however, trying to convince Congress the present phraseology will work great hardship on dozens of Hollywood people who pay huge sums in taxes and would pay much more if they get their scheduled boosts. The legislation specifies that President Roosevelt has the power to adjust wages 'to the extent that he finds necessary to aid in the effective prosecution of the war'. Such language, though, does not appear to be broad enough to nullify threatened freezing of talent compensation. Furthermore, the proposed law defines wages and salaries as including 'additional compensation on an annual or other basis paid to employes by their employers for personal services, excluding insurance and pension benefits in a reasonable amount, to be determined by the President'.

Only clause that industry watchers feel might permit the scheduled boosts for holders of long-term contracts is the last one in the bill. This says, 'For the purpose of determining wages or salaries for any period prior to Sept. 16, 1942, such additional compensation shall be taken into account only in cases where it has been customarily paid by employers to their employes.'

How this would affect future contracts with escalator features is problematical. Fight to get the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to exempt film people, other than those paid on an hourly scale, from the wage-limitation provision is being led by Senator Sheridan Downey.

Though unsuccessful after an hour-long conference with committee colleagues behind closed doors, Downey still hopes to get the Senate to stipulate that the exemption affecting additional compensation 'customarily paid' will be construed to mean that studios can go on negotiating contracts as usual.

Conditional assurance was given Downey during executive sessions of the committee that the wage stabilization board which the President plans to set up, but which is not required under the legislation, will give consideration to the unusual hiring methods of the film industry. Nothing in the bill guarantees, however, that the talent groups will get the pay boosts specified in their pacts. Downey hopes to wangle a definite commitment before the measure passes so that the law will not be administered in such a way as to nullify existing agreements.

Executives would be hit as hard as writers, lensers, directors and players. The bill does not distinguish between hourly wage-earners and persons paid by the week, month, or year. It is debatable how the legislation would work in the case of officials who have contracts giving them slices of company profits.

Nobody can say whether the proposed law would prohibit brass-hats from dragging down bonuses bigger than those received for 1941 or 1942.

Possible amendment being handed around, but still not formally offered for consideration, would exempt contracts heretofore signed. While this would benefit individuals now working under agreements with escalator clauses, it obviously would be of no use to those negotiating for new pacts.

Another suggestion is that legislation should exempt certain lines of business or specify that the wage-freeze does not apply to classes of workers who customarily are hired through contracts with automatic raise features.

UA Sales Staff Going To Chi Convention

OWI Radio Execs Head In for Ad Council on United Radio Front

Advance contingent of Office of War Information radio officials, headed by Nat Wolff and Douglas Meservey, deputy chiefs to W. B. Lewis, director in Washington, plane in this morning to set up the two-day session here Thursday and Friday to be attended by Lewis. Also flying in is Seymour Morris, chief of OWI allocation division. Lewis is due in tomorrow night.

First meeting is scheduled for Thursday morning at NBC, with Lewis and his aides confabbing with Advertising Council of Hollywood agencies. Noon session will be held at Brittingham's eatery with executives of the Advertising Council. Friday morning's session with writers and producers of radio shows will be held at CBS, with the night session given over to the piece de resistance of the conclave, the dinner session with Kay Kyser's 'Committee of 25' at the Beverly Wilshire hotel.

Meetings are for the purpose of setting up a united radio front to serve the government in the war effort, an increasing need having arisen to maintain personal contact with the armed, labor and home fronts through messages of information and inspiration. All radio headliners, writers and producers already have pledged their aid to the movement and the meetings here with Lewis are to organize a campaign to carry out the government's morale campaign.

ARNOLD DRAWS LEGAL LINES FOR COURT FIGHT ON PETRILLO

the tactics of James C. Petrillo, was told the musicians are one of the most patriotic groups in the nation and the union will join any Government move to bring a quick Supreme Court decision on the legality of the ban on platters.

Admission that the final judicial umpires have approved jurisdictional strikes was made by Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold in recitation of the legal questions behind the Government's request for temporary injunction against the tooters.

Arnold told the Senate body, headed by Senator D. Worth Clark of Idaho, that although his ideas have been nullified in several particulars, he still feels the Government can prevent unions from carrying out 'make work' campaigns that injure innocent bystanders.

Several important questions remain to be settled about unions' latitude under the anti-trust laws, the trust buster noted, and will be put squarely before the judiciary in an attempt to force the musicians to erase their ban on canned tunes.

Supreme Court's opinion in the 'Hutcheson Case', involving carpenters in the Anheuser-Busch brewery in St. Louis, is the chief hurdle to be topped in the Petrillo fight, Arnold indicated.

Subsequent rulings of the final bench emphasize the jurists' views that the Government is strictly limited in attempts to tell the unions off. So far, however, the Supreme Court has not ruled definitely and squarely on the right of unions to force hiring of 'unnecessary labor', Arnold said, or whether they can compel employers 'to maintain obsolete or inefficient methods to refuse to introduce new mechanical improvements.'

Other questions are whether a union can use force to ruin an independent business which has introduced labor-saving devices, or can penalize non-professional groups which volunteer their services.

'All of these questions of law are raised by the activities of the American Federation of Musicians in the pending suit in Chicago,' Arnold explained. 'In the first place, the Musicians Union is attempting to coerce its immediate employers to use unnecessary and useless labor; in the second place, the union is attempting to destroy independent businesses which do not employ musicians, such as small independent radio stations, small restaurants and hotels, juke box operators and manufacturers of photograph records and electrical transcriptions, because they have adopted new inventions for the rendition of music. In the third place, the union is attempting to prevent the rendition over the air of voluntary music performances by organizations such as high school orchestras.

'This goes a step beyond the closed shop, because it is a claim that a union has a right to stop performances of volunteers and amateurs who are not seeking employment from anyone.'

Arnold further told the solons: 'There must be some demands which labor cannot make as a term and condition of employment,' and said the Supreme Court never has ruled clearly how far unions can stretch their anti-trust law exemption.

'Certainly a labor union could not interfere with political freedom by making it a term or condition of employment that its employer attack a political organization. We regard a handicap on industrial progress by preventing the use of improved mechanical equipment in an industry as an attack upon industrial freedom. We regard an attack upon amateur performances or music as an attack on individual freedom of expression,' the trust-buster philosophised.

Union willingness to join in expediting a final answer to the delicate questions was announced by Joseph L. Padway, head attorney for the union, after the Musicians had been indirectly charged with bringing about a split-up of an army band that had played gratis for public events. The Musicians' spokesman said he will go into court whenever Arnold gives the word and they will do everything possible to get the earliest possible Supreme Court ruling.

Bond Quotas Hinge on Pledge Fulfillment

New York, Sept. 21. — Motion picture industry Bond campaign chiefs are confident the Treasury quota of $775,000,000 will be reached if all pledges reported in cities visited by film stars during September are turned into paid-up Bond purchases. If pledges are unfulfilled official quota may miss by 50 to 70 million dollars. Treasury report on Sept. 19 was disappointing at $13,745,000, bringing total to $443,789,000.

Several last-ditch fight plans are under way for the last nine days of the drive. One proposal is that theatres set aside total receipts for one day for the purchase of War Bonds.

Free Ducats for Bond Buyers in All U. S. Theatres Today

Special Bond rallies, with uniformed units, bands and other embellishments, have been arranged for 'Free Movie Day' today when exhibitors all over the country will give theatre tickets in exchange for Bond purchases in the 'Salute To Our Heroes' month War Bond drive.

Hollywood Victory Committee reports total of 44 film personalities have volunteered and accepted assignments in the bond campaign. Practically all headliners of the final week's 'Stars Over America' tours are already in the field, having appeared at rallies in more than 240 cities and towns, a total that will reach better than 300 by Sept. 30. In addition, tours have visited numerous war plants and other factories for subscriptions to the Treasury Department's Payroll Savings plan.

Mary Astor, Eddie Cantor and Dale Evans, screen and radio singer, leave this morning for a four-day tour in Redlands, San Bernardino, Riverside and Huntington Park. Norman Manning accompanies as tour manager. Several film names remain to be assigned rally dates in southern California.

The Ritz Brothers open tomorrow at Lincoln, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Ia., with other spots on their itinerary being Hastings and Grand Island, Neb.; Casper, Wyo., and Denver, Colo.

Expected in this week from tours in various states are more than a dozen names. First arrivals will be Gene Tierney and Chester Morris, training in today. Greer Garson arrives tomorrow after resting in Washington, D. C., since completing her tour in Virginia. Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey, Hugh Herbert and Tour Manager Fred Stanley are expected Thursday. Same day Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce and Robert Stack are due. Richard Arlen, Ralph Bellamy, Peggy Diggins, Dorothy Cordray and Paul Price, tour manager, are due Friday.

Augusta, Ga., and Wilmington, N. C., each reported $500,000 totals for yesterday's sales at luncheons headlined by Jane Wyman and John Payne. Houston, Tex., accounted for $545,100 with Janet Gaynor, Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce and Robert Stack heading the rally. Miss Gaynor auctioned a Chinese bracelet for $8,000 and one of Rathbone's pipes for $4,100.

Gene Tierney and Chester Morris, along with citizens of Paducah, Ky., were soaked by rain during a parade, the weather forcing cancellation of an outdoor rally. Ralph Bellamy, Richard Arlen, Peggy Diggins and Dorothy Cordray sold $108,000 in Bonds during a short session at Mitchell, S. D., a record figure in view of the town's monthly quota of $77,000. Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey and Hugh Herbert appeared at Schoonover Park, Lima, O., rally, but final figures were not available.

Play Review

LAFFIN' THRU

Backing up for a new start—with revised scale and policy—Harry Abbott, Jr., has installed 'Laffin' Thru' at the Hollywood Music Box to replace the short-lived 'Swing Shift Revels.'

New tariff carries $1.10 tops, with two shows nightly at 7:30 and 9:30. Dual performances and new starting times for Los Angeles and Hollywood theatre goers who want to see flesh entertainment may take a little time for the Abbott presentation of modernized burlesque to catch on, but there's sufficient talent around to be smoothed out in a few days to give the customers their money's worth.

Show is built around a series of blackouts and sketches that are typically burlesque, with a line of 12 dancers and six show girls filling in for interludes, together with specialty turns that are adequate to round out necessary requirements for a girlie burlesque layout.

Fifi d'Orsay has the selected next-to-close spot for delivery of songs and come-hither monolog. She has a showmanship delivery, but presentation must be revised, and dialog clipped, for better pacing for a Hollywood audience. Her flirtations attention to the service man in the front rows—in the first show last night—was directed at a sailor, and when she came down the steps to give him a parting embrace, Jack Tar really went to town spontaneously.

Joe De Rita, carryover from the 'Revels' show is spotlighted in the comedy end with three sketches—all reminiscent of burlesque when the Columbia wheel was at its peak. His best turn, near closing, is the Crazy House routine. Lee Trent makes a suitable straight man for De Rita. Another comic of burlesque schooling has been added in the person of Eddie Kaplin, who has Dick Dana. Kaplan is rather broad in his tossing around of words and meanings—but the suggestive angles catch nominal amount of reaction from the customers.

Specialty turns include Paul Gordon, trick cyclist, who opened after dance ensemble, and vocal by Marie Caruso; Irene Thomas, tap dancer with dead pan and wink; the Chocolateers—three negro boys who work hard and fast in knockabout dancing; Phyliss Durrell, and Mimi Reed.

Girl chorus shows better training than first line in 'Revels,' and are useful and eye filling in the slick costuming provided. Their routines and executions are way above standard for a burlesque presentation.

With the 900-seat house scaled at reasonable tariff and two shows nightly, producer Harry Abbott, Jr., has a chance to generate momentum for his show idea to attract the coin. Looks like present layout is down to point in keeping with the potentialities of the box office for the policy.

Mamoulian In NY Talks UA-Lyons Connection

New York, Sept. 21.—Rouben Mamoulian arrived here over the weekend to continue discussions with United Artists and Arthur Lyons on setting up a product deal whereby former would be the producing director of two units making one film each annually. Four writers, plus songwriters, latter likely from the Lyons fold which includes Jerome Kern and Cole Porter, would form part of the units. Details are still being negotiated and Lyons is due here in a few days. Pact being talked is understood to be a four-year deal.

United Nations Consuls To Help Sell Bonds

Meeting will be held tonight between Frank Peterson, special consultant on the industry's $1,000,000,000 September War Bond Drive, and consuls of 19 United Nations to settle final details of parade of foreign nationals on Sunday afternoon to hypo the drive. Parade starts at 1 p. m. going from City Hall to Pershing Square, with participants carrying placards ballying amounts of War Bonds each national group has purchased. Costumed paraders will wind up with a rally and sale in the Square.

Wounded Sailors Stir Emotion, Sell Bonds

One-night local theatre tour of 27 injured sailors on Friday to promote War Bond sales was met with response of $118,000. Wounded tars appealed from stages of two different theatres each, including 14 Los Angeles first runs, reaction of public being such in some theatres as to cause emotional break-downs. Boys were brought in from Corona hospital and dined and feted by exhibs and department stores, appearing at latter in the late afternoons.

Henry Jaffe, counsel for American Federation of Radio Artists, is here from New York working on modification of the new contract between AFRA and the Artists Managers Guild with local officers of both organizations. Old contract was negotiated in 1940 for a period of three years.

Walter Wanger Home

Producer Walter Wanger trained in over the weekend from trip through east and south which took him to Washington, New York, Dallas and College Station, Tex. Trip was in interests of lining up official cooperation for production of his next at Universal, 'We've Never Been Licked,' with Texas A & M college as background.

A Heart To Heart Talk with SHOWMEN!

LET'S face the public. What kind of showmanship will have the most lasting effect in this period?

PRESIDENT and Prime Minister mince no words. They tell us this is a people's war. The people are on the march. They know what they are fighting for, and hate what they're fighting against.

SURELY, with this win-the-war determination, people don't want cream puff showmanship or sophisticated glitter.

JUDGING from reliable surveys, the people want FACTS . . . they want them warm and sincere . . . they want them straight.

WEASLING and wangling are out. People want TRUTH. They want it from Washington, from the fighting Command and from Production Chiefs. They want it in their daily lives. And it's safe to assume they want it from the people of the industry.

WITH such a background for action, isn't this the opportune time for those with courage to meet the people's spirit with people's showmanship?

PROPAGANDA, which deeply stirs by truth, has the added power to take something good and make it BIG—to lift something big to GREATNESS.

THE imagination and skill of this organization's man power is doing just this with personalities, productions, institutions, and policies.

SAFEGUARDING and building prestige, now and tomorrow, is the daily performance of this office, tested under fire in these challenging times.

TO win the heart, head and hand of the people, let us take your story to the people with people's showmanship.

D. O. S. WANTS TO SELL OUT

Nabes Doing Healthier Biz as Patrons Ease Up on Free Spending

Subsequent run and neighborhood houses are enjoying somewhat improved business over past few weeks after a lean period. Brighter outlook is due to improved economic conditions in their localities. Operators advance many reasons for the busier box offices, but feel for most part that folks who have been enjoying more money than they had been used to are settling back to more normal habits.

Some of the more intrepid exhibs took to raising their prices to obtain product clearances earlier than before. It was a gamble to up admishes without any gauge on whether or not folks would appreciate the effort to get films quicker, and it worked for many. This is true of some of the better theatres, but situation has not changed noticeably for run-of-mine shooting galleries which continue to hang on the ropes. Only a few of the latter have seen better days of late.

Quite a few indie situations have changed hands over past few months, but that situation is changing too. Those who were ready to put their properties on the block are not so afraid of the wolf any more and are waiting for the overflow to reach them and help a little now that newly prosperous are filtering back.

Government announcements on tire and gasoline rationing are believed to have helped make the former short-bankrolled public pull in their lace-curtain living some. No sense getting too accustomed to the higher plane and then having to drop back suddenly, is the public reaction, managers say. Fear of the boom not being as long-lived as was first expected is moving some others to more economies. Others, it's felt, are taking the government literally on saving announcements and just salting it away. Further, announcement that even defense workers will be drafted along with the married and fathers is believed contributing to the general result.

J. H. Stevens Par Branch Manager In Chicago

J. H. Stevens has been named branch manager of Paramount's Chicago exchange succeeding J. J. Donohue who recently advanced to district manager headquartering in Dallas. Stevens was formerly branch manager in Indianapolis and will be succeeded there by Al Taylor, moving over from the Omaha exchange. Jesse McBride, St. Louis salesman, succeeds Taylor as Omaha branch manager.

Sue Carol Busy Gal

Peter Lawford goes into the cast of 'The Immortal Sergeant' at 20th-Fox and Edward McCabe joins 'Crash Dive' at the same studio. Both deals agented by Sue Carol, who is continuing the operation of her agency, contrary to reports she was retiring from business. Agency has also set Matt Willis for a role in 'Salute to the Marines' at Metro.

OFFERS WARES AT $2,500,000, EXCEPT 'GWTW' AND 'REBECCA'

David O. Selznick, who has been in New York for more than a month, is reported to have offered his entire set-up with the exception of residue in 'Gone With the Wind' and 'Rebecca' to four of the major companies for $2,500,000, with no deal accruing to date. According to the report, Selznick has been greatly interested in going into war activities, either a civil or military post, and wants to clean up his film interests and holdings prior to assuming Government tasks for the duration. In the deal which he is said to have tendered to Metro, Paramount, 20th-Fox and RKO, Selznick is said to have offered to sell the contracts of his directors and players, who include Alfred Hitchcock, Robert Stevenson (whom he recently put under exclusive contract, taking over an RKO commitment), Vivien Leigh, Joan Fontaine, Ingrid Bergman, Dorothy McGuire, Valerie Hobson, K. T. Stevens and Alan Marshall; also all his story properties, including 'Jane Eyre', and the residue in all of his films that have been released with the exception of 'Rebecca' and 'Wind'.

Selznick a year ago obtained a member-ownership in United Artists and signed a contract to produce films for that organization to release exclusively over a 10-year period.

At various times he has announced going into production both on 'Jane Eyre' and 'Keys of the Kingdom', but these two properties were included in the package offer Selznick has made to the four major companies.

Selznick stock players and directors, while he was inactive since making 'Gone With the Wind', proved a lucrative investment for him, as they were loaned out very consistently at a healthy profit by him over a period of several years.

Selznick is reported due here this week from New York.

Taplinger's Job Security

Loretta Young and Walter Abel are making special trailer at Columbia under direction of Richard Wallace aimed at encouraging enlistment of workers on farming projects. Trailer is being made at request of the Manpower Commission to help overcome shortage of harvesters in the California area.

Jean Bosquet To Vultee

Jean Bosquest takes over as publicity director for Vultee next week, replacing Cliff Lewis who goes into the Army Oct. 2. Bosquet is now at 20th-Fox as a unit man, having recently joined studio after several years at Paramount.

Annabella, Sutton Tops

Annabella and John Sutton have been set to top cast for 'Project 47,' which Andre Daven will handle as his first production at 20th-Fox. John Brahm will direct, starting Sept. 28.

along lines suggested by Lowell Mellett. Exhibs have been holding back on contracts for this series, no unanimity of viewpoint on rentals having been reached following deal made on the Coast with Mellett by the producers.

Mellett shorts, distinct from government reels, are not provided free to exhibitors, all profits above production and print costs being donated to war charities, as agreed by the majors.

Frisco Golden Gate, Par Hike Tariff

San Francisco, Sept. 21.—The Golden Gate and the Paramount hiked their prices on permanent basis, leading the way for other tariff boosts to come among the first runs here. Golden Gate installed 75c top price, replacing 65c, after the temporary higher tariff pulled record grosses for such shows as 'Pride of the Yankees' on screen and Harry James and Kay Kyser on the stage.

Paramount, a Fox-West Coast house, shot up from 55c to 65c top in anticipation of crowds for Paramount's 'Wake Island.' F-WC is planning to boost Fox Theatre to 65c mark when strategic picture arrives. Blumenfeld Circuit understood to be mulling higher fee for Orpheum and United Artists theatres.

Soldier's Ditty Wins

New York, Sept. 21. — Morris Orenstein, Army private stationed at Mitchell Field, L. I., is winner of the WOR-Yankee Doodle Dandy War Song Contest. His entry, 'We're in to Win' will be published by Remick Music Publishing Co. and was selected from more than 300 entries.

Walter Slezak To NY

Walter Slezak left for New York yesterday on personal business after completing his film debut in 'Once Upon a Honeymoon' at RKO. Actor returns to the studio after several weeks in the east to start a term contract with his first picture on the pact being 'This Land Is Mine.'

Harry Humber Retires

Harry Humber, manager of Film Row's Bank of America branch, forced to retire through illness and succeeded by H. W. Dwyer. Art Lawson assists new boss.

Edna Harris' Pic

Edna Harris, radio's 'Aircraft Annie,' has been set for a featured comedy part in Pete Smith's 'First Aid' at Metro.

Par to Screen 'Wake' Twice at Downtown Theatre Wed. Nite

Paramount will hold two screenings of 'Wake Island' at its Los Angeles theatre tomorrow night to accommodate anticipated general admission ticket buyers attending premiere ceremonies at the downtown house. Shows will be at 7 and 9 o'clock. Hollywood Paramount's part in the dual preem for benefit of the United States Marine Corps Fund is on a reserved seat basis with a $2.20 top and only one screening.

In addition to the dual premiere locally, Bond preems of the picture are being held in various West Coast cities this week. The Fox Arlington, Santa Barbara, opens film Thursday with Bonds replacing tickets. In the San Francisco territory, Bond premieres will be staged at the Paramount, San Francisco; Paramount, Oakland; Senator, Sacramento, all tomorrow; California, San Jose; California, Stockton, and the Wilson, Fresno, all on Friday. Previous openings have been staged in Tucson, Portland and Seattle.

Kane Richmond Cleans Up Training Films

Kane Richmond is back from Fort Riley, Kans., where he spent 10 weeks at the cavalry post making training films for exclusive showing to enlistees for instruction purposes. Actor returned for stretch of picture work after appearing in various instructional films for the War Department during the past year.

PAR-SELZNICK DEAL HOT

HWD. CZAR TALK POPS UP AGAIN

Washington, Sept. 22.—While there is no specific confirmation of the appointment of a picture production czar and industry rep in the capital, naming of such a personality has been hinted before. In the event of such an appointment there is a strong possibility that the person named would act in an advisory capacity on proposals affecting materials, talent and manpower.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

For an impressive slant on the war situation, have another look at this communique:

Moscow, Sept. 23. — Germans capture two streets in Stalingrad but Soviet defenders force Nazis to retreat mile and a half in another important sector.

Compare this with Hitler's past record: Austria, 36 hours; Czechoslovakia, three days; Poland, three weeks; Low Countries, 25 days.

Stalingrad resistance stiffening after 30 days. Net result of last FIVE days: TWO streets. And that only after losses exceeding the combined total for three or four countries.

Question: Who'll be able to take it longer?

(Whispered tip: Bet on the Soviets!)

There was a time when actors sped along the boulevard
And trod the gas with heavy foot and trod it good and hard.
In peaceful days of long ago, before the world was bleeding,
It was a mark of derring-do to pay a fine for speeding.
Today the actor crawls along, conserving tires and power,
While gentlewomen pass him by at 40 miles an hour.

Flying Tigers

(Melodrama)

Republic production. Stars John Wayne, John Carroll, Anna Lee, with Paul Kelly, Gordon Jones, Mae Clarke, Addison Richards, Edmund MacDonald, Bill Shirley, Tom Neal, Malcolm 'Bud' McTaggart, David Bruce, Chester Gan, James Dodd, Gregg Barton, John James. Director, David Miller. Associate producer, Edmund Grainger. Screenplay, Kenneth Gamet, Barry Trivers. Original story, Kenneth Gamet. Photography, Jack Marta. Film editor, Ernest Nims. Art director, Russell Kimball. Set decorations, Otto Siegel. Musical director, Walter Scharf. Musical score, Victor Young. Special effects, Howard Lydecker. Wardrobe, Adele Palmer. Previewed at the Fox Boulevard, Los Angeles, Sept. 22, 1942. Running time: 100 MINS.

In 'Flying Tigers' Republic has its best picture, and one that certainly justifies its rating as a 'Special' and the percentage terms on which it will be sold outside the usual studio product. The title alone spells ticket sales, but coupled with it are daring air battle sequences that match any heretofore seen on the screen. Each is a thrill that gives ample return for a ticket purchase. Not a pretty picture that compromises with the grim forces of destruction and death in battle, but rather a spectacular account of volunteer flier heroics in China's battle against Japan that will strike hard at audience imagination.

While highly commercialized to realize the ultimate return in a war-conscious film market, 'Flying Tigers' doesn't lose sight of tribute to those men who fought for ideals, adventure, profit or what have you, to aid an unconquerable China. Its story has all kinds of fliers, some with a cause, giving their lives in China skies, and others out for the bounty money paid for good Japs. The adventures the script puts them through are not, according to the film's footnote, based on actual events in the careers of the American Volunteer Group, but undoubtedly the AVG had many such experiences during its two-year fight.

Picture's basic plot is a time-honored one, but forms an expert framework for the do-or-die spirit invested in the characters Scripters Kenneth Gamet and Barry Trivers, working from Gamet's original, have injected into the story. There is the braggart flier, interested in the cash prize for bagging Japs; the strong squadron leader who holds his group together and keeps it flying; the boy seeking rehabilitation as a pilot, and the beautiful nurse.

John Wayne matches his best performance with his work as the squadron leader, fighting desperately to give China aid against tough odds. All the color and flash of the braggart assignment comes to life in the hands of John Carroll, easily his top job. Anna Lee, the comely nurse caring for pilots and injured Chinese alike, contrives to make her scenes stand out in the masculine-dominated footage. Paul Kelly gives one of his fine performances as an older flier in the group, finally washed out by Jap bullets. Edmund MacDonald comes through with class work as the pilot trying to live down a bad past. Gordon Jones, Addison Richards, Bill Shirley, Tom Neal, Malcolm 'Bud' McTaggart, David Bruce, Chester Gan, James Dodd, Gregg Barton, John James and others uncredited make the best of their assignments. Mae Clarke, not seen recently, has a first-rate dramatic moment.

It is in David Miller's direction that real impact of the picture has been brought forth. With vivid reality he socks over the air sequences and puts high drama into every scene to earn a most valuable directorial credit. Edmund Grainger's production guidance realizes on every showmanly phase to give Republic a box office picture. This was Grainger's last assignment prior to entering the armed forces. The photographic excellence of Jack Marta's camera work gives the picture splendid pictorial presentation and the special effects by Howard Lydecker carry a wallop. Victor Young contributed another of his musically fine scores, directed by Walter Scharf, and the other credits back up the 'special' rating.

Correction

In Radio Network Plugs printed in Monday's issue of Daily Variety, the correct listing of the first three songs failed to mention 'Serenade In Blue' as being number two on the list.

The correct listing is 'I Got a Gal In Kalamazoo', published by Bregman, Vocco and Conn, as the leader, with 49 performances; 'Serenade In Blue', published by the same concern, 40 performances, and 'Wonder When Baby's', published by Crawford, with 37 performances, with Gregman, Vocco and Conn, Inc., having the two top songs of the week on the networks. It is unusual for two songs from the same filmusical to run 1-2 on network plugs, as these Gordon-Warren tunes in 'Orchestra Wives' did.

Govt. Execs to Huddle With Show Biz Talent

New York, Sept. 22.—Another huddle between Tin Pan Alley elements and government execs concerned with the problem of making the public pulse beat faster is in the offing and tentatively set for next week. W. B. Lewis, radio head for Office of War Information, will probably get together with publishers, writers, band leaders, producers for legit, radio and pictures as soon as details of government desires have been put on paper.

20th Blending Yarns

20th-Fox will incorporate 'In Time to Come,' play about Woodrow Wilson purchased last week, into the script of 'Goodbye Dolly Gray,' which Lamar Trotti is writing and will produce. Picture covers a period from the San Juan Hill charge to the outbreak of the present war with emphasis on the Wilsonian era. Studio paid a reported $25,000 for the Howard Koch-John Huston 'In Time to Come.'

Film Execs Join Huddle At NY U Round Table

New York, Sept. 22.—Film industry executives have been called for round table conference with faculty of the Motion Picture Department of New York University Thursday to discuss training of students in line with wartime needs of show business. Robert Gessner, former film writer, is chairman of the faculty. Possibility of feeding picture industry with new college-trained men and women to replace those called into service will probably be discussed.

Ratoff's 'Tropicana'

'Tropicana' will be the next Gregory Ratoff-Harry Goetz production for Columbia. South American story is an original by Edward Eliscu and Henry Meyers. Ratoff and Goetz head for New York Friday on talent hunt for names and novelty acts to be used in the picture.

First Lieut. Lasky Now

Jesse Lasky, Jr., has been commissioned first lieutenant and promoted to officer in charge of the scenario department of the Army Signal Corps unit at Astoria.

MRS. HANNAH DENNIS, oldest film cutter in point of service in Hollywood, yesterday celebrated her 25th year at Universal studio. She has to her credit 1875 picture cutting jobs and is now head negative snipper at the valley studio. Martin Murphy, studio production manager, who hired Mrs. Dennis when she was a bride, presented her with a ruby-studded, engraved wrist watch on behalf of the company. Mrs. Dennis went to work at U shortly after her marriage to help pay off debt on the new home, thinking she'd be there only temporarily. . . . Federal Quota Appears Certain in Industry War Bond Drive

New York, Sept. 22.—Current indications are that Sept. 30 will see the film-industry sponsored War Bond drive going over the top, insofar as the Treasury Department's official $775,000,000 quota is concerned.

However, it is unlikely that barring a sudden sales spurt, the intake will top the industry's $1,000,000,000 goal. September income tax payments, wide prominence to new and higher tax rates being set in Washington, and unseasonable time of the year for re-investment of large funds have militated against the billion-dollar sale.

In financial circles as well as in the Treasury Department, where a close tab is kept on the flow of the nation's liquid cash, it has long been known that the odds were against reaching the billion dollar bond sales this month.

Washington, Sept. 22. — War Bond premiere of Metro's 'War Against Mrs. Hadley' has already hit total of $1,150,000 in seat sales. Edward Arnold has sold bonds to top officials of the British Embassy since his arrival to plug the premiere.

National Theatres Corp. this week announced purchase of $700,000 in War Bonds to swell the kitty of the industry's $1,000,000,000 September War Bond drive. George Topper, Fox-West Coast Treasurer, bought $400,000 worth from this end, and the remaining $300,000 will be picked up by other divisions of NT, including Evergreen circuit in Pacific northwest; Wisconsin Theatres; Intermountain circuit and Fox Midwest.

By Sept. 12, film theatres in Southern California had sold a total of $1,000,000 in War Bonds, according to figures released yesterday by the Theatre Committee of the Treasury War Savings Staff.

Free Admish For Bond Buy Fails To Click

New York, Sept. 22.—Free theatre admissions as bait to stimulate War Bond purchases failed to have much effect today, according to reports reaching New York from around the country. In many situations, theatre managers asked patrons who looked as though they had price of a bond to purchase the latter for free admission. Even such direct solicitation was not overly successful, and one theatre on Broadway sold only one $18.75 bond during the forenoon.

PAR, SELZNICK DEAL HOT; STUDIO TO BOLSTER 'A' PIX

his desire to enter military service or other war activity for the duration, although he disclaims such intentions. Paramount, on the other hand, is particularly interested in acquiring the Selznick star, directorial and story properties, in addition to other assets figured valuable in its plans for concentrating upon top A productions from now on. Contracts held by Selznick include those with Directors Alfred Hitchcock and Robert Stevenson, and Stars Joan Fontaine, Ingrid Bergman, Vivien Leigh, Dorothy McGuire, Valerie Hobson, K. T. Stevens and Alan Marshall, besides the story properties, 'Jane Eyre', 'Keys of the Kingdom' and 'Claudia'.

Paramount at this time is in a particularly fine cash position through income of current releases of 'Holiday Inn' and 'Wake Island', in addition to coin coming back from group of pictures being sold to United Artists. Liquid cash allows Paramount to deal with Selznick on a cash basis, without any time payments on the deal.

Conferences have been under way here since Monday, when Y. Frank Freeman and Jack Karp trained in from the Coast to sit in on negotiations with Stanton Griffis and other local Paramount execs. Barney Balaban was away yesterday and today, but sits in tomorrow. It is possible that agreement on the deal from the Paramount side may be worked out in time for proposition to go on the agenda of the Paramount board of directors meeting Thursday for consideration and final approval.

Dissolution of Selznick International Pictures, Inc., concluded last month, found the two SIP top assets, 'Gone' and 'Rebecca', cut up among original SIP stockholders in proportion to their interest in the corporation, except for D. O. S. who sold his shares in these two films to Jock Whitney. UA continues to release 'Rebecca', while Metro continues to handle 'Gone' which now is being released in England for an anticipated additional $1,500,000 revenue through British bookings. Profits on this duo go to Myron Selznick, Jock Whitney, Sonny Whitney, John F. Wharton, Mrs. Flora Miller, Mrs. Barbara Henry, Mrs. Joan Payson and possibly Norma Shearer. Balance of the SIP picture assets are split equally between David Selznick and Jock Whitney. David Selznick assumed personal management contracts which SIP had with Joan Fontaine, Vivien Leigh, Ingrid Bergman, Alan Marshall, Alfred Hitchcock and Robert Stevenson. Reportedly the Whitney clan pulled out of SIP to set financial affairs in order, anticipating the present worldwide mess.

Scribbling

Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano scripting 'Anchors Aweigh' at Metro, forthcoming Jack Cummings musical. On same lot Joseph Schrank is screenplaying 'Very Warm For May', an Arthur Freed production.

W. R. Burnett has been assigned at Warners to polish script of 'Background To Danger', which goes into production Monday as a Jerry Wald production.

Milton Holmes joins the Paramount writing staff to prepare screen treatment of his original story, 'Salty O'Rourke'.

F. Hugh Herbert is writing an untitled Jane Withers vehicle for John H. Auer production at Republic.

Frederick Kohner is doing screenplay on 'Tahiti Honey', Republic musical comedy.

Clifton Directs Barry

Elmer Clifton is assigned to direct the Don 'Red' Barry western, 'The Sundown Kid,' at Republic. This will be first production on which Eddie White handles production reins. Clifton deal set by Michael Breen of Bert Levey office.

Oboler 'Lights Out' Now a CBS Commercial

Arch Oboler's dramatic series, 'Lights Out,' which started six years ago as an 'experimental drama' on NBC, attains full commercial status on CBS beginning Oct. 6 for Ironized yeast. Oboler continues to write the ariplays and also directs. It marks Oboler's first commercial air venture since declaration of war, during which time he has written and/or directed around 50 radio dramas in the interest of the war effort.

Industry Bond Drive In Home Stretch

Coming down the homestretch in the industry's September War Bond drive, Hollywood Victory Committee has assigned 14 film personalities for rallies in California communities. Districts include Glendale, Santa Monica, Redlands, San Bernardino, Riverside, Huntington Park, San Jose, Oakland.

Film stars continue to generate War Bond sales in various sections of the country.

Ginger Rogers, making her first appearance in the drive, was received enthusiastically at Corpus Christi, Texas, where bond returns from a luncheon and evening rally were above a half million dollars and still being counted.

Another beginner was Constance Bennett, who, with Walter Abel, headlined activities at Des Moines, Ia. One event alone, a luncheon, topped $200,000 in bond sales. Lt. William Reed, Iowa born Flying Tiger who downed 11 Jap Zeroes, was a fellow guest of honor.

Paulette Goddard and William Gargan, in Baltimore, Md., for their second day, neared a million dollars in bond sales with returns incomplete. Two thousand workers who heard them at the Fairchild Airplane plant in Hagerstown, Md., and an additional 500 employees of the Pangborn plant, signed 10 per cent pledges under the payroll savings plan.

Crossley Field, home of the Cincinnati Reds, held a record breaking crowd of 50,000 persons when Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey and Hugh Herbert appeared. With better than a million and one-quarter dollars in bond sales reported.

Greaza Said to Favor Absorption of AGVA By Actors Equity

New York, Sept. 22.—Walter Greaza, after 18 weeks as administrative chairman of American Guild of Variety Artists, will make a full report tomorrow to Associated Actors and Artistes of America with possible recommendations for Equity to absorb the variety performers union. Confidential report will give a complete financial picture of AGVA and call for 'drastic revamp' of present AGVA setup. Greaza sees no hope of AGVA being able to continue as is, especially in relation to its finances.

It won't be the first time Equity takeover of variety actors has been suggested. Biggest stumbling block in the past has been voting privileges of vaude actors in Equity since variety performers outnumber legiters by tremendous extent. If given full voting privileges, Equity would soon be another vaude rather than legit union.

soldiers are billeted there for weekend. A fair amount of laughs are provided by this curious kind of war comedy which brings Frank Mandel back to Broadway as a manager. And some good actors are mixed with the so-so players. Uta Hagen is attractive in name part, but Jose Ferrer is not as effective as could be desired.

Taylor Holmes is good as husband of woman who causes most of the trouble. Collette Lyons is one of the best of the uniformed volunteers, and Margaret Matzenauer, formerly of the Metropolitan, is amusing as an operatic cook.

Red Barber, Mel Allen To Announce Series

Red Barber and Mel Allen will call the plays in the world series beginning next Wednesday in either St. Louis or Brooklyn. Bill Corum officiates between innings. Barber is an old hand at giving out with play-by-plays, while Allen, an Alabaman, is a newcomer to Coast ball fans. Series sponsored by Gillette airs exclusively over the Mutual-Don Lee network, outletting here on KHJ. If St. Louis wins, games from there will start at 11:15 our time, while New York or Brooklyn tilts begin an hour earlier.

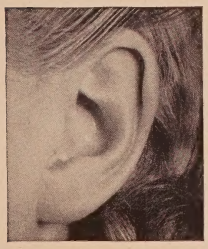
The Bridge that Joined Sight and Sound!



Helping you to please the ears of the world—through finer sound recording and reproduction—has been Western Electric's privilege for 16 years.

Not over, but through a light valve bridge, sound is put on film. As the tiny ribbons vibrate open and shut at amazing speed, they let through rays of light which record the range of sound—from whisper to thunderclap. Throughout the history of sound pictures, a bridge using this principle has proved a practical, economical method of recording sound on film. A basic contribution by Western Electric.

New Radio Propaganda Plan Mapped for OWI at Chi Sesh

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Radio section, Office of War Information, met with Chicago Advisory and Facilities Committees and mapped out plan for new radio propaganda to increase enlistments, obtain greater amounts of salvage and sell more bonds through direct radio appeals. Kay Kyser flew in from the Coast to strongly urge telling the public the unvarnished truth stressing dangers facing America and demanding more help.

Other speakers were W. B. Lewis, OWI radio chief; Deputies Douglas Meservey and Nat Wolff, and chief of radio allocations, Seymour Morris. Reps of all leading agencies and networks attended the meeting. Next session will be held in Hollywood Thursday and Friday.

UA-Par Deal Nears Inking Stage

picked up for release, with UA holding option to lift films as wanted.

Amount involved is figured to hit total of better than $5,000,000, although the exact computation is impossible since the deal involves six additional Hopalong westerns to be made by Harry Sherman, which will not be produced until next year. Y. Frank Freeman and Jack Karp, latter studio legal counsel, arrived from the Coast Monday to discuss details of the proposition with Ed Raftery, UA prexy, and others. With Par board of directors meeting Thursday, it is expected that UA-Par film deal will be in shape to be offered for ratification. Raftery also will present the entire proposition to the UA board of directors here for okay of takeover of the 11 pictures already completed, in addition to 11 more Harry Sherman Hopalongs and western specials to be turned out next year and financed by Paramount.

After completion of the pictures involved in the UA-Par deal, it is expected that Sherman will be tied in as a UA producer, getting financing through UA connections direct.

Earl Carroll Handed That Old Chicago Runaround

Earl Carroll was 'forced' out of town by 'muscle' methods. He had sold the concessions for $40,000 cash, set name bands, standard acts and chorines and was rolling smoothly when the razzle dazzle arrived.

Carroll has told everyone in the Loop of his plans and local talent burned that an outsider was allowed to step into such a lavish setup. With Chicago famous for the number of licenses required to run a cafe, the local bistro politicos got the rap in fast.

Anyway, at a regular meeting of the full executive board of the hotel, Carroll and the contract were out in the cold.

WAKE ISLAND

Paramount's masterful screening of "Wake Island" is an unforgettable experience. I believe that every American should see it—for here is recorded the magnificence of men who have died for America. Paramount's simple story, without ever actually saying so, says in every line that besides such sacrifice, any sacrifice we may be called upon to make is small by comparison.

Kate Smith

Kate Smith's praise of "Wake Island" is but one of hundreds of tributes from trade and newspaper critics and the public: here are typical excerpts—

Unanimou

THE PICTURE OF THE WAR!

"This is THE picture of the war; a film that will make your spine bristle, your blood boil and your brain and heart clamor for super all-out action against the enemy. Stacks up as solid entertainment throughout, mingling the drama and suspense of battle with moments of lightness and the human touch. It is not a film you will easily forget. Nor should you. You MUST see it."

—EDITH WERNER, N. Y. Daily Mirror

TERRIFYING BUT INSPIRING!

"Terrifying but inspiring; it catches for this new and terrible war what 'All Quiet on the Western Front' finally caught for World War I—but we had to wait until 1930 for that picture."

—W. WARD MARSH, Cleveland Plain-Dealer

COME AWAY PROUD!

"You come away stunned and awed; to the depths of your soul you are shaken. You are proud, terribly proud. This is the one picture of this war every American should see."

—Cue Magazine

OVERWHELMING POWER!

"It's high time a Hollywood motion picture stirred up this kind of spirit. There hasn't been anything like it since 'Mrs. Miniver.' And 'Wake Island' has even more physical sock than that great film. It has the overwhelming power of the real thing—the grime, smoke, flame, shock and debris of actual battle. It will ignite the fighting spirit of true Americans."

—HERBERT COHN, Brooklyn Eagle

CHOKED WITH PRIDE!

"An unforgettable experience. You come away inspired, choked up with pride, burning to do more and still more to keep faith with these men who fought and died for you and your country. It is a picture which will leave you emotionally limp, and, at the same time, enormously strengthened. Taut and pulls no punches; the cast carries out its assignments splendidly."

—ROSE PELSWICK, N. Y. Journal-American

ACTORS ASTOUNDINGLY GOOD!

"You may wonder how long it has been since you were so stirred by a motion picture. You will step out on the sidewalk filled with fierce pride. The actors are astoundingly good; no matter what they had done in other pictures, all of them apparently were inspired by the privilege of reliving this great story."

—ALTON COOK, N. Y. World-Telegram

UNFORGETTABLE!

"This is a picture that every American should see; an unforgettable dramatization presented with an authentic realism; one of Hollywood's real contributions to victory."

—Movie and Radio Guide

DARE TO FORGET!

"The sharp, stinging reality of a newspaper headline; 'Wake Island' is Hollywood's finest love story to date—it tells of men whose love of country led them to death and glory on a barren coral rock. Dare to forget 'Wake Island'!"

—Modern Screen

BEST OF THE WAR!

"A picture for everyone to see, as no American can view this heroic action without bursting with pride. Fine performances from the entire cast. The best and most exciting picture of the war."

—KATE CAMERON, N. Y. Daily News

BE SURE YOU PLAY IT!

"A splendid achievement. Glory to the producers, cast and craftsmen who made 'Wake Island' real by sticking to the facts. Play it ahead of your opposition if possible. Play it second, third or fourth if necessary, but play it!"

—The Independent

COMPLETELY SUCCESSFUL!

"Hollywood's first intelligent, honest and completely successful attempt to dramatize the deeds of an American force on a fighting front."

—Newsweek

DRAMATIC AND HEROIC!

"Paramount has produced not only a story of dramatic and heroic action but one which may well be a near factual account of an outstanding episode in modern warfare. Direction makes the most of the cumulative drama."

—Motion Picture Daily

WILL THRILL THE NATION!

"A stirring epic which will thrill the nation; ranks among the top attractions currently . . . doesn't pull punches, but will pull irresistibly at the boxoffice!"

—Film Daily

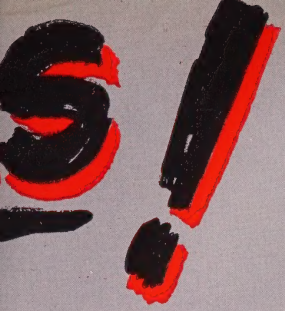
"WAKE ISLAND" WILL BE EXHIBITED



Paramount knew "Wake Island" was World War II's greatest picture. Weeks ago exhibitors learned it—after trade screenings and sneak previews brought unanimous praise. Now—with capacity crowds thrilling to "Wake Island" daily at the New York Rivoli—the WORLD knows! Without exception, every critic—newspaper, trade and magazine—has said "THIS IS IT!" Here are excerpts—

LETS THE FACTS SPEAK!

"A force found seldom in this year's war melodramas. This is dramatic material, and Paramount has handled it skillfully. Direction is excellent; emphasizes the heroic, avoids the maudlin. The actors keep to the picture's mood of restraint, letting the facts speak for themselves."

—EILEEN CREELMAN, N. Y. Sun

WALLOP-PACKED!

"A highly emotional, wallop-packed reproduction of a brilliant chapter in the history of this war; there ought to be money, and lots of it, in this one!"

—Boxoffice

"Here is a whale of a money picture. Not alone because the title was hot even when the picture was started and is many times as hot today. But principally because it is a darned good picture—from all the accepted desires of entertainment and because of its sincere, vigorous, and factual answer to a question in every American heart today—'What are our boys going through'?" —Boxoffice Digest

WARMTH, HUMOR, PRIDE!

"Dramatizes the story of Wake Island not tragically but heroically, not grimly but with warmth and humor and pride in the magnificent sacrifice Wake's defenders made. It is a dramatic memorial to a fine, human band of fighting men. Packed with appealing incident, warm characterization and wild excitement and suspense."

—JOHN T. McMANUS, PM Newspaper

TAUT WITH ACTION!

"Here is a film which should surely bring a surge of pride to every patriot's breast. And here is a film for which its makers deserve a sincere salute. Credit John Farrow for giving the film much brutal suspense; for drawing the story taut with screaming action and intervals of breathless quiet."

—BOSLEY CROWTHER, N. Y. Times

TREMENDOUS IMPACT!

"All the dramatic intensity inherent in the heroic defense of the little Pacific outpost has been caught; carries a tremendous impact, which should be reflected in boxoffice terms straight across the country."

—Motion Picture Herald

STIRRING INSPIRATION!

"The most dramatic, the most gripping, the most thrilling and exciting story to come out of this war; a stirring inspiration to every American who sees it! Should do outstanding business!" —Showmen's Trade Review

LEAVES ONE EXALTED!

"At once a rousing battle cry and a first-rate motion picture; leaves one numb, then angry and finally exalted. As a war picture it is in a class by itself; within its stirring and tragic frame Paramount has wrought an extremely human and even humorous story of leathernecks at peace and war. Gripping . . . challenging . . . overpowering dramatic tension; as close to perfect as one could possibly ask. A memorable motion picture."

—HOWARD BARNES, N. Y. Herald Tribune

A SMASHING SUCCESS!

"A true blue tribute to Marine valor; a splendid tribute to a splendid achievement. Nothing else we have had has brought the war of fox-hole fighting so conclusively home. Should be a smashing success."

—Hollywood Reporter

VIVID AND EXPLOSIVE!

"Makes onlookers proud to be Americans; as a vivid and explosive display of modern warfare it hits the peak of cinematic presentation; will blast top grosses in all bookings."

—Daily Variety

MAGNIFICENT SPIRIT!

"Magnificently catches the spirit of the brave defenders; one of the most striking pictures of the year. It will do dandy business everywhere. Paramount has made a picture that is equal in its way to the exploit itself!"

—Variety

THIS IS NOT A MOVIE!

"As far as any spectator is concerned, this is not a movie set. It is really that dot in the pacific where a few hundred Marines held off the Japanese until ammunition ran out."

—ARCHER WINSTEN, N. Y. Post

A MAGNIFICENT SAGA!

"Will undoubtedly be one of the big grossers of the year. Just about the most saleable picture to come out of Hollywood in a long time. It is a magnificent saga of American heroism."

PICTURES YOU OUGHT TO SEE

A Japanese landing party splashes through the surf in Wake Island, a chronicle of the magnificent bravery of our marines.

BY HOWARD BARNES

READING TIME • 4 MINUTES 20 SECONDS

WAKE ISLAND (for heroism and honesty)

A GREAT chapter in American history has prompted a great war picture. Wake Island celebrates the heroic defense of that Pacific outpost by a handful of marines last December. It does so with savage honesty. It is the record of a defeat, but it is a triumphant testament to the courage and resourcefulness that will smash the Axis to smithereens.

There's nothing escapist about the film. The climax is as grimly tragic and terrible as it actually was on Wake. The chances are that it will leave you cold and angry as well as emotionally shattered. But it will also leave you with a more profound faith in the things we stand for and the lengths we will go to fight for them.

Wake Island is a great motion picture, in addition to being the best war film I've yet seen. The acting is genuinely inspired. The story is staccato, unembroidered, and to the point. And the direction of John Farrow has smashing power.

The story should be so well known by every one that it scarcely requires a synopsis. While some of the individual characters may have been imagined, the plot runs straight with the military record. It opens with a major of marines galvanizing 385 men into the most dauntless force that ever faced overwhelming odds. It ends with that laconic and unforgettable last message from Wake. "The enemy has landed in force, but the result is still in doubt."

Straight human drama is highlighted throughout the proceedings to give them a tremendous range of entertainment appeal. There are richly comic passages describing a present-day Quirt and Flagg. There is a chapter of epic personal heroism recounting the sinking of a Jap cruiser by one of the outmanned Wake flyers. And the section in which the marines work a modern variation of Bunker Hill strategy in a brilliant repulse of the invaders is certain to leave you shaken from sheer suspense. There is no romance and only a fleeting shot of the aviator's wife, whose death at Pearl Harbor he avenges so stirringly.

Honesty and simplicity have paid huge dividends in the treatment. The acting is utterly convincing. Brian Donlevy is perfect in the part of the hard-bitten, understanding artillery major Robert Preston and William Bendix play the Quirt-Flagg episodes superbly, and Macdonald Carey is first-rate as the aviator.

The staging of Farrow marks that comparatively new director for big things in films. He has combined documentary reporting with human drama in a consummate blend. Nor has he forgotten to stigmatize the yellow rats of the Rising Sun, whether it's in a passage showing Kurusu passing through Wake Island on his hypocritical mission to Washington or a shot of Jap pilots machine-gunning an aviator after he has bailed out.

Wake Island is a magnificent tribute to the marines who fought way beyond human endurance on an unsheltered strip of sand in the Pacific. It is a magnificent film any way you look at it.

Report Indies Mulling Information Bureau On Rental Prices

Detroit, Sept. 22.—Following first session here for Allied States Exhibitors 'Caravan' to discuss mutual film-buying problems, reliable report was circulated that move is afoot to establish a nationwide exchange of detailed information on rentals and percentages being asked by distributors. Initial session was closed during buying discussions brought on by threat of increased prices, but leaking information on the indie info 'exchange' was reported reliable.

Meeting was attended by more than 100 independents, including the heads of Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, and new Michigan Independent Exhibitors Association.

War Bond Report

New York, Sept. 22.—War Bond sales totaled $56,266,000 for Sept. 21—largest single day's total so far—bringing total for the month to $500,054,000, with nine days to go.

Film industry drive is now $46,000,000 below the $26,000,000 daily quota required to hit the Treasury Department quota of $750,000,000. Average daily sales must be netted up above $30,000,000 to reach objective, but indications are that official figure will be attained by the deadline Sept. 30.

Hepburn Going East

Katharine Hepburn leaves for New York Saturday to start rehearsals on 'Without Love,' Philip Barry play in which she stars.

TREASURY GRABS $16,348,492 AMUSEMENT TAXES FOR JULY

Washington, Sept. 22.—Yield from amusement taxes dipped downward again during August, but the haul nonetheless was the second biggest amount pocketed by Uncle Sam this year. A moderate seasonal slump in admissions was shown, with the result that all other imposts, except the tithe on recordings, produced smaller sums than in the preceding month. However, the Treasury Department garnered $16,348,492 on the strength of July business in all lines subject to special levies.

The dip in total yield from all amusements under the July figure was approximately $2,000,000. But, due to the stiffer levies in effect since last October, ticket buyers have contributed $2,941,409 more in eight months this year—toward paying Federal government expenses—than the Treasury got in 12 months last year from the box office bite.

Admissions tax brought in $12,436,303 to the Federal coffers during August, which was $48,578 under the receipts from this source in July, but dropped $5,106,020 faster than for the same month last year.

The take from taxes on radios and phonographs, musical instruments, slot machines and bowling alleys was down from the July level, with the Treasury report indicating a sharp drop in the sale of receivers and record players. Yield from the gouge on music boxes was $813,349, a drop of $435,656 in one month. And, despite the higher rate, the yield was only $60,660 ahead of August, 1941.

The impost on platters brought in $140,899, a gain of $123,356 over the same month of the previous year. But this was far short of the year's high mark. Meanwhile, musical instruments produced $187,032 for August, a dip of $79,915 below July; coin-operated devices turned up $2,417,744, off $997,273; bowling alleys yielded $353,165, down $531,553.

Insult To Injury

Tops in irony goes to Local 47 of Musicians' Union where a frowned-on juke box is one of the features of the union's canteen and lounge. Members thought it amusing that spot should have one of the union-damned machines but used it plenty until this week when free button was substituted for customary nickel slot requiring payment for music.

Anne Nichols Bringing Abie West to Be a Drene Airer Star

New York, Sept. 22. — Anne Nichols, whose 'Abie's Irish Rose' resumed Saturday night airings on NBC for Drene Shampoo, intends moving the program to the Coast this fall or winter to make a picture version of the yarn.

No picture contract has been signed yet but many overtures have been made and authoress intends accepting one or producing on her own. With the idea of using as many as possible from her radio cast, Miss Nichols has recast two name parts with visually suitable actors.

Dick Coogan and Mercedes McCambridge have replaced Sydney Smith and Betty Winkler as Abie and Rose, respectively.

Bob Hope Doubles Back To Play the Aleutians

Seattle, Sept. 22.—Bob Hope will return to Alaska tomorrow to play the Aleutian bases, a stand he missed on last weeks' visit to the north. Frances Langford and Jerry Colonna will accompany him, the trio returning for next Tuesday's broadcast from Bremerton navy yard. Reports from those accompanying Hope on his trip last week are that response to the show by the lads in the armed forces was terrific and that they are avid for entertainment and highly appreciative of the efforts of performers who come to Alaska.

War Hit Biz Men Seek Exhib Connections

New York, Sept. 22.—As a result of the casualties in civilian goods trade, due to the effect of the war, sundry business personalities are trying to buy into the film exhibition field. Big losers in regular trades are operators in new and used cars, household appliances, heating, plumbing, etc.

Most of them are trying to buy into indie and circuit operations via liberal financial offers. The retail rajahs feel that pictures, despite possible eventual restrictions, will be among the last affected industries in war time.

Full-Dress Senatorial Quiz Demanded on Petrillo Disc Ban

Washington, Sept. 22.—Recommendations that the Senate be urged to order a full-fledged probe of American Federation of Musicians ban on recordings and amateur talent broadcasts will be made to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee and probably endorsed for action by the upper house of Congress. Chairman Burton K. Wheeler said the full committee will hear the report from the sub-committee headed by Senator D. Worth Clark about the necessity for considering legislation to end the sit-down strike and predicted the Senate will grant authority and cash for a compresenhive study of the knotty legal problem, the effect of the boycott on radio and other means of entertainment and the AFM contention it is the victim of technological unemployment.

Senator Clark, author of the probe proposal, says he will ask $5,000 to finance the study and believes action will be taken as soon as the price control bill is out of the way.

APPROACH of Local 47 reps to Marco Wolf, director of Paramount theatre, for re-establishment of stage show and band policy has met with cold shoulder from Wolf. Latter is very willing, he says, to start with shows again but not under union conditions of paying for standby musicians when house would use an imported band. Theatre is willing to absorb men by using few each week to augment standard ten in proposed house crew but refuses to go for paying off idle musicians while using non-local bands for 'name' value. Business is much better this year, states Wolf, who doesn't snoot possibility that shows might also improve business. House net has been better but that's due to generally improved business, he figures, and not because shows were dropped last December when union demanded the standby payoff. Theatres would certainly go for flesh, he adds, but only on previous basis.

BIGGEST indoor turnout for a commercial broadcast in the history of Coast radio will be on hand Sunday at Shrine Auditorium when Phil Spitalny and his all-femme orchestra sends out the 'Hour of Charm' musical over the NBC chain. An even 7,000 tickets were printed but likely that another 500 chairs will have to be brought in to accommodate the overflow. More than 15,000 requests for tickets to his Sunday broadcast were received at NBC following announcement on last week's airing of the point of origination. Extra seats will be reserved for men in uniform who put in their bid after the supply of ducats was exhausted. Spitalny and his musical distaffers originate the remaining pair of their four Coast broadcasts from the Naval Base at San Diego and the auditorium in Frisco, where another record turnout is assured.

BATTLING between one western district distribution head, and major circuit film buyers, has resulted in mutual peace agreement that has exchange's branch manager doing fronting for distributor now while district head remains away from conferences for most part. One of circuit's buyers, particularly tough with same distrib, has also left the picture, leaving more amiable confreres to conclude deals.

TWO speeches Brian Donlevy makes in the special trailer plugging Para- mount's 'Wake Island' are not included in the picture, having hit the cutting room floors during final editing on the picture. Effective pleas were written on the set by Director John Farrow during filming of the picture but couldn't be included in final footage. When Donlevy was called on for the special trailer, he suggested using two clips.

The Yanks Are Coming

(Comedy With Music)

Producers Releasing Corporation release of Lester Cutler production. Features Henry King and his orchestra, Mary Healy, Jackie Heller, Maxie Rosenbloom, William Roberts and Parkyarkarkus. Balance of cast: Dorothy Dare, Lynn Starr, Jane Novak, Charles Purcell, Forrest Taylor, David O'Brien and Lew Pollack. Director, Alexis Thurn-Taxis. Original story by Tony Stern, Lew Pollack and Edward Kaye. Adapted by Arthur St. Claire and Sherman Lowe. Added dialog, Edith Watkins. Photography, Marcel Le Picard. Assistant director, Don Yerk. Dialog director, Edith Watkins. Film editor, Fred Bain. Musical director, Lee Zahler. Associate producer, C. A. Beute. Music by Lew Pollack and Tony Stern. Lyrics by Herman Ruby and Sidney Claire. Previewed at studio, Sept. 23, 1942. Running time: 65 MINS.

Producer Lester Cutler makes a creditable showing with this little filmusical woven around an Army camp and efforts of the boys to line up a USO show for the service men. Although required to keep within modest budget requirements set up for PRC releases, picture contains several good songs and suitable musical and song talent for presentation to make it acceptable for support bookings in the secondary houses.

Story is little more than a framework on which to hang the musical portion of the footage. Henry King has his own band aggregation, with William Roberts, Mary Healy, Jackie Heller and Dorothy Dare as entertainers. Roberts joins the Army, picking up Maxie Rosenbloom in the camp for a buddy. Mary Healy, in love with Roberts, takes exception to latter's attention to socialite Lynn Starr for jealousy angle, but pitches in for reconciliation in the closing reels.

Roberts starts lining up program for a camp-talent USO show, and plan gets impetus when Heller quits King and joins up, followed by the entire band. King eventually enlists himself to get into the proceedings for the final rehearsal, but regular show is not staged for climax as the boys get marching orders.

Picture is liberally spotted with song and musical specialties. Four tunes divided between patriotic and romantic themes do much to lift the picture. Songs could easily have been used by any major studio in filmusicals, and were written by Lew Pollack in association with Tony Stern, Herman Ruby and Sidney Claire. Fifth song, inserted twice for renditions by Roberts and Miss Dare, 'Don't Fool Around With My Heart', was written by Kay Crothers and Dr. Arthur Garland.

Vocal talent, including Roberts, Miss Healy, Heller and Miss Dare, is meritorious, with each adequately putting over respective assignment. King and his band provide musical accompaniment for the songs, in addition to providing several dance numbers.

Cast is adequately set up with Roberts taking the lead as the singing buck private. Miss Healy is okay as the girl, with Maxie Rosenbloom and Parkyarkarkus slipping in for comedy relief. Jackie Heller gives a good performance as the band arranger and pianist, while King is self-conscious in front of the camera. Miss Dare, Miss Starr, Jane Novak, Forrest Taylor and Charles Purcell are in support. Songwriter Pollack is on for a brief introduction appearance in the USO hall and sticks around to provide piano accompaniment for one of his song compositions.

SELZNICK SEVERS UA TIES; STROMBERG MAY BUY IN

a meeting, possibly today, will confirm purchase of the Selznick list of directors, players and stories it is to take over with the residue of all films made by Selznick for Selznick-International with the exception of 'Rebecca', which he will hold, and 'Gone With the Wind', in which Jock Whitney and Myron Selznick hold an interest with Metro.

The price agreed upon for the Selznick holdings is $1,850,000.

With Selznick stepping out of the United Artists setup, $1,000,000 which United Artists had earmarked for him to use for his first two productions, 'Jane Eyre' and 'Keys of the Kingdom', reverts back to UA to use as a down payment on its purchase from Paramount of three features and the Sherman specials and Hopalong Cassidy series. The balance of around $4,500,000 which UA is to pay for these pictures will be paid to Paramount as they are turned over to UA for distribution, with coin, if necessary for that purpose, being supplied by the Bankers Trust Co. of New York.

With the sudden sale of his entire film interests, speculation has arisen here as to whether Selznick might go to Metro as a producer with his own unit, deal which has been open to him every since completion of 'Gone With the Wind', or into a government job for the duration.

He is bordering on the 40-year mark, and it is said he is desirous of going into the Army, but it is asserted his eyesight is poor, while on the other hand he has spoken to various government agencies in Washington during the past few weeks and might align himself with one for the duration.

No word as to Selznick's abandonment of production has reached his organization at the Culver City studio, with result the employes who he has there are a bit perturbed as to what the future holds for them, or for those employed in the New York office.

Understood that with Selznick relinquishing his member-ownership in United Artists there is a likelihood of Hunt Stromberg, who will produce a group of pictures for UA, acquiring it. Though reported at the time Selznick acquired his ownership in UA that he had paid a sum of around $1,000,000 for it, it is understood payments for this stock were to be made, as the deal that Alexander Korda had when he acquired his, from his share of UA dividends.

Taplinger Heads East For Col Conferences

Robert S. Taplinger yesterday headed for New York conferences with Columbia home office executives on plans for exploiting 'You Were Never Lovelier,' 'My Sister Eileen.' 'Something to Shout About' and 'Commandos Strike at Dawn.' Enroute he stops off in Washington to confer with William Hopkins, regional director of the War Manpower Commission, for whom Taplinger is handling public relations matters in connection with harvest labor in this section.

Work On UA Exchange

Work starts tomorrow on new headquarters for United Artists exchange at 1918 So. Vermont Ave., former site of Warners exchange. Space is now occupied by Theatre Committee of Treasury's War Savings Staff which has been using it, rent free, but must now vacate to allow for minor repairs and redecorating.

MG Exchange Managers Finish Product Deals

Metro branch exchange managers in western district have all returned to their respective posts after completing deals for their individual territories with Fox West Coast film buyers here, but George Hickey, western district manager, will continue to work on details.

Maury Saffle, of Seattle; L. C. Wingman, of San Francisco, and Lou Amacher, of Portland, returned to northern branches, leaving local territory only one to be worked in the west. Clayton Lynch, Los Angeles branch manager, started working on the local deal yesterday.

Bernard Estate Sues Small On 'Enemies'

New York, Sept. 23. — Edward Small Productions was named defendant in a Supreme Court suit filed today, seeking an accounting of the company's production, 'Friendly Enemies.' Action was brought by Betty Crosney as administratrix of the estate of Sam Bernard, and claims misappropriation of rights to one-half interest in the original play.

'It Ain't Hay' 2d Unit Going To Pleasanton

Universal will send a second unit on 'It Ain't Hay' to the Pleasanton Race Track in Alameda County next week to start collecting background footage for the Abbott and Costello comedy. Picture starts at the studio Monday under direction of Erle Kenton.

Brent Teaching Flyers

George Brent now is a Civilian Air Corps instructor at Oxnard, necessitating his replacement as the male star in Warners 'Old Acquaintance'. Studio has not yet selected new name for male spot.

Par's Two-way Preem Of 'Wake' Attracts Horde of Gawkers

Paramount last night ushered in first local showing of 'Wake Island' at Paramount Hollywood and downtown with military fanfare for the double-placed premiere. Two big Marine bands furnished music for the occasion, and Marine, Army and Navy officers joined civic officials and players in giving the shows special tone. Crowds lined the streets at both theatres during the evening.

Every dollar of the receipts from both premieres goes to the U. S. Marine Corps' fund, administered by Lieut. General Thomas Holcomb.

Highlight of the festivities at the Los Angeles Paramount was the swearing into service of 40 Marine recruits, under direction of Major James Schwerin. The San Diego Marine Base band of 40 pieces played at the downtown theatre. At the Hollywood premiere, the Second Marine Division band of 80 pieces played, and Corporal Arthur Wallace sang the National Anthem.

Picture opens today at both houses, playing at regular policy and prices.

Menjou Peddles 300G War Bonds At Frisco

San Francisco, Sept. 23.—War Bond auction put on here by Adolphe Menjou at a luncheon resulted in sale of $300,000 worth of bonds, marking fine warm-up to $3,000,000 sold at double theatre premiere of 'Wake Island.' Film bowed tonight at special bond premiere at Paramount, San Francisco, with $1,500,000 being wickered, and at Paramount, Oakland, where $1,400,000 in bonds was sold.

Lazarus Quits Warners, Joins Buchanan Agcy.

New York, Sept. 23.—Paul Lazarus, Jr., resigned from Warners today to join Buchanan advertising agency Oct. 5. STUDIO PROCESS WORK BIG WITH SHORT PERSONNEL staffs. Instead of enlarging personnel, most departments are battling to maintain present totals, which are being slashed through loss of experienced men to the armed services.

Vernon Walker, head of the RKO special effects department, and rated one of the tops around town, states he has lost six top men during the past six months, and he has been able to replace only four. In the same period, he points out, process work in the studio has increased 40%. Walker also points out that it requires minimum of a year to train a camera technician in the intricacies of process and special effects work. Beginners without previous camera experience are not suitable, as it requires from three to five years to train them to handle regular assignments.

PREVIEW OF SHORT SUBJECTS

Strong and diversified group of shorts was submitted to press preview last night at the Filmarte theatre under the auspices of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in the third of the monthly showings.

Emphasis was placed upon the war effort, but five of the 11 subjects were not related to the national civilian defense or military affairs. All but one, 'Combat Report,' were for general theatre exhibition. In the order of their presentation to a capacity filled house they were:

'Kiss and Wake Up', comedy produced and directed for Columbia by Jules White, featuring Johnny Downs and Frank Sully. Played for farce.

'Keeping Fit', Universal, Arthur Lubin director and Will Cowan associate producer. Well conceived film admonishing civilians how to keep physically up to par through nutrition and exercise for war effort, made at Government (OWI) suggestion.

'Football Thrills of 1941', a Pete Smith Specialty for Metro, done in the producer-commentator's distinctive style and standard, mixing grid thrills in outstanding games of last season with comedy, both in the narration and pictorially, through stop-action.

'Food Will Win the War', produced by Walt Disney for the Surplus Marketing Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Cartoon treatment translates dry and unimpressive statistics into graphic pictorial equivalents which sock home what American production means to the fighting United Nations as well as at home. Fine application of imaginative use of screen.

'Letter From Bataan', Paramount. This is compacted tragedy of what happened to a soldier and his buddy under the Jap guns because the folks back home had failed the fighting forces in the matter of supplies. As the boy's mother reads the letter—written for him by a nurse after his death under wound operation—the wraith of the soldier stands by his family back home and supplements for the audience what the letter relates. It is poignantly moving drama made by William C. Thomas and directed by William H. Pine.

'The Dover Boys at Pimiento University.' A very funny cartoon comedy made by Leon Schlesinger for Warners as one of his Merrie Melodies, with the action laid in the Gay 90's period, lugubriously narrated in the stilted manner fitting the time.

'The Good Job' is an extraordinarily moving, expertly made piece of comedy-pathos, written and directed in one reel by William Saroyan—a brief masterpiece of human, honest, unaffected playing by unknown actors in fleeting but memorable collection of incidents and character flashes in the grocery store where the narrating character of the film said he had 'a good job,' which he enjoyed. This little gem will touch every audience, from high to low, especially the scenes of the little, unimportant Spanish father and his big son, and the footage showing a little boy at the candy counter. It has treatment and achieves mood—chuckles and a tear—quite away from the usual.

'Combat Report' was produced by the Academy Research Council for the U. S. Signal Corps, and is not intended for general exhibition but only for groups of defense workers. The action shows a Nazi submarine being blasted by an American bomber after the pig boat has sunk a tanker and fired on the lifeboats. As the bomber sets out to stalk the sub, the action cuts back to show all the various skills and efforts and hard labors which have gone into putting that bomber together, from the mines to the precision workers. Lieut. John W. Huston directed with expert hand to get suspense and wallop.

'The Magic Alphabet' (Metro) tells the story of the immensely important discovery of vitamins in food by a stubborn Dutch research doctor, Christian Eijkman, and the significance of that first successful attack upon Beri-Beri, up to the development of the vitamic lore by Casimir Funk. The story is told in exciting human values, with the informative material regarded as highly valuable to the mothers and women who feed the children and the workers of the nation. This short was suggested by the Government's OWI, and profits from the film will be turned over to the American Red Cross. It is one of the finest of the John Nesbitt Passing Parades. Richard Goldstone produced.

'A Ship Is Born,' Warners, is an inspiring, fascinating and pride-rousing depiction of the training and the seafaring of the youngsters who elect to serve in the Merchant Marine, and the detailed account of how the ships are built in which they go out on war's commerce. This is a most important and thoroughly made picture for national consumption, and to be seen by the folk of the United Nations and the neutrals on the fringes of the battle areas. Produced in Technicolor by Gordon Hollingshead, written and narrated by Captain Owen Crump, and directed by Jean Negulesco, it had the cooperation of the U. S. Maritime Commission and the Coast Guard. Its ship and sea scapes are magnificent in color. Trainees are shown in many interesting routines in the school ashore and sailing on the training ship and finally leaving for active duty on the Victory Ship whose launching also is shown in the picture. A strong morale film and an exceptionally fine piece of informative picture making.

'Donald's Tire Trouble' is Walt Disney's duck in one of his most terrible predicaments when his tires begin to go bad and he tries to mend them. It, too, carries a hint for rubber conservation.

SOEG-Exchanges Agree On Arbitration of Wages Only

Minimum wages will be the only point submitted to arbitration in the Screen Office Employes Guild contract negotiations with major exchanges, according to an agreement reached yesterday at a meeting between Glenn Pratt, SOEG business representative, and Pat Casey, Producer labor contact. With exchanges conceding on points to arbitrate after seeking to include classifications and union shop, wage matter is expected to be cleared up shortly after a third arbiter is named.

Louis Stein, attorney for the Guild, and Frank Belcher, attorney acting for the exchanges, go before Judge B. Rey Schauer today for appointment of the third arbiter. Attorneys were scheduled to take matter to Judge Schauer yesterday for latter to name third member of the arbitration board, but Stein was held up in court on hearing of another case.

Glenn Pratt will act as SOEG arbiter, with Pat Scollard of Paramount representing the exchanges on the three-man committee. Judge Schauer is being asked to name third member after Guild and exchanges failed to agree on a choice.

Lichtig, Englander Split

Ben Englander, who has been associated for the past 25 years with Harry Lichtig in the agency business under the name of Lichtig & Englander, is withdrawing from active participation in the agency to become associated with Sid Schlager as general manager of production of Producers Corporation of America. Harry Lichtig will continue with the agency business.

Carroll Leads 'Parade'

John Carroll has been borrowed from Metro by Republic for the male lead in 'Hit Parade of 1943,' which starts Oct. 24 with Albert J. Cohen producing and Albert S. Rogell directing. Carroll was one of the co-stars in Republic's special, 'Flying Tigers.'

Lenses 'Marines'

Charles Schoenbaum will handle photography on Metro's 'Salute to the Marines' in association with Technicolor cameraman Duke Green. Sylvan Simon will direct the Wallace Beery starrer.

Charles Arnt At RKO

Charles Arnt has been signed at RKO for 'The Great Gildersleeve,' and for the next 'Gildersleeve' production to follow in the series.

OWI Air Group Opens Sessions at NBC; Tops In from East

First of a series of four meetings to be held here today and tomorrow under auspices of the local wing of Office of War Information, radio division, gets under way at 11 a.m. in studio H at NBC. Here from Washington for the sessions are W. B. Lewis, radio director of OWI; Douglas Meservey, chief deputy to Lewis, and Seymour Morris, chief of the Allocations Division. Others officiating will be Nat Wolff, Coast deputy chief, and his staff of aides and consultants.

Following the morning session, to be attended by members of Hollywood Advertising Council and Executive Committee, a luncheon meeting will be held at Brittingham's with the same group. Friday morning's sesh, called for 10:30 o'clock in studio A at KNX, will bring together members of the Executive Committee with writers and producers of network programs. OWI staff meeting will be held in Wolff's office in the Taft building at 3 p.m., followed by a night session at Beverly Wilshire hotel with Hollywood Talent Committee.

Laborers In Grip Jobs

Ranks of studio grips having been reduced by 50 per cent since start of war by induction into armed service and war industries, RKO is drafting studio laborers into grip jobs under special permit from unions involved, according to Whitie Mathews, studio labor foreman.

Rep Troupe On Location

Troupe of Republic's 'G-Men Vs. the Black Dragon' goes to Santa Barbara today for a 10-day location stand.

Scribbling

Carl Foreman will handle screenplay on Metro's 'Now We Are 21', which William Kaplan produces.

Hugo Butler has been handed new writing contract at Metro. He's currently working on script of 'See Here, Private Hargrove', for Producer George Haight.

Arthur Caesar will handle script on 'Signal Corps' for Producer Robert Bassler at 20th-Fox. Story is an original by John Gunther.

Tess Slesinger and Frank Davis have been assigned as a team to work on screenplay of W. Somerset Maugham's best seller, 'The Hour Before Dawn'.

John Collier, magazine writer, has been signed at Warners to do the screenplay on 'Three Strangers', John Huston original. Picture will team Humphrey Bogart and Sydney Greenstreet in the leads.

Harry Segall has been assigned to screenplay of 'The Cover Girl' at Columbia, a Sam Bischoff production.

Ferdinand Reyher is writing the screenplay for his original story, 'The Black Market', at Columbia, to be produced by the Irving Briskin unit.

Dorothy Bennett set at Universal to do the final script on 'Show Business', Will Cowan production, after completing writing stint on 'It Ain't Hay' on same lot.

ILLUSTRATORS ASK $150 FOR SENIORS, NIX STUDIO OFFER

posal of $150 a week for seniors on unlimited time or $2.75 as an hourly rate with time and a half after the first 40 hours. Counter-proposal will be submitted by studio business managers to their executives and will bring back an answer Monday. Question of junior illustrators was left in abeyance until after senior scales are settled.

Attending yesterday's session for discussion of wages, hours and working conditions, in addition to all studio business managers, were Pat Casey and Fred Pelton for the Producers, Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions; Les Thomas, Fritz Willard and Arthur Lonergan for the Illustrators, and Ed Mussa, business agent; Joe Sternad, prexy, and Ed Gilbert, secretary, of the Set Designers.

'Duke' Clark Seeking Transportation Pool

M. R. 'Duke' Clark, branch manager for Paramount, is canvassing Film Rowites with form questionnaire in an effort to pool transportation facilities due to tire and gasoline curtailments.

Form was mailed to all this week, asking names, addresses, capacity of cars, nearness to main traffic arteries, time of departure for work and time of return to home, and what day would best suit them for carsharing.

Rationing Spurs Return To Block Pix Selling

Minneapolis, Sept. 23.—Seeing restricted travel by salesmen and exhibitors alike because of the tire and gasoline situation, Northwest Allied leaders here feel certain of the return of block selling of entire season's product soon. Since selling in small blocks necessitates more trips by salesmen, elimination or curtailment of travel by salesmen will mean exhibs must come into Minneapolis to do their own buying. For reasons outlined, everyone concerned sees no necessity of fighting to try to sustain the invalidated Minnesota anti-consent decree law.

Joan Fontaine Red Cross Guest In Capital

Washington, Sept. 23.—Joan Fontaine arrived here by plane today as the invited guest of the American Red Cross to address the nurses aide rally as speaker with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Harry Hopkins. Actress, recent graduate of the Los Angeles Nurses Aide, will be guest Friday noon of the United States Senate in the senators' private dining room with Senator Downey of California and Vice-President Wallace as her official hosts. Friday night she will dine at the White House, accompanying Mrs. Roosevelt to the rally.

Viola B. Shore Arrives To Assist Preminger

Viola Brothers Shore arrived from the east yesterday to start work with Otto Preminger on the dramatization of 'Seventh Cross,' novel by Anna Seghers which Preminger will produce and star in on New York stage after his director-star assignment in 'Margin For Error' at 20th-Fox.

Four WB Releases Set

National release dates for four new Warners pictures have been set with 'Desperate Journey' going out first on Sept. 26. Next is 'You Can't Escape Forever' on Oct. 10; 'Secret Enemies,' Oct. 17, and 'Now, Voyager' Oct. 31.

Spike Wallace Heads In From Chicago Friday

J. K. 'Spike' Wallace, president of Local 47 of Musicians Union; Al Myers, financial secretary, and Eva May Hopkins, Wallace's confidential secretary, arrive here Friday after 10 days in Chicago and San Francisco.

Trio went to Chicago to confer with James C. Petrillo, international president of the union, on Music for Victory plan for government subsidy of music. Frisco stop-off, where they now are, was in line with same matter, according to union officials, and has nothing to do with record-banning situation.

Mills To Aid LeBaron

Negotiations are being completed for Irving Mills to assist William LeBaron on production of 20th-Fox's all-Negro filmusical, 'Thanks, Pal'. Script is being prepared by Hy Kraft, while musical numbers will be selected by Mills and LeBaron.

Senators OK Sweeping Probe Into Petrillo's Radio Music Rules

Washington, Sept. 23.—Full scale probe of American Federation of Musicians boycott of recording companies was unanimously recommended today by Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on the strength of assertions that the sit-down strike threatens to cause a suspension of broadcasting and undermine military and civilian morale. Senate group headed by Senator Burton K. Wheeler quickly approved the resolution of Senator D. Worth Clark for a study to determine whether legislation is necessary or feasible to end the ban promulgated by James C. Petrillo, AFM prexy. Administration backing for the inquiry was assured, with Clark declaring he expects the resolution will be voted within a few days.

Sponsor of the inquiry will ask $5,000 to finance the work and will call broadcasters, disc makers and union officials to testify as to the effect of and the reasons for the Petrillo ultimatum.

Location Hunters Back

Dudley Nichols, producer-writer; Jean Renoir, director; Vern Walker, process department, and Louis Shapiro, head of location department, are back at RKO from two-day location hunt for 'This Land Is Mine'.

New Minnesota Rush For Anti-Nazi Films Since the Election

Minneapolis, Sept. 23.—Film repercussions already are being felt here following the Minnesota primary election returns which apparently indicated that a substantial majority of the voters are not isolationists and probably never were.

Exhibitors who passed up strongly anti-Nazi and propaganda films before Pearl Harbor and hadn't booked them since for fear of unfavorable box office effects, now are urging distributors to reissue the pictures in question so that they can show them. Demand from exhibitors for such fare is at a record high. Even 'Confessions of a Nazi Spy', which missed out in many situations, is being eagerly sought.

Trade states that the public is going more for anti-Nazi than anti-Japanese pictures. The reason for this, however, may be that prior to 'Wake Island' the former were of much higher quality.

Minnesota was regarded as an isolationist stronghold with much Nazi sentiment, but the anti-isolationist Republican U. S. Senator and gubernatorial candidates won easily in the primaries, although attacked as 'interventionists'.

Judith Anderson Plans To Stage Jeffers' Play

Judith Anderson is planning presentation of Robinson Jeffers' 'The Tower Beyond Tragedy' on the stage following completion of her work in 'Edge of Darkness' at Warners. Entire proceeds of the production would go to the armed forces if plans go through. Monty Woolley has been approached to direct play and there is a possibility the Shuberts will handle the production end. Miss Anderson would play the role of Clytemnestra.

Glenn Miller Farewell Over Blue Satnite

Capt. Glenn Miller broadcasts his valedictory program over the Blue Network Saturday night from New York. He reports for Army duty Oct. 7. Tommy Dorsey was to have filled the Coca-Cola date but Metro refused him to leave to originate the program at the Naval Base in San Diego.

Hall, Montez and Sabu Reunited In U Duo

Jon Hall, Maria Montez and Sabu will be teamed again in Universal's 'White Savage' and 'Cobra Woman,' both of which may be produced in Technicolor. Trio just completed leads in U's 'Arabian Nights,' also in color. 'White Savage' rolls middle of October with 'Cobra Woman' following. George Waggner will produce both pictures.

Spurs 'Robin Hood'

'Robin Hood of the Range,' Charles Starrett western, gets the spur today under direction of William Berke. Jack Fier is producing. Kay Harris has femme lead.

Title Changes

'Brasher Doubloon', 20th-Fox, to 'Murder, Murder Everywhere'.

Universal's 'Show Time' now titled 'Show Business'.

UPPED ADMISH CAUSES PUBLIC TO REAR UP IN NORTHWEST

Minneapolis, Sept. 23.—With the first adverse public reaction to admission price advances in evidence, the trade here believes that warning signals are to be given to distributors demanding tilts of scales for certain releases. Despite general prosperity resulting from gains in employment, wages and farm income, establishing purchasing power at a new high for many years, theatre customers are starting to balk at upped scales, it is said.

What has helped to make the public theatre admission price conscious and resentful, the trade says, is current newspaper and radio discussion anent price ceilings, inflation and price-rising curbs.

The Orpheum tried a nickel raise to 60c after 5 p.m. for stage shows, but after a single week went back to its previous scale. There were many squawks over the price boost, it has been learned.

In Grand Rapids, Minn., near here, the city council has received protests against increased theatre admissions and is using its influence to get them lowered. Complaints also have been in evidence everywhere when pictures were offered at advanced prices, it's stated.

Rep Assigns Scripters To 23 Stories Slated For Camera Soon

Republic is hypoing its fall and winter schedule following studio visit last week of Herbert J. Yates, with assignment of 32 writers to work on 23 scripts and originals slated for the cameras. Studio already has completed eight features for 1942-43 and has 'Moscow Strikes Back', foreign-made film, as a special offering. In the western bracket are five finished, plus one serial. Two features and a western are now in work, with another serial rolling today and a western Saturday.

In addition to pictures now shooting and starting this month, studio has given starting dates to six for October. First out will be Armand Schaefer's untitled Weaver Brothers and Elviry comedy on Oct. 3. Next to roll will be 'Prairie Pals', a Lou Grey production starting Oct. 6. On Oct. 14 George Sherman will start 'London Blackout Murders'. On Oct. 24 Albert J. Cohen launches two, 'Hit Parade of 1943' and 'Chatterbox'. Sixth for the month will be 'Tahiti Honey', with John H. Auer producing, starting Oct. 30.

H'wd Canteen Unfolds Plans At Luncheon

Hollywood Canteen sponsors luncheoned some 75 people yesterday at the Ambassador to acquaint them with the purpose of their organization to provide recreation and relaxation for service men beginning Oct. 3.

Walter Wanger presided and Irene Dunne was on hand to talk for Bette Davis, head of the organization who is ill. She outlined the setup to the numerous civic, religious leaders and newspaper men as well as the heads of unions and tradespeople who will donate supplies for the Canteen.

John Garfield also spoke reading a letter from Bette Davis. Gov. Culbert Olson promised his support, with various Army and Navy officers endorsing the project, as did Dr. A. H. Giannini of the USO.

Lieut. Commander Corydon Wassell and Chief Aviation Machinist A. W. Winchell, both participants in the current war action were honored guests.

Obituary

HARRISON HOLLIWAY

Harrison Holliway, 41, vice-president and general manager in charge of Earle C. Anthony Radio Enterprises, died suddenly last night shortly before midnight at Good Samaritan hospital following a two day illness. Suffering from what was believed at first to be a cold, he complained yesterday afternoon of stomach pains and was ordered to the hospital. One of the earliest veterans of radio, Holliway had been associated in the industry on the coast for the past 25 years and was credited with originating and emceeing 'Blue Monday Jamboree' on the Don Lee network, a program that set the pattern for many other shows through the years. After several years with 'Jamboree,' he went into the executive end of radio taking over the management of station KFRC in San Francisco. In 1936 he came to Los Angeles and joined Anthony as manager of KFI-KECA. Last year he was made vice-president. He was a past regional director of the National Association of Broadcasters.

His widow, the former Edna O'-Keefe, and one-time singer and comedienne and three children survive.

JAMES F. KEON

Funeral services for James F. Keon, 43, electrician at General Service studios for 10 years, were conducted yesterday at Crane and Eberle mortuary, with interment at Hollywood Memorial Park. Keon died at the studio last Thursday. Surviving are the widow, Edith Kent; one son, James Keon, Jr.; his mother, Mrs. Mary Keon; a brother, William Keon, and a step-son, Robert Park.

HERMAN F. LUTZ

Herman F. Lutz, 44, Universal newsreel cameraman, died Sept. 21 at Jackson Heights, N. Y. Services were held yesterday.

'DEADLINE TOMORROW,' TERSE TIP TO U. S. BOND PLEDGEES

Bond pledgees in the September War Bond drive are being urged to fulfill pledges before tomorrow night, official close of the Treasury Department's month, so total figures in the 'Stars Over America' tours will near quota originally set. Emphasis also is being placed on cash sales for the remaining week of the film names' tours as final quarter of the drive gets under way.

Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce and Robert Stack arrived yesterday after closing their tour of Texas cities in Austin. Janet Gaynor, who accompanied them, returns today with tour manager, Len Boyd. Stack, who volunteered his services for the tour while awaiting call from the Navy, will be sworn in as an ensign today.

Victory dinner in Baltimore, Md., with Paulette Goddard and William Gargan as guests of honor, reported sales of better than $2,000,000. Other events on their schedule for today are expected to raise about half this figure, plus substantial payroll savings pledges. Three plants were raised to 100% participation from 80, 83 and 86%.

At Charleston, S. C., where incomplete Bond sales have already advanced into seven figures, Veronica Lake was called upon to christen a 37 mm. gun for the combat team of an infantry outfit in her name. At Savannah, Ga., actress was presented with formal notification of her adoption by the city by Mayor Gamble.

Ralph Bellamy, Richard Arlen, Peggy Diggins and Dorothy Cordray attended two Bond balls in Omaha, Neb., with auctions bringing in $100,000 in Bond sales. Auctions were climaxed with sale of Bellamy's and Arlen's clothes for a total of $45,000. At Watertown, N. Y., Charles Laughton and Ann Rutherford drew $100,000 in cash Bond sales at a luncheon.

The Remington-Rand plant rally at Ilion, N. Y., brought a 96% subscription to the 10% payroll savings plan, and two stars traded autographs for an additional $57,000. A blackout hit the pair in Ithaca, but Laughton entered a packed auditorium with the aid of a single candle. Bond sales totaled nearly $200,000.

The Redlands, Calif., Bowl rally, led by Eddie Cantor, Mary Astor and Dale Evans, saw auctions of souvenirs of the present war, donated by the families of General Harold H. George and Captain Robert White. At a Bond premiere Cantor boosted the take by offering songs at $1,000 each for a total of $15,000.

Film Salesmen Squawk About Hotels in Stix

Itinerant film salesmen and exploiteers report travel and living conditions on the road becoming almost insufferable. Conditions that once would not have been tolerated at all now are standard, everyone making the best of it, though undergoing rough treatment on transportation, lodging and food.

On checking into hotels, when able to get a bed at all, men are asked to be sure to be out on time, if not early next day. Often rooms are not made up and men must wait. Inability of inns to get help accounts for absence of service, same extending to elevators and luggage, with guests having to attend to those items themselves.

One exploiteer, recently returned from Portland, reports having had to sleep in a hotel lobby because of there being absolutely no rooms available. Food standards have dropped, too, many complain, even better hotels pushing out anything in way of grub. Indifference is the keynote of the boomed business, men report. Condition is not confined to key towns, either, but extends to all, including inns formerly regarded as unsuitable in smaller towns.

Goodman Heads Home, Smith Proceeds East

Del Goodman, Paramount western district sales chief, arrives Saturday after 10 days in the northwest, where he visited Portland, Seattle and San Francisco exchanges with George Smith, western division manager from New York. Smith left for the east from Portland last night and will stop off in Denver, Omaha, Chicago and other western branches before getting to home office.

Studio Site of Babbitt, Disney Court Action

Hearing on Art Babbitt's court action against Walt Disney Productions for adjusted compensation moved to the studio yesterday for screening of some of the animator's work on Disney product. Making the trip from the Los Angeles courts to Burbank were Superior Judge John G. Clark, hearing the matter; his court clerk, and Louis Stein, attorney for Babbitt.

Babbitt is claiming he has around $5,000 coming from Disney for work on such animated features as 'Pinocchio', 'Fantasia' and 'Dumbo', plus a number of shorts, under a former Disney plan that permitted employes to earn extra money through stepped-up production work. Plan was abolished at time of the Screen Cartoonist Guild strike at the studio.

Charles Thall To SF After Product Deals

Charles Thall, city manager of San Francisco for Fox West Coast, trained out tonight for home port after several days here working on film buying deals at home office with distributors and F-WC film buyers. Virtually commuting between here and Frisco for past month on deals with various distribs, he returns again next week to huddle with buyers and Warners reps.

Abe Lyman Goes Into Army with Five of His Bandsmen

Abe Lyman goes into the Army Oct. 14 with the rating of warrant officer, and will form his own military band at the new Montclair, N. J. camp, near Camp Dix. As a nucleus he is taking with him five members of his band, and Bill Sherman, vocalist. Few nights ago three other members of his band advised him of their enlistment in the armed forces.

Remainder of the crew are on two weeks' notice. Lyman's outfit finishes its current stand at the Palladium Sept. 28 and then goes into the Orpheum for a week before disbanding. Lyman had been signed for a 16-week engagement at Florentine Gardens, which is automatically canceled by his enlistment in the Army.

Capt. Bob Carson Now, Oscar Winner Inducted

Robert Carson, ace Hollywood scripter and Satevepost novelist, received his Captain's commission yesterday and reports today at 'Fort Vitagraph' for induction in the First Photographic Unit of the Army Air Force. Scrib's notification came from the Adjutant General's office in Washington with added info that Capt. Carson will be detailed to an officer training school pronto. He won Academy award for 'A Star Is Born' in 1937, is 32 years old and married to former actress.

Your Country House

ON the eve of the Dedication of the new Motion Picture Country House, your Relief Fund is happy to announce the signing of a new contract with the Lady Esther Cosmetic Company to sponsor its Screen Guild radio show which starts on Monday night, October 19th, over 65 stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System. (KNX 7 to 7:30 P.W.T.)

SCREEN actors, writers, directors, producers and craftsmen who contributed their time and talents to the Gulf Screen Guild radio program, broadcast for the last four seasons, have made possible the construction of the Country House. Money received from the sponsor, the Gulf Oil Company, financed the project.

THE signing of the new contract with the Lady Esther Company now assures necessary funds for the maintenance and administration of the Country House as long as the show is on the air.

ON this significant occasion, the new radio contract and the Dedication, the Motion Picture Relief Fund wishes to express its gratitude and appreciation to all those who donated their talents and thank the Gulf Oil Company for its sponsorship.

THE Country House will be dedicated by the industry this Sunday, September 27th, at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

YOU are invited to be present at the Ceremonies and inspect your grounds and buildings.

DRIVE out Ventura Boulevard to Mulholland at Woodland Hills, where road signs will direct you to the Country House.

IT is suggested that auto parties be arranged to save tires.

TIME: 3 p. m. this Sunday, September 27th. PLACE: Woodland Hills. EVENT: All-industry Dedication of the Country House.

The Nazis obviously are going all out to take Stalingrad, as indicated by the sudden arrival of reinforcements at the front by giant troop carrier planes. Hitler's losses, roughly, of 15,000 men per day, may prove too much.

A ray of hope is seen in Timoshenko's counter offensive to the northwest. If he can break the backbone of the Nazi offensive, the rapidly approaching Russian winter might tip the balance in favor of the United Nations.

PAR MULLS SELZNICK DEAL; DECISION LIKELY AT MEET

New York, Sept. 24.—Paramount board meeting, held this afternoon for ratification of the company's deal turning over 11 pictures to United Artists, also saw discussion of negotiations for the acquisition of story properties and talent contracts from David O. Selznick.

Prior to meeting, decision was reached that nothing would be announced concerning the session or matters on the agenda, all Paramount executives meantime being completely reticent on both deals.

LEGIT OPENING

EVE OF ST. MARK

Boston, Sept. 24.—An old hand at weaving his melodrama with bright bits of sentiment, hokum and comedy, and framing them all in an unceasing flow of rich language, Maxwell Anderson got in his second licks at the war tonight with his 'Eve of St. Mark'. It opened at the Wilbur theatre to catch a soft audience reaction, notwithstanding its unrelieved war angle which is pretty close to everybody's home.

Written for the Tributary theatres several of which go into production before this company hits Broadway,

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

THERE is plenty of panic and worry going on in the minds of several top agents who have been accustomed to weekly compensation in the four-figure category since being notified by their draft boards they will be cataloged as 1A for Selective Service in the Army on Oct. 10 when reclassifying will be done of the 3A group. Most of these fellows are single or married without children and they have resorted to every means possible to spot themselves in branches of the service that will give them collar insignias entitling them to salutes. The draft boards have checked on income and responsibilities of these men as well as to their assets and liabilities that will cause a big surprise in Hollywood when these fellows are called to the colors as enlisted men, as avenues to commissions as specialists in the service are closed to the majority of them.

ONE of those rare gestures of generosity, admirably suppressed because the donor believed he was doing the right thing and rated no personal bows, occurred recently at one of the major networks. Headman called in an official of American Federation of Radio Artists and requested that the scale for actors for his group of stations be increased 10% at once. He reasoned that with the cost of living rising by leaps and bounds the actors were entitled to more pay to meet the increases. Only string to the deal was that no publicity be given to the new contract. Radio actors who work at the network station here know who their benefactor is and that's sufficiently pleasing to him.

AN Independent producer releasing through major companies has a happy faculty of having his charity and altruistic deeds imparted to the press for laudatory publication and proudly displays the clippings to those who come into his office to accentuate his deeds. However, he has not informed his visitors that he has not followed the custom in the industry of giving two-weeks extra salary to employees called into the armed services. He even did not make any gesture in this direction when an employe of years standing, getting meagre wages, was tagged for the army.

STUDIOS have become a lot more rubber-conscious during recent days, since receiving an official announcement from the War Production Board that they are not even in line to receive replacements on bicycle tires. These have been used in intra-studio deliveries, and sometimes for getting publicity copy to newspapers. However, the downtown planters have evolved a new one for beating the rubber emergency on the long trip into Los Angeles. They meet at a given spot in Hollywood, share a taxicab and ride down and back together.

UA Execs Converge On Chi For Meet

New York, Sept. 24. — Dave Weshner, head of United Artists advertising and publicity, leaves tomorrow for UA's Chicago convention Sept. 26-29. Gradwell Sears, Ed Raftery and Carl Leserman are pulling out Saturday.

Others slated to attend the meeting are Rouben Mamoulian, Arthur Lyons and Hal Roach, who has received a furlough from the Signal Corps in order to be present.

It is understood that official announcement of Paramount product deal is to be made during sessions, in addition to straightening out other production detail.

U Shelves 'Phantom'

'The Phantom of the Opera,' announced at Universal as a big special for its 1942-43 season, is a casualty of wartime regulations. Studio has sidetracked production indefinitely due to $5,000 set ceiling placed by government order on all pictures. Story, to have been made in Technicolor by Henry Koster, would have called for many elaborate sets and other costly production accoutrements, without which much of its value would be lost.

SPG Meet Tonight

the play has 12 scenes in two acts. Sets are simple, no slats or drop-backs being used, and as mounted here on a revolving stage it went off at a speedy clip.

Story, old stuff, concerns Private Quiss West, a farm boy who was drafted before Pearl Harbor. His unrequited romance with Janet Feller and his relations with his family finally lead up to his self-determined sacrifice on a delaying action off Corregidor. Best scenes involve Quiss and his camp buddies. Family scenes are pretty obvious sentiment, and the dream sequences, when Quiss pleads with his girl and his maw for guidance, verge on hysteria.

It is well cast and acted. Aline MacMahon, in the star billing, is very effective as Maw, although her role generally is too sweet to believe. William Prince carries the principal load as the buck private and registers solidly, closely followed by James Monks as Marion, Eddie O'Shea as Mulveroy, George Mathews as Ruby and Jo Ann Dolan as Lil Bird. The latter, a looker, whams at the start.

If it gets by the New York critics who are fussy about their propaganda, the play should do well, as it's a war theme women will go for. Play is produced by Playwrights Co. with Lem Ward directing and scenery by Howard Bay.

Film Previews

Youth On Parade

(Comedy Drama With Music)

Republic production. Features John Hubbard, Ruth Terry, Martha O'Driscoll, Tom Brown, Charles Smith, Lynn Merrick. Supporting cast: Ivan Simpson, Nana Bryant, Bruce Langley, Chick Chandler and Marlyn Schild. Director, Albert S. Rogell. Associate producer, Albert J. Cohen. Original screenplay by George Carleton Brown. Added dialog by Frank Gill, Jr. Photography by Ernest Miller. Film editor, Howard McNeill. Songs by Jule Styne and Sammy Cahn. Art director, Russell Kimball. Musical director, Cy Feuer. Dances staged by Dave Gould. Previewed in studio projection room, Sept. 24, 1942. Running time: 72 MINS.

'Youth On Parade' is a youthful filmusical with college background. It displays usual campus capers as background for the kids to put on the annual college show and, as such, will get by in the regular program bookings as acceptable light entertainment.

Story is synthetically contrived, with some decidedly incredible happenings occurring around the college grounds. Members of a fraternity and a sorority gang up on educational revolutionary teaching percepts of Professor John Hubbard. Students create a mythical student for examinations, and have to produce the real person when honor student award is to be handed out. Tom Brown, composer of the school musical book, hits New York publisher's office; and there picks up Singer Ruth Terry to impersonate the winning student. Girl hits the campus to get the scholastic award, and hangs around to confound the faculty with her zaney slang and jive lingo, and to take the femme lead in the school musical show. En route she softens up Hubbard from his educational absorption to get him romantic with Martha O'Driscoll, and steps in to fix things when Hubbard finally discovers the hoax. But the show goes on despite orders of the dean for cancellation, and everybody's happy.

Five songs by Jule Styne and Sammy Cahn are inserted—two sung by Miss Terry and pair by Miss O'Driscoll. Finale tune, 'You've Got To Study, Buddy', has patriotic theme and marching tempo for production number headed by Miss Terry. Songs are generally meritorious.

Tom Brown and Martha O'Driscoll are ringleaders of the college crowd, handling respective assignments in good style. Ruth Terry tosses in some new slang phrases for moderate laughs, but her characterization is overdrawn by both script and direction. Hubbard is studious as the professor, with support including Ivan Simpson as the dean, Charles Smith as a bookworm student, Nana Bryant, Lynn Merrick, Bruce Langley, Chick Chandler and Marlyn Schild.

Direction by Albert Rogell is okay for the light and fluffy type of picture on display, but script yanks out some old bearded Joe Millers along the way. Production mounting is adequate for a programmer.

Sin Town

(Melodrama)

Universal production. Features Constance Bennett, Brod Crawford, Anne Gwynne, Patric Knowles, Andy Devine, Leo Carrillo, Ward Bond. Supporting cast: Arthur Aylsworth, Ralf Harolde, Charles Wagenheim, Billy Wayne, Hobart Bosworth, Bryant Washburn, Jack Mulhall. Directed by Ray Enright. Produced by George Waggner. Original screenplay by W. Scott Darling and Gerald Geraghty. Added dialog by Richard Brooks. Photography by George Robinson. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Harold H. MacArthur. Film editor, Edward Curtiss. Musical director, H. J. Salter. Assistant director, Gil Valle. Previewed in studio projection room, Sept. 24, 1942. Running time: 73 MINS.

Frontier oil boom town provides a locale for this rough and rousing drama that carries along at a fast pace. Picture is a strong program attraction that will garner plenty of bookings in the secondary first and nabe houses.

Brod Crawford and Constance Bennett are a team of slick bunko artists who arrive in town for whatever opportunities might present themselves. Crawford steps in to save Ward Bond from a hanging party and declares himself in as partner of Bond's gambling and drink layout. Anne Gwynne runs the newspaper since the murder of her editor-father and continues a scathing campaign against the lawless elements of the town, led by Crawford who lines up the gambling operators for racketeering protection payoff.

Bond, safe in jail, has his henchmen operate to discredit Crawford, including blowing up of an oil well being brought in by Patric Knowles, so Bond can get all the surrounding oil leases. But result is upheaval of the townsfolk against Bond and Crawford, with former getting pumped off in a wild battle and Crawford escaping with his hide to ply his con games elsewhere.

Crawford turns in a slick performance as the smooth-talking bunko artist, with Miss Bennett teaming neatly as the quick-witted blonde charmer. Bond is a strong heavy, while Andy Devine and Leo Carrillo have lesser prominence as a pair of bunko artists imported into the town. Anne Gwynne is okay as the girl editor, while Knowles has little to do as the latter's sweetheart. Arthur Aylsworth is the vacillating sheriff and Ralf Harolde a gambling operator opposed to the Bond-Crawford regime.

Original script by W. Scott Darling and Gerald Geraghty places accent on the color and excitement of the oil boom town and tells the story in a straight line without deviation. Direction by Ray Enright is top-notch.

Overland To Deadwood

(Western)

Columbia production. Stars Charles Starrett. Features Russell Hayden. With Leslie Brooks, Cliff Edwards, Norman Willis, Mat Willis, Francis Walker, Lynton Brent, June Pickrell and Gordon DeMain. Director, William Berke. Producer, Jack Fier. Original screenplay by Paul Franklin. Photography, Benjamin Kline. Assistant director, Milton Carter. Art director, Lionel Banks; associate, Perry Smith. There's nothing dead about this latest Charles Starrett-Russell Hayden gang-busting sagepic despite the title. It's action-packed from start to finish, one that will keep the kids engrossed in a story of mule-team freighting and the vile attempts on life, limb and property of others by the too-good-to-be-true mastermind of the outlaws who would control all trucking that leads to the railroad line.

The trek from Deadwood and surrounding points to Mesquite, site of the new trackage terminal, is fraught with sniping and assorted slaughter. Undaunted, our two heroes take it on themselves to save the business of the one remaining competitor—the gal in gingham, left the suffering wren by her pappy. And what's more, they do it, and in face of all odds, including dynamiting of a whole mountain to push them off the road when they try to push through.

Film opens with a fight, is peppered with gunplay and meleeing, all scenes pretty well done, and closes with a lorry race between the Monogram release of Scott R. Dunlap production. Features Buck Jones, Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton. With Evelyn Cooke, Milburn Morante, Bud McTaggart, Jac Daley, Harry Woods, Roy Barcroft and George DeNormand. Directed by Howard Bretherton. Original screenplay by Jess Bowers. The power of the press combined with the powers of Monogram's 'Rough Riders', Tim McCoy, Buck Jones and Raymond Hatton, spells doom for the hombres of this'n. It's a small-town newspaperman, a fearless owner-editor who pins the goods on the ostensibly honest top citizen with the aid of three bigtime Federal marshals. For the hot action fans it may be a letdown. But for those who appreciate a variance from the norm it will be appreciated for its 'difference'.

Now familiar Jones-McCoy-Hatton trio comes to Gold Creek after the editor has his rag literally blown from under him when the desperadoes dynamite the plant, plates, picas and paper. Along comes Hatton as an overdressed 'mortician' whose caskets contain a new printing press. Along comes McCoy as a gun-totin' parson. And then enters Jones as a rambling maverick of slightly crook-

WB Theatre Workers In Northern Jersey Strike for Pact

New York, Sept. 24.—'Front of the House' employes pulled a strike today in Warners theatres in northern New Jersey following inability to obtain a contract. Employes had also made a petition during the past week to the National Labor Relations Board for an election covering these workers in Warners Hudson, Essex, Morris, Bergen and Union counties.

Union seeking to organize help in the Warners Jersey house is the United Theatrical & Building Service Employes, Local 1188, CIO. It was reported yesterday that the sudden strike was pulled after Warners had agreed to a contract and then reneged. It was indicated that this may have been due to pressure by the rival AFL's IATSE.

Judge Schauer Suggests Arbiter Changes

Unexpected development in the Screen Office Employes Guild, major exchanges arbitration plans yesterday was suggestion by Judge B. Rey Schauer that Louis Stein and Frank Belcher, attorneys for SOEG and exchanges, respectively, be named arbiters in place of Glenn Pratt, collarites business representative, and Pat Scollard of Paramount.

Stein and Belcher had gone before Judge Schauer for selection of a third arbiter in the minimum wage negotiations when suggestion was made. Judge Schauer told attorneys he would undertake responsibility of choosing third member but felt matter could be expedited if they would serve in place of Pratt and Scollard, more personally concerned in the negotiations. He is understood to have said it would be a hard matter to find a third party who would accept the responsibility of being the impartial member of the committee. He gave no indication of when he would name third arbiter other than it would require considerable thought and time.

HARRISON HOLLIWAY PIONEER; LIFE SPANNED RADIO'S HISTORY

In the sudden passing late Wednesday night of Harrison Holliway, radio lost one of its earniest pioneers and a leading figure among Coast broadcasters for many years. Builder of the first radio station in the west and holder of the first license issued by the then Federal Radio Commission, Holliway came up through the ranks to his executive post as vice-president in charge of all radio properties owned by Earle. C. Anthony, which includes KFI and KECA.

Wireless appealed to him in his early youth and he became an operator in the merchant marine. After he felt he had mastered the intricacies of the art, he built his own station in San Francisco, which he gave the call letters of KFRC (after Federal Radio Commission). City of Paris department store became interested in the venture and provided the financing of its operation. A few years later the station was sold to Don Lee and Holliway went along as manager.

The mechanics of radio were not his only interest and he soon after branched out into programming. His creation, 'Blue Monday Jamboree', which he emceed, announced and wrote, was the daddy of all variety shows and today the formula still is carboned. For six years the two-hour weekly program was sponsored by Golden State Creamery and had the largest listening audience on the Coast of any show on the air.

Six years ago Holliway received a tempting offer from Anthony here and took over the management of KFI-KECA. Year ago he was made vice-prez of all Anthony radio enterprises. He had never lost his interest in the technical side of radio and in his home in Hollywood Knolls he had built shortwave and television receiving sets. Among his hobbies was the collection of transcriptions of important events.

Last rites for Holliway will be conducted at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Wee Kirk o' the Heather in Forest Lawn, where cremation will follow. Holliway, who was 41, leaves his widow, the former Edna O'Keefe, who was a singer-comedienne on his 'Jamboree' program, and three children, two by a former marriage.

Industry Bolstering Lagging Bond Drive

New York, Sept. 24.—Ed Sullivan sold $45,000 worth of War Bonds at Paramount theatres' rally last night, the rush starting with an offer of a season theatre pass with each $1,000 Bond purchase. Thirty albums of Andrews Sisters records also were given away. Other Bond rallies include Russian benefit held tonight with the entire Loew's State stage show appearing, Wall Street tomorrow afternoon, Czechoslovakian rally tomorrow night with Horace Heidt show, tomorrow midnight rally at the Metropolitan, Brooklyn with the entire Paramount stage show, and the Greek rally Sunday night with Paramount show.

Harry Brand reports $1,000,000 advance sales for Madison Square Garden rally at midnight Sept. 30. Meanwhile Barney Balaban, Nicholas Schenck and Louis B. Mayer are pitching in for 11th hour drive to find the $25,000,000 which Treasury figures may be short of quota.

Closed Mondays

Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra appeared on the Air Command Performance, the Coca-Cola show, two Raleigh programs and the Treasury Department Show, in addition to work in Metro's 'DuBarry Was a Lady,' in one week.

Par Mulls Selznick Deal; Decision Likely at Meet

Understood the transaction between Paramount and Selznick calls for acquisition of three story properties, 'The Keys of the Kingdom', 'Jane Eyre' and 'Claudia', while talent contracts include Alfred Hitchcock and Robert Stevenson, both directors; Joan Fontaine, Ingrid Bergman, Vivien Leigh, Gene Kelly and Dorothy McGuire. Contracts range in length from two to five years.

Y. Frank Freeman, east on the deal with Selznick, who was reported ill today, plans returning to the Coast tomorrow night, with final details probably to be ironed out there if not concluded here in the meantime.

Official announcement on the Par-UA deal is being withheld by Paramount, according to reports, out of deference to the wishes of UA, which wants to announce it at its sales convention in Chicago starting Monday.

Bond Drive Chairmen Urged To Speed Sales

With the September War Bond campaign led by the motion picture industry, reported only about $25,000,000 away from its goal according to Treasury Department estimates, War Activities chairmen throughout the country are being urged to use every means available to round up the missing figure before the end of the month. Sales Wednesday were $33,311,000, bringing month's total to $548,733,000.

Par Skeds Three More Salton Sea Locations

Paramount is scheduling three new pictures for location work at Salton Sea, where it filmed 'Wake Island.' Trio to be sent to inland sea spot are 'China,' 'So Proudly We Hail' and 'Five Graves to Cairo.' Frisco Hostelry May Use Non-Union Orchestra

San Francisco, Sept. 24. — Sir Francis Drake hotel is considering employment of a non-union band, after dismissing Ran Wilde's orchestra because three members were arrested on juvenile delinquency charge; and then firing Al Wallace's ork in dispute with Musicians Local over firing Wilde's group. Eddie Love, union secretary, told hotel no orchestra would be permitted to play at night in hostelry's Persian Room until Wilde's was given two more weeks' work for dismissal notice, or the equivalent in pay. Hotel retaliated by tossing out Wallace's outfit playing in the afternoon.

George T. Thompson, manager, said hotel would get along for present with juke boxes, but is negotiating with a couple of non-union college bands and may install one of them later.

Irving Briskin Shifts To 5-Day Week as Tires-Gas Saver

The Irving Briskin unit at Columbia shifts to a five-day week starting Monday in a general move designed to conserve tires and gasoline for unit members. Five-day week for a production unit in Hollywood is unique in spite of talk that has hit studios at various times aimed at establishing such a work week.

For some time both Walt Disney and Monogram have been operating on a fiveday- schedule, but these are the only two examples of a definite establishment of the shortened week. Monogram units having a picture in production carry over to Saturday work when necessary but all office workers and others not actively concerned with a picture before the cameras hold to the Monday-to-Friday schedule.

KAY KYSER SCORCHES WAR EFFORT SHIRKERS

them point-blank if they didn't 'accept the challenge and carry the ball, defeat of all the OWI efforts couldn't be avoided'.

Kyser was one of the speakers at the first of four meetings set up by the local branch of OWI for the visit here of W. B. Lewis, radio chief, and his Washington aides. Lewis had to give up his plane space to a ferry pilot at Fort Worth and failed to arrive in time for the session. He aired in late in the afternoon and will meet with the various local groups aligned with OWI radio division at CBS this morning.

Nat Wolff, deputy chief here, presided and opened the discussion by declaring that this war is being fought on three fronts—military, economic and psychological. The latter, he pointed out, was radio's most potent weapon and the OWI was turning out the needed material to assure a successful campaign. Programs rated outstanding in the handling of government allocated messages were 'Fibber and Molly', Lum and Abner and Kraft Music Hall. Wolff took to task those whose only concern with OWI messages is to get them out of the way with the least possible disturbance to the program's continuity. He noted that the OWI has accomplished much since its changeover from Office of Facts and Figures and said the ratio of 75% frustration to 25% achievement had been reversed in the past few months.

One of the biggest problems to be tackled by radio, according to Douglas Meservey, chief deputy to Lewis in Washington, is to condition people to the proper attitudes toward our allies and adjustment to changing conditions and restrictions. Training of replacements, especially women, for jobs concerned with the war effort; breaking down meat-eating habits and acquainting the people of 38 states with the fuel conservation program also are high on radio's OWI agenda. Seymour Morris, chief of OWI allocations, said that agencies and networks would not be asked to devote more time to the government's messages but for an improved quality of handling the inserts. He said the allocations now being distributed assure a 90 Crossley rating daily. All that is asked of radio programs, he said, is 71 seconds for the government message.

Kyser pulled no punches in his talk and used such terms as 'betrayers' and 'traitors' in describing those who won't take a turn at 'carrying the ball'. He said that people want to be talked to sincerely and are tired of gagged-up phrases such as 'slap the Jap', etc. He told of how plain talk to shipyard strikers in Frisco and walkouts in Detroit was received without a dissenting voice and brought down the house. He emphasized the success of the Detroit incident by declaring that following his talk, the last two days of his theatre engagement broke all existing house records. 'They knew I was sincere and they loved it,' he declared. He then pleaded for more sincerity with government messages, and said that if the challenge flung down to radio isn't met wholeheartedly then the whole campaign will be a flop.

Today's three meetings call for a morning session at KNX, with OWI execs confabbing with writers and producers of Coast network shows, a mid-afternoon session in Wolff's office and the night affair at Beverly Wilshire hotel when Hollywood radio talent will be told how they can cooperate and what will be expected of them. A fiery pep talk by Kyser also is programmed, which means that sparks will fly and tender feelings more than slightly ruffled.

MOVE TO SET FEMMES AS HOUSE MANAGERS GROWS IN COUNTRY

New York, Sept. 24.—Wives of men who formerly held positions in theatre operation and who have been drafted or otherwise taken from jobs, are being given jobs of theatre manager in various parts of the country. In Dallas some 20 such cases are reported, while M. A. Silver reports a similar move in Pittsburgh territory.

Advent of femme managers is highly regarded within the industry as vastly helping industry's public relations, as well as helping men in the service. Idea is reported likely to be adopted in many other situations throughout the nation.

Fox-West Coast has already instituted training of some vet and trusted cashiers as assistants to replace low-salaried young men who have been taken or who have left for defense work. F-WC figures not to be caught short when and if men with 3-A ratings, most of them in manager age brackets, are called. Other affiliates of National Theatres, parent company, are similarly training girls.

two competing firms to see who gets the railroad contract. Between the pummelling scenes, Cliff Edwards inserts a couple of novelty songs for pacing. The gal then gets in a few tears and a few smiles (but no acting), and the boy gets the girl and the girl gets the contract. 'Twas ever thus.

But it was not always in westerns that so much fighting took place as goes on here. Starrett and his pal Hayden even stage a good one between themselves to impress the opposition which tries murder, arson, thievery and chicanery to obtain the gravy.

These two boys are among the newer movie mavericks but also are among the more histrionically capable and believable. Their apparent youth is another saving feature. Their latest efforts are worthy in the western way.

ed leanings to tie himself in with the mob, but not for real or long.

Everything they do to frustrate the badmen is done without much action but with lots of trickery. Often it is amusing. For some that may be the Boy Scout way, minus bloodshed, and possibly the way away from the boxoffice. But name value should carry attraction, and action is not too noticeably absent due to fast-moving story and whole raft of fanciness in corraling the heavies one by one.

If nothing else, 'West of the Law' is a relief from straight filming of gunpowder blasts and faked fisticuffs. Story has usual characters and motives, but unreels differently and with some element of suspense because it is different. Acting of featured trio is all that can be called by the name, rest doing usual turgid thesping. Direction and photography are fair.

Davies Okays Script Of Mission To Moscow

Producer Robert Buckner has returned from the east, after obtaining okay for former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies to first draft of script on 'Mission to Moscow' which Warners will produce. Howard Koch, writing the screenplay, also returned with Buckner. Jay Leyda has been signed as technical advisor on the picture.

Lew Geller Dead

New York, Sept. 24.—Lew Geller, branch manager of Warners Winnipeg exchange, died late Wednesday night, according to word received at the home office. Geller was 31 years old.

Wolfe Cohen, Canadian district manager, is enroute to Winnipeg from Toronto to supervise the office until successor is selected.

Schenck, Skouras Head Here On 20th Confabs

New York, Sept. 24.—Joseph M. Schenck and Spyros Skouras leave here tomorrow night to arrive in Hollywood on Monday for production confabs at 20th Century-Fox. Accompanying them from the organization will be Richard Condon, publicity head at the home office, and Max Youngstein of the ad-publicity department.

On the same train will be Eddie Mannix and Ned Marin. Mannix came here from Washington where he discussed entering into war activity as an executive of the War Production Board, but it is unlikely he will go through with such plans.

Larry Kent Heads East

Larry Kent, former chief film buyer for Fox-West Coast, trains out Sunday for New York to assume his new post as executive assistant to Spyros Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

The Nazi claims of 'successes on the Stalingrad front' are impressively contradicted by the fact that the Soviet defenders have the situation well in hand. Stalingrad still stands in the way of the Nazi juggernaut.

Timoshenko's counter-offensive northwest of the beleaguered city seems to be rolling along—sure to gain momentum with bad weather. It may be the most effectively timed strategic move yet since it does not allow the Nazis to regroup their battle-weary forces or exchange them for fresh reserves.

All Nazi propaganda cannot hide the fact that Hitler's in the most precarious situation of his entire campaign.

AP DISTORTION OF DAILY VARIETY LIFT ROUSES OWI

Leveling charges of 'malicious distortion' at the ultra-conservative Associated Press, officials of radio division of Office of War Information are expected to make an issue of the 'unwarranted attack' on radio by a dispatch filed by the AP here for all newspapers carrying the service. It is pointed out that while most of Daily Variety's report of last Thursday's meeting at NBC was lifted by the press service, there was an unethical distortion of Daily Variety's phrase, 'lack of complete co-

Harry Abbott Laffs Off 26G on 'Laffin' Thru'

Harry Abbott's streamlined burley show, 'Laffin' Thru,' closes Friday at the Music Box after dropping $26,000 in five weeks under two titles. Production opened as 'Swing Shift Revels,' aimed at the night work trade from the war production plants but failed to click. Shifted to 'Laffin' Thru' on a new time schedule, it had no better results. Show, understood to be bankrolled by Abbott's brother Bud, of Abbott and Costello, dropped about $26,000.

Chatter

Leighton Noble, ex-bandleader and singer, has been signed to a term contract at Universal.

Sam Rosen has been assigned by Universal as dialog director of 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home'.

Duke Ellington's is latest band signed for recording of Columbia's 'Reveille With Beverly'.

Ballroom scenes in Columbia's 'One Dangerous Night' required 50 dress extras over weekend.

Dance Director Arthur Appel is rehearsing the nitery dance sequences in 20th-Fox's 'The Immortal Sergeant'.

Stanley Logan has ditched dialog directing for a spot in cast of Universal's 'Nightmare', which Tim Whelan directs.

Dorothy Lamour, now east on a Bond selling junket, makes a guest appearance on the Philip Morris broadcast from New York Oct. 2.

Lewis Stone was presented with commission of colonel in California State Militia yesterday, with Robert Young getting rating of captain.

Mrs. M. F. K. Fisher, author of 'How To Cook a Wolf', is on leave from Paramount scrivening chores to complete a novel. Studio has option on author starting Jan. 1.

Mary Treen, completing comedy spot in Charles R. Rogers 'The Powers Girl,' goes to New York for topline in the play, 'Sainted Sisters,' beginning rehearsals next month.

Jimmy Van Der Veer is substituting for Don Wilson in Hollywood Victory Committee caravan touring southern California cities for War Bond rallies. Wilson hopped east due to illness of his mother.

Betty Wells, formerly with 'Meet the People', goes on a 10-week tour through east with Bob Crosby's band, replacing the Wilde Twins, who have signed at Columbia to sing a number in 'Reveille With Beverly'.

Henry Brash, eastern representative for Arnold Pressburger, left here Saturday after 10 days conferences, to attend United Artists sales convention in Chicago, after which he returns to New York.

Ray Milland returned Saturday from radio chores in New York. Bob Hussey, who accompanied the actor, gets in this morning, accompanied by Martin Lewis, eastern radio director for Paramount.

Benny the Gouge sez — With a $5,000 ceiling on studio sets, it doesn't cost so much to lay an egg nowadays, although the price per dozen is higher.

HUGH HARMAN, cartoon producer for Metro claims he will be able to make a 50% saving in film stock on animations through new method of making elaborate clay modelings of characters to be used in the grapics. These models will be photographed from every possible angle for perspective studies by the animation artists. Heretofore the animation process, with thousands of separate drawings to keep the action smooth, has relied considerably upon trial and error in the drawings. Only the artists imagination has been used to guide the complicated perspective of bodies and objects at rest and in motion. Now Harman and his staff are making miniatures of all the characters to be used in any pencil drama. They are then wardrobed in painted colors and photographed. Experimental work is said to have indicated enormous savings in film through elimination of guesswork and re-drawing by using the little figures as photographic studies.

INDIE producers are being hard pressed to keep their competent production crews, now that job demands exceed the supply and crewsmen formerly content to work with the independents can go to the majors at almost any time, due largely to shifting of personnel to war work and military service. Solo producers are extending themselves to reach agreements, wherever possible, on production schedules so that they will occur consecutively, with crews being wafted back and forth to keep them intact and available. Planned coordination among the independents has been greatly stepped up in consequence.

IN what's probably the first production of 'The Man Who Came To Dinner' in a church auditorium anywhere, such expletives as 'my God,' etc., became 'my goodness' or milder at Wesley M. E. Church in Minneapolis. The production was that of the Old Log 'strawhatter' little theatre professional group that has moved in from its Lake Minnetonka to the church gymnasium for the winter. Church grudgingly gave consent to group to present 'Arsenic and Old Lace.' Vestrymen had objected to it because it makes sport of murder.

LOCAL 47 of American Federation of Musicians will attempt to cancel death benefit insurance for all members entering the armed services. Musicians automatically lose their membership when they enter but retain honorary memberships. However, dues and assessments partly go into death benefit fund that calls for $1,000 be paid beneficiaries of deceased members. With 1,000 men gone to war union feels it might well become bankrupt if drain were too heavy and is attempting to get membership vote on discontinuance of benefit plan for those in service.

U Hits Peak With Five More Ready To Go

Its sound stages loaded to capacity since early August, Universal has scheduled production for peak activity throughout the next few months. Five more pictures are being readied to feed into work within the next 30 days to supplement the seven now before cameras, most of which will keep rolling throughout October.

Quintet of starters is headed by Abbott and Costello starrer, 'It Ain't Hay', which gets the gun today, and includes further Walter Wanger's 'We've Never Been Licked', 'The White Savage', 'Don Winslow of the Coast Guard' (serial), and 'Angela Is 22', being slated in the order named.

Film Previews

Get Hep To Love

(Comedy Drama With Music)

Universal production. Features Gloria Jean, Donald O'Connor, Jane Frazee, Robert Paige, Peggy Ryan. Supporting cast: Edith Barrett, Cora Sue Collins, Nana Bryant, Irving Bacon, John Abbott, Millard Mitchell, Tim Ryan, Douglas Scott and the Jivin' Jacks and Jills. Directed by Charles Lamont. Associate producer, Bernard W. Burton. Screenplay by Jay Dratler. Original by M. M. Musselman. Camera, L. W. O'Connell. Film editor, Paul Landres. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Ralph M. DeLacy. Musical director, Charles Previn. Assistant director, Vernon Keays. Previewed at the Ritz, Los Angeles, Sept. 25, 1942. Running time: 75 MINS.

'Get Hep To Love' is a neat package of spontaneous entertainment that will garner plenty of bookings in the regular runs, showing especial strength in the family and hinterland circuits.

Picture will greatly lift audience rating of Gloria Jean, who's showcased to excellent advantage, and indicate's she's capable of following through at Universal as a young successor to Deanna Durbin for ingenue singing stardom.

Story is neatly set up to display acting talents of young Miss Jean—and gives her a moderate amount of footage for display of her singing abilities. Role is of a child prodigy concert singer promoted by her ambitious aunt, Nana Bryant. Refused a vacation, girl pulls out on her own, is picked up by authorities for placement in an orphanage, and maneuvers to the home of Jane Frazee and Robert Paige for adoption trial. Couple take her in as their own, and send her to the town's high school. From that point on there's the usual scholastic romance, between Gloria and Donald O'Connor, and a school singing contest in which the girl withdraws because of her professional status. Miss Bryant finally discovers whereabouts of her missing mealticket, but girl selects Paige and Miss Frazee as her legal guardians to continue education and happiness.

Miss Jean provides plenty of sparkle and personality as the young singer, and capably delivers several standard numbers along the line, including 'Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes' and one number from 'Il Traviata'. Donald O'Connor delivers a strong and lightly shaded portrayal of the high school youth for prominent spot opposite Miss Jean. Cora Sue Collins is the girl charmer chasing O'Connor in competition with Gloria, and does fine in the role. Peggy Ryan clicks in comedienne spot. Excellent support is provided by Miss Frazee, Paige, Edith Barrett, Miss Bryant, Irving Bacon, John Abbott, Millard Mitchell, Tim Ryan and Douglas Scott. The Jivin' Jacks and Jills, juvenile rug-cutter group, appear briefly for a couple of wild dances.

Producer Bernard Burton expertly steered the production through to maximum attention. Original story by M. M. Musselman resorts to no synthetic dramatics in the unfolding, while script by Jay Dratler is crisp and effervescing. Direction by Charles Lamont develops fine pace, and keeps things at a light pitch at all times.

Bowery At Midnight

(Melodrama)

Monogram production. With Bela Lugosi, John Archer, Wanda McKay, Tom Neal, Vince Barnett, Anna Hope, John Berkes, J. Farrell MacDonald, Dave O'Brien, Lucille Vance, Lew Kelly, Wheeler Oakman and Ray Miller. Directed by Wallace Fox. Produced by Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz. Associate producer, Barney A. Sarecky. Assistant director, Arthur Hammond. Original story and screenplay, Gerald Schnitzer. Photography, Mack Stengler. Editor, Carl Pierson. Art director, Dave Milton. Sound, Glen Glenn. Musical director, Edward Kay. Previewed at studio, Sept. 25, 1942. Running time: 63 MINS.

Themed on the Jekyll-Hyde dual personality beam, this impossible story presents Bela Lugosi as a college psychology professor who by night operates under guise of a philanthropist but who really is a paranoiac, thief and murderer. But nobody really dies after they are ruthlessly shot because the old 'doc' in the basement operates in time, saves all and stores them away in a subterranean cellar against the day when they end Lugosi's time as he seeks escape from the cops.

Lugosi is good to no one but his wife, but even she is choked to death by him when he is uncovered by her simplicity when questioned by the cops. Tom Neal as the youthful trigger man for Lugosi bumps people off for the pleasure it affords him. That is, he shoots 'em but the 'doc' shoots 'em again with vitamins or something as saves them, faking graves for all in the basement of the Bowery mission Lugosi uses for a front. That's the cover-up for his safe-cracking, daylight robberies of stores and other evils which express his mania. All those killed are various kinds of crooks who were first used.

Lugosi does his usual masterful menace and John Archer gets in one bit of acting when terrified at imminent death because he has innocently uncovered his professor while getting material for a thesis. There all acting stops while cast mouths some very starchy dialog, tries to play impossible characters in an equally impossible story that will please none but the blood and gore fans due to secret panels, tunnels and all the clap-trap that makes mystery.

Story is not telegraphed, nor is the fade. But it is all so badly done that the would-be surprise finish falls flat. Direction is choppy, photography poor and musical scoring similarly uninspired.

Screen Actors Guild Nixes Free Airers; Cagney Installed on commercially sponsored radio shows.

Petitions, summarized by Franchot Tone at last night's meeting at the Hollywood Women's Club, told of the two problems that have arisen in the radio field making it difficult for players to give all allowable time to patriotic programs without, at the same time, being exposed to exploitation on commercial programs.

One petition seeks to halt networks from asking actors to work without pay or for minimum rates on sustainers of a patriotic nature, when there is no assurance that minimum will be increased to regular rates when the program is sold for commercial sponsorship. Second petition points out dangers of war service organizations augmenting funds by offering for commercial sponsorship big name shows at cut prices. Actors, either as members of such organizations or for patriotic purposes, become committed for such program without pay, or for a minimum compensation. Practice threatens the entire wage scale for radio work, SAG believes.

Guild membership also voted support of the SAG ruling forbidding members to appear in commercial pictures without pay. Guild holds such appearances narrow possibilities of compensated employment for the entire actor group. Members voted ratification of board of directors' recommendation that a standard waiver of clearance be signed for release of stock shots to be used in government training films.

James Cagney, succeeding Edward Arnold as president, was officially installed at last night's session. Full report of Guild's activities the past year was made by Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary, who said Guild membership had decreased from 8,683 to 7,192, largely due to war. Six hundred and twenty members have secured military withdrawals, while 319 are on temporary withdrawals for work in war industries.

Guild officers for the coming year include Cagney as prexy, George Murphy, first vice-prexy; Paul Harvey, second vice-prexy; Walter Abel, third vice-prexy; Lucile Gleason, recording secretary; Porter Hall, treasurer.

Newly elected members of the board of directors, to serve three-year terms, are Walter Abel, James Cagney, Emma Dunn, Cary Grant, George Murphy, Lloyd Nolan, Walter Pidgeon, Elisabeth Risdon, Franchot Tone, Charles Trowbridge, Jane Wyman.

SOEG Meets Tonight To Mull Judge's Request

Officers of the Screen Office Employes Guild will huddle tonight to consider suggestion of Judge B. Rey Schauer that attorneys Louis Stein and Frank Belcher replace Glenn Pratt and Pat Scollard as arbiters for the SOEG and Exchanges respectively. It is expected Judge Schauer's request will be okayed by Guild execs in a move to speed arbitration hearing on minimum wage dispute holding up signaturing of an SOEG contract with major exchanges.

Par-UA Product Deal Signed, Calls for $1,900,000 Down

New York, Sept. 27.—Deal under which United Artists acquires 11 Paramount pictures this year and 10 for 1943-44 release, on the two years embracing 12 Harry Sherman Hopalong Cassidys, was signatured Friday at noon at the Par home office.

Involving approximately $4,500,000, deal calls for a down payment of $1,900,000 on delivery of the first four pictures to go to UA, the block including one Hopalong western. With Par holding a chattel mortgage on other product being sold to UA, this 'paper' will be lifted as delivery is made and payment under a deferred purchase plan received. Total eventual amount on the deal may vary somewhat up or down slightly from the $4,500,000 total, depending on the cost involved in making of the pictures which apply to the second year of the deal.

Par, guided largely by an interest to aid UA at a time when it needs product, while at the same time it (Par) has a surplus of pictures, is turning over the film at negative cost. No profit markup is entailed.

To be delivered this year are six Sherman-produced Hopalong Cassidys, starring William Boyd; two specially-produced Sherman films, 'Silver Queen' and 'American Empire', and three program features, 'Young and Willing', 'I Married a Witch' and 'The Crystal Ball'.

For 1943-44 delivery will be six Sherman westerns to be made by Sherman on the UA lot, and four other pictures.

Ratified by the Par board of directors Thursday afternoon (24) and signed the next day, the Par-UA deal will be officially announced Monday by Barney Balaban, Par prexy, and Edwin C. Raftery, president of UA, in a joint statement. On the same day UA opens its national sales convention in Chicago.

RADIO DOING BEST WAR JOB, LEWIS TOLD BY U. S. CHIEFS

Radio's part in the war effort has been complimented by official Washington as 'the most cooperative of any medium', according to W. B. Lewis, director of the Office of War Information radio division, who planed back to the capital yesterday after passing several days here in conference with agency and network executives and members of radio's 'Committee of 25'. He also attended four meetings here set up by Nat Wolff, chief deputy to Lewis in charge of the Hollywood office. Lewis hurried back to Washington for today's session of Congress, at which Elmer Davis, OWI chief, and Lewis will set forth their budget needs for the ensuing fiscal year.

Lewis said Coast radio is doing a fine job in getting across the Government's allocated messages on network programs, but said there still could be some improvement in the quality and handling of these inserts. The OWI is getting a vast coverage, he declared, citing a recent report by Frank Stanton, OWI consultant to Bureau of Intelligence. Chart showed that in a cross-section survey of 30 stations, the time allotted to Government messages at the current card rates would amount to $64,000,000 this year. An average of 71.6 seconds per program now is being devoted to allocated messages, and while there is no need for additional coverage, the goal now is improved quality, Lewis declared.

Lewis took stern issue with the Associated Press dispatch, which stated that radio has 'failed miserably'. He said the honest and correct appraisal of radio's part in the war effort prompts such praise as 'succeeded admirably'.

'We are working on a timetable as much as in military operations,' he declared, 'and things are moving so smoothly that by Nov. 1 our organization should really be "singing". Every day counts, and the cost of war to us at the rate of $100,000,000 a day is so staggering as to bring about its victorious end without any avoidable loss of time. The sooner we end it the less will be the cost in American lives and dollars.'

Douglas Meservey, chief deputy to Lewis in Washington, who is remaining over for a visit with his family, declared that the necessity of training women for jobs to be vacated by men called to the Army or essential industry should be of vital concern to every employer. It can not be emphasized too strongly that such a readjustment is slowly coming, and those who have not prepared themselves for it will have no one to blame but themselves, Meservey warned.

Seymour Morris, OWI chief of allocations, planed back with Lewis.

So. Calif. Bond Rallies Rolling In More Coin

Total of $257,500 in War Bond sales was reached in San Bernardino Wednesday with military parade, Bond rally and premiere of 'Wake Island' at the Fox theatre. Victorville Air Base band provided the musical background for the day, with Eddie Cantor on the theatre stage for one hour and 45 minutes at night selling Bonds to the audience.

Yesterday Marjorie Reynolds, Binnie Barnes, John Carradine and others hit Santa Barbara to generate War Bond sales in connection with premiere of 'Wake Island' at the Fox Arlington. House, originally scaled at $1,000,000 for the opening, reported sales of $600,000 in the early afternoon, with final total of $1,200,000. Rally yesterday afternoon at Riverside tabbed $8,000 in sales at a luncheon, with day's total of $322,000. Huntington Park reported $200,000.

Canteen Opening Has 3 Bands Pledged

Hollywood Canteen for its opening next Saturday will have three top orchestras, Kay Kyser, Duke Ellington and Rudy Vallee will lead their own outfits during the opening ceremonies.

Vallee will lead the Coast Guard Band for the dedicatory ceremonies after which the trio of bands will alternate in playing the music for the floor show and dancing.

Bette Davis will make the welcome address on behalf of the Canteen of which she is prexy, with Governor Culbert Olson and Mayor Fletcher Bowron also doing the official state and community welcome.

Air Force Foto Unit Taking Over Roach Studio Soon

if AAF requirements necessitate exclusive use of the studios, Roach officials figure office and stage space can be obtained for the Roach releases at RKO-Pathe studios.

Appraisal is slated to be completed by Wednesday, following which facts and figures are to be forwarded to Washington for approval of studio takeover. Deal under consideration is particularly suitable both for the AAF and Roach. Air Force group has been looking for a fully-equipped studio to produce a large number of flying training films without necessity of waiting for delivery of new equipment, while the Hal Roach organization, with only a limited number of Streamline features slated for UA release, will be happy to get out from under the overhead of operating a studio the year 'round. AAF officials also are discussing takeover of nearby buildings formerly used by a military academy for barracks, and if latter deal is not consummated, barracks will be erected on vacant lots owned by Roach.

AAF photographic unit, during process of organization, has been stationed at the old Vitagraph studios owned by Warners. But latter plant is devoid of production facilities and equipment, necessitating search for more suitably-equipped space. It is expected the Vitagraph plant will still be used for training of enlisted personnel, after which enlistees will be switched to the Hal Roach lot.

If the Roach turnover of lot to AAF is consummated, which seems likely at this time, business execs of the producing organization will be retained. It is understood several department heads have been approached to become civil service employes under the AAF setup on the lot, although most of them have been casting around for other studio jobs.

WB Asks Dismissal of Pacent 1937 Suit

New York, Sept. 27.—A motion to dismiss a 1937 complaint for failure to prosecute Warner Bros. was entered in New York supreme court today. Plaintiff Stanley K. Oldden had sued as assignee of Pacent Electric Co., Inc., for damages of $225,000. Other defendants are W. B. Theatres, Vitaphone, and the Stanley Co. of America.

The original complaint called for payment on special sound equipment allegedly manufactured by Pacent on agreement with the defendants. Pacent, defunct in 1933, claimed to have received payment for only one of 100 machines ordered. A counterclaim by Warner Bros. sought $200,000 as moneys spent in defending infringements suits against Pacent. WB claimed the agreement provided Pacent was to bear such expenses.

UA REPS IN CHI SESH FIND PAR DEAL ABSORBING TOPIC

Chicago, Sept. 27.—High spot of United Artists convention opening at the Blackstone hotel here tomorrow, first of the company's sales meets to be headed by Ed Raftery, Grad Sears and Carl Leserman, will be discussion of the deal for distribution of Paramount product.

Outline of forthcoming product for UA release will include merchandising plans for Jack Benny pictures, Hunt Stromberg, Jimmy Cagney, Jules Levey and other units.

Though the Benny unit is considered likely to become active, other Arthur Lyons production plans currently do not appear likely to materialize in the near future. Lyons has been dickering for bank loans to cover production of eight pictures annually for a period of four years, utilizing name writers and talent handled by his agency.

New York contingent of delegates to the convention include home office execs, branch managers and sales staffs from eastern, midwestern, southern, western and Canadian territories, as well as UA producers and their reps. Among those attending are:

Gradwell L. Sears, Carl Leserman, Ed Raftery, Arthur W. Kelly, Harry L. Gold, Bert Starn, Harry D. Buckley, David Coplan, David E. Weshner, Paul N. Lazarus, C. M. Steele, Harry Kosiner, Phil Dow, Walter Gould, Tom Mulrooney, H. Schroeder, Sam Cohen, Len Daly, Arthur Jeffrey, Morton Nathanson and Herb Jaediker.

Among the producers and producers' representatives attending the sessions are: David L. Loew, William Cagney, Hunt Stromberg, Major Hal Roach, Jules Levey, Benedict Bogeaus, George Sanders, Seymour Poe, John Grierson, Edward Peskay, Louis Heyman, Budd Rogers, Steve Pallos, Arthur Lee, William Shiffron, Mr. and Mrs. George Burrows, George Bagnall and Lowell Calvert.

District managers include Edward Schnitzer, Charles Stern, Rud Lohrenz, Fred M. Jack, Jack Goldhar, T. Thompson and W. E. Callaway.

From Los Angeles those attending were Cresson Smith, manager; James K. Burden, William Warner and Guy Gunderson, while the San Francisco contingent included William G. Wolf, manager; Paul Bush, Jack O'Bryan and John O'Loughlin.

HUNTER LEADS FIELD IN GRID PROGNOSTICATIONS

Last weekend's games started the grid pickers' handicap season. As usual, there were several games that set back the prognosticators a notch. The two standout games which caused them no end of trouble were the Great Lakes-Michigan and the Notre Dame-Wisconsin U tussles. Notre Dame and Great Lakes were two teams that 'couldn't' lose. The Irish were tied and the sailors did lose.

Tabulation in Daily Variety, which will be scored cumulatively for every Monday issue, counts 'tie' games as 'no game played'. Following are the grid scorers' standings:

Theatre Help Problem Worse Since Opening Of Public Schools

Opening of schools has aggravated the theatre employe problem, shattering the hopes of some exhibs that situation would be eased some. Instead, job of getting youngsters to take ushering and other minor jobs, full or part time, has become tougher. Hope that summer loafers, the kids who literally enjoy their vacations, would go to work when school reopened has not materialized.

Situation is worse among boys. Percentage of girls available for work has not diminished or increased but remains fairly poor as it has been for some time. It's felt that gals like the glamor of theatre work more, do not like to travel as defense jobs demand, nor favor the ardors of heavier work. Boys, on the other hand, don't mind how or why of tougher grind so long as they can get their hands on more coin—and they can't get much in theatres. Added night courses in airplane piloting and other war and defense crafts, etc., is attracting young men, too, who are doubling on schooling now that they must return to classes.

Costs Dorsey $5,950 To Bring Band Here

Jimmy Dorsey and his band train in this morning on what is probably one of the most expensive jumps ever taken by a top outfit. So as to be assured through passage, en masse, from Chicago for tomorrow night's opening at the Palladium, Dorsey chartered two special cars on the Super Chief for his crew of 35. The check Bill Burton, manager of Dorsey, made out to the Santa Fe called for payment of $5,950. Dorsey will be here for some time on picture commitments and the Palladium engagement.

Metro Cleffing Chores

Musical scoring assignments handed out at Metro over the weekend include: David Snell on 'Right About Face,' Franz Waxman on 'Journey for Margaret,' and Lennie Hayton on 'Pilot No. 5.'

King On Location

Louis King, directing 20th-Fox 'The Seventh Column,' takes the company to Iverson Ranch today for three days location stance. Philip Dorn, Anna Sten, John Shepperd and Virginia Gilmore will work.

Paiva For 'Column'

TDB's Flying Squads Checking Theatres as Bond Drive Closing

With September War Bond Drive nearing its end, Theatre Defense Bureau's flying squads of inspectors will resume job of checking all theatres for compliance with regulations. Men have been tied up with industry effort to sell Bonds and Stamps, but will now finish up odd 10 theatres and amusement places that remain unchecked.

Digest of manuals which will be issued in card form for posting in theatres also are expected to be out next week. Cards will contain full instruction in brief, plus telephone numbers and other emergency information to combat the employe turnover problem, insuring that each employe will have knowledge of what to do in event managers and others are not on hand.

Spitalny Concert Draws 7,000 to Shrine

Phil Spitalny and his Hour of Charm all-girl orchestra commanded a capacity crowd of 7,000 at the Shrine Auditorium last night for their third west coast General Electric broadcast.

Program was a 'Pop Concert,' featuring soloists Evelyn and her magic violin, contralto Maxine, soprano Vivian Kathryn and her golden trumpet, Rosa Linda at the piano and the choir of 35 voices.

Tremendous hand was given Evelyn's E Minor Concerto by Mendelssohn, but during the 45-minute concert after the broadcast the audience seemed to favor Spitalny's modern swing arrangements. During this special program, Evelyn gave a preview of her solo for Universal's 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home,' the title being, 'You and the Night and the Music.'

Next Sunday will be the last southern California appearance of the troupe, which goes to San Francisco and Denver after winding up Universal chore.

Flynn's Solo For WB

Errol Flynn has revised his contract at Warners to a one picture a year deal. It is likely that actor, brought to pictures seven years ago by Warners, will do outside pictures under new arrangements.

Henri De Soto Acting

Henri De Soto, maitre de hotel at the Beverly Wilshire hotel, is acting for three days this week. Norman Taurog has him playing the 'maitre' part in the filmusical 'Presenting Lily Mars.'

Lowe's Col Termer

Edmund Lowe has been signed to a term deal at Columbia. His first assignment will be 'Destroyer Man.' Kline and Howard handled deal.

VAST CROWD PRESENT AT COUNTRY HOUSE DEDICATION

to Mrs. Pereira in the absence of the architect, now doing government work in San Francisco.

Dedication ceremonies, broadcast over CBS at 4 p.m., were attended by more than 3,000 people, representing all branches of the motion picture industry. Pre-broadcast program was opened by Robert Young as master of ceremonies, after many of the guests had visited the cottages and other buildings already completed.

Hersholt, in speaking to the assemblage, pointed out that everything now in the Country House was paid for, a fact that should make all those who have contributed to the Fund proud. He said the first guests will take up residence in the Country House Oct. 1 when a total of 24 ladies and gentlemen who have served the motion picture industry move in. The Sidney R. Kent Memorial Clinic will care for 18 patients in need of rest home care.

Hersholt in his radio talk gave thanks to Colonel Drake and his associates in Gulf Oil Companies for the sponsored air program of the last four years which did so much to make possible the building of the House. He also told of a new Screen Guild Theatre which will start broadcasting Oct. 19 over CBS, stating that through this new air series the expenses of maintenance of the House can be met.

Broadcast opened with Allan Jones impressively singing 'The Star Spangled Banner' while the Stars and Stripes were being raised for the first time on the grounds. Marine Corps Privates Napoleon and Nayfack assisted Ralph Morgan and Huntley Gordon in the flag-raising ceremony. One year ago yesterday, Robert Young told the crowd, the Relief Fund did a ground-breaking broadcast from the same spot on which yesterday's airing took place, and called attention to the accomplishments in that period of time.

Governor Culbert L. Olson declared the project was evidence of the 'unselfish hearts of the people in the motion picture industry, who at all times come forward to give their talents and services in time of need.' He said governmental offices know of the self-sacrifice and willing cooperation of the people of the picture business in volunteering to aid in times of war and disaster. He referred back to World War I and the Liberty Bond drives put on by such people as Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., William S. Hart, William Farnum and many others in drawing a parallel to the War Bond drives now being staged by present-day film names.

Joan Bennett spoke briefly in behalf of fellow actors and actresses, and Y. Frank Freeman, prexy of the Producers Association, spoke for the executive branch of the industry. Mary Martin closed the broadcast by singing 'This Is Worth Fighting For'.

Following the dedication ceremonies, marked by a total absence of the flash Hollywood puts into its charity efforts for outside causes, the crowd started conducted tours of the administration buildings, the clinic established by friends of Sidney R. Kent, the dining room theatre donated by Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Mayer, the Y. Frank Freeman Library, donated by Paramount Theatre partners, and the one and two-unit cottages already completed.

There is no mark of the public institution about the Country House. Livable and decorated with extreme good taste by members of the Society of Motion Picture Decorators, the project has the look of a luxurious country estate designed for the comforts of residents. When finally completed the Country House will accommodate 164 guests and already 31 of the 40 cottages planned have been donated. Cost of upkeep and administration will be met by returns from the radio show and interest on bonds.

Petrillo Pledged Backing By California A F of L

Long Beach, Sept. 27.—Solid support of Joseph C. Petrillo's ban forbidding American Federation of Musicians members from making records was voted by the State Federation of Labor, convening here last week.

Delegates, totaling 1,800, at the 43rd annual convention passed resolution which declared 'the action of the musicians was fully justified under the circumstances. The American Federation of Labor and the Central Labor Councils in California have become acutely aware of the problems that canned music are presenting to musicians and the constant squeezing it creates, resulting in the separation of a large part of the membership of the musicians from their jobs.'

Resolution stated the convention did not agree with the theory that the ban attempts to stop progress and the development of modern methods, nor that it can be in violation of the principles of American freedom and enterprise.

U's 'Phantom' Delayed For Tint Equipment

Universal's 'Phantom of the Opera', earmarked as one of the company's pretentious pictures on the 1942-43 program, is awaiting availability date on Technicolor equipment to start active preparations. Henry Koster, who will produce and direct, will have writers on the script while he and Myles Connolly are working on screenplay for '100 Girls and a Man', which Koster expects to make before starting 'Phantom'.

U's decision to proceed with the latter picture in Technicolor was confirmed by the experience with Walter Wanger's tinter, 'Arabian Nights', which seemed a forbidding undertaking until the $5,000 set ceiling was overcome by use of non-essential materials.

Busy Mr. Schilling

Gus Schilling, finished in Metro's 'Presenting Lily Mars,' is slated next for Joe Pasternak's production, 'Private Miss Jones.'

'Stars Over America' Pouring It On for Garrison Finish

Extra pressure displayed by the 'Stars Over America' tours over the weekend is expected to bring the September War Bond Drive to the established quota as campaign prepares to wind up Wednesday night. Machinery has been set up to take care of every bit of cash coming in up to the last minute so sales will be recorded for the month against the quota.

Plans are being completed by the Hollywood Victory Committee for the Army Relief Show in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. Film names now touring the middle west and the east will arrive in New York during that day for the final windup of the bond campaign.

Reports from New Orleans record a total of $4,000,000 in bond sales at a breakfast attended by Vera Zorina, Laraine Day and Andy Devine. Group took in better than $500,000 in Baton Rouge and reports are still to be made on their sales in Pensacola, Fla., and Mobile Ala. Dorothy Lamour, volunteering for four additional days after completing her original 10-day schedule, sold over $500,000 in bonds to a crowd of 25,000 in the Purdue University stadium. Same day she made a luncheon at Kokomo and a dinner at Laporte, Ind. Ginger Rogers clicked off approximately $600,000 in San Antonio, Tex. Jinx Falkenburg sold a snow ball in Hastings, Neb., for $1,000 in bonds and totaled better than $40,000 in an auction assisted by Harry and Al Ritz and Walter Abel. Charles Laughton and Ann Rutherford covered Schenectady, Troy and Albany, N. Y. in one day to good totals, concentrating on the payroll savings plan. Veronica Lake worked through Orlando, Palm Beach, Miami, Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla.

Paulette Goddard and William Garaan almost tripled the quota of a $500,000 bond lunch at Lancaster, Pa., and went $300,000 above the estimate at a dinner in Reading, Pa. They also boosted payroll participation from 12 to 80% at the Reading Airport Project. Eddie Cantor, Mary Astor and Dale Evans worked San Bernardino and then Cantor, Miss Evans and Cookie Fairchild did a bond breakfast, a rally and a bond premiere at Riverside. Binnie Barnes, Margaret Lindsay, John Carradine, Jean Rogers, Marjorie Reynolds, Ann Miller and Jimmy Vandiveer headed a rally at Redondo, accounting for $33,532 in cash bond sales.

Most recent arrivals back from tours include Fred Astaire, Greer Garson and Jane Wyman, Richard Arlen, Ralph Bellamy, Peggy Diggins, and Dorothy Cordray. Tour managers returning were Fred Stanley, Edward Lawrence, Gabe Yorke and Paul Price.

Tourneur Reins 'Zombie'

Jack Tourneur will direct 'I Walked with a Zombie,' for RKO.

Hitler seems to be facing the gravest crisis since he rose to power in Germany.

In Stalingrad his forces are still paying heavily for every foot they gain; the Russians launched a second offensive and now are endangering both Nazi flanks; the two most important Hitler puppets, Quisling in Norway and Laval in France, are facing grave crises in their respective countries, and the Japs, Hitler's allies, aren't doing so well either.

Conditions in general seem to favor energetic Allied action. Waiting for general 'Bad Weather' alone is not going to turn the trick.

UA SEEKING PRODUCERS; MAY RAID MAJOR STUDIOS

By MORI KRUSHEN

Chicago, Sept. 28.—An intensified drive to bring into the company as many more important and active new producers as possible was revealed today at opening of United Artists sales convention by President Edward C. HEAVY fan mail coming from men in the service is creating a problem for many film names, who find themselves unable to cope with increased requests for photographs, etc. Fan mail was turned over to the individual for handling some months ago but names only have private setups that can care for normal mail demands. Extreme example of how requests are made for pictures in a recent letter from a prisoner in a German concentration camp, permitted only two outgoing letters a month and one was to a studio asking for still pictures. Establishment of military training areas on the West Coast, as well as in other parts of the country is booming the fan mail business, nearly every service man wanting pictures of his favorite to decorate barracks. Suggestion has been made by Mary Martin that some central agency to handle mail of all film names be set up and subsidized by each one using the service. In this way costs of caring for mail could be minimized while taking care of all requests. At is it now, with each individual's secretary trying to cover a flood of fan requests and at the same time caring for regular business, mail is piling up unanswered and with little chance of even being opened unless central clearing house is organized.

NEW camera effect which combines sight and sound in variable concentrations of focus, under constant control, will be seen for the first time in the Charles R. Rogers production, 'The Powers Girl.' Mechanical device, conceived by Stanley Cortez, cameraman, is known as the Concentroscope. It consists of series of photo-electric cells attuned to modulations of controllable intensity beamed at any area of the screen which it is desired to emphasize or dim down. Its first use in the Rogers picture is to bring out certain players and musical instruments in the Benny Goodman band aggregation, while camera holds steadily on the band with one uninterrupted take and single focus for a whole number. The 'concentrations' are used in lieu of the usual camera closeup.

The Keystone Kops, when they began their never-ending chase
And flipped their insteps here and there and all around the place,
Ah, little did they reckon as they raced in Griffith Park
That they had branded pictures with an everlasting mark.

In time the cowboys joined the chase and galloped in the hills
And changed the comic formula to harsh and lethal thrills.
Along the dusty desert trail or in the mountain pass
The sheriff and his horsemen ride the rustlers out of gas.

And then came war and lofty tales of actors soaring high
To crash upon a foreign soil and there to do or die.
And now they chase along the Rhine, the Volga and the Don—
The good old Keystone formula goes chasing on and on.

The Falcon's Brother

(Melodrama)

RKO production. Features George Sanders, Tom Conway. Supporting cast: Jane Randolph, Don Barclay, Cliff Clark, Edward Gargan, Eddie Dunn, Charlotte Wynters, James Newill, Keye Luke, Armanda Varela, George Lewis, Gwili Andre, Andre Charlot, Mary Halsey, Charles Arnt. Director, Stanley Logan. Producer, Maurice Geraghty. Original screenplay, Stuart Palmer, Craig Rice. Based upon character created by Michael Arlen. Photography, Russell Metty. Music, Roy Webb. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino, Walter E. Keller. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera, Claude E. Carpenter. Gowns, Renie. Recorded by Roy Madows. Film editor, Mark Robson. Assistant director, Clem Beauchamp. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, Sept. 28, 1942. Running time: 64 MINS.

RKO had several problems in shifting the lead in its 'Falcon' whodunit series from George Sanders to his brother, Tom Conway. The results are sometimes confusing as developed in the original script by Stuart Palmer and Craig Rice. Naturally Sanders has to be killed off, but he has the honor of dying a hero, with Conway apparently amply equipped to carry on his brother's work.

Story permits too much blonde chasing by both brothers. It's hard to believe a fiction super-sleuth can do his best detecting if, when hot on a crime trail, he stops to ogle with a silly expression every curvaceous dish that crosses his path. This one has an espionage plot, backgrounded against a smart gown shop. Locale gives studio opportunity to show the nation's ladies that government fashion restrictions and victory dresses will work no sartorial hardship.

Sanders, as the Falcon, becomes involved in mysterious murders just as his screen and real life brother, Tom Conway, arrives from Latin America. When Sanders is laid low by an attempt on his life, Conway takes over, gathers clues that point to the editor of a fashion mag who is using his front covers to convey Nazi messages out of the country. Conway is trapped and Sanders recovers just in time to take over the chase and lose his life saving a southern neighbor diplomat from a death plot. Story confusion and loose-end clues and suspects dragged around allows Stanley Logan's direction little opportunity to offer the smooth perplexity expected from mystery plots.

Jane Randolph is the femme lead, playing a girl reporter, and needs further training before taking on stronger roles. Don Barclay is the Falcon's comic sidekick and Keye Luke is slick as the sleuth's handyman. Cliff Clark, the harassed police detective; Edward Gargan, his dumb aide; Eddie Dunn, Charlotte Wynters, James Newill, Armanda Varela, George Lewis, Gwili Andre, Andre Charlot, Mary Halsey and Charles Arnt completed the credited list of players.

Maurice Geraghty's production handled the budget requirements acceptably and the technical contributions measure up. Russell Metty did the camera work. The gowns were by Renie.

'Mountain Rhythm' Title

'Mountain Rhythm' has been selected by Republic as title for next feature starring Weaver Brothers and Elviry.

FILM WORKERS ASK 8-HOUR DAY; DOUBLE SHIFT BAN

compromise by the membership, a strong attempt having been made from the floor to force Local 724 officers to accept a program calling for a $50 fine for any member accepting a second shift at straight time. Floor leaders for the 600 members present insisted on immediate action, stressing the rubber situation, gasoline rationing and the expense of commodities generally as calling for the utility workers to be given the same consideration as other crafts, many of which now receive overtime after six hours.

The meeting finally was adjourned with union officers being instructed to press immediate demands for extension of the current six-hour day to eight hours, with overtime for the last two hours, as 'a duration measure', or to seek an immediate hourly increase.

It was the sense of the meeting that if the studios worked the men eight consecutive hours at the same lot it would result in better efficiency, the workers would be more contented, and the move would stop the rush of studio workers to get into defense plants where they are being guaranteed steady employment, as many hours as they desire to work, and a rate comparable generally with that now being paid in the film industry. It was pointed out men in order to make a livelihood under present scales are jumping from one studio to another, working one shift at one lot and then doubling up at another.

L. C. Helm, 724 business representative, admitted the union was losing men daily to defense industries, and that the Local now has 275 men serving in the armed services. He said the union often would find it difficult to supply studio calls without the men doubling up, and that surveys indicated the situation probably would become more difficult unless some enticement was held out to the men to remain on jobs here.

Helm said the men preferred to remain here where many of them have homes, but because of rising living costs many of them are finding it necessary to seek work elsewhere to keep from losing their homes. It is understood the move has the support of Albert Smith, international representative of the union, as well as H. C. Rohrbach, secretary of 724 and the Southern California District Council, and recently elected a vice-prexy of the State Federation of Labor.

the Long Beach convention. His name appeared on tickets of the Culinary Workers, Administration, the Teamsters and Building Trades, the only ones in the field.

Rohrbach currently is secretary of Studio Utility Employes Local 724 and of the Southern California District for the Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers of America. He is slightly under six feet two, and, as his vote indicates, is one of the most popular labor leaders in the district. Working closely with Government officials, he has furnished thousands of workers for defense plants here and in nearby states.

UMPI Reported Ready To Do a Foldo

New York, Sept. 28.—With both Warners and Paramount not disposed to change their stance against new conciliation machinery for settlement of disputes with exhibitors, official decision to fold UMPI is reported imminent.

This also follows polling of UMPI committee members, including exhibitor leaders, not enough of whom have indicated any wholehearted desire to continue the organization in view of recent developments.

With official decision ending UMPI's functions will come the immediate close of the small suite of offices maintained by it at the Astor hotel. Leo Bamberger at that time will return to RKO as sales promotion manager.

AFRA ASKS INCREASE UNDER 'COST OF LIVING' CLAUSE

and Sept. 15, 1942. Ken Carpenter is chairman of a committee named to investigate the situation.

The local move will be coordinated with negotiations of national AFRA. The 'cost of living index clause' provides that AFRA may give notice of a desire to seek pay adjustments at any time within 30 days after issuance of the 'cost of living index' by the Bureau of Statistics of the Labor Department. The next issue is expected shortly after Oct. 1.

The clause in AFRA contracts states that within five days after notice is received by the Producers they must grant the request or enter into negotiations with the union. It also provides that if an agreement cannot be reached within five days after negotiations start, the matter may be submitted to arbitration. The adjustments would apply to freelance singers, actors, announcers, etc., on both commercials and sustaining programs.

The membership, after considerable discussion, declined to place a time limit on debates. A motion to limit the floor time of any incidental debating a resolution or motion to three minutes was turned down, as was a motion to permit the chairman to shut off debate of any individual after he had spoken for three minutes.

Members still were voting last night in the election for officers, with balloting to end at 4 p.m. today. It was announced membership of the Local now is 1,850.

Attorneys to Arbitrate Collarites, Exchange Minimum Pay Tilt

Recommendation by Judge B. Rey Schauer that arbitration of the Screen Office Employes Guild wage dispute be turned over to Attorneys Louis R. Stein and Frank Belcher has been approved by the major film exchanges and SOEG. The impartial arbiter to serve with the lawyers will be named by Judge Schauer today or tomorrow. If the selection is made today the actual arbitration is expected to be under way by Thursday.

Business Representative Glenn Pratt of the SOEG, and Pat Scollard of Paramount, who previously had been named arbiters for the Guild and exchanges, will present their cases to the new arbiters. In making the recommendation, Judge Schauer said it would be difficult to select a third man to serve because of the close connection Pratt and Scollard had with the case.

Stein is counsel for the SOEG, being a law partner of Attorney George E. Bodle, now special assistant to William Hopkins, regional director for the War Manpower Commission. Belcher is a past president of the State Bar Association.

Army Deal Reported Set with Roach

It was reported shortly after last midnight that deal had been completed whereby Army Air Force, Photographic Division, would take over Hal Roach studios. It was stated Army unit would move in Monday, taking over exclusive use of entire lot and buildings under lease to run at least four months, for production of flying training pictures.

It is understood business execs of producing organization will be retained, with possibility some department heads will be asked to remain as civil service employes in AAF setup. Position of office and union workers could not be ascertained this morning, as company officials could not be located and Army representatives declined to talk.

Selznick-Par Deal Stalls; Is Awaiting Freeman's Return

ficials, and with Y. Frank Freeman returning west Friday, negotiations on the deal continue at this end, with Freeman expected to return east in a week or two, at which time proposition may be completely ironed out and signatured.

In view of the many details figuring in the setup, together with the questions of talent Paramount is not desirous of taking over, figure of $1,850,000 placed on the Selznick holdings was declared by a high Paramount exec today to be speculative. Only likelihood of the Par-Selznick deal falling through might stem from Selznick's demand for too high a price, plus inability to agree on values of stories, 'Jane Eyre', 'Keys of the Kingdom' and 'Claudia'. But if the added consideration is not too great a figure, Paramount may yield for eventual acquisition of other properties desired.

Paramount also does not want all of the acting talent held on contract by Selznick, former's interest being only in Ingrid Bergman, Joan Fontaine, Vivien Leigh, Gene Kelly and Dorothy McGuire. DOS also holds contracts with Valerie Hobson, K. T. Stevens and Alan Marshall.

Deal agreed on calls for two directors, Alfred Hitchcock and Robert Stevenson. It is understood here Selznick's only desire in selling out his UA partnership, disposing of talent contracts and other production assets is to enter war activity either in service or at a government post for the duration.

Victor Jory Top Heavy In Next Pair of Hops

Earnings Film Workers Off $3 Week; Living Costs Increasing

While living costs in the Los Angeles area mounted, average wages collected by hourly workers in the motion picture industry declined during August by nearly $3 a week. Living costs generally for this area went up 1.1% over July, 1942, figures, and have increased by 20.6% over August, 1939. Film wage earners were paid checks averaging $55.45 per week during the last month, working an average of 37.2 hours each week at an hourly rate of $1.489. These figures compare to July, 1942, rates of $58.36 per week for 38.6 hours each week, at $1.512 an hour.

Figures released in the California Labor Statistics Bulletin show jump in various items making up the cost of living, with increases being generally higher in this area than in San Francisco. Food rose 2.4% from July 15 to Aug. 15, 1942, and was up 25.2% above August, 1941, and 44.6% above August, 1939. Only three trades paid better than the film industry, but longer hours per week at a smaller scale were required to rise above film figures. Weekly wages in the industry for August were $5.93 above the $49.52 paid in August, 1941.

BOND DRIVE NEEDS A SHARP NEEDLING TO GO OVER TOP

With tabulation of weekend War Bond sales as yet incomplete, a nationwide telephone check yesterday by Treasury Department and War Activities Committee representatives indicated that the industry-led September sales campaign still is considerably short of its goal. It was stated that sales must be boosted sharply today and tomorrow if the drive is to go over the top.

The check-up disclosed a sharp slump in Sunday Bond sales, it was reported. With the campaign total estimated before the weekend as being $25,000,000 short, it was said this means the anticipated $30,000,000 daily average in sales will have to be boosted substantially in order to meet the Treasury Department's $775,000,000 ($1,000,000,000 maturity value) quota for the month. Campaign workers everywhere were urged again to convert all outstanding pledges into cash and to rush all cash realized from current Bond sales to nearest Federal Reserve banks before Wednesday night.

Itineraries of 'Stars Over America' personalities, meanwhile, were crowded to the limit with rally assignments. The Bond volunteers will work up to the last minute in an effort to make their part of the September effort a success.

The Hollywood Victory Committee completed travel arrangements for the players so all those finishing their tours in the east and middle west may be rushed to New York by train or plane in time for the windup of the 'Salute To Our Heroes' month campaign at midnight Wednesday. Among those scheduled to appear in New York along with the personalities already lined up in the east, are Edward Arnold, Constance Bennett, Bruce Cabot, Paulette Goddard, William Gargan, Hugh Herbert, Veronica Lake, Charles Laughton, Ann Rutherford and possibly Andy Devine. William Dover of the Victory Committee, who has handled assignments of talent on the 'Stars Over America' tours, planed from Hollywood over the weekend for the New York finale.

Maria Montez, Chester Morris, Dick Foran and Sabu leave for San Francisco tonight to participate tomorrow night in a War Bond rally at the Civic Auditorium. The affair is to be a variety show with the film stars headlining the other acts.

In addition to surpassing local expectations in most of the situations on their routes, the 'Stars Over America' headliners continued to effect solid gains in subscriptions to the payroll savings plan. In Indianapolis Dorothy Lamour talked to management and labor in plants representing 60,000 workers and obtained pledges boosting payroll savings 4%. Approximately $800,000 in cash sales was reported from a dinner at Cadle Tabernacle. Similar reports were received from points throughout the country.

Herman Wobber Subs For Tom Dillon, Hurt

Herman Wobber, western division sales manager of 20th-Fox, arrives today from his San Francisco headquarters to take over Los Angeles branch office during the absence of Tom Dillon, manager, who fractured his hip Saturday when he slipped and fell at his home. Dillon's hip has been set in a cast and he is not expected back for several weeks.

George Ballantine, formerly San Francisco branch manager and recently appointed western district manager, will handle northern end in association with Wobber.

Wallace Heads East

J. K. 'Spike' Wallace, president of Local 47 of the American Federation of Musicians, planed out yesterday for New York following a rush call from the office of James C. Petrillo, president of the AFM. Call was believed to concern the recording-transcription banning situation but reason remained unconfirmed last night. Wallace had just returned over the weekend from a union conference in Chicago on the Music for Victory campaign to obtain a government subsidy for music.

Golob WB Field Boss

New York, Sept. 28.—Larry Golob gets appointment to take supervision of Warners field exploitation staff, succeeding Lee Blumberg who resigned recently to join a hosiery concern. Golob will continue to handle magazines and syndicates in addition to his new duties.

Ill in Pix

Pioneers Open Rodeo Tour In New York

The Sons of the Pioneers are enroute to New York to open at the Madison Square Garden Rodeo on Oct. 8. From there they go to Buffalo and Boston for Rodeo appearances. Bob Nolan, one of the Sons, wrote the lyrics and music for 'Tumbling Tumble Weeds,' theme song for the group. Sam Huston Allen, business manager, is handling affairs of song troupe while on tour.

A & C Back In Harness; Working On 'Hay'

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello—after only a few days' rest from nationwide War Bond tour—started production yesterday at Universal on 'It Ain't Hay.' Erle Kenton is directing the first unit, with Eddie Cline taking the second unit at Pleasanton.

Thompson Retires

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Carl Leserman announced today that N. A. Thompson, 72, sales controller for United Artists, has retired. He is being replaced by Charles M. Steele, exchange operations manager.

Projectionists Local To Survey Drafting Problem In Ranks

Shortage of film projectionists at Local 150, theatre operators, due to enlistments, drafting and men going into defense work has union surveying membership to ascertain likely further depletion of ranks and means of meeting the situation. Conditions now are so that men are working as many as three jobs, with union attempting to answer all requests by supplying men. Members are obliged by union rules to take jobs if they have time off.

Though members presently are doubling and tripling in some cases, union is not eager to open its books to additional men. Feeling is that the Army and Navy are training many now and that union will be confronted with employment problems if they, too, encourage neophyte projectionists.

Familiarity with machinery aids those going into defense work. Army and Navy offer attractive ratings to projectionists, and some have been drafted. However, there are not many in latter bracket due to average being in older brackets, plus fact of many being family men and not so quick to alter their living and stability.

Dorothy Lamour Siestas After Whirlwind Tour

New York, Sept. 28.—Dorothy Lamour arrived here today after a War Bond tour of the middle west and east that started Sept. 5 and covered 125 appearances in 85 cities and towns. Actress rests here for a few days before returning to the Coast for her next Paramount picture. Treasury officials estimate Miss Lamour accounted for better than $35,000,000 in War Bonds on the tour, her last sale being made Sunday night in the lounge car of the Broadway Limited enroute from Chicago when fellow passengers bought $3,000 in bonds in return for autographs.

Lesser Aide Goes East

Sol Lesser is sending Radie Harris, his production assistant on screen version of 'Stage Door Canteen,' to New York today to tie up production details in preparation for east coast filming to start Nov. 1. She will negotiate for studio where replica of Canteen is to be built.

PRC Execs Arrive for Huddles On Budget And Production

Robert Benjamin, counsel for Producers Releasing Corp., trains in today from New York to join huddles between O. Henry Briggs, PRC prexy, and Leon Fromkess, production head. Briggs arrived Sunday from Dallas, and he and Benjamin plan a week's stay for budget and production confabs.

October production schedule for PRC lists six pictures to face the cameras, starting Oct. 5 with 'Queen of Broadway', with Sig Neufeld producing and Sam Newfield directing Rochelle Hudson in the lead. Next is 'The Pay-Off' on Oct. 7, with Lee Tracy starring and co-producing with Jack Schwartz, Arthur Dreifuss directing. 'Corregidor', under production helm of Atlantis, and to be directed by Edgar Ulmer, and 'The Rangers Take Over', Alexander Stern western, both roll Oct. 15. An untitled 'Lone Rider' western goes Oct. 20, and 'Gateway To Freedom', with Arthur Ripley producing and directing, starts Oct. 24.

Errol Flynn Gets New Ticket At Warners

Errol Flynn remains with Warners under new deal just signed, with ticket calling for starring appearances in three pictures per year; in addition to toplining and co-producing a fourth picture annually on a 'participating basis.' Although studio statement did not amplify the latter phrase, it is understood that Flynn will be cut in for slice of profits on the fourth feature he makes on the lot each year during term of the contract.

Elvia Allman Featured

Elvia Allman, the Cobina of Brenda and Cobina, will have featured role in Metro's 'Three Hearts for Julia,' and also has been set for spot in the Tommy Riggs show on CBS and on the Burns and Allen show.

Merivale In 'Land'

Philip Merivale set at RKO for one of the featured roles in 'This Land Is Mine,' Jean Renoir-Dudley Nichols production starting Oct. 19.

Harry Rosenthal Signed

Harry Rosenthal, pianist maestro at the Players, has been signed for featured place in Paramount's 'Miracle of Morgan's Creek.'

R. Florey 'Underground'

Robert Florey has been signed at 20th-Fox to direct 'The French Underground,' which George Kessel is scripting and Andre Daven will produce.

Scribbling

Frank Butler turned in his script of 'China' at Paramount and joins Lester Cole on the adaptation of 'Hostages', the Stefan Heym novel.

Harry Tugend started work on script of 'Let's Face It', next Bob Hope picture at Paramount.

Isabel Dawn is scripting 'Elusive Lady', from original by Frank Fenton and Joseph Hoffman, Jr., at Republic. Picture is under production wing of Robert North.

UA SEEKING PRODUCERS; MAY RAID MAJOR STUDIOS

independence by important producers, stars and directors.

In addressing the UA delegates this morning Raftery stated the company would go out and sign every important producer it could lay its hands on, raiding major lots if necessary. Company plans for quantity as well as quality production in the coming year, UA prexy stated.

Arthur Kelly in the afternoon said a major face-lifting job has been done in the company by Gradwell Sears and Carl Leserman. When UA owners failed to come through with pictures, Kelly said, the company, which never before had financed, borrowed $1,200,000 from Guaranty Trust Co. through George Burrows to make 'To Be Or Not To Be'. Kelly also paid tribute to Burrows for promptly offering $3,500,000 to finance the Paramount deal. Kelly pointed out the Company had made a great deal of money with the foreign department, while the domestic department has never yet been in the black. This was because it was obliged to give producers low distribution cost in America while getting profits from England and elsewhere.

All profits heretofore made in foreign markets were eaten up by domestic operations, Kelly said. Progressive steps now are being taken to make the domestic departments self-supporting via quantity as well as quality distributions.

Today's sessions, first to cover three-day stretch, was opened and conducted by General Sales Manager Carl Leserman, who informed the 200 home office and field sales reps this would likely be the last general sales convention of the entire international United Artists selling personnel until completion of the war.

Regardless of the Selznick deal with Paramount, the producer remains unreleased from his 10 year pact with United Artists if making pictures at any time. He is tied up with the company, regardless of any deal for his story properties or even if he sells his stock in UA.

Harry Sherman is negotiating a contract as UA producer after 1943-44, but has not yet signed.

Chas. Skouras Pauses In Denver En Route

Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast and National Theatres, did not return to his office yesterday as expected. Others of the group that toured the NT affiliates in the north and midwest before trekking to New York for NT board meeting came in, party including Andy Krappman, his executive aide, and Tom Paige, statistician. Skouras stopped in Denver for talks with operators of the Inter-Mountain Theatres, NT affiliate, and will return eary next week.

Charles Buckley, veepee and legal head of F-WC, and Irving Epsteen, insurance department head, stayed east also on company matters and train out today, to arrive here Friday.

WB Conclave Offed

Toronto, Sept. 28. — Warners Canadian sales convention, slated to open here for three days today at the King Edward hotel, has been postponed due to death last week of Lew Geller, WB Winnipeg branch manager. New date will be set by Ben Kalmenson, general sales manager.

NY LEGIT OPENING

License Commissioner Moss clamped down on all such entertainment in New York.

One thing 'Wine' may do is to make the city authorities again conscious of burlesque. This may not only mean an official rap for 'Wine', but also a reaction against Michael Todd's 'Garter', which up to now has escaped official censure because it draws an entirely different audience than the old fleshpots used to attract.

Jimmy Savo and Margie Hart top the cast of 'Wine'. Savo goes across nicely with his old vaude specialty, but Miss Hart, the stripper, who is comparatively under wraps, is stymied. She does one undressing bit to a special tune that sounds as though it were written by a grade-school student, and is otherwise confined to inane skits and blackouts, all old burley material.

Some specialties in the new show are okay, notably the Wesson Brothers, two imitators; Evelyn Farnee, neat hoofer, and Billy and Buster Burnell, mixed hoofing team. Comics are handicapped by material. Ensemble, directed by Truly McGee, is neither pretty nor talented, and majority of eight showgirls look like beef trust candidates.

Scenery and costuming are clean but not distinguished. 'Wine' is on a two-a-day basis, with three shows on Saturday, and that sked, plus its limited talent budget, may keep it going for a while.

U's O'Leary Killed

New York, Sept. 28.—Corporal William F. O'Leary, former Universal employe, has been reported killed in action. He joined the United States Field Artillery in April, 1941, and was seeing action in Australia at the time of his death.

Five More Bungalows Given MPRF Home; Two Still Coming

With guests preparing to move into the Motion Picture Country House Thursday, Jean Hersholt, prexy of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, yesterday announced donations of five additional bungalows. Only two cottages now remain to be contributed to meet the current planned total of 40 guest bungalows.

New donors to the Country House were the Motion Picture Lawyers, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Lesser, James Cagney, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Robinson and Mrs. Charles (Chic) Sale, who contributed a bungalow to the memory of her husband.

NSS Tries To Work Out System On Femmes

Henry Cohen, National Screen Service efficiency expert, arrived yesterday from New York to investigate employe problem that has Film Row in a dither. NS recently went in for hiring femme help for back room jobs, a departure, but situation continues to be a problem and Cohen will try to work out a system. Arthur Aaronson, western district manager for NS, trained out over the weekend for the north. He will spend three weeks checking branches in the northwest and mountain territory.

Station KSAN Hires Negro Announcer

San Francisco, Sept. 28.—Station KSAN employed the first Negro staff announcer ever heard in these parts to aid in piloting a hot music program, 'Rockin' in Rhythm,' airing from station Monday through Friday afternoon. Negro, Joshua (Lucky) Rhinelander, introduces transcription of jive music by colored bands with stories about the bands and members. A former Seattle prize fighter, he knows most of the ork leaders and members personally as well as being a jive authority himself.

Title Changes

'The Seventh Column', 20th-Fox, to 'Chetnik'.

Par Has Nine Features Lined Up to Start; All High Budgets

Paramount has lined up nine features for production start during the next eight weeks. Schedule, largest for the studio during any similar period, consists of all high-budgeted pictures, some carrying cost sheets as high as any of the past year.

Lineup includes 'The Miracle of Morgan's Creek', to star Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Brian Donlevy and Akim Tamiroff, under direction of Preston Sturges; 'Dixie', with Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, Marjorie Reynolds and Billy De Wolfe in the top spots, under direction of Edward Sutherland; 'China', to be directed by John Farrow, with Loretta Young, Alan Ladd and William Bendix in the leads.

Also, 'Salute To Three', which Ralph Murphy will direct; 'Frenchman's Creek', the Daphne De Maurier novel; 'So Proudly We Hail', starring Claudette Colbert, with Mark Sandrich producing and directing; 'Five Graves To Cairo', with Franchot Tone heading the cast under Billy Wilder's direction; 'The Story of Dr. Wassell,' a Cecil B. DeMille production in color, and 'Lady In the Dark', another color film starring Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland, with Mitchell Leisen directing.

EVELYN THATCHER

Evelyn Thatcher, 80, character actress, who was contemporary in the Mack Sennett organization with Mabel Normand, Gloria Swanson and Marie Prevost, died yesterday at her home, 1755 Griffith Park blvd., from a heart attack. She retired from the screen six years ago after playing in a number of Sennett comedies, followed by parts at Universal and in Educational Pictures. Born in Omaha in 1862, she began stage career at the age of 14 and became known in vaudeville as the 'Irish Lady', her parents being Mary Ellen and William P. Irish, non-professionals. Surviving is a sister, Mrs. Nellie Flynn, who is in the east. Funeral arrangements are being completed.

WILLIAM H. TURNER

William H. Turner, 80, stage and screen actor, who starred in title role of 'David Harum' back around the turn of the century, died Sunday at the Edwin Forrest Home for Actors in Philadelphia. A native of Ireland, he came to the United States in 1882 and had his first part with George Boniface in 'Streets of New York'. One of his last roles was with Tallulah Bankhead in 'Reflected Glory'.

Appeal In Tone Case Denied—

Appeal to the State Supreme Court has been denied William Seymour, jeweler, convicted of defrauding Franchot Tone of $14,000 in the sale of a sapphire and diamond clip. Conviction in local Superior court followed Tone's testimony he had bought the jewel from Seymour for $14,000 and left it in the latter's care to be sold for a higher price. Seymour, however, was declared to have sold it for $11,000 without informing the actor.

Kyne Tax Claims Settled—

Settlement of tax claims by the Government was announced yesterday in connection with excess income earned by Peter B. Kyne, author, and his wife, Helen C. Kyne. Amount of settlement was not revealed, but compromise was made on approximately $30,000 for the years 1922 to 1937 for Kyne, while Mrs. Kyne's amounted to $20,000 from 1929 to 1937.

Question License Lift Legality—

Six cafe owners yesterday raised the question before Superior Judge Ruben S. Schmidt as to whether the state can revoke liquor licenses because the U. S. Navy has declared the establishments 'out of bounds'. Among those petitioning for restoration of licenses are Cafe Internationale, Milano Cafe, Keg Cafe, Marigold Cafe and Tom-Tom, Inc.

Director Leeds Divorced—

Azalee Leeds, known to the screen as Azalee Cecil, obtained a divorce in Superior Judge Arthur Coats' court yesterday from Herbert I. Leeds, film director, charging mental cruelty. Married in March, 1934, they separated May 28 last.

Billy Livingstone East

Billy Livingstone trains out tomorrow for New York to confer with Sonja Henie on costumes for her new ice show. Rehearsals start Oct. 15 in Indianapolis, and skating extravaganza opens in that city Nov. 15. Livingstone returns here to design costumes for ice star for her next picture at 20th-Fox, 'Quota Girl.'

Majors Ready to Okay Three-Sprocket Frame To Conserve Stock

New York, Sept. 28. — Despite the adverse attitude of film engineers associated with theatre and studio technical work toward any radical change of film standards, especially during wartime, heads of the major companies are about ready to vote for changeover of projection standards to the three-sprocket frame in place of the present four-sprocket movement.

Front office attitude is that the switch eventually can save minimum of 25% footage on release prints for the domestic market, and even though replacement sprockets are not turned out by the manufacturers in sufficient volume for nearly a year to accomplish the change on theatre projectors throughout the country, favorable agreement by top company execs is anticipated to carry weight with government officials in Washington as conclusively demonstrating that the industry is cooperating in the war effort to the fullest extent. Any lack of materials or precision machinists that might crop up during time the required three-sprocket wheels are in process of manufacture, cannot be placed at the doorstep of the industry, according to favorable arguments advanced for approval of the idea.

Motion picture engineers and technicians generally have been reluctant to report favorably on the switch from four to three-sprocket pulldown at this time, especially with knowledge of the hazardous undertaking of having changes made in cameras, sound recording and laboratory departments, in addition to replacing total of five sprocket wheels in every theatre projector in the country. It is estimated that at least 175,000 separate sprockets would have to be precision-machined to effect the changeover.

Men Going To Services, Rep Leans On Femmes

Republic has set up first all-femme backlot department as a result of growing departures of employes for military service. Studio's film library has Mabel Johnson replacing Jimmie Lappert, and Lucille Kabusch taking over duties of Jerry Young. Lappert and Young enlisted in the Army Signal Corps. Ethel Amster is a new addition to the department, which continues under supervision of Hinda Means.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

Four years ago today, four men met in the brownstone Fuehrerhaus at Munich: Chamberlain, Daladier, Mussolini and Hitler. One man was not invited—Stalin.

It was Hitler's day, for he emerged as the man of the hour, a conqueror on his way to world domination.

Today, four years later, a few thousand Russians are meeting several times that many Nazis in Stalingrad. One man is not invited—Adolf Hitler.

It is Stalin's day — and he emerges as the man who stopped the Nazi conqueror.

SWG SWINGS INTO INDIE FIELD; LOOKS AT SCRIB GRIEVANCES

The Screen Writers Guild is preparing to extend its jurisdiction to the independent field. A committee has been appointed to compile recommendations from grievances submitted by approximately 25 indie scriveners at a recent parley with the SWG executive board.

When these recommendations are received by the board the SWG will prepare a uniform contract based on current pacts with the majors, but incorporating matters that are peculiar to the indie field. Independent producing companies then will be

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

ALL screen fights in which Yanks are pitted against Nazis and Japs in Republic pictures hereafter must show the enemy as a tough antagonist, by order of the company's top executives issued to writers and directors. This edict is intended, studio officials explain, especially for American youngsters who attend film theatres—to condition them to the thought and the fact that Americans are up against hard fighting in this war; that the enemy is no pushover against whom picture heroes can overcome ridiculous odds. No Republic film hero is going to handily lick a dozen or more Germans or Japs single handed, either with fists or guns. Especially will this rule be enforced in regard to westerns and serials, the normal fodder for the kids. At best, the American hero will not be permitted to knock off more than two of the enemy single handed. He will always triumph, but he'll earn the Victory the hard way. First definite exemplification will be seen in the cliffhanger, 'G-Men vs. the Black Dragon,' with fights against the Japs.

THOSE large block letters that scream from the early street editions of the downtown ayem and pm sheets have carried all the way to Washington and something may be done about it. On recent visit here of Office of War Information delegation from the capital, one of the group caught wind of the war headlines and immediately sent word to gather in a few copies of each for official scrutiny by the authorities. Tucked away in brief cases before the OWI'tes departed, among others, were the a.m's with such headlines as 'OREGON BOMBED' and 'HITLER CRUSHED AT STALINGRAD.' Government boys believe that for the sake of street sales the headline writers are going overboard and a staying hand is needed to shorten the reach of the lads on the rim who are exhorted to write a line that sells papers.

Judge Schauer Names Milmet Arbiter In SOEG Pay Tilt

ites. Milmet will sit on the arbitration board to decide what wages exchange Collarites are to receive, with Attorneys Louis R. Stein of the Guild and Frank Belcher of the exchanges. First session is expected to be held today to acquaint Milmet with the points to be decided by the arbitrators, etc.

The agreement inked yesterday is to run for one year, starting 10 days after the wage arbitration is completed. Employes are divided into six classifications, starting with typists and file clerks and ranging up to bookers. Assistant bookers are to be classified as apprentice bookers. The first six months they will be placed in wage classification three, the second six months in classification two, and after that in classification one, the highest wage division.

Wage scales will be retroactive to July 1, 1942. Contract calls for a union shop, the same as SOEG now has in the major studios. Exchanges will be permitted to hire outsiders, but if the latter remain with the company for 15 days they must become a member of the SOEG.

Workers receive sick leave of six days, two weeks' vacation with pay after one year's service. Grievance machinery is set up to handle employe-employer beefs, with arbitration machinery to handle any matters that cannot be decided by the grievance group.

The SOEG also announced that company executives had agreed to the bargaining unit for exchange employes in San Francisco and that a consent election will be held by the National Labor Relations Board to decide if the workers desire to be represented by the Guild. The exchange withdrew its request that bookers be excluded from the bargaining unit.

Bernard Lusher, SOEG secretary, goes to San Francisco today to sign the agreement, which has already been approved by exchange representatives. A general membership meeting of the Bay City unit has been called for Thursday night to advise workers of development.

Hal Wallis is negotiating with E. H. Griffith for one picture deal following completion of director's current assignment for RKO, 'Look Out Below,' which David Hempstead will produce.

EXTRA JOBS HIT NEW LOW; 17,000 GET WORK IN SEPT.

000 less than August earnings, which were the lowest in the past 13 months. Preliminary budget estimates by studios indicate October will be little, if any, better.

While fewer extras are being used by studios, the average daily wage has been climbing, indicating that casting directors are demanding a better class of atmosphere player. This is attested to by the fact that there were 1,000 studio interviews for extras during the past month. Central casting directors said this could be construed only to mean that studios were becoming more exacting and were selecting their own players rather than leave the choice to Central.

Extras claim the bulk of the work is now being given to the dress group with the top extra working on a $10.50 ticket when a $16.50 call is not available. It was pointed out this does not cause them to be typed as $10.50 players since they do not appear in dress.

The Screen Actors Guild is expected to use recent earnings figures in pushing for wage adjustments for atmosphere players. Negotiations have been waiting on compilation of figures which the Producers requested Central to prepare. The Guild has held up making specific wage requests until it has had opportunity to study figures relating to earnings in the various wage brackets.

There was some talk recently of asking the SAG to relinquish jurisdiction of $5.50 atmosphere work, but it is understood this has been abandoned, with approval both of Producers and the SAG. Producers realized that without aid of the SAG it would be next to impossible to find sufficient $5.50 players when mob or crowd scenes are necessary. The Guild, on the other hand, felt an effort might be made to organize the $5.50 group and that it would be taking a chance of having its jurisdiction raided.

With a new set of officers having just been installed in the SAG, it is understood the Actors will ask that negotiations be resumed shortly. The SAG also is seeking to better conditions for freelance, day and contract players.

Guild Show Tees Off With 'Dandy' Oct. 19

Screen Guild Theatre leads off Oct. 19 under its new Lady Esther sponsorship with a dramatization of the Warners picture, 'Yankee Doodle Dandy'. Leads in the film to reenact their roles are James Cagney, Walter Huston, Joan Leslie, Jeanne Cagney and Rosemary DeCamp.

Permission to have President Roosevelt's voice imitated has been secured from the White House. Second in the series will be 'A Yank In the R.A.F.', with Tyrone Power, Betty Grable and John Sutton heading the cast.

Film Execs Feeling Out Manpower Drafting

New York, Sept. 29.—Perturbed over the growing demands from government departments for the services of key men in the film industry, major company representatives have been commuting more frequently between Hollywood and Washington to find out how far the government intends going with call to films' executive manpower. Apart from drafting of younger men in production departments, in itself painful to the industry, concern is expressed over growing tendency to call on top picture executives.

Barry Quits Juke Pix To Make Features

New York, Sept. 29.—Jack Barry's Minoco Productions, heretofore making pictures largely for the juke boxes, goes into feature production in about a month in New York with 'Captain America,' tentative title. Frank Wisbar, director of 'Maedchen in Uniform,' will direct.

Dare Terping U's 'Hay'

Danny Dare is handling dance direction on Universal's Abbott and Costello starrer, 'It Ain't Hay,' and will follow with similar chore on Hunt Stromberg's 'G-String Murders' for United Artists.

'HELLO OUT THERE' 'MAGIC'

New York, Sept. 29.—'Hello Out There' and 'Magic', a bill of two short plays by William Saroyan and G. K. Chesterton respectively, opened mildly tonight at the Belasco theatre, with Eddie Dowling and Julie Haydon costarred. Saroyan one-acter, about a man murdered in a small Texas town jail by lynchers, is obvious and strident, but not sufficiently provocative. Its plea for lonely, misunderstood people is old stuff from his typewriter.

The Chesterton two-acter, first presented on Broadway in 1917, is equally specious and, despite heavy attempts at modernization of the dialog, it is too murky and dated.

Neither piece is particularly well acted, nor is Dowling's staging evocative. The dual presentation apparently has little box office chance.

'Mountain Rhythm' Rolls At Republic Oct. 5

Weaver Brothers and Elviry start their 12th picture, 'Mountain Rhythm,' at Republic Oct. 5. Frank McDonald will direct, Armand Schaefer produce. Hillbilly stars go on a personal appearance tour immediately following completion of picture, with Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington on the schedule.

Miss Loew Wed In K. C.

New York, Sept. 29.—Jane Constance Loew, daughter of Major Arthur M. Loew, and Mildred Zukor Loew, was married to Lt. Boyd McDavid Morse, U. S. A., Sunday at Hotel Bellerive, Kansas City. Captain Alpha H. Kenna, Chaplain, U. S. A., performed the ceremony, which was attended by members of the Loew and Zukor families, and friends of the bride and groom.

ducer, aided by Tony Hardt. Writing battery is headed by Joe Quillan, Izzy Elinson and Johnny Rapp, with Charles Marion and Carl Foreman as contributing gagmen.

Next of the Y & R entries to take to the air is Jack Benny, premiering the season Sunday with a new product, Grapenuts Flakes. Bob Welch makes his debut as producer, vice Murray Bolen, and Bill Morrow and Eddie Beloin are back as the writers. Program continues to air here at 4 p.m. on KFI and 8:30 p.m. on KECA, repeating via transcription. Benny's supporting cast will be the same as in previous seasons. His initial broadcast originates at NBC, to be followed by pitches at nearby camps before he shoves east for a lengthy stand.

Third to go are Burns and Allen, who share the Swan soap air budget with Tommy Riggs. Former take to the lanes over CBS Oct. 6, and Riggs strikes out on his own three days later on NBC. Henry Booraem produces the B & A opus, with Al Scapone as assistant. Writers are Frank Galen, Keith Fowler, Harvey Helm, William Burns and Paul Henning. Glenhall Taylor, Y & R headman here, produces the Riggs entry, and Scapone functions as aide. Scripters are Sam Perrin, Jack Douglas and George Balzer.

'Those We Love', Agnes Ridgway's dramatic serial, takes off Oct. 11 for Grape Nuts, but selection of producer and cast have not yet been completed. Another chapter play, 'The Second Mrs. Burton', has an Oct. 5 starting date for three-time weekly spin, but production setup and cast still are in the tentative stage.

Blue Will Radiate New Arch Oboler Serial

New dramatic series, 'To the President,' to be written and produced by Arch Oboler, will be launched on the Blue network from here Oct. 18. Each program will depict the personal reactions of an American family to the war.

Assigns Announcers

Assignments were given out to three announcers at KNX yesterday. Bob LeMond drew Arch Oboler's 'Lights Out,' Art Gilmore does the barking on 'Stars Over Hollywood' and Dick Joy takes over Bob Garred's two morning newscasts.

Series Dial Time

World Series, possibly the last for the duration, gets under way today in St. Louis. As in past seasons, all games will be broadcast exclusively on KHJ here. Here's the timetable:

Oct. 8, open date.
Oct. 9, at St. Louis, 11:15 a.m.

VARIETY PROGRAMS HOLD LEAD WITH LISTENERS ON THE AIR

Variety programs are still the most popular with radio dialers, it is disclosed in the semi-annual survey of Cooperative Analysis of Broadcasting (Crossley report). Given an average rating of 16.1, the air vaudders are tabbed as 'the most popular type of vehicle to carry audience appeal'. Runner-up is the audience participation show (11.4), which edged out dramatic presentations by one-tenth of a point. Other four of the seven major types lined up as follows: Popular music, 8.7; classical and semi-classical music, 8.4; familiar music, 7.4, and commentators, news and talks, 5.3.

All types, the CAB survey reveals, with the exception of audience participation, ended the recent winter season with lesser average ratings than in the previous years, but the decline in averages was traceable to growth in number of sponsored shows. The report goes on to say 'the rise of 7.8% in the number of programs was accompanied, however, by a somewhat lower average rating as compared with the previous winter season. Apparently reflecting the sizable number of newcomers to the task of building and holding a following, the decrease was a normal diffusion of audiences.'

In commenting on drama's dropout of second place, the report states it set a record with nearly one-third of all network time devoted to this type of offering. 'This marked upswing in the number of dramatic programs,' the report goes on to say, 'continued until there were 45 such offerings in 1941-42, as compared with 39 for the previous winter and 29 for the winter of 1939-40'.

Other highlights of the CAB report are: While the number of dramatic shows climbed 55.2% in three seasons, the diffusion of rating has been only 10.3%. Average rating in 1939-40 season was 12.6, a year later it was 11.7 and last winter slipped to 11.3; largest gain by percentage by programs of any type occurred in the growth of sponsored network newscasts. Last year there were 14 and the number advanced to 19 in 1941-42 for a rise of 35.7%; classical and semi-classical had the most appeal to upper income group and the least to the lower; melodrama was at the other end of the scale with the most appeal to the lower group and least to the upper; 10 high programs differed in every area; drama and serial drama on the daytime shift, with 62 programs and 79% of the time, ranked third in popularity as a daytime type, being outranked by familiar music, represented by only one program, and a trio of classical and semi-classical programs; daytime dramas averaged higher in popularity than hymns, talks, news programs and popular music.

One of the high spots of listener appeal was the 'demonstrations of the people's interest in their President's war messages and a paralleling growth of audiences of news programs in the months immediately after Pearl Harbor.'

asked to open negotiations on wages, conditions, etc.

The grievances submitted by the 25 scriveners working for the indies covered a wide field, including wages, layoff periods, story conferences, etc. The SWG will investigate all of these complaints, and will add anything additional which it believes would be beneficial if included in the proposed indie contract.

Projectionists Take In Permit Men

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Chicago Motion Picture Operators Local 110 drafted a new code last night providing that 350 members working on permits reported netting the union some $200,000 a year be admitted as regular members. An additional provision permits apprentices or junior members be admitted one for each five regular members, total number of juniors never to exceed 20. Apprentices will have a voice in meetings but no vote.

Picks 'Rurales' Lead

Cecil DeMille has selected Arturo de Cordova for lead in 'Rurales,' and states that latter picture will be postponed until after completion of 'Dr. Wassell.' Mexican actor, under term ticket to Paramount, just finished supporting role in 'For Whom the Bell Tolls.'

DAILY VARIETY SALUTES

Tom Kennedy, Jr., has graduated from O. C. D. school at Fort Knox and has been commissioned a first lieutenant in the Paratroop Division.

Songwriter Arthur Johnston, composer of numerous hit tunes during past several years, reports for Army induction Friday as a private.

Eddie Hunt, piano accompanist for Dick Powell, has reported for duty with the Coast Guard, while Powell's personal secretary, Harold Kinney, joins the same service shortly.

Ray Harper, former drama editor of Brooklyn Citizen and recently assistant director at RKO, has enlisted in the Army, reporting to Fort MacArthur Oct. 9.

Stanley Goldsmith, assistant director at Metro, reports for duty today with the U. S. Navy and will be sent to Davisville, R. I., for active service.

Les Orlebeck, director at Republic, reports at Wright Field on Oct. 4 as first lieutenant in the Army Signal Corps.

RKO Signs Donat's Son

RKO has signed nine-year-old John Donat for important child role in 'This Land Is Mine,' Jean Renoir-Dudley Nichols production. Youngster is son of actor Robert Donat.

Vanda to Wax N. Y. Stage Shows for Troops Overseas

New York, Sept. 29.—USO Camp Shows is lining up a comprehensive program of units for overseas duty to include playdates in areas all over the world and spots previously untouched by camp shows but now on the must list due to the presence of Yankee troops. Army also is planning to take entertainment to forces abroad via recorded performances of Broadway plays. Okay for such plans have already been granted by Dramatists Guild, with Equity approval expected soon.

Captain Charles Vanda, former CBS producer currently with Army Special Services, is working out the details for the Army. He intends waxing five legits for shortwave broadcasts to the troops, and if successful others will follow.

Newsreel Execs See End Of Exemptions

New York, Sept. 29.—While hopeful that some favorable decision may be made by Selective Service officials on technicians and soundmen, newsreel executives here do not anticipate any more exemptions for their staffs than will be extended to other branches of the film industry. It is noted that most cameramen are 46 or more in the newsreel field, with sound technicians in much younger brackets.

Swing Shift Shows

Milwaukee, Sept. 29.—First attempt to meet local demand of swing-shifters in war production plants for film entertainment at hours suitable to them is being made by the Fox-operated Paradise theatre.

Located in one of the city's biggest factory districts, house is not only presenting a round-the-csock show, but to conserve workers' time the theatre also offers free breakfast at one period and a midnight snack at another.

Factory hands are urged to attend the house in overalls either before or after work, and results of the first week indicate the venture will be a most profitable success.

Stuhler Quits Lyons

New York, Sept. 29.—Bill Stuhler has resigned from A and S Lyons agency. He came over from Young & Rubicam four years ago and is mulling two offers with a decision due at week end. Wilson Tuttle, who came over from Ruthrauff & Ryan about a year ago, has been upped to Stuhler's slot.

Army Needs Scriveners To Turn Out Highly Technical Stories

An urgent appeal for film writers with a mechanical leaning was received by the Screen Writers Guild yesterday from Army representatives. Message said scriveners were needed to turn out highly technical stories needed immediately for training films.

SWG was advised men would be given an opportunity to qualify for commissions or would be taken on as Civil Service employes. It was indicated men facing early induction as draftees would be accepted provided their qualifications were satisfactory.

The Guild asked that any writers interested in the appeal immediately contact SWG headquarters by telephone.

Jack Rawlins Directs 'Never Been Licked'

Jack Rawlins draws director assignment on Universal's Walter Wanger production, 'We've Never Been Licked', on heels of his piloting Wanger's 'Arabian Nights'.

To get preliminary material and acquaint himself and staff with the institution and background for 'Never', the saga of Texas A. and M. college, Rawlins and unit members leave for Texas tomorrow. Director will be accompanied by his assistant, Fred Frank, and the associate art director, Alex Golitzen. Later they will be joined by the cameraman, Milton Krasner; music director, Ken Darby, and members of the crew, to complete plans for filming on location, late in October.

Chorus Recruited Here For Sonja Henie Show

Sixty chorus members have been recruited here for the new Sonja Henie ice show by Arthur Wirtz and latter leaves the end of the week for Chicago to further plans for initial opening of the show. Thirty-two men are included in skating chorus, but no 1A's or other prospective draftees were set. Males are all between 17 and 18 years old so show's tour will be uninterrupted.

Deal On 'Bambi'

Deal is on between Fox-West Coast and RKO for former to get first-run crack at 'Bambi,' picture being sold away from Pantages and RKO Hillstreet theatres which normally get RKO films for first run. Houses have heavy backlog of product and are permitting RKO to peddle the Walt Disney picture to other exhib.

Hornblow Heads East

Arthur Hornblow, Jr., leaves for New York today for confabs with S. N. Behrman on script of 'Quo Vadis,' which producer will make at Metro. He will also take in the play, 'Angel Street,' which is to be filmed as 'Gaslight.' After his New York look-around, Hornblow goes to Washington to confer with officials on 'Mary Smith, U. S. A.'

Col's First Horror Pic

Columbia will make as its first horror picture 'Kingdom of the Dead,' to feature a top femme name. Sam Bischoff will produce from the original screen play by Al Martin. Writer has completed script. Casting is to start early next week.

SMPE Report Smacks Three Sprocket Plan For Film Saving

New York, Sept. 29.—Report of Society of Motion Picture Engineers on various proposed film conservation devices issued this week indicates little relief is in sight immediately via the Sponable or other methods discussed so far.

SMPE members, who've witnessed test projections of the three-sprocket film saving plan here, are not enthusiastic about the possibilities. The report points out flaws, both economical and physical, by means of a series of pertinent questions. The SMPE, in making its report after exhaustive study and investigation and pledging cooperation in seeking some new workable method for film conservation—cites major engineering problems for studios, laboratories, exchanges, distributors and exhibitors.

Even if the industry could stand the cost of the complete makeover, with the old four-sprocket standards applying for foreign prints, it is doubted by the engineers if materials and precision machinists necessary to make the replacement parts would be available under the present wartime setup.

U. S. Air Cooling Grab May Close Theatres During Summer

New York, Sept. 29.—In wake of the revelation that the War Production Board plans to requisition air cooling plants in theatres and other business houses, were expressions among exhibitors in New York that we may be forced to close down during the summer months. Exhibs also declared that 'the government is trying to put us out of business when we're vitally needed.'

It is doubted here that there would be any wholesale commandeering of equipment. It was also pointed out that the labor job involved in removing equipment wanted by the WPB would be a big one.

Hollywood Bond Buys In Month $2,190,000

Total of $2,190,000 worth of War Bonds was sold to members of the Hollywood branch of the film industry during the September Bond campaign, according to announcement by Henry Ginsberg, chairman of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff, Treasury Department.

Figure represents cash sales of $1,410,000, and payroll savings for 10% or more of weekly earnings during the month of $780,000. More than 17,000 film workers locally are subscribing 10% or more of salaries for War Bond purchases, and during September more than 3,000 increased subscriptions to 20% or more of salaries.

DRIVE SPEEDS TO A BLAZING CLIMAX, BOND SALES MOUNT

Belief that the film industry's billion dollar maturity-value War Bond drive would go over the top by closing time tonight was expressed yesterday by Treasury Department representatives and campaign leaders, following receipt of reports of a sudden upsurge in sales throughout the country.

Campaign workers' last-minute efforts were given impetus by the Treasury Department's report for Monday, which showed $60,265,000 in Bond sales, a record day. This brought the total for the month, including Monday, to $700,023,000 in cash receipts, leaving less than $75,000,000 to be realized during the final two days.

Eleven screen personalities, a majority of whom have participated in the nationwide 'Stars Over America' tours during the month, have been lined up by the Hollywood Victory Committee to provide a whirlwind finish to the campaign in New York. As the climax of tonight's Army Relief show in Madison Square Garden, they will appear at 11:45 p.m. to make a final 'Million-dollars-a-minute' War Bond pitch to the audience and auction personal belongings to top bidders.

Stars participating in the finale will include Edward Arnold, Constance Bennett, Joan Blondell, William Gargan, Paulette Goddard, Veronica Lake, Dorothy Lamour, Charles Laughton, Pat O'Brien, Ann Rutherford and Vera Zorina.

Colonel Richard Patterson, New York state chairman of the Treasury Department's War Savings Staff, will introduce Harold N. Graves, assistant secretary of the Treasury, who in turn will present personal letters from Secretary Morgenthau voicing appreciation of the Bond selling efforts of each of the stars present. Similar letters will be mailed simultaneously to more than 40 other personalities who have taken part in the 'Stars Over America' tours.

Typical of the eleventh-hour stimulation of Bond selling efforts was Monday's report from Philadelphia, visited by Paulette Goddard and William Gargan. Despite the fact that Philadelphia had produced quota-shattering totals for Hedy Lamarr at the opening of the 'Salute To Our Heroes' month drive, 11 women's organizations joined in sponsoring a $1,000-a-plate luncheon for the two stars which netted $1,560,375 in cash Bond sales. And a dinner at Chester, Pa., grossed better than $750,000.

Accurate reports on rallies headlined by other stars, including Dennis Morgan, Irene Manning, Jinx Falkenburg, Ginger Rogers, Vera Zorina, Laraine Day, Andy Devine, Veronica Lake, Constance Bennett and Bruce Cabot were unavailable as the players stepped up the pace of the campaign, moving along to succeeding rallies before Bond sales could be totaled.

Candidates also may be nominated by petition by AGVA members, but the membership generally approves the nominating slate, with additions sometimes being made at the general meeting.

Canal Zone No Like Our Pic Treatment

Anton, Canal Zone, Sept. 29.—Film patrons here are again in a furore over Hollywood's recent film 'insults' to the Canal and its population. Latest picture to get the razz is the film titled 'Canal Zone.' Most of the beefs are based on the contention that any of the picture's resemblance to actual conditions 'is strictly a mistake.'

Tough Job

New York, Sept. 29.—Foreign propaganda isn't the soft touch it seems, as when other countries were sole practitioneers of the art and America stood quietly on the sidelines, many government newsreel press and radio officials have learned. It's one long headache to decide what to say and what not, with the 'experts' generally disagreeing.

Strange Sued For Divorce—

Mrs. Blanche M. Tweed, writer, known as Michael Strange, who is former wife of the late John Barrymore and mother of Diana Barrymore, was sued for divorce in Reno yesterday by Harrison Tweed, New York lawyer, charging mental cruelty.

Greer Garson Sued For Divorce—

Greer Garson, star of 'Mrs. Miniver', has been cited by a suit for divorce, filed in London by Edward A. A. Snelson, a civil service employe in India. He charges desertion. Miss Garson obtained a divorce in Los Angeles from Snelson May 8, 1940. British law, however, does not recognize some American divorces.

Stone Wins Full Title—

Lewis Stone yesterday won full title to the 300 acres he bought for a ranch home in the Malibu mountains, by a ruling in Superior Judge Frank M. Smith's court. One-acre plot on property was claimed by Mr. and Mrs. James H. Robert, who contended they did not intend to include plot in a quit-claim deed they signed with a land company, which later sold the property to Stone.

Talent Scout Schulberg

New York, Sept. 29.—Ad Schulberg joined Columbia last week as eastern talent scout, and will cover entire talent field in this sector, arranging and staging screen-tests, etc. She's the former wife of Ben Schulberg, currently a producer at Columbia coast studios.

Indie Exhibs to Meet At Klamath Falls On Trade Matters

Robert Poole, exec secretary of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, has called a meeting of board of trustees for Oct. 7 at Klamath Falls, Ore. Point is about halfway between Los Angeles and Seattle, and selected because of unavailability of hotel accommodations at any other key point.

Meeting will be attended by L. O. Lukan and William Ripley, representing indies of Washington, Idaho and Alaska; Bob White and N. W. Mattacheck, for Oregon; Rotus Harvey and Ben Levin, for northern California and Nevada, and Hugh Bruen, Poole and Jack Berman, repping southern California and Arizona.

Agenda of meet will take in PCCITO's action in UMPI, priorities, reduction of production in feature pictures, the 20% reduction in prints in relation to clearance of films, cooperation with government in showing of Victory reels, plus regular business session.

UMPI Doing El Foldo After Cold Reaction

New York, Sept. 29. — Official death sentence was imposed on UMPI today by William F. Rodgers, chairman of the committee of the whole, in a letter to all members of his committee.

Rodgers' communication to committee members that data collected from exhibitor members expresses the opinion that UMPI activities should cease under present conditions. Leon Bamberger has been instructed to close the UMPI office in the Astor hotel as of Oct. 2.

UMPI chairman expressed hope that at some more propitious time UMPI might be resumed, and that gains achieved in better understanding not be lost. The effect of the sincere negotiations of UMPI are certain to be felt for a long time, he stated, concluding that UMPI is entirely out of funds at this time, and that Loew's, Inc., advanced $1,000 to liquidate all bills.

Funeral services for Mrs. Henry Epstein, 56, mother of Philip and Julius Epstein, Warners writers, who died here Monday of heart attack, will be held in New York. Epstein brothers are accompanying their mother's body back east. They will remain in New York several weeks.

'Dolly Gray' Shapes Up As Set Headache At 20th-Fox

20th-Fox is going ahead with preliminary script and breakdown on 'Goodbye Dolly Gray' in spite of anticipated trouble that may develop due to the $5,000 set limitation. Lamar Trotti, who took over production reins when Milton Sperling went into service, is continuing advance work, figuring some way to present the cavalcade of the United States to advantage while staying within the set ceiling, will develop.

Story line may be switched to better fit production under war conditions. Indicative of this is the studio purchase of 'In Time To Come', play about Woodrow Wilson, from which material will be used in the script Trotti is lining up.

Only picture to be definitely shelved at 20th-Fox because of the set ceiling was 'The Night the World Shook'. Production would have required the erection of town sections on rockers to simulate an earthquake—a much more expensive operation than permitted under government regulations.

Selznick, Schaefer In Line for WPB Post

New York, Sept. 29. — Besides David Selznick, who has been in and out of Washington lately, George Schaefer, former RKO president, is reported a strong candidate for coordinator of film production and other industry matters with the War Production Board.

Not satisfied with the way things have been going, the industry wants a film executive in Washington to represent it. Schaefer, recently hospitalized, currently is working with the War Activities Committee.

E. J. Mannix, previously mentioned for a Washington assignment, is reported to have refused to head the salvage campaign, and has since returned to the Coast.

Scribbling

Doris Malloy assigned to write 'My Son, the Hero', Atlantis production for Producers Releasing Corp., which Edgar Ulmer will direct, starting in November.

Keith Winters has checked in at Warners to write script on 'Five Doors', which Henry Blanke will produce. Yarn is an original by Robert Siodmak and Alfred Neuman.

Norman S. Hall is on screenplay of 'Prairie Pals', a Republic Three Mesquiteer.

Edwin Justus Mayer goes to Columbia on a writing deal set by the John McCormick office to work on an untitled story to star Rita Hayworth and Humphrey Bogart.

Jack Townley draws assignment at RKO to screenplay 'The Captain's Confusion', Joseph Marshal magazine yarn slated for Joan Carroll.

Eric Taylor has completed script on Universal's 'The Son of Dracula', and has checked off the lot.

Bennett Cohen has been signed by Harry Sherman to do the screenplay on 'Rustler's Island', forthcoming Hopalong Cassidy western for United Artists release. Hallam Cooley agented.

UA REVERSES SALES POLICY, WILL SELL BLOCKS OF 15 PIX

nancing. The sales policy and merchandising will be concerned only with those pictures on which delivery is assured.

This would include, among others, three or four Hunt Stromberg productions; 'One of Our Aircraft Is Missing' and 'Jacare', which will be sold in one block including the Sherman productions, and Roach series later. The Cagney, Bronston, Benny and other pictures will be sold if, as and when produced, either singly or in block, depending on completion dates.

Mainstay and support of the United Artists distribution system for the coming six months will be product acquired from Paramount in deal just closed. Apart from the Sherman westerns and three Par features, balance of independent production doesn't look at this time as likely to materialize until late in the selling season of 1942-43.

Sherman is scheduled to deliver eight Hopalong Cassidys already completed, plus three outdoor specials, which, added to the three regular Par features acquired, gives UA total of 14 releases from the Par acquisition for 1942-43 program. Sherman plans to turn out nine outdoor features for 1943-44, including one about Buffalo Bill in Technicolor, with Joel McCrea, and the last Will James' novel, 'American Cowboy'.

For the rest of the production, UA owner-members continue apathetic toward any production on their own. Charles Chaplin is reported to have two scripts completed, including 'Lady Killer', in which he would star, but has so far taken no steps toward production. Alexander Korda doesn't promise to become active this year, while James Cagney is planning two but hasn't started one yet very far toward the production line. The Jack Benny unit looks promising for either one or two pictures within the next 12 months, while Arthur Lyons' four other units are in the embryonic talk stage.

Hal Roach plans to make four Streamliners in addition to the eight currently ready and in release. Roach stated at today's UA sales meeting his business would continue actively in the hands of his associates and UA while he's in the Army, and asked salesmen to improve playing time and revenue from last year's pictures.

Hunt Stromberg told the gathering he plans building a company and not just a unit, expecting eventually to go to four or five pictures annually. He referred to the good market currently existing for films on account of demands of servicemen for picture entertainment, and the war trend generally.

In introducing Harry Sherman today, Grad Sears said UA wanted a definite reason for all theatres in the United States, large and small, to do business with the company. Steve Pallas, Korda's rep, said producer's plans this year are indefinite.

Colin MacDonald Cleffs Shorts for the Army

Colin MacDonald, former music writer for 20th-Fox, has been commissioned by the Army to produce a series of musical shorts patterned after the old bouncing ball community sing shorts. MacDonald is negotiating with Victory Committee to obtain singing film stars and others to highlight each of morale builders by leading off sing and accompanying service men who will follow superimposed lettering of song lyrics on film frames.

MacDonald was released from Army service just prior to the war after serving his selective service training period.

Studio Illustrators Pay Agreement Will Be Mulled Tomorrow

Wage demands of Studio Illustrators will be discussed tomorrow at a conference between Pat Casey, Producer labor contact; major studio managers, and a committee representing the Screen Set Designers. Producers, having made a survey of the work done by illustrators to determine its importance to production, are expected to make a new counter-proposal to the group.

The Designers' committee will be headed by Prexy Joseph Sternad, Business Representative Ed Mussa and Les Thomas, of the Illustrators unit of the SSD. Prexy Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions is scheduled to sit in on the negotiations. The session is set for 3 p.m.

Much Location Work On Metro Schedule

Location work is playing a more prominent part in filming of Metro productions in studio's efforts to continue obtaining realistic settings while staying within the $5,000 set ceiling placed by government order. During past 30 days studio has used more than 25 location sites for work on six pictures, or more than three times the amount of off-the-lot shooting during any past period.

Sites for the pictures ranged from Washington state to Canoga Park, and from the Monterey peninsula to Irvine park in Santa Ana. Other spots included Del Monte, Lake Sherwood, Balboa bay and the Santa Monica mountains. Pictures involved in the mass exodus from the lot past 30 days included 'Lassie Come Home', 'Presenting Lily Mars', 'Assignment In Brittany', 'The Human Comedy', 'Three Hearts For Julia' and 'Nothing Ventured'.

Herb McIntyre Starts F-WC Sales Confabs

Herb McIntyre, western division manager of RKO, has started his sales confabs with Fox-West Coast film buyers on first block of five films, plus extra deal on 'Bambi.' Pictures in first batch include 'Here We Go Again,' 'Big Street,' 'Wings and the Woman,' 'Highways by Night' and 'Mexican Spitfire's Elephant.'

Chaplin Heads Festival

Charles Chaplin leaves next week for New York to act as chairman of Art Festival Week, sponsored by Russian War Relief.

Important from NATIONAL SCREEN SERVICE CORP.

Dear Mr. Exhibitor:

The War Production Board has ruled that it will temporarily permit the use of some raw stock for the manufacture of Special Service trailers.

Whether or not this ruling will continue rests in great measure upon you and ourselves.

It is our joint task voluntarily to reduce this use of raw stock to such an extent that the present ruling will not have to be revised.

We shall try to do our part as best we can.

We can no longer give assurances that all orders for Special Service trailers will be filled.

We shall endeavor to fill those orders which conform to the preferences of the War Production Board.

Accordingly, Special Service trailers related to the war effort will be given priority. This includes trailers referring to the collection of scrap, rubber salvage, blackout regulations, aircraft warnings, instructions on fighting fire-bombs, local war hero days and kindred subjects.

If your request is for a Special Service trailer advertising your own shows, such as personal appearances of stars or stage attractions, we will do our best in each instance to obtain the permission of the War Production Board to meet your order because we recognize the importance to you of advertising your show on your screen.

You must do your part as well. We know that all of you are only too anxious to do so. You can do your part by eliminating all uses of Special Service trailers, other than those related to the war effort and advertising your own show. Please do not request Special Service trailers for any of the other purposes for which they have been used in the past.

All of us must make every possible sacrifice to contribute to the conservation program.

It has been our earnest effort in the years of our service to the industry, to conduct our business in such a manner as to earn your good will. We are hopeful that it will not now be forfeited by our inability, for reasons of national policy, to furnish you with the full service which has heretofore prevailed.

Sincerely,

NATIONAL SCREEN SERVICE CORPORATION

Herman Robbins
